"When mother came back she brought things to eat. She gave me some cookies and a box of water colors for my birthday.

"When she tucked me into bed last night she was smiling. My mother is very good. Her eyes are beautiful. When she kissed me I could feel her tears on my face. She turned out the light and stood beside my bed for a long time. It was very quiet. I could hear her say a prayer."

I DID NOT receive this letter. It was sent to me by a man who said he had received it. Maybe he is not telling the truth. Maybe it is a piece of fiction. I do not know. But to be on the safe side I have changed all the names in it. If it really is what it seems to be, it might be sent back to Germany and the writer might be identified. I am taking no chances.

Even if it is fiction, it is good fiction. The picture of the ex-soldier taking out his medal and holding it in his hand—that is a vivid picture. It is too vivid. No, I do not think this letter is fiction.

I would be happier if I thought it were.

WEALTH AND HEALTH.

(Detroit Free Press)

AMERICANS, as a nation, are not so rich as they were in 1929, but they are healthier, according to the United States Public Health Service.

The national death rate this year is 11 per thousand of population, which has been bettered only once in the history of the country. That was in 1933, in the depth of the depression, when the rate was 10.8 per thousand.

A variety of factors are mentioned by the Public Health Service as contributing to a lower death rate.

Among these factors are absence of major epidemics, expansion of public health facilities and health education, and increasing interest in the medical needs of lower-income groups.

These factors may have figured in keeping more people alive in the last few years, but is it not fair, also to suspect that some of the indicated improvement in our national health and longevity has been due to the soberer and saner life that these financially-lean years have compelled millions of our countrymen to lead?

The high, wide and handsome life of the golden era was very thrilling—and perhaps, too, a bit killing.

YOUTHFUL MAYOR.

(Port Arthur News-Chronicle)

IT IS ENCOURAGING to find so many of the younger men ready to render service in the mayors' chairs and gaining success at the polls. Brockville now has one of the youngest of Ontario's mayors, and the same preference on the part of the voters is visible elsewhere. David Croll, a comparatively young man, defeated 72-year-old Colonel Wigle in Windsor. J. Allan Johnston, another young man, led the field over three veterans in London and Peter Laing, junior, aged 35, secured election in St. Thomas.

MOTORLESS BERMUDA

• Expenses of Municipal Election

(From the Kingston Whig-Standard)

WHEN the electors of Victoria Ward re-elected Ald. C. P. Dalton at the head of the poll they made no mistake. Perhaps, the fact that ever since he has been a member of the City Council, Ald. Dalton has been regarded as a watch-dog of the treasury, and has endeavored to treat public money as if it were his own, helped to pile up the large majority for him.

At the council meeting last Tuesday, Ald. Dalton probably saved the taxpayers of Kingston from $150 to $250 when he suggested that the proposed increase in our municipal election expenses be left over to next year's council.

In these days when Kingston has a tax rate of over 43 mills and a fairly high assessment, a couple of hundred dollars may not seem a large sum, but it is the small increases such as these which prevents the council from getting the rate down to a reasonable basis.

The rates for deputy returning officers, poll clerks and constables may not be extravagant, but they are fair rates for the work done, and there is never any difficulty in filling these positions at the remuneration offered. $5.00 for the use of a room for a polling booth for one day also seems quite adequate. It is at a rental rate of $150 a month.

We do not think any increase would meet with popular favor. As a matter of fact, if the council could see its way clear to cut down the 46 or so polling subdivisions to 40, and decrease the cost of our municipal elections, we believe it would be more in keeping with the economy which the taxpayers have been promised.

• A Finnish Bath In Haliburton

(From the Lindsay Post)

THE POST'S Haliburton village correspondent sent in a yarn yesterday with regard to Finnish Baths being popular in the Ingoldsby settlement. The correspondent, after stating that the fad, if it can be called by that title, was started by the 10 families of Finlanders who have settled in this community, described in more or less details the program followed by persons "enjoying" one of these treatments. The knowledge displayed in the article almost leads one to believe that the writer, perhaps, had some practical experience.

Steam, used in a Finnish bath is created by the throwing of water on heated stones. The steam fills the room in which the people are seated and poison is said to be sweated out of the body by the resulting heat. After the steam is continually created until the human endurance point has been reached and then, the correspondent says, the bathers retire to the lake where they receive a sudden and complete cooling-off.

Another alternative is, apparently, to have someone douse your warm body with a pail of cold water. Either operation, even commenting on it from safe distance, leave the editor with a shivery feeling in his spine.

Finnish baths are said to be good for a person. Persons in Haliburton, who have gone through the ordeal, state they felt very refreshed after the bath and intend taking them regularly. The editor will gladly take the first part of the operation but draws the line at the idea of jumping into the lake. It would be even worse than a cold shower on a January morning.

• Where Jewels Can Be Picked Up

(From the Australian Press Bureau)

BEFORE ME lies a topaz the size of an egg. It was picked up by a minor in one of the Queensland rivers and given to me for a present. I have picked up others—not quite so large—myself. Garnets, rubies, beryl, agate and malachite are all there to reward the amateur.

There is a copper field near Cloncurry where malachite can be had for the asking. Malachite has ranked in history with agate, crystal and lapislazuli. Churches have been inlaid with it. Today London shops offer scraps of it on boxes or in the form of ash-trays, at prices quite beyond the ordinary purse—yet in Queensland they just give it to you!

Since the beginning of history agate has been prized as a semi-precious stone. It has been used for inlay, for jewelry, for priceless Oriental mosaics. Because agate cannot be imitated, objects made from it or inlaid with it fetch luxury prices even today. Yet in the rivers of the Etheridge goldfield, in Queensland, you can pick up a handful of agate in 10 minutes or half an hour.

Garnets and rubies are found in the tin-bearing country nearer the coast. There is a place called Almaden—maybe because it is as hot and rich as the famous mines in Spain—and there any old miner will sit down on the steps of the saloon and, once his confidence has been won by the purchase of a couple of beers, he will begin to unroll a series of little calico bags tied up with earth-stained tape. They contain his trophies.

Yellow topaz, white topaz, purple garnets, green beryl, blue sapphires, even red rubies will come tumbling into his palm. All uncut, of course, but if you hold them up to the light with his tweezers you will be able to see what the jeweler could make of them. If you admire any special piece, most likely the old man will give it to you, for except for a few rare varieties which command a price even today, he knows that even the finest will not tempt the pessimistic dealers.

And why should he hang on to them? He can get plenty more. Yet, cut and set, these stones would be fit for the most fastidious. Apart from the depth and durability, how wonderful to have a whole necklace of garnets, or perhaps a ruby ring, that you have mined yourself?

• Braving Nights In Saskatoon

(From the Regina Leader-Post)

WE SEE by the latest Packet that owing to a shortage of relief night-shirts and pyjamas in Saskatoon, citizens of the Temperance colony on the banks of the south Saskatchewan have been going to bed in the raw. This for about eight years.

Without trying to minimize the troubles of those who have to get along on relief we can hardly refrain from saying that if such things are going on in Saskatoon, it is a big change from the earlier years of the pioneers—the days of the bootjack, the handle-bar moustache, the whisker-growing northeast quarter section, the ready tied necktie, and the hairlined Saskatoon shirt.

We have it on the authority of the editor of the Star-Phoenix that it was the custom of Saskatoon folks to sleep in their underwear. Which is also an old Alberta custom. On cold nights they sometimes pulled on an extra fleece-lined shirt or even a pair of overalls, a pair of felt socks and red-striped mittens, put out the cat, threw the clock out of gear, and settled down to wait for Spring. Many of the earlier citizens wore hair-lined shirts, with the hair next the skin. These were put on over the head and fastened with a throat-latch. Wearing one of these shirts and snuggled under a couple of horse blankets many a citizen passed a restful night—or Winter.

Well, it's a long jump from those other days in Saskatoon—days which we have been told were common up to the time of the Great War, to the present situation when citizens are going to bed on the hoof, as it were. It is difficult to believe that there has been this extreme swing from the night blooming hair-lined shirt and festive red underwear to the present situation that seems to amount to practically nothing. Not a thing.

NOT WANTED HERE.

(Brockville Recorder-Times)

THERE IS TALK in Canada of further amendment to the statutes governing divorce under which marriage would be dissolved for a variety of reasons instead of the only one now prevailing.

We trust, however, that should this come to pass, the revision will be carried out very carefully so that abuses which are now every-day occurrences in the United States will not begin to apply here.

Consider, for instance, a Detroit doctor recently applying for a divorce from his wife because she was, so he said, "unsociable" and persisted in belittling everything in and having to do with that city.

This lady's dislike of Detroit was, according to her husband, so intense that she spent much of her time in travel elsewhere. There was, it might be noted, no hint of faithlessness on the part of the wife; her sole crime was that she detested Detroit, in which many other people might sympathize with her. But the court accepted the husband's plea, and the divorce was granted.

We don't want anything like that in Canada.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

I WILL extol thee, O Lord; for thou hast lifted me up, and hast not made my foe to rejoice over me.... O Lord, thou hast brought up my soul from the grave: thou hast kept me alive, that I should not go down to the pit....Thou hast turned for me my mourning into dancing: thou hast put off my sackcloth, and girded me with gladness; to the end that my glory may sing praise to thee, and not be silent.—Ps. xxx, 1, 3, 11, 12.

For we know that if our earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved, we have a building of God, an house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens. For in this we groan, earnestly desiring to be clothed upon with our house which is from Heaven: if so be that being clothed we shall not be found naked. For we that are in this tabernacle do groan, being burdened: not for that we would be unclothed, but clothed upon, that mortality might be swallowed up of life.—II Cor. v, 1-4.

✧ ✧ ✧

Behold I shew you a mystery; We shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump: for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed. For this corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality.—I Cor. xv, 5-53.

WHAT WE ENJOY.

(Windsor Star)

CANADIANS do not always appreciate the privileges of living in Canada. In our dominion we enjoy:

The right to think as we please and vote as we please.

The right to worship in our own way.

The right to walk the streets as free men who are equals of those who sit in the seats of power.

The right to be secure against arbitrary decrees.

The right to trial by judge and jury instead of having to submit to courts martial or drumhead courts with sentences of exile from rotting away.

The right to live under a government which derives its powers from the popular vote of the people it governs.

The right to follow according to our own ideas the pursuit of liberty and the search for happiness, without having to ask any government's permission to do so.

Those are ideals for which men have fought and died ever since the world began. We have them in Canada. We must ever be on guard to see that no one, whether it be in the disguise of democracy or autocracy, takes them away from us.

Canadian Troops Crossed Rhine Just 20 Years Ago Today

(Written for the Canadian Press by Capt. W. W. Murray, M.C.)

Twenty years ago today, on Dec. 13, 1918, the Canadian Corps crossed the Rhine.

On the wall of the Senate Chamber in Ottawa is a painting, one of National War Memorial Collection for which Canada has not yet found appropriate house-room, which depicts an armed sentinel standing rigidly on duty beside a Canadian howitzer. Beside the gun is a heap of shells. The weapon is pointed from a cemented platform across the flowing stream. The Senate guide tells his charges that the name of this painting is "The Watch on the Rhine."

And so, by on of the ironies of history, the impassioned invocation which generations of Germans have directed to a stream that incorporates more of Teutonic legend than any other area of the land, reversed itself. "The Watch on the Rhine" was not "the pious and strong youth of Germany," as the national song has it, but, among others, two divisions of Canadian troops who ushed in the New Year of 1919 in the forested hills of the Rhineland.

By easy stages the Canadians marched northward from the Belgian frontier which they had traversed Dec. 4. Their route brought them out of the vast wooded ranges of the Ardennes into the flat agricultural areas of the Rhineland. They had marked through Schleiden to Buskirchen, then to Bruhl. Here the 1st Division separated from the 2nd Division. The latter swung due east to Bonn. The former continued its northely direction to Cologne.

Reception by Germans

The civilian inhabitants of the Rhineland awaited the advent of the Canadians with varying emotions. Stories of the Canadians had preceded them: the unfortunate inhabitants hoped against hope they were not so savage as they had been painted.

Nor were they. The spectacle of innumerable flaxen-haired children, all living evidences of dreadful malnutrition, evoked from the Canadian soldiers the warmest sympathy. Their own meagre rations and the generous gifts of the Canadian War Comforts Commission found a wide distribution among "the little Fritzies."

In the dampening drizzle of a December morning, the Canadians marched across the bridges which span the Rhine. At Cologne, General Herbert Plumer, General Officer Commanding the Second Army, took the salute. At Bonn, this honor was given to General Sir Arthur Currie, Commander of the Canadian Corps.

On the eastern bank, the 1st Division swung south, along the Frankfurter Strasse, while the 2nd Division swung north, the two reuniting at Siegburg.

A wide semi-circle, beginning several miles north of Cologne and swinging southward to below Bonn, constituted the outpost position. For a month the Canadians held watch and ward on this line, before they were withdrawn to Belgium, there to await embarkation for home.

Looking Back
On This Date

Do you remember that last year Colonel Fraser Hunter, representing St. Patrick's division of Toronto, asked the legislature to change the law so that he could affix the letters "M. P." after his name instead of "M. L. A.". In looking over an old book the other day I discovered that the same thing on a larger scale was attempted by John Sandfield Macdonald, the first premier of Ontario, a year after Confederation. He introduced a bill to give the assembly and its members the privileges and immunities of the House of Commons and its members. Sir John Macdonald naturally made objection.

In a letter which Hon. Edward Blake received from prime minister on this date in 1868, 70 years ago, Sir John declared that Sandfield was not wise "pressing through legislation which he has not ascertained to be within the powers of the local legislature. In this case he seemed almost to admit that he is aware that he has no such right. The act being ultra vires is mere waste paper and the courts would be obliged to hold, in case the Speaker of the House or a member of it attempted to use it as a shield, that it was no protection. It would be a matter for grave consideration by the general government whether to leave the act to be dealt with by the courts or to disallow it . . . It is of the greatest consequence that neither government nor legislature should knowingly overstep its jurisdiction."

The affix to the names of members of the provincial legislatures has been a matter for controversy ever since 1867 and is so in some quarters yet; but there ought to be no confusion over it. There is only one parliament in Canada; its members are M. P.'s. Members of the provincial legislature are M. L. A., not M. P. P. because there is under the British North American Act, no such thing as a provincial parliament, which is the reason for another misnomer. We call the buildings in which our provincial legislatures meet the "Parliament House" of this or that province, when we should say the "Legislative Building". The latter does not sound so impressive, but it is legally correct. But just try to get any Torontonian or Winnipeger or Victorian to admit that they have a "Legislative Building" and not a "Parliament House", and you will soon find that false local pride is more effective than constitutional exactitude.

Goodnight Story

By MAX TRELL

"Peep!" said the sparrow on the window-sill. "Good-morning in there! Are you all awake?"

The children were still fast asleep for it was very early in the morning. But Knarf and Hanid, the shadows of the children, slipped out from under the bed (shadows almost always sleep under the bed) and rushed to the window.

"Sh-h!" they warned the sparrow. "You mustn't make so much noise. You'll wake the children up."

"It's time they were up," said the sparrow. "I'm hungry again. I want my crumbs."

"You'll have to wait a little while," Hanid told him. "Fly away somewhere and come back."

Feels Like Eating.

"I don't feel like flying. I feel like eating."

"But the children are still asleep."

"That's all right. I'll just wake them up. Peep-PEEP!"

"My goodness! You mustn't do that."

"I've got a very good idea," Knarf said suddenly. "I know where you can get lots of crumbs."

"Where? Tell mt quickly," said the sparrow flapping his wings in great excitement.

"You'll have to wait."

"Well," said Knarf, with a sly smile, "if you fly around to the back of the house you'll find the pantry, and in the bread-box you'll find an enormous crumb."

"How big?"

Knarf made a motion with his hands. He held them quite wide apart.

A Big Crumb!

The sparrow's eyes sparkled. "My! That is an enormous crumb, isn't it?" And with that it flew off. He flew around to the back of the house and disappeared in the direction of the pantry.

Knarf couldn't help laughing. "I fooled that silly sparrow all right, didn't I?" he sai dto Hanid. "Wait until he sees that big crumb I meant is really a whole loaf of bread. Just wait—"

At that moment the sparrow came flying from around the back of the house again and lit on the window-sill. To Knarf's surprise he wasn't at all angry. On the contrary, he seemed very happy, indeed.

"Thank you for sending me to the pantry," he chirped. "Do you know what happened? The moment I got there the children's mother saw me and tossed me a whole handful of crumbs! Oh! I've just had a wonderful breakfast. And when the children wake up I'll get a second one. PEEP-PEEP-PEEP!"

ROMANCE INC.

BY OREN ARNOLD

READ THIS FIRST:

Sara Sue Davis, attractive young widow, establishes herself in a cozy cottage near the campus of Rice Institute, in Texas, hangs out a sign which reads "COUNSEL IN ROMANCE", and inaugurates a novel plan to help guide 100 student "members" in their social affairs for a small fee. Bob Towne, campus football hero, much attracted by Sara Sue, is the first to enroll, and this enrages Peaches Pomeroy, who had regarded herself as "Bob's girl" the previous year. An unprepossessing freshman, Worthington Gurley, enrolls and also displays an interest in the pretty young widow. Then Dr. Thornton Holgate, new member of the faculty, brings the Cottage Plan to a climax when he begs Sara Sue to help him and confides his love for the Pomeroy girl. Finally, T. J. Sanders, a sports goods salesman, drops into town and falls in love with Sara Sue at first sight. After Sara has given Dr. Holgate several lessons in "how to become more human", he becomes frantic at the freshman ball when he comes upon Peaches badly intoxicated. For hours he lies awake, tortured by Peaches' public display. The next day, while walking with some of the students, Dr. Holgate is confronted by Peaches and two other girls in a passing car. After Dr. Holgate is almost forced into Peaches' car, they all decide to go to Galveston for a swim. In the water, the crowd is startled when a mother cries that her child is drowning. Meanwhile, Sara Sue goes to church with T. J. Sanders.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER 24

IT IS SAID that every man has his chance to be a hero. Some of us muff it and some of us don't. In emergency something foreign takes control of us, and we come to our senses an hour or two later. The matter thus is out of our hands.

Galveston beach is not dangerous. And yet—people sometimes drown in bathtubs. Thornton Holgate now remembered this latter fact; for no good reason it flashed into his mind. But just for an instant.

"Oh, I say—NO!"

He yelled his command at the mother.

Tho woman, clad in street clothing, even wearing a long coat, hysterically had raced into the water. She would have to go almost 200 yards before reaching her little daughter. She could wade most of that before calm water became neck deep, but meanwhile she was sure to be toppled by a breaker, a powerful, playful, slashing gulf wave. And she in that heavy autumn clothing!

"NO! NO! NO! Come back Mrs. —— COME BACK! You will drown!"

Thornton held out a hand as if in supplication. Peaches Pomeroy could only stare.

"WAIT!"

Still the mother did not heed him. She was obeying instinct, foolishly, but positively. Already past the knee depth, where the waves slapped rhythmically at her waistline, and where one was bound to throw her down any second.

"Oh-h-h-h-h-h!" Thornton Holgate groaned in sheer despair—and then sprang to action.

Surprisingly, he did not also run into the gulf waters. Peaches stared at him, incredulous, as he turned and dashed back toward the sea wall.

He skittered up stair steps three at a time, turned right and raced down the top of the wall. A hundred yards down beach, he had noted, was the dinning-fishing pier, a house and platform built high—to sea wall height, in fact—on great pilings. The sea rolled and snorted and crashed under this pier constantly, and once every eight or ten years went on rampage and washed it all away. Meanwhile, though, it extended out to water that was deep enough for fishing, and formed a breezy promenade for diners who liked the sensation of going out over the sea.

Thornton hit the front door of the dining hall as a bull would have done.

In bathing trunks, and slinging water, he dashed through the place, upsetting one chair, striking a table and a waiter. This was early dinner hour now, and several people were present.

Someone shouted, but he ignored it. He tore through the far door and ran on down the heavy plank platform, in the open air again. Ten seconds more brought him to the end.

There he paused. For one thing, he seemed awfully high. The sea wall is 20 feet or more in places, and that distance above shallow water becomes dangerous for diving. But Thornton wasn't thinking of that—he was searching for any sign of the child, and in just a moment he saw her.

The little girl could swim, he saw at once, but she also was badly frightened now, tossed by the waves, and probably nearing exhaustion. Having run out the long pier, Thornton was now almost on a line with her, even though she was 50 yards away. Wisely he had reasoned that he could swim 50 yards laterally long before he could walk or swim 200 yards against the waves.

To get a slanting jump at the water, he backed up and ran the width of the pier, and dived.

The dive was graceful. Arms out, he speared the water. Hands struck, hard, on the bottom sand. Then his head struck, and this momentarily dazed him.

But he had anticipated this, and by sheer force of will came out of it. He gulped one great chest full of air, and struck out.

He could not see the girl now, but he had a geometric sense of the direction to follow. When he had gone 30 or 40 strokes, he paused, stood on tiptoes and—catching a wave—bounded as high up as possible, looking for her.

There she was! A flash of red bathing suit!

Water motion had separated them a bit, so that he had to alter his course. He was a little winded from his run, and rather than risk exhaustion at the critical moment he floated for a few seconds and breathed deeply, relaxing. Strength poured back into him, and he plowed on.

In a moment he heard the child's frantic sobbing, calling, crying.

"IT'S ALL RIGHT!" he yelled. "DON'T CRY!" Help is coming!"

A grateful, childish, tremolo answered. In the next instant, cold little hands grabbed him. Grabbed him widly, clutching, shaking, grasping.

Treading, and occasionally touching bottom with extended toe, Thornton took hold of her. "It's all right, honey; don't be afraid now." He tried to soothe her, but the sobbing grew louder.

He held the small form high for a moment, so that she could feel a sense of security at last, could get a free breath of needed air. But in that instant, too, the undertow snatched at his legs, and he had to level off with her.

"Don't fight me, honey! Lie still. Lie still, face up. I'll swim us in. Don't grab and fight — don't DON'T!"

Thornton Holgate was at home in water. He knew many tricks there. He knew that drowning people often would drown those who would save them. And yet—he couldn't bring himself to strike this little girl. It probably would have been wise to have struck her, to have knocked her senseless and so towed her in for prompt first aid. But a little girl—

He grasped her by the hair with his left hand, held her at arm's length, keeping her face up as best he could, and set out for shore. A good push from a wave, caught just right, would carry them to safety, he hoped.

But the scared child was stronger than he knew. Frantically she swerved her body onto his—and both of them went under.

She was almost as tall as he was, he discovered. And she clung, arms and legs, with incredible strength now. He was down on the sand, submerger with her, first rolling, then struggling, fighting for release. Having gone under unexpectedly, he gulped a huge mouthful of water, which sickened him.

With her still clinging, though, he gave a mighty heave of his legs and brought both of them to the surface again. A wave promptly crashed over them, rolled them. He touched bottom with his hand, and tried to jerk his legs free. He felt the never-ceasing undertow drag at him, hard. Worse still, when he did manage to protrude his head again, the child's hysterical mother was there clutching at him!

Thornton Holgate began to have visions then.

He caught a watery glimpse of Hotel Galvez, looming high and beautiful above the shore line. He saw the graceful curves of a roller coaster in the amusement grounds. And over it all was a mental montage of acquaintances, relatives, friends.

"NO!" he shrieked.

He was not hysterical himself, but he was frightened. He was not exhausted, but he had a strong sense of futility. The salt was burning his lungs and his eyes. The child hung on his legs—he swerved them up, in a tremendous effort, to give her at least one breath of air—and a screaming woman now was grasping at him.

"No!" he shrieked again. "Don't scream! Don't fight!"

The woman still had on her coat, he saw. She had waded and fought her way out—not that he could blame her—until she, too, was in six-foot water. Thornton glanced at the pier. He hadn't gained a yard! Any progress he had made toward shore had been off-set by action of the undertow. "TRY TO STAND with—" salt foam slapped in his mouth, drowning his words. He came out of it, spitting, spewing, fighting the woman.

"Oh, my God!" he groaned it; a prayer, not a profanity.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday, December 14.

Another day of excitement, commotion and disruption, although or not so happy a condition as dominated yesterday, is forecast for this day, judging by rather adverse lunar and mutual aspects. There is a prospect that radical change, travel and romance may give way to activities that are incident to a complete reorganization of the life and its plans. An element of hostility, vexation, or real trial might arise from some young person, on an undercurrent of trickery or conspiracy may take the edge off of much delightful anticipation.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for many adverse situations arising from a reorganization of the business affairs and a reorientation of the life to new places, persons and interests. These may manifest largely through the enmity, hostility an daggravation of young people, or the subtle, deceitful or treacherous behavior of others who seem to be actuated by envy or jealousy.

A child born on this day, while energetic, versatile, and enterprising, may be inclined to ways of craft and expediency rather than integrity and honest policies.

"Grandpa" Roche Celebrates 102nd Birthday In Haliburton

LINDSAY, Ont, Dec. 13.—(CP)—December 11 came on Sunday this year, so far the first time in years George Roche couldn't celebrate his birthday with a dance. But it was the only bit of activity he passed up on his 102nd birthday.

Roche, a native of Peterborough, still does work around the farm on which he lives. Actively interested in politics, he not only votes at elections but he goes to the campaign meetings.

Formerly a lumberman, Roche still rises at six every morning and works in his garden.

"Grandpa," as he is affectionately know, proudly boasts of not having an enemy in the world. His memory is very clear and he loves to reminisce of life in the lumber camps in the early days. He attributes his long life to plain living and outdoor life in the woods. He has smoked cigars and a pipe since early in youth and still takes great enjoyment from both.

When Lord Willingdon visited Haliburton as governor-general of Canada, "Grandpa" was guest of honor at the reception. He was also guest at receptions to Hon. G. S. Henry and Hon. G Howard Ferguson when they visited Haliburton.

Mr. Roche has lived under five monarchs and his one expressed wish is that he might see the King and Queen when they visit Canada.

He proves his age by a record in the family Bible and by a wedding certificate which states he was married in 1880 at age 44.

"IT'S THE TOBACCO THAT COUNTS"

Theft Of Dog Charge Is Dismissed

A charge of theft against Charles Westlake, prominent Smith township farmer was dismissed by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., Monday afternoon following a trial that lasted from ten in the morning until three in the afternoon. The charge alleged that Westlake had stolen a black and tan hound dog, the property of Arthur Johnston in March of 1937.

Another charge of receiving stolen property laid against Ernest Mills, partner in the firm of Mills-Wolff Fox Farms was also dismissed when the Crown offered no evidence following the dismissal of the charge against Weslake. Evidence disclosed that Mills had purchased the dog from Westlake for $20 and had shipped it to his nephew in Prince Edward Island, but police at Belleville took the dog off the train at that point. Westlake was represented by A. L. Elliott, K.C. and D. R. Ruddy of Whitby appeared for Mr. Mills; F. D. Kerr, K.C., acted for the Crown.

Moved For Dismissal

At the conclusion of the Crown's evidence Mr. Elliott moved for dismissal but the motion was denied by Magistrate Langley. He then called three witnesses, Arthur Bell, Newton Bell and George Westlake and after hearing the evidence of these three the Magistrate said the prosecution could not hope to succeed. "I have come to the conclusion that Mr. Westlake has proved color of right, and therefore there can be no theft. This is a case that should never have come into the criminal courts."

Mr. Elliott said: "This is a private prosecution and I feel our witness costs should be paid by the complainant Johnston." Magistrate Langley however said he had no right to make such a levy, but merely to acquit under Section 16.

"There should be some redress for an innocent citizen who has been brought into court this way," said Mr. Elliott.

Earl Mills was the last witness called for the Crown. He told the court that his nephew in Prince Edward Island had written him asking if he coudl purchase a hound suitable for fox and rabbit hunting. As as result of this he had approached Westlake and purchased the dog for $20. Westlake said he was willing to sell the dog because he was getting another, and also agreed he would drive Mills to the station in Peterborough with the dog. They missed the train by a few minutes, and as Mills had promised to ship the dog on the 8th of November, they drove to Hastings, getting there ahead of the train and shipped the dog from that point. Mills explained it was important that the dog be shipped on the day agreed with his nephew because the man lived three miles from the station and had to walk that distance. He said he had no knowledge of any disagreement over the ownership of the dog until he was arrested.

First Defence Witness

Arthur Bell, nephew of the accused Westlake, and who lives with the latter was the first witness for the defence. He said he saw the dog the day it was born because at that time he had been cuting wood on the farm of George Tyndell along with his uncle and brother. He explained that Tyndell had advised Charles Westlake to pick out two pups from the litter of eight, "because they could not given away." This was done and the dog in question was one of the two selected. He further explained that Tyndell had suggested the pups be left with the mother for a few months so that they might learn to hunt more readily. This was done and the dog although born in April 1932 did not come into Westlake's possession until the fall of the same year. For the next four years it remained in Westlake's possession, was taken hunting, licenses were bought and it was fed. There was never any question as to ownership although Tyndell often hunted with them, he said. The dog disappeared during a hunting trip in the fall of 1936 and since then there was difficulty over possession of the dog, he said in closing.

This evidence was substantiated in every detail by Newton Bell, a brother of the first witness and by George Westlake, a brother of the accused. Charles Westlake. When the evidence of the three had been heard, Mr. Elliott moved again for dismissal and the request was granted. Several witnesses for the defence were not called.

Mr. Ruddy appearing for Mr. Mills asked Magistrate Langley to decide who would have custody of the dog, but the Magistrate refused to do this, and Athur M. Johnston, V.S., led the dog out of the court room.

Pastor Drops Out

PERTH, Scotland, Dec. 13—(CP-Havas).—Rev. A. W. Groundwater, or Coupar-Angus, Perthshire, who on Saturday announced his intention of contesting the Kinross and Western Perth by-election as an Independent Labor candidate, today withdrew from the contest. Polling day is Dec. 21.

His action leaves the field clear for a straight fight between the Duchess of Atholl, Independent, and W. McNair Snadden, Conservative. The Duchess resigned the seat when the Kinross Conservative organization repudiated her and is re-contesting it on the basis of her opposition to the government's foreign policy.

Seven Miners Killed In Quebec Disaster

Seven miners lost their lives in a rock slide at a 50-year-old asbestos mine at Thetford Mines, Que. Hundreds of men, under the direction of experts, toiled to remove the tons of debris which blocked the entrance of a 1,500-foot tunnel in which the miners were working at the time of the slide. This picture, showing the tons of debris, was taken shortly after the fatal rock slide.

Stormy Weather Makes Inroads On Attendance

(Examiner Correspondence.)

APSLEY, Dec. 13. — The annual meeting of the United Church Women's Association was held at Mrs. Harry Reed's home, on Thursday afternoon, with a small attendance, owing to the stormy afternoon.

The president, Mrs. Reed, presided. A Christmas story was read by Mrs. W. Wilson, who was in charge of the devotional period. Mrs. W. G. Smith took the chair for election of officers, which resulted as follows: President, Mrs. John Tucker; Vice-president, Mrs. Harry Reed; Sec.-Treasurer, Mrs. Don. Newberry.

The usual committees were appointed also.

Plans for a Christmas tree for Sunday school pupils and smaller children were made. The concert and tree will be held on December 26, which will consist of a Christmas cantata, chorus and recitations by the Sunday school pupils, to be held in the United church.

After the meeting lunch was served by the hostess and a social time enjoyed by all.

MORE ABOUT— Three Firemen

the Fire Marshall's Department will be in Peterborough today to inspect the premises.

All three stores were heavily laden with Christmas stock, total value of which might well run over $15,000. R. N. Herman, manager of Patenick's, recovered a sum of money feared lost in the blaze. It was receipts for Saturday and Monday's business, together with petty cash, and had been placed in the basement. When the fire was extinguished, the money was discovered to be still in its hiding place.

The blaze, first one of major importance since the Elite Grill was threatened early New Year's Eve two years ago, lowered hopes that this city will capture honors for the lowest fire loss in the Dominion again this year. Had no fire broken out until the end of this year, Peterborough was assured of capturing that record for the second consecutive year.

While little damage resulted from the blaze itself—which was confined to the basement of the one store—the loss through smoke damage in the heavily stocked stores will be heavy.

MORE ABOUT— Hectic Spurt

tary of the Halifax Board of Trade, said more money was in circulation this Christmas than was the case last year. Charlottetown merchants reported "surprisingly good" pre-Christmas sales.

R. Messier, secretary manager of the Retail Merchants' Association, said the late Fall and mild Winter resulted in retarded buying in Quebec, but from now on there would be a rush to buy. There hasn't been much snow so far, but sales of skiing equipment in Quebec City are running 60 per cent better than at this time in 1937.

Slow in Ontario.

As in other provinces, the weather has slowed up Ontario's seasonal trade. A. G. Frame, secretary of the Retail Merchants Association in Toronto, said figures were lacking for definite indication of the trend, but admitted comparatively warm temperatures have affected business "to some extent." All reporting points anticipated a busy pre-Christmas week.

G. R. Cormack, Winnipeg secretary of the Retail Merchants' Association, reported trade volume as five per cent below last year's, "but this may be overcome by a last-minutes buying rush." Most merchants said they anticipated business would at least equal that of last Christmas.

Similar reports came from Saskatchewan centres, but Alberta points reported sales at above last year's levels. Walter Geddes of the Calgary branch, Canadian Credit Men's Trust Association, said "prospects are that the volume this month will be far in excess of last year." Wholesalers in Calgary expect December sales to be the best since 1932.

Loggers to Help B.C.

Business in British Columbia, according to reports from that province, is expected to be about the same as last year, once buying gets into full swing. An influx of loggers into the cities is expected to put at least $4,000,000 into circulation. Increased employment in the mines will speed buying.

Particularly encouraging was the report from Prince Rupert, in Northern British Columbia. Building there is brisk. The mild weather has had one good effect in Prince Rupert. It has enabled Indians to come into town in canoes over waters usually frozen at this season. And the Indians are spending.

Reports from Ontario centres indicate sales this year will at least be as good as in 1937. In Ottawa, some large stores report increases. "A number of retailers report buying to date is in excess of the same period last year," said E. Bruce Scott, manager of the Ottawa Better Business Bureau.

Indications are Toronto sales are running a bit under those of last year, but the anticipated pick-up will bring the seasonal volume up considerably. Simpson's, Limited, has reported officially business in heavy goods is lower than a year ago, in line with conditions throughout the Dominion.

London merchants reported sales, despite unseasonable weather, as comparing favorably with last year. Kitchener stores say business has been slow starting, as is the case in St. Thomas, Galt and other Western Ontario points. Peterborough merchants were optimistic, while in North Bay, in the north, "fairly good" sales were forecast by most business men.

As Pro-Nazis Rioted In Sofia

Mounted police are shown attempting to break up a students' demonstration in the Bulgarian capital during the recent riots that accompanied the popular clamor for revision of Bulgaria's frontiers. Four hundred persons were arrested and a "curfew" was declared before order was restored. Many of the demonstrators defied the police by kneeling in the streets and shouting "Heil Hitler."

could not work with Premier Maurice Duplessis. He failed at the polls in 1936 when he tried to get back.

The rift with Duplessis has been a subject of platform speculation in the campaign, opponents have suggested a Houde victory would mean Quebec stepping into the civic arena and taking a hand in the municipal government.

Victory Over Capitalism.

An "efficient" government was promised by Houde last night after the returns saw him installed in the mayor's chair. He saw the result as a victory of "the people over capitalism."

Stirred by weeks of oratory, the electors staged one of the most lively voting days in the city's history. Miniature riots all over town kept police busy all day and sent 12 persons to hospital, and there were 107 arrests on "telegraphing" charges.

The one fatality of the day resulted from a telegraphing incident. Samuel Tucker, 50, walking into a polling station to vote, dropped dead from shock when he learned someone had beaten him to it and marked his ballot.

The 42-year-old alderman-elect said he would retain his carrier jobs besides holding down the seat vacated by the death of Alderman J. Allan Bray.

30 Days' Campaign, 3 Nominations Finally Get Massey A Council

MASSEY, Ont., Dec. 13—(CP). — After 30 days of campaigning and three nomination meetings, this Sudbury district community acclaimed a new council last night with J. N. Dyall, last year's mayor, as its head.

The four councillars are J. E. Hobbs, William Seeland and Henry Charette, members of last year's council, and Martin Reid. All qualified immediately.

Candidates nominated previously had refused to stand for office, declaring the town's relief problems were too acute.

"It isn't any use," Mayor Dyall said after his election last night. It seems, he said, the Provincial authorities "don't care and that is why we boycotted the public offices for so long."

LINDSAY

Fowler's Corner Driver Is Fined $23

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, Dec. 13.—At Monday's session of the police court a resident of Fowler's Corners, named Moncrief, gave Magistrate Gee on the charge of leaving the scene of an accident. The charge was laid by Traffic Officer Kennedy, following an accident on December 9 on the Peterborough highway. The accused stated that he had stopped his car on the highway to wipe off the windshield, when a car driven by Alvin Pitts, of Lindsay to pass and sideswiped his car, finally leaving the road and going into the ditch. Pitt, it is alleged came back to Moncrief's car to obtain the name of the driver, but the latter started his car and drove away. The accused was fined $10 and costs amounting to $23.

Sidney E. Gall, Toronto accountant, elected trial by higher court when he faced an adjourned charge of falsifying the records of the Canada Lime Co., of Coboconk, with intent to defraud those interested in the bankruptcy and also those interested in the company. C. G. Frost acted for the accused and V. J. McElderry, of Peterborough Crown Attorney, acted for the prosecution. Hearing of the evidence in the case lasted almost the entire day.

Melville Lindsay, who gave his address as Peterborough, was found guilty of having liquor in an illegal place and was fined $100.00 and costs or three months in jail. The accused was one of the party of three men and a fifteen-year-old girl who were involved in the drinking party and also the auto wreck on the Penelon Highway on December 3. A youth from Cambray, named Norton, the owner of the car, was called by the Crown. He stated that he had received money from Melville Lindsay and had purchased liquor, which they consumed on a trip to Coboconk.

Norton, who had previously pleaded guilty to be intoxicated while in charge of a car was sentenced to thirty days in jail and payment of costs.

In police court Monday Arthur Fair, Peterborough barrister, appeared on behalf of three Peterborough men who were charged a few days ago with consuming liquor illegally. He charged that his clients had appeared in court last Friday, had entered a plea of guilty and had paid their fines to Provincial Constable Adair, who they declared, instructed them that their case was finished. County Crown Attorney Anderson pointed out that the officer had no authority to take such action, and as a result the accused were resummoned. Mr. Fair contended that his clients had appeared in court on the summoned date and since they had not been called by the court, he asked for a dismissal of the charge on the grounds of non-prosecution. His objections, however, were overruled by Magistrate Gee, who adjourned the case until January 9.

The Rambling REPORTERS

BLACKLISTED.

A lovely old lady with a Christmas shopping list that filled two pages jolted a George street storekeeper yesterday when she remarked that a certain article was strictly taboo because it was manufactured in a country that she had blacklisted. On further enquiry the storekeeper learned that the shopper had five countries on the blacklist and to make sure she would not forget the quintet she had them listed as follows: Japan, Germany, Italy, Russia and Mexico.—McG.

DIVIDED AFFECTIONS.

A six year old black and tan hound dog, the subject of a dispute, did little to assist the Magistrate in determining his ownership when brought into court Monday. Constable Sexsmith led the dog in on a stout chain, and the animal with a cursory sniff at Art Johnston, the complainant, bounded across the room and with a deft tongue, licked the face of Charles Westlake, who was charged with the theft of the dog. This was encouraging for the defendant but in a few minutes the dog was back to Dr. Johnston renewing a friendship. Later the dog nuzzled his head on a reporter's lap, then jumped up on the constable and finally made friends with the Magistrate. His antics left the court bewildered as to the ownership, because the dog made friends as readily with complete strangers as he did with those who were supposed to own him.—McG.

Boy Eliminated On An Error Father Declares

Aftermath of the Kiwanis Club's attempt to find the best speller in two grades of public schools throughout the entire county came today with a protest by Frank Neary that his son Lionel had been disqualified on the word "appendicitis" after he had spelled it correctly.

Chairman Fred Johnston said today that the word was written correctly. He had discovered on reexamination of the slips the following day along with the youngster that the boy had been right and had told him an adjustment would be made. Youngsters were called forward at the bee, told the word it was their lot to spell, and were allowed to write it on a slip of paper. Then they spelled orally, using the sheet of paper as guide. By the rules of the contest the written spelling was to be accepted as the official one, so that even if a boy or girl had been incorrect in his oral spelling, if his written version were correct, then he should have remained in the running.

Lionel's spelling of "appendicitis" was certainly correct on paper at least, and many of the audience applauded when he spelled it orally, which would indicate it had been correct then. However, Mr. Johnston pointed out, the rules of the contest called for immediate protest by any contestant who believed he had been dealt with unjustly. Such protest was not made until the following day, he said, and no adjustment was possible.

Mr. Johnston said a meeting of the executive of the club has been called for Thursday night, at which some settlement will be decided upon. Mr. Johnston said, too, that Lionel Neary had not been the last boy to go down to defeat during the contest. He had believed after the contest and had told the Examiner that such had been the case.

"What satisfactory adjustment can be made to this boy who was eliminated not by his own mistakes, but by an error on the part of the judges?" the lad's father wanted to know.

Among city champions Rita Sullivan placed second and Eileen McDonough was third. The names were earlier transposed.

Craig Eason Wins Bousfield Medal

A very pleasing event took place at King George school on Monday afternoon when Rev. G. J. Bousfield presented Craig Eason with a medal in token of his good sportsmanship and satisfactory scholarship during the preceding year. Mr. Bousfield's son, George, was a member of the entrance class in the school when he had an unfortunate accident which cost him his life George was fond of sports and was a clever hockey player. The father, to commemorate his son, has each year since given a medal to the boy who has been successful in passing the entrance examination and has shown true manliness in his sports.

The pupils, who were lined up in the hall of the school to witness the presentation, showed their approval of Mr. Bousfield's generosity by their hearty and spontaneous applause.

Firm Belief Is Needed In Democracy

A plea for a faith in democracy, a faith that would lead a man to lay down his life if necessary for principles in which he believed, was urged last night by Mrs. John Davidson.

She was speaking under the auspices of the Men's Club of St. Paul's church on "Peace with the dictators." Born in Latvia, once a resident of Russia, then of the United States, later of China, the daughter-in-law of late Rev. Canon J. C. Davidson of St. John's Anglican church here, her husband is a teacher at Upper Canada College.

Only if such strong convictions are felt, if such great unity of democratic nations is achieved, will Germany's onslaught be halted, she believed. She cited the utter, unqualified belief Germans have in their destiny, in their present path, and placed in contrast with it the hesitant, qualified convictions men and women of democratic lands hold in the ideals and principals of their form of life—who look on shameful politics and inequality and wonder whether they are right or not, who look on inefficiency and wonder whether fascism is not better after all.

Should Stand Firm

Germany will go on in her conquest of Europe, indeed of more than Europe alone, as long as she is faced with such weak opposition as exists now, she contended. But she argued that should any group of democracies form a firm, united line and say "This far and no further," then, and only then, would Germany come to a halt.

She reviewed the frenzy of fear that had settled upon nations in the days that closed the month of September and faced the Munich pact, "Signed in that neo-classical palace built by Hitler," with complete candour. Czechoslovakia had been the sacrificial offering to the peace of the world, she admitted, and asked whether that peace will be permanent. She saw Czechoslovakia settling back again as a serf nation, from which she had emerged after the Great War after 300 years of bondage to Austro-Hungary. But even this, while it should never have had to happen, was better, in her judgment, than a world war.

As a result of Munich, she saw France reduced to a nation of at least second class importance, surrounded by a Germany with greater armaments, with twice as many people, all armed and ready to fight, and without the ally, Czechoslovakia, to divide the troops of Germany in time of war. France, she said, is trying courageously to bring about some solution to her new status.

Foreign Policy Changed

And because Great Britain at Munich abandoned her two-century-old foreign policy of 'the balance of power' because of which she has consistently opposed any nation that threatened to become more powerful than any other combination of nations in Europe, she found the United States drawn into the picture. She recalled that President Roosevelt recognized the potency of Germany's intentions when he intimated knowledge she is actively spreading propaganda through this hemisphere.

In face of Munich, what hope has the world for world peace? she asked. And in answer she quoted Prime Minister Chamberlain as acknowledging that Munich was but an "appeasement"—a leading to the way of peace, not a permanent peace in itself.

She placed little faith in Hitler's statement that he was satisfied after Munich, that he had no further demands to make in Europe, claimed in support of her argument that his sphere of influence has, since that time even extended by economic pressure to the Balkan sea and to Finland. The certainty of peace can be maintained only as long as a rigorous program of rearmament is carried out, she believed.

Hitler Not Satisfied

She pointed to Hitler's "Mein Kampf" as evidence of his intentions, cited Norman Angels in support of her argument that Germany will continue in her attempt to dominate Europe and as much of the rest of the world as possible. France, as Hitler points out in his book, is destined to become a nation under the thumb of Germany if the leader has his way, she claimed.

Germany will never respect democratic governments, will never sit around the conference table in sincerity with representatives of such nations, but will ever strive to spread her propaganda against such governments, because she has a hatred for democracy born of the humiliation of 1918, she claimed.

What is needed now is a firm belief by democratic people in their democracy, a readiness to serve those beliefs, and action toward saving the world for 1980, not along in 1938.

The meeting was under the chairmanship of Dr. J. J. Craig, president of the Men's Association of St. Paul's church. The program was opened with organ music by Martin Chenhall, church organist, whose ability was warmly applauded. A ladies' quartette from Murray Street Baptist church was vigorously encored after a number of vocal selections of high calibre. The speaker was introduced by O. M. Steer and Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr moved an able vote of thanks.

Pearl Worth $25 Had Been Ruined When Purchaser Cooked Oysters

MAC HUDSON of Charlotte street is about $25 the poorer today because he cooked some oysters that he bought Monday. For in one of the oysters was a good sized pearl, which was ruined by the heat.

Mr. Hudson purchased a jar of oysters at Braund's Chamberlain street store, took them home for dinner. It was when eating them that he discovered the pearl and took it to Bert Austin, Charlotte street watchmaker, to learn its value. Mr. Austin said today the pearl would have been worth in the neighborhood of $25 had it been discovered prior to cooking. It was one of the largest he had seen that had been discovered in similar fashion, he said, and would have been worth considerably more had it been perfectly round, but it was slightly off balance.

Human Skeleton Is Ploughed Up In Tweed District Pasture

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Dec. 13. — Stated by County Coroner Dr. D. S. Lighthall to have been interred for a considerable length of time, a human skeleton was uncovered over the week-end on the farm of W. C. Haggerty in the County of Prince Edward.

The skeleton, lying approximately eight inches below the surface of the ground was discovered by John B. Haggerty and Harold Norton, who were ploughing in a field at the rear of the farm.

The bones were in a crumbly condition, but the finders and investigating officials had little difficulty in piecing them together.

The field was being ploughed for the first time and previous to this autumn when it was cleared of stumps and trees, had been used as a wooded pastureland.

Fowl Thieves Active.

Each year before Christmas, farmers throughout the southern part of Hastings County are confronted with the continued night raids upon their fowl flocks. This type of marauders was active in the county during the past week, but not more so than the Provincial Police, who arraigned five men in the County Police Court on Monday on charges of stealing chickens and turkeys.

Charles Carter and Alton Williams Rawdon Township farm hands, were arraigned on charges of theft of two turkeys, gasoline and a quantity of rope, the property of Robert Mathews. Both men pleaded guilty as charged before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., on Monday. Sentence was postponed until the 16th instant, the pair being held in custody on remand.

Lester Coul, Edward Gifford, and George Coul, all of Hungerford Township, appeared on Monday, charged with the theft of eight Leghorn chickens, the property of John Tracey. Lester Coul entered a plea of guilty, while George Coul and Edward Gifford denied the charges.

An adjournment was granted when Crown Attorney B. C. Donnon, K.C., suggested to the court that all cases be enlarged until Friday, as he wanted to use Lester Coul as a Crown witness in these matters.

4 Charges Bring Heavy Fines.

Donald Thompson, Northbrook, appeared in County Police Court at the Township Hall, Tweed, before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd on four distinct charges which brought convictions and fines amounting to over one hundred dollars, and costs.

Thompson was sentenced to serve seven days in the common jail after being convicted of driving a motor car while intoxicated. A three month's suspended sentence was given the accused on a charge of obstructing a police officer in the pursuit of his duties, while a fine of $10.00, and costs, was imposed after Thompson was found guilty of being in possession of a revolver which was not registered. The fourth charge was that of being found in possession of illicit liquor. A fine of $100, and costs, was imposed in this case. Chief Constable Clair Hayes of Tweed and the R.C.M.P. preferred the charges.

Gets 6 Months, Fined $500.

Fred Woodcock of Kaladar was fined $500, and sentenced to six months in the County Jail at Napanee after being convicted of being found in possession of a quantity of illicit liquor. The charge was that of a second offence, which resulted in the additional jail terms.

Goes to Jail.

Arthur Woodcock, Kaladar, intimated he was unable to pay a $100 fine after being convicted of being found in possession of illicit liquor, and was sentenced to three months in the Napanee Jail in default.

Thief Escapes.

Summoned to inspect the movements of a prowler in an adjoining implement shop, Constable Clair Hayes, at 11 p.m. on Sunday, gave chase to a person who had entered the building, but the necessity of having to go around a fence, while the intruder went through, resulted in the thief escaping. The resident in the adjoining building, on hearing unusual sounds from the implement shop, summoned the police, but the thief escaped through a second door on the entry of the police through the main entrance. This is the fifth breakin within a week, with no arrests.

Presence Of Her Brother, 82, Is Surprise To Bonarlaw Lady On 85th Birthday

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BONARLAW, Dec. 12.—Mrs. Sarah McKeown of this village, reached her 85th birthday last week and was hostess to a happy gathering at her home. All her family but one were home for the occasion and presented her with a lovely blanket.

The W.M.S. of Mount Pleasant presented Mrs. McKeown with a beautiful table lamp. A delicious dinner was served, complete with a birthday cake, decorated with candles, which formed a centre place for the table.

An appropriate address was read by Mrs. McKeown's oldest daughter, Mrs. Andrew Thompson, who thanked all present on behalf of her mother. Biggest surprise of the evening for the grand old lady was when she found her brother, Mr. John Eastwood, was one of her guests. Mr. Eastwood is 83 years old.

Mrs. McKeown is enjoying good health and it was a happy celebration for her as well as for her more than 50 guests.

Townships Hold Nominations Monday, Dec. 26

The Christmas holiday, Monday December 26, is the date of the municipal nominations in the rural municipalities of Peterborough county, except North Monaghan, and voting in the city and county coincides on the same day, Monday, January 2.

North Monaghan's nominations will be held at the Court House Friday evening at 7.30 o'clock, the same time as in the city. This is the first year that North Monaghan electors have strayed away from their own municipality. When the township was predominantly rural its civic affairs centred about the old "town hall" east of Scott's corners, and in recent years May's School was the common meeting house of the electors, although the council's meetings have been held at the Court House.

This year's council decided to transfer the nominations meeting to the county council chamber for the advantage of its accommodation.

Smith's township's nominations will be held on Monday, December 26 from 1 to 2 p.m. at the Court House where its pre-election meeting has been held for years.

It frequently happens that the rural voting takes place a week after New Year's Day, but this year the entire county including the city will go to the polls on the first holiday of 1939, January 2.

Liberals Reticent About Talking

A wall of reticence greeted a reporter seeking opinions from leading Liberals today on the squabble which has developed between Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn and the Dominion parliament leader Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King.

One prominent Liberal refused to comment for publication but said in confidence that he was a public spirited citizen and felt the best interests of the country would be served if the two leaders worked in harmony.

Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., when asked if he had anything to say about the differences of opinion between Prime Minister King and Premier Hepburn said his view was that the matter would settle itself pretty well after the meeting of parliament in January.

According to Mr. Gordon an extreme diversion of views among public men had been common enough before, and a fair example of it was the warfare conducted between Colonel Drew and the Hon. Earl Rowe, which seems to have been settled all right when Colonel Drew was elected the leader of the Ontario Conservative Association.

GIVEN 10 DAYS IN JAIL

William Nixon, Toronto salesman was sentenced on two charges, Magistrate Gee showed leniency making the sentences ten days each, to run concurrently and this will permit Nixon his freedom two days before Christmas. He was charged with obtaining food and lodging to the extent of $12.50 by false pretenses at Hotel Champlain. He pleaded not guilty claiming the luggage he left behind was worth far more than the sum owing. He was found guilty of skipping the board bill and also of being intoxicated.

"EVEN JUPITER NODS."

Typographical errors born of speed in newspaper make-up occur in the greatest of prints as glaringly as in the small town daily journals. This one is quoted from the New York Times report of the wedding in Boston of Miss Sally Poor Clark, sister-in-law of John Aspinwall Roosevelt, the youngest son of President Roosevelt, to George Xavier McLanahan of New York, and should be of special interest to women, as follows: "Then came the matron of honor, Mrs. John Roosevelt, in a velvet frock of bright blue, and a toque of ten other ushers."

To Increase Price Of Cheese Boxes

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 13.—An increase in the price of cheese boxes was forecast at the annual meeting of patrons and directors of the Kimberly Cheese Company Monday afternoon. The heavier box which is being demanded by the exporter may raise the price from five to seven cents above the present eighteen being paid it was stated. District dairy instructor J. A. Murray advised patrons that it was not necessary to grade cheese for home consumption. This is being done solely because of the demand for a graded product on the English market. "Quality of cheese is the big problem today and we are well advised to keep it up." Reviewing the highlights of the Belleville cheese show he recalled that buyers paid twenty-five cents for stiltons, nineteen and a half cents for flats and sixteen for large colored and white which would indicate they were now convinced that fall cheese was safe to hold.

All of the cheese sold at the show scored from 96 to 98 stated Mr. Murray. Whey must be pasteurized at all factories where it is returned in the milk cans and whey vats must be cleaned every day. In conclusion he reminded patrons that beginning with the coming year every factory would be required to have a licence.

The financial statement was read by President S. Garnet Grills who was re-elected for another year. It disclosed patrons had delivered a total of 1,498,434 pounds of milk from which had been manufactured 125,050 pounds of cheese. The butter fat content of the milk was 45,-201.8 pounds or an average of 11.97 pounds milk per pound cheese. Average price for butter fat was .3391 cents and for cheese .1375 cents. Patrons received a total of $14,-126.80 from sale of cheese and whey cream during the year.

Officers were elected as follows: President, S. G. Grillis; directors, Jas. Brady, Wm. Bennett, Neil Third, Jas. Diamond, Herbert Tinney, and Henry Locke; auditor, Frank Haig.

Charter Day Is Observed By Rotary Club

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 13 — Six past presidents and charter members of the Campbellford Rotary Club spoke before members on charter day which was appropriately recognized at their weekly meeting by the presentation of three new Rotary wheels which will be placed at the edge of town on three of the main roads. A. H. McKeel, well known for his many charitable and constructive enterprises in the community made the gift to the club, stating it was a great pleasure to "do something for Rotary which is in its turn doing something for those who are unable to help themselves. "I hope that these wheels may do something to further the cause of Rotary."

Thanks of the club was voiced by President Harold Neal to Mr. McKeel, J. O. Benor and others who had collaborated in their construction.

It was ten years ago on December 26th the Campbellford club received its charter and members stood in silence to pay tribute to five of the early members, Charles Nadoo, George A. Kingston, J. A. Loucks, Charles K. Stephens and A. L. Riendeau, who have passed on.

Dr. Arn Bright was appointed chairman of an "On to Rochester" committee for the district convention which is being held there during the second week in May. President Harold Neal reported that arrangements were now underway to provide milk for school children at the beginning of the year.

Action Is Awaited By Parole Board

Unless some action is taken by the Parole Board, Thomas Graves, 20-year-old boy from Belleville will spend Christmas in the county jail.

Graves was found wandering on the city streets early in the morning and was unable to give a satisfactory account of himself. He has been in custody since December 6th on a charge of vagrancy. He repeated his plea of not guilty before Magistrate E. A. Gee in city court this morning. Graves said he had been working for a farmer near Peterborough but quit the job because he had to sleep in an unheated room. The farmhouse he said was merely an old garage made over into a dwelling.

His parole expires in January and he will be held in custody at Peterborough until the Board advises what should be done. His parents live in Belleville and he is a member of the Salvation Army. Magistrate Gee remanded him until December 20.

CHURCH HOCKEY LEAGUE RE-ORGANIZES WITH 18 TEAMS LIKELY

45 Of 67 Critics Pick On Patty Berg As No. 1 Woman Athlete Of '38; Moody And Thompson End In Tie

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Freckle-faced Patty Berg is the overwhelming choice of United States sports experts as the No. 1 woman athlete of 1938.

Forty-five of 67 sports critics who participated in the eighth annual Associated Press poll selected Miss Berg as their first choice on the basis of a sensational golf campaign that led the young Minneapolis girl to the United States championship.

It wasn't a race at any stage. With the addition of second and third place ballots, Miss Berg rolled up 164 points to leave her closest competitors, Helen Wills Moody and Katherine Rawls Thompson, far behind.

Mrs. Moody, whose dramatic tennis comeback was climaxed by victory over Helen Jacobs in the all-England finals at Wimbledon, finished in a tie with Mrs. Thompson, unquestionably the country's greatest all-around swimmer.

Mrs. Moody gained a 10-4 margin over Mrs. Thompson in first places but the great swimmer, selected as the No. 1 woman athlete in the 1937 poll, was given wider support in seconds and thirds.

Alice Marble, who regained the women's United States singles tennis championship, finished a strong fourth with 52 points.

New Grid Group Being Planned

(Sarnia Observer)

Claude Harris, co-coach of Sarnia's junior O. R. F. U. team this year, has plans of a new age-limit setup for Western Ontario next year.

His plans call for taking four of the best junior teams in the Ontario Rugby Football Union pulling away from the DeGruchy-Bailey circuit and either joining the Big four or forming a new loop of their own.

Malvern Grads of Toronto, the Kitchener - Waterloo Twin City Combines and Woodstock's Red Devils are mentioned in the four-club circuit that would include Sarnia's Junior Imps. The matter has already been discussed with some clubs concerned and in every instance the reaction has been favorable.

"Red" Taylor, Woodstock, a member of the O. R. F. U. executive, is reported to have been approached and is said to be willing to act as secretary.

Idea Enlarged.

Original plans to have the four teams simply organized into a group and seek affiliation with the Interprovincial Rugby Union are growing a little less enthusiastic today as the proposition is discussed by more football people.

Sentiment is now swinging around to an entirely new setup. The latest suggestion is to keep clear of all football entanglements except the Canadian Rugby Union and make the league a clearing house for new gridiron ideas to speed up the Canadian game.

By affiliating with the C. R. U. the proposed new organization could draft and abide by its own playing rules. In view of the fact that the Canadian Union has shown no inclination of picking up the dominion playdowns it dropped in 1934 the affiliation will give the league official stature without interfering with its operation.

Art Massucci and Jackie Baker were talking the proposition over last night. They liked the idea. It would, if it could be worked, give Eastern Canada an experimental ground for rule changes coaches advocate but cannot use. Massucci's idea, however, called for at least a six-team loop and a single schedule which would alternate each year rather than the present home and home setup which is a liability rather than an asset at times. The two top teams, under this arrangement, would play off for the championship at the end of the year.

Western Ontario's newest football idea is not an effort to escape from O. R. F. U. domination, unsatisfactory as it may be. It is, rather, a step suggested by the more advanced students of the gridiron who still see spots where they believe the game can be improved and are willing to go off the deep end to try them out. The new league will give them this opportunity without disrupting the existing order.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

One cannot pick up a paper these days without seeing the front page splotched with stories of Mussolini's demands and Hitler's hymn of hate. We find it all very disgusting. We're used to mixing in sports and there is no room in sports for dictators. The A.A.U. of C. tried it. Nor is there room for hoggishness, intolerancy or censorship. Sports are too big for such things—and isn't it true that nations, like mobs, are as small as a centipede, when ruled o'er by a dictator? Lots of feet but only one head. This may sound like a political pillar today, but a few fancies have been whirring around in our think-tank lately and must finally break out in a rash of print. A somewhat different slant or two, maybe.

* * * * * *

Instead of climbing to political power over piles of corpses, suppose the Messrs. Mussolini and Hitler had sought distinction in the world of sports, what would they have done? Do you suppose they'd have accomplished much? It is very doubtful. Suppose luck had smiled on so many down-trodden Europeans, and Der Fuehrer and Il Duce had been born in Canada. Even in Peterborough, maybe. They would never have become dictators, and they might even have been unintersted in gaining an empire. They might have had a healthy Canadian boy's ambition to excel in athletics. It's possible.

* * * * * *

Benny And Dutch

Benito Mussolini would have been dubbed Benny, and Adolph Hitler would probably be Heiney! Or just Dutch. The Italian is short but husky and might have done okay in rugged sports, whereas the German is a willowy brittle bird and would crack easily. Kinda pale and excitable with a good line of bull. Both have swelled heads, but that'd be knocked out of 'em quick. They probably both have a certain amount of bravery, or did in their youth—but on the sports field it would have to be real nerve, and not the kind that starts a war with half a million armed robots doing the dirty work. The only way Benny or Dutch could rule would be by forging to the front in an athletic line. And they'd have to show tolerance in every phase, and have to suffer the criticism of buddies, fans and an uncensored sports press. Wouldn't it do them good, though!

* * * * * *

Lots of good Jewish fighters in the ring, and it'd be quite a thing to see Hitler or Mussolini face a tough Hebrew in the arena—not a defenceless, outnumbered, pitiful Jew. No, a ruthless hard-hitting ringman, who could batter a Hitler's mug into a gory mess! Or put these two guys on the Orfuns' line, playing middle positions, and see how they'd go against the rough Beaches. Would Sammy Sward, Ted Manorek, Warman or some other of those babies be stopped by Adolph and Benito, or would the latter two get smeared and need to be substituted? Could they take a jolting bodycheck in a puck fray and skate away with a grin? How'd they react to a coach's hot tirade in which he snarled: "You Mussolini and you Hitler are two dumb clucks, afraid to mix it with big guys. Now get out there and show me something or I'll throw you right off the lineup!" If we could just locate some magic potion that would transport Adolph and Benito to the local sports sphere, we'd certainly do it for the experiment. And wouldn't a lot of people feel grateful to us? Ah, well, away with such fancies....

And The Late Petes

And now hockey. We wonder if puck fans here realize the terrific handicap the Petes face each winter. Because they haven't any artificial rink. The locals will start their puck season on Jan. 6th, while there isn't another senior "B" team in Ontario not on the ice right now! Fliers and Belleville are in fair shape at present and the locals haven't even been on skates yet—so why expect them to reach playdowns under those circs? It's a blooming shame.

* * * * * *

After Varsity trimmed the GM-men by a 6-2 score, the Oshawa scribbler wrote: "Ace Bailey has a nice senior hockey club at Varsity. They are a definite proof that good coaching can help make a real hockey team. They were ordinary last year in junior but right now form a swell senior club. The squad is well-coached by Bailey and has the college spirit of all-for-one, and will be better before the year is out. They excel in two things which featured Ace Bailey's career in hockey. They're deadly accurate when in scoring position and they know how to back-check and to do it all the time. Not just once in awhile." Bailey had those two assets when playing amateur for the Petes.

* * * * * *

A Flock of Entries

Looks like at least 18 teams in the Church Hockey League this winter. The loop had a meeting last p.m. and cleaned up a lot of its organization work. Closing date for entries was set at Dec. 27th, and play will start maybe a day or two later. Fees are upped to $2.25 for senior and junior teams, and $1.75 for juveniles and bantams. While O.J.H.A. — meaning juvenile—players are eligible, no O.H.A. puckists are allowed on Church League squads. This is a fine minor circuit and looks ahead toward a big season.

* * * * * *

Officers elected to guide the Church Circuit 1939 destinies are: Hon. President, Rev. M. C. Parr; past prexy, Lloyd Parnall; president, Joe Dunkerley; vice-prexy, Gord Clegg; secretary-treasurer, Don Charlton; assistant secretary, George Beauclerc. While Parnall was offered a third term, he declined. This drops Cres Sproat from the executive office of immediate past president, severing an active office connection on the part of Sproat of a decade. Dunkerly was secretary of the Senior City Puck Loop a couple of seasons ago, while Clegg has been president of the Church Cage League. And Charlton deservedly went back by acclamation for his sixth term as secretary-treasurer. A good gang of ossifers, all right.

* * * * * *

Dese, dem and dose: Gals' cage meeting of coaches and captains tonight at 7.15 in the Y.W. to name officers....O.H.A. junior district group meeting tonight in Port Hope to draw up a schedule....And a Senior City Hockey League get-together Wednesday eve at eight in Duffus' to see what's what....Local and district gees interested should pop in....Apart from the material, don't ya find the larger type of this pillar easier to read?....Grid Fan: Yep. Art Stevenson played for Winnipeg in 1937 against Argos; at first ruled ineligible on a residence date, the Nebraska star was okayed in time....It begins to look like a C.R.U. gag each playoff to get a lot of ballyhoo....Belleville Redmen's praise agent is talking big these days 'cause they won their second VanHorne series scrap; better wait'll it's ovah....Time we had ice and a coach for the Petes, pretty nearly maybe soon....Guy gave us this to say three times quickly: "Six Slim Slick Saplings," and we're going around mumbling like a crackpot since!

Guards Save Crew

LA NOUVELLE, France, Dec. 13 —(AP). — Thirty-eight members of the crew of the Spanish Government oil tanker Lefac 61 were saved from drowning to-day by the heroic efforts of 12 coastguardsmen from Valras.

Riding high waves in a cutter, the coastguardsmen took the Spaniards off the distressed vessel shortly before she broke in half on a rocky reef.

Dufferin Races Are Won In Straight Heats

TORONTO, Dec. 13.—Proving to be one of the most consistently successful drivers at Dufferin Park this season, W. Hillock of Picton, scored his third "triple" of the current campaign by driving All Grattan to a straight-heat victory Monday in the classified pace.

In was the second week-end in a row that Hillock has guided All Grattan, Shawfield, Que., horse, to a straight-heat triumph. He won two heats Saturday and took the third heat, raced Monday. Drivers winning the first three heats of any race are rewarded with a bonus.

Monday's racing was comprised of unfinished heats carried over from Saturday's program. Eight heats made up the offering, and the events were contested on a much firmer track than was the cast Saturday.

Sharing the spotlight with All Grattan was Victor Lee, which performed a straight-heat victory in the free-for-all. Winner of two heats Saturday, Victor Lee showed real speed to make it three-in-a-row by coming down in front in the third heat yesterday in the fine time of 2:10.

Flora Dixon emerged as winner of the first "dash system" race held at Dufferin. Divided into three categories, the dashes were raced off Saturday and the first three horses in each race were eligible for the final, which was raced Monday. Flora Dixon wound up in third spot in her dash Saturday, but yesterday she decisioned Rosalee, the favorite, in the one-mile final.

Busy Grattan, winner of the first heat of the fifth race Saturday, could do no better than gain the show spot in the second heat, but regained form to triumph in the final pair of events.

Henry Armstrong Scores Another

There's no stopping that man Henry Armstrong! Little more than a week had elapsed after he defeated Ceferino Garcia in defence of his welterweight crown, before he had the title on the line again, this time against Al Manfredo in a bout in Cleveland. Manfredo did the Armstrong course in just about par, going three rounds with the two-crown champ before being put to sleep. The picture is typical of Hammering Hennery's fights, the champ right in on top of his opponent, arms moving back and forth relentlessly, giving his foe no chance to get set for any kind of a return.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13—(AP). — Some of the boys came to the major league meetings wanting to know why Bucky Harris handed the Giants the National Baseball League pennant by giving 'em Zeke Bonura. . . And others were wondering just what Bill Terry will do (outside of tearing his hair out) when those line shots start going right through Zeke and out into right field. . . Bill was as good as they come around that sack, and Zeke—well . . .

One thing about these ball meetings, you never know where the firecracker will bust next. . . Take that Freddy Hutchinson thing, fr instance. . . In all the chinning and gassing around the hotel lobbies, it was either the Yanks or the Pirates for the Coast kid—so up come the Tigers to grab the brass bring . . . One of the reports around the lobbies is that Dutch Clark as well as Cliff battles, is on the list for the Cleveland pro Grif Rams' coaching job.

The Tigers and Indians are slated to get together on that Averill-Fox deal by nightfall. . . With Denny Galehouse and Elden Auker also changing monkey suits in the swap. . . And another bit of gossip says Frankie Frisch will never land with the Giants this year—but may find a spot with Pittsburgh. . . The American leaguers at their meeting today are going to talk about a new bat, with (of all things) a hollow in the tip big enough to set a golf ball. . . There's more weight in the few inches where the ball generally meets the wood—and it's supposed to help the hitters. . . As though those apple-belters needed help. . . .

The Jimmy Dykes legs—greatest in baseball in this book—are going to be ready for active service with the White Sox again this season. . . But Jimmy will only call on them when they're absolutely needed. . . After all, when the "gams" are 43 years old, have been going after the hot ones for 25 years in baseball, and have been ailing for three or four seasons, you have to think of giving them a rest some time.

Joe Dunkerley Is New Prexy Of Minor Loop

Joe Dunkerley will head the Church Hockey League for the 1939 season, being elected president last night at the annual re-organization meeting of the loop held in the Y. M. C. A. There were nine city churches represented, with 22 delegates on deck. Considerable business was cleaned up as this large minor hockey circuit prepared for another campaign.

The president's address was brief, as was the secretarial report, while the treasurer's statement was more extensive. Gord Clegg presided for the election of officers, which resulted as follows: Hon. president, Rev. M. C. Parr, as president of the Ministerial Association; past president, Lloyd Parnall, who declined another term, thus replacing Cres Sproat as immediate past president; president, Joe Dunkerley; vice-president, Gord Clegg; secretary-treasurer, Don Charlton; assistant secretary, Geo Beauclerc.

Rule Changes

After much discussion, some changes in rules were passed. It was decided to raise entry fees a quarter, making senior and junior $2.25, and juvenile and bantam, $1.75; if the league entry warrants it, this raise may be ruled out later by the executive. O.J.H.A. players may patricipate in church contests, but O.H.A. pucksters are not eligible in any section. Body checking in all zones is permitted in the senior and junior divisions. In final games, the third contest will be played on the home ice of the team which finished first during the schedule. Senior teams will provide referee nominations for the younger sections. A vote of thanks was passed to the "Y", The Examiner and the rink staffs at All Saints and Quaker Oats.

While the closing date for entries is not till Dec. 27th—with play starting right after that— a number of prospective entries have been made already. At least 18 are expected in. All Saints will ice squads in all four sections, while George St. will be in all except junior. Mark St. plans a juvenile team and possibly a junior, as St. Paul's put in a junior and a bantam crew. Murray St. will run a senior team and perhaps a juvenile with Trinity just having a bantam gang. Knox is lining up a juvenile and maybe a bantam team, with St. Andrews and Park St. thinking about senior entries. St. Luke's are considering a juvenile team.

GOTTSELIG RETAINS LEAD WITH 15 POINTS IN N.H.L. SCORING

Tom Anderson In 2nd Place With 13 Points

MONTREAL, Dec. 13 (CP). — Chicago's sharpshooting Johnny Gottselig picked up two assists last week and drew into a clean-cut lead in the race for National Hockey League scoring honors, according to official figures released last night.

Gottselig, with seven goals and eight assists, for 15 points, is two points in front of Tommy Anderson, Americans, who held the leadership jointly with Gottselig a week ago. Anderson failed to add to his six goals and seven assist since then.

Canadians' Toe Blake, Bill Cowley of Boston, Nels Stewart of Americans, and his team-mate, Eddie Wiseman, are bunched for third position with 11 points each. One point behind come Marty Barry of Detroit, Ray Getliffe of Boston, Bryan Hextall of Rangers and Paul Haynes and Herb Cain of Canadiens.

Gottselig and Blake are tied for goals with seven each, while Cowley remains the league' leading playmaker with nine assists.

Alex. Levinsky of Chicago saw little action last week and kept his penalty record clean, but remains the league's leading bad man with 22 minutes spent with the timers. Toronto's Bingo Kampman is only a minute behind, with Red Horner of Toronto and Joe Jerwa of Americans following with 20 minutes each.

Wenstob To Tackle Emilio Martinez

EDMONTON, Dec. 13 — (CP). — Eddie Wenstob of Edmonton and Emilio Martinez, Mexican battler from Denver, Colo., meet here tonight in a 10-round bout that may boost Wenstob's stock in the ring world.

Wenstob, on the comeback trail at the age of 23 after bad luck tossed him from third to 10th in the list of challengers for the world's light-heavyweight crown, can better his ranking by defeating the Mexican fighter, who claims a victory over John Henry Lewis, leader of the disputed division.

The bout is sanctioned by the Edmonton boxing commission. Wenstob, reported to have developed a "kayo" punch, will weigh in around 183 pounds and Martinez 180.

Sports Cost U.S. $44,460,525 In Equipment

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13—(AP).—Tht United States census bureau offered proof today of the rise of sports as a major industry.

Figures compiled from the recent biennial census of manufacturers show manufacturers of athletic goods in the United States turned out $44,460,525 worth of equipment in 1937—a gain of 27.5 per cent over $34,863,730 reported in 1935.

Wage earners in the industry increased from 9,665 to 11,393, and wages went up from $9,018,083 to $11,730,185.

Incidentally, these figures do not include clothing made specifically for athletic purposes, nor firearms and ammunition.

The most moeny is spent for golf The value of its products was $13,760,337, an increase of more than $3,000,000 and the number of new golf balls turned loose in 1937, the census bureau says, was 20,672,184.

Next came fishing tackle, for which Americans spent $10,875,490 against $7,581,662 in 1935.

Hockey Clubs In West Have Unique System Of Keeping The Wolf From The Door

By Central Press Canadian

Winnipeg, Dec. 13.—"And don't forget the 'and District' in the name. Be sure to put that in."

Winnipeg sports writers would be comparatively wealthy if they had a dollar for every time this has been impressed on them by members of the executive of the Portage and District Hockey club. And if you don't think the 'and District' is important you'll soon be set right by any grain elevator man in Manitoba's populous Portage Plains.

For the elevator operators are key men in a money-raising scheme, originated by the Portage and District Hockey club last year. So successful was its operation that this year the scheme is sweeping the west, proving a veritable life-saver to harassed promoters of amateur hockey, especially in the smaller centres.

The answer is wheat. The same golden grain that gave to western Canada its reputation as the home of the finest wheat in the world is now doing its part to establish that part of Canada as the No. 1 growing ground for future National Leaguers.

Build Strong Teams

Since it entered the Winnipeg Junior Hockey league in 1932, the Portage team has never finished out of the playoffs. And this in one of Canada's toughest junior leagues. Three times since 1932 its top team has gone on to win the Memorial cup. The Portage club has always been knocking at the gates. This year, with an exceptionally good team, its supporters are hopeful the gates will open.

But it takes real money to operate such a club. Travelling expenses, with the other teams located in Winnipeg, Brandon and Kenora, cut a huge hole in club receipts. Equipment costs run high and good talent may be wasted unless a capable, full-time coach is obtained. The club usually plays to packed rinks but even so, additional revenue is needed to bolster the gate receipts.

A year ago the club executive was battling away at the old problem—"what'll we use for money?" Residents of the city had always been generous in digging down for the club. If a farmer was hit up for a donation when he had a dollar to spare, he usually handed it over with a smile. But several years of drought, or hail, or rust, combined with low prices, had made those dollars sparer and sparer.

Talk at the meeting veered back and forth over the usual questions of finances. Then someone—or perhaps several at once, because they're not quite clear how it came about—struck pay dirt. The idea was this: the farmer always has wheat in the fall. By the time we see him, he may not have any money. Why not get donations from him in wheat?

Ball Starts Rolling

Soon the club, with George Jones as president, and Bob Home as chairman of the bag-of-wheat committee, had its plan all doped out. They had hundreds of grain bags printed with the name of the club. Then they had placards printed explaining the campaign and asking for donations in wheat.

The plan was to place the bags in grain elevators throughout the plains. Then when farmers drove in with wheat, the elevator man would ask if they cared to give a bag of wheat to the hockey club. If the answer was "Sure," then the club's special bag was filled from the load and put away for the club's collector.

The elevator men were necessarily the king pins in the campaign. If they chose to be unco-operative, they could easily make the drive a failure. But they did their part gladly. Soon the bags were spotted and placards mailed up at elevators over an area roughly 40 miles long and 20 miles wide. Everything was ready for threshing.

Between the time of tacking up the placards and the first trickle of wheat, the committee went through all the agony of an embezzler who has staked his employer's last dollar on the turn of a roulette wheel. But threshing was no sooner started than their worries abruptly ended, to the accompaniment of an ever-growing avalanche of dollar bills, in the form of bags of wheat.

Enough Is Too Much

Soon Bob Home was deluged with frantic calls from elevator men: "For Pete's sake come out here and get this wheat. I've got no more room to store it." Quickly the club had a battery of trucks on the road, bringing the grain into the city to be sold.

Many farmers, instead of one, gave four or five bags. Others promised more later on in the fall. It was almost Christmas before they closed the books on that first amazing campaign. Receipts from the drive totalled almost $800. The money was just the extra amount needed, especially at the beginning of the season, and the club's worries were ended.

This year the bag-of-wheat committee, with Andy Forsythe, pioneer grain man of High Bluff, Man., at the helm, has been effectively continuing the work begun in 1937. Wheat prices are far below those of last year and the executive realizes this will cut receipts from the drive considerably. But low prices or high prices, good crops or poor crops, the bag-of-wheat plan is there to stay—a permanent fixture in the framework of the Portage and District Hockey club.

So next spring if you see the Portage Terriers blazing their way through to a dominion championship, just add a mental note to the numbers on the backs of their sweaters—"By special permission of the copyright holder, the No. 1 Hard Wheat of the Portage Plains."

Yanks Sit Back To Watch Trading Fun

By Gayle Talbot
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.— (AP).— One thing can be said for sure as the baseball men get down to business to-day in the annual big league convention—New York Yankees are not going to break up their three-time world champions "for the good of the game."

Therefore, almost anything that happens in the way of player deals in either league is not going to be of paramount importance. The fact will remain that the Yankees overshadow the game, and are in position to watch with amusement the efforts of 15 other clubs to put together a winner.

Detroit Tigers took a lengthy leap in that direction yesterday when they bought Freddie Hutchinson, the year's likeliest minor league pitching prospect, from Seattle of the Pacific Coast League. The Tigers gave up a veteran outfielder, Joyner White, Tony Piet, an infielder who has played in each major league, two minor league prospects and an unannounced sum of cash.

Cleveland Shuffles.

There seemed a good chance that before nightfall Cleveland Indians will have shipped Pitcher Denny Galehouse and Outfielder Earl Averill to Detroit in exchange for Pitcher Elden Auker and Outfielder Pete Fox, with Boston Red Sox possibly cutting themselves in on the deal.

The American League, holding its meeting separately from the National to-day, will in all probability adopt the so-called "dead' ball introduced by the rival circuit last season. Seven owners hope it will do something to curtail the Yankees' terrific power.

The two leagues get together in joint session on Thursday. The American Leaguers have before them the suggestion of Owner Jacob Ruppert of the Yanks that salaries be paid from the opening of spring training, in order to discourage holdouts. This is due for defeat, as is also a proposal that the season be closed a fortnight earlier than at present in order to avoid the annual conflict with football.

Both circuits are expected to extend player limit of 23 to 25 men and big plans will be made for the celebration next season of baseball's 100th anniversary.

Trade Rumored

National league baseball clubs, especially Bill Terry's New York Giants, are after the services of Henry (Zeke) Bonura, ABOVE, slugging first baseman with Washington Senators in the rival American league. The Giants weak at first since Terry himself gave up playing, feel Zeke's big bat would solve their problem nicely, but the other American league clubs would have to waive on his services before the Giants would have a chance of securing him.

Remember When—

Max Schmeling, back in a New York ring for the first time since he knocked out Joe Louis in 1936, scored a technical knockout over Harry Thomas of Chicago one year ago tonight. The black-browed German met Louis for the title last summer and was knocked out in the first round.

Two Good Teams Will Meet In Third Round

LONDON, Dec. 13.—(CP Cable)—Derby County and Everton, crack teams in league warfare this season, will meet Jan. 7 in the outstanding battle of the English football cup competition's third round. The round marks the entry of major league clubs in the great annual tournament.

In addition to the 44 big time squads, 20 representatives of third division and minor leagues, survivors of earlier struggles, continue in the fight for the famous cup now held by Preston North End.

Derby, pacemaker in the race for the league championship, is favored by being drawn at home against its Lancashire rival. With 27 points, Everton is only two points behind the county in the league table and the contest between the Titans is certain to attract a capacity crowd.

To Runcorn, plucky minor-league conqueror of Aldershot in second-round play, goes the honor of opposing Preston North End. The cup-holders will be overwhelming favorites but the representatives of the little Cheshire mining town can be expected to put up a stirring fight until the final whistle.

Chelmsford City, successful Southern League entry, fared a little better in the draw and may cause trouble to Southampton, now experiencing very little luck in the league's second division. Folkestone and Yeovil and Petters are replaying their second-round tilt this week and the winner will oppose Sheffield Wednesday on the Yorkshire club's ground.

Tigers Purchase Hutchinson For $50,000

SEATTLE, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Nineteen-year-old Freddie Hutchinson, who stepped out of high school into professional baseball to become the Pacific Coast League's best pitcher, is going to get his first squint at major league baseball next season in a Detroit Tigers uniform.

When told last night of his sale to the American League club by Seattle for a reported price of $50,000 and four players, Freddie blinked his eyes rather unbelievingly and then with a big grin on his face said:

"Don't ask me whether it feels good to know you're going to the majors It is a 15-year-old dream come true That's where I've wanted to go since the first time I saw a baseball.'

Up With The Leafs

When Bingo Kampman defenceman with Toronto Maple Leafs, suffered a badly cut leg in a game against Canadiens, it meant a chance to move up for Jack Church, ABOVE, who had been toiling for Syracuse Stars, the Leafs' International - American League farm. Church made his debut against the Red Wings and turned in a great job.

COUGHS DUE TO COLDS

Distressing cold in chest or throat, never safe to neglect, quickly eases up when soothing, warming Musterole is applied.

Better than a mustard plaster, Musterole gets action because it's NOT just a salve. It's a "counter-irritant"—stimulating, penetrating, and helpful in overcoming local congestion and pain.

Used by millions for 30 years. Recommended by many doctors and nurses. Made in Canada, in three strengths: Regular Strength, Children's (mild), and Extra Strong. Approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau. All druggists, 40¢ each.

IN MEMORIAM

THOMPSON.—In loving memory of John A. Thompson of Manvers, who departed this life ten years ago to-day, December 13, 1928.

Memory's hand is reaching back ten years ago to-day,
When one we loved so dearly, so gently passed away.
It was hard to part, but it was God's will
To vacate the chair that we never can fill.

Mr. Welbourn died at his home in Lakefield on Sunday, December 11, about one o'clock in the afternoon, just one month before he would have celebrated his 80th birthday.

Born in Sydney township near Belleville on January 10, 1859, he was the son of the late William Welbourn and Margaret Clark. He spent his boyhood in Belleville, where he married Helen Arminta Lowery of Belleville on Nov. 5, 1884.

About 1868 they moved to Otonabee township where they made their home for the next twenty years. In 1908 they moved to Lakefield where Mr. Welbourn had since resided.

Mr. Welbourn's first wife predeceased him in December, 1918. On January 24, 1924, he married Margaret Balkans of Peterborough, who survives him. Also remaining are two brothers, John of Peterborough and William E. of Belleville; two sons, Wilfred Nelson of Cobourg and Raymond Edward of Lakefield; also three grandchildren. One sister and five brothers predeceased him.

Mr. Welbourn has been in poor health for the past six years, and succumbed to a sudden attack that began two weeks ago. He was a former Methodist, and at the time of his death was a member of Lakefield United church. He belonged to the Order of the Black Knight and the Loyal Orange lodge. He was an active member of the Lakefield Curling club for many years. Regarded by all as a good sportsman and a good citizen generally.

The funeral was under the auspices of the Royal Black Preceptory No. 697, Rev. G. F. Kelly of Lakefield United church officiated. Interment was made at Lakefield Cemetery.

Pall bearers were Arthur Boulton and John Hill of Burleight Falls, and John Blakely of Lakefield, all members of the Royal Black Preceptory No. 697; and Herb Brown, Sydney Hunter, and Fred Rosborough, all of Lakefield, all members of the Loyal Orange Lodge.

CHARLES THOMSON
(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 13.—The funeral of the late Charles Lawson Thomson of Lakefield, whose death occurred here about 7 p.m. on Saturday evening, was held Monday afternoon from the family residence on Smith street. A large number of friends paid their last respects to Mr. Thomson, who has endeared himself to the members of this community during his thirty-five years in business here.

The late Charles Lawson Thomson, who was 69, was a son of Robert Thomson and Elizabeth Lawson. He was born in Durrisdeer, Scotland, on June 28, 1869 and spent his boyhood in Dumfries, Scotland, where he served his apprenticeship as a tailor. As a young man, Mr. Thomson moved to Glasgow, where he married Agnes B. Vernon of Newton Stewart (Scotland), on July 11, 1892. The couple lived in Glasgow until 1903 when Mr. and Mrs. Thomson and their family of three children came to Canada and settled in Lakefield where they have made their home since. Mr. Thomson was employed for a time in the tailoring business owned by Mr. Fisher before he purchased from him the business, which he has since operated.

Deceased was a member of Clementi Lodge, A.F. & A.M. No. 313, and belonged to the Canadian Order of Foresters. He was a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, Lakefield and in politics was a staunch Liberal.

A man of dry Scotch wit, sincere and loyal, Mr. Thomson enjoyed a quiet home life. He was an ardent fisherman.

Though not in the best of health for the past year, Mr. Thomson's death on Saturday evening came as a great shock to his family and friends. He is survived by his widow, three daughters, Mrs. J. W. Ridpath, Miss Betty Thomson and Miss Mollie Thomson all of Lakefield, and one brother, Robert, of Adelaide, Australia. His parents, two brothers and two sisters predeceased him some time ago.

Walker, pastor of Lakefield Baptist church. The pallbearers were Messrs. W. J. Charlton, D. H. Charlton, E. W. Bailey, Gavin Graham, J. H. Sherin and Judson Hull, all brother Masons.

Interment was in Lakefield cemetery.

Car Skids, Tosses Tweed Driver Out, 2nd Machine Kills Him, Leaves

TORONTO, Dec. 13—(CP).—J. P. Cassidy, Toronto, died in hospital here today of injuries suffered when he was thrown from an automobile in suburban Scarborough township last night and struck by another car as he lay unconscious in a ditch.

Cassidy's machine skidded on an ice-covered road and he was hurled into the ditch when the door flew open. The driverless car continued on its way and crashed into a truck driven by Roy Downie, Toronto. Downie and a passenger, Robert Young, suffered facial and chest injuries.

Cassidy was tossed 15 feet across the road and as Downie and Young were emerging from the damaged truck an eastbound automobile skidded, ran off the road and landed on the unconscious form of Cassidy. Its driver assisted Downie and Young removing Cassidy from under the car then left the scene of the accident without reporting his name to police.

A native of Tweed, Dr. Cassidy is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Cassidy, two brothers, Frank and Damien, and three sisters, Sister Mary Veronica, of the Order of Notre Dame, Gertrude and Anna.

Toronto, and lectured at the Teachers' Training School, Hamilton. Later he became director of commercial education for Ontario and for a time was assistant director of technical education.

As Deputy Welfare Minister, Mr. Sorsoleil's major assignment was an inquiry in 1933 into charges that children in the Windsor Children's Aid Society shelter were mistreated. He was appointed a Royal Commissioner by the George S. Henry Conservative government and heard more than 90 witnesses at Windsor.

His report, issued by the Welfare Department in February, 1934, recommended dismissal of the Shelter matrons and found the Shelter a "general atmosphere was that of a place in which children were tolerated, rather than the atmosphere of home."

The Sorsoleil report was acted upon by the government.

Turned Wrong Way At Lake.

Neil Bates, Clarence White and Bill Clark of Halifax were in the party that came across the children near Otter Lake. They apparently had reached the lake and started northward.

"The girl just woke up when I hollered and said 'Huh'," Bates said. The two boys were sleeping, Peggy, a little brown and white spaniel, across the Gilfoy boy's knee.

The children were brought to the house riding "piggy back" on the searchers. The girl's knees were numb and she could not walk. She cried with pain. Her head was stained red from the dye on her little hat.

None wore mittens, but were dressed in coats that provided some warmth.

"Billy, mamma's not going to whip me?" one of the rescue party quoted the girl as asking.

MORE ABOUT—
Vote Manion

ing statements that members of Mr. King's Cabinet are supporting him? Isn't that to be expected? If a man announces he is against his Leader he couples that with his resignation. I could say the same thing about my Cabinet Ministers. Hon. Harry Nixon (Provincial Secretary) just called me to tell me all the boys are with me and not to budge.

'Rather than submit to another five years of such apathetic rule, and callous indifference to the needs of the people of Ontario I would support another party, but I would not lead a third party. If Mr. King leads I will vote as an independent and support some other with a policy to suit me. King inaction is too much for me. He is living in another generation."

Premier Hepburn said he believed a federal general election will be held shortly after next summer's visit of the King and Queen to Canada so that "Mr. King can capitalize on the visit of Their Majesties."

Asked whether, as a voter, he had to choose betwen Mr. Mackenzie King and Dr. R. J. Manion, National Conservative leader, the Premier said he would "vote for Bob Manion—at least he's human"

The Complaint List

Premier Hepburn's "major complaints" against prime minister were that he is "not cognizant of the unemployment situation or of the extent of unrest in the country; "he has ignored his election promises; he refused to assist Ontario when the Congress of Industrial Organizations was an issue in provincial politics in 1937; refusal to assist Ontario at the time of its power settlements with Quebecpower companies and refusal to aid in the export of power to the United States.

Mr. Hepburn added:

"In a nutshell, Mr. King's whole attitude has been one of hostility to Ontario since he enunciated his 'not-a-five-cent-piece' policy in 1930. I am convinced that Mr. King literally hates Ontario for the personal defeats he has suffered in his native Waterloo and in North York, which compelled him to go to the north part of Saskatchewan for a seat in order to enter parliament. He has never forgiven Ontario for that."

Conant With Hepburn.

TORONTO, Dec. 13 — (CP). — Hon. G. D. Conant, Attorney-General of Ontario, in a statement today announced he supported Premier Hepburn in the Premier's dispute with Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

"Our Prime Minister is concerned primarily with the best interests of Ontario," Mr. Conant said. "This province has not received proper consideration by the Dominion government. I am fully in accord with our Prime Minister and will support him to the utmost."

Of charges voiced by Federal cabinet ministers that a "conspiracy" existed between Mr. Hepburn and Premier Duplessis of Quebec to remove Prime Minister King, the attorney-general said:

"As to the accusation of conspiracy, I have ample grounds for knowing that there is absolutely no foundation for this charge."

Stevens' View

MONTREAL, Dec. 13 (CP) — Since the Liberal party took office "there has been a continuous and accelerating trend to national disunity and discord, Hon. H. H. Stevens, member of parliament for Kootenay East, said in an interview here yesterday.

He predicted there would be no general election until late next year as he referred to charges of Hon. C. H. Howe, Federal Minister of Transport and Hon. Norman Rogers, Minister of Labor, that Premier Hepburn of Ontario and Premier Duplessis of Quebec were conspiring to force the retirement of Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

"Why should the Liberals go to the country urging national unity when they can't have unity in their own ranks. Since the accession of the party to office there has been a continuous and accelerating trend to national disunity and discord.

Manion Pleased.

OTTAWA, Dec. 13 (CP)—Hon. R. J. Manion, Conservative leader, today expressed pleasure Hon. H. H. Stevens, who led the Reconstruction party in the last general election, would support the Conservative party again as he had in the past.

Strikers Go To Work

KITCHENER, Ont., Dec. 13. — (CP).—Fifty striking employees of the B.C. Goodrich Rubber Company of Canada went back to work to-day after a tie-up of nearly a week. The agreement which ended last week's strike, is understood to be only temporary and binding only until the end of the year.

The understanding is that the men will return to work under conditions previously in effect and that in the meantime the company will study the more efficient tire processing system, adoption of which brought on the strike.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER
By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

ONE LEVEL DEEPER

EVERY FAIR DECLARER knows that when he has the ace and guarded queen of a suit in opposite hand the best chance to make the queen a winner lies in leading a small card toward it. The same principle applies if a guarded jack is opposite the ace and king of its suit, the difference being merely that the play is one level deeper in the deck.

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable)

The bidding on this deal began with South calling 1-Heart, to which North responded with 2-Diamonds. South's next bid was 3-Hearts and North took the contract to 4-Hearts.

West led the spade Q, which South took with the A. He then laid down the hearts A, Q and K and followed with a lead of the diamond J, which lost to East's Q. The opponents then cashed the spades K and 10 and returned a club to South's A. One more club had to be given up, so that the contract was defeated.

When dummy was exposed, it was apparent to declarer that two spade tricks would have to be given up when he lost control, so that he could not afford the loss of two clubs. His only chance therefore was to find the diamond Q with East, so that his correct play was to lead a low diamond from dummy toward his jack. As East has the Q, three diamonds would then be won, and a spot provided for one club loser.

How can South make 5-Diamonds after West has cashed the heart K and followed with the heart A?

No Surrendering Of Buckingham Unless Duce Asks For It, Chamberlain Motto On Rome Trip?

LONDON, Dec. 13—(CP-Havas).—Great Britain's position in the troubled world to-day formed the subject of ironic editorials in the Opposition press.

"We have at least two grains of comfort," said the News-Chronicle (Liberal). "Chancellor Hitler has promised us a peaceful Christmas, and Prime Minister Chamberlain, according to the latest wisecrack, is said to be going to Rome 'grimly determined not to give the Duce Buckingham Palace unless he asks for it.'

"The fact seems to be that both Germany and Italy are searching around for the lines of least resistance. When they have found them they will strike. It is therefore important that the totalitarian powers should be convinced that the line of least resistance is not to be found in the British and French democracies."

The Daily Herald (Labor) took off at the expense of reported divergences in the Cabinet.

"Lord De La Warr, President of the Board of Education, a week ago reported a 'deep and growing feeling' that appeasement was going to fail, that 'only armaments can speak effectively.' Where is this deep and growing feeling? In the Cabinet?

"This week-end Oliver Stanley, President of the Board of Trade, takes his stand midway between the Prime Minister and the Minister of Education.

What About France?

"For France? The Prime Minister is asked if we stand by her if she is attacked by Italy. He asks for notice of the question. But a few days before Lord De La Warr was asked the question in Bradford. He did not ask for notice. He answered it. He said Yes, we stand by France.

"That is not the end of the confusion. Anthony Eden goes to the United Sattes. It was as though he was going as a private individual. But suddenly the blessing of Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax descends upon his head.

"So Mr. Eden assumes the status of an emissary. But of what? Of the foreign policy against which he resigned? Well may they scratch their heads in Washington and Rome.

"Immediately after the September crisis an orgy of confession and self-criticism sweeps through the Cabinet. There are 'gaps.' There is no ammunition. Guns are old. Civilian defences is totally childish. But then the mood changes. And then we have Sir Samuel Hoare, Home Secretary, saying eight weeks after Munich that in the first few weeks of war we would have been unconquerable, and after that, by Jove, he would have showed them!

"For goodness sake, what are we and where do we go? Are we weak? Or are we strong? Are we the indivisible ally of France? Or are we not?"

Pub Mistletoe Stays, Barmaids Ready For Drunks' Kisses

London, Dec. 13 (AP)

LONDON BARMAIDS protested today against a suggested ban on the mistletoe in "pubs" during the Christmas season.

A union official started it by telling members of the saloon section of the Transport and General Workers' Union that "many a good, honest woman behind a bar is dragged forward to be kissed under the mistletoe by some stupid, drunken man."

A barmaid of "Ye Black Friar Pub" led the girls in the retort: "What's wrong with it? Christmas is supposed to be a time of good will, isn't it?"

No union action was taken.

Bassett Murderer Ends Life In Jail

SEATTLE, Dec. 13—(AP). — Mrs. Mary Eleanor Smith, 73-year-old former prisoner of the Washington State Prison, was alone today to face a first degree murder charge in connection with the disappearance 10 years ago of James Eugene Bassett, of Annapolis, Md.

Her son and co-defendant, Decasto Earl Mayer, 44, lifer in the state penitentiary as a habitual criminal, killed himself yesterday in the county jail here.

Prosecutor Gray Warner was prepared to continue the trial, but authorities were chiefly concerned with obtaining from Mrs. Smith a clue to the whereabouts of Bassett's body.

"I wish he had confessed," Mrs. Smith told Sheriff William Severyns after she had recovered from the shock of her son's suicide. "I would rather he had been hanged than kill himself—then the Creator would have forgiven him."

Severyns said Mrs. Smith changed her story that the body was cut up and buried in different places—that she now claimed Mayer carried the body part by part to one burial place because he could not carry it all at once.

Severyns said Mayer used a leather belt to hang himself from the upper bunk. To make his act doubly certain,' the sheriff said, Mayer stuffed wads of paper down his throat, wrapped a black cloth around his head, lashed his mouth with the belt and then tied his hands with a rope.

Drivers' Service Bureau For Year-End Drunks Swamps Originator With Chauffeurs

TORONTO, Dec. 13 — (CP). — Toronto motorists who would celebrate the year-end holiday season with a glas sor two of foaming brew need have no fear of interruption by the law if they call the Drivers' Service Association for a chauffeur.

The Bureau, brain-child of Jack Howey, young Toronto insurance salesman, will charge $3 for a chauffeur—drawn from the ranks of Toronto's unemployed — from dinner time to midnight, and a dollar an hour after that. The drivers can also keep all tips.

Howey got the idea last week when he read that there were more motor accidents in Toronto last week-end than there were last New Year's Eve. He put an advertisement in a paper for young men with chauffeur's licences.

His telephone rang for hours. He took a hundred names and then had to tell the rest that he had sufficient applicants.

"They begged, they pleaded, some cried into the 'phone," he said. "Now we're interviewing them all and you've no idea how heart-breaking it is. Many fellows haven't a nickel to face Christmas with."

Howey will receive 40 per cent. of the money received to pay for newspaper advertisements which he plans to run from now until after New Year's. He said it was a gamble and "I've no idea what the demand will be."

Curtsy to Duchess of Windsor Wins Scolding For Diana Duff Cooperby Lady Pembroke

LONDON, Dec. 13—(A). — The Countes sof Pembroke, an expert on Court etiquette, emerged in the week-end London press as a forthright devotee of the "No curtsy to the Duchess of Windsor School."

"If the Duchess is made a Royal Highness," she told the Sunday Despatch, "then I shall be pleased to drop her a curtsy."

Lady Pembroke is the wife of the Earl of Pembroke. She said she had scolded Lady Diana Duff Cooper, wife of the former First Lord of the Admiralty, and Mrs. Euan Wallace, wife of the Financial Secretary to the Treasury, because they told her they curtsied to the Duchess in Paris "to please the Duke."

"I told them that, personally, nothing would induce me to curtsy to the Duchess at present, as it is not customary in this country to curtsy to any but Royal personages," the Countess said.

She said Alfred Duff Cooper seemed "rather angry" at her remark, the Despatch related.

Welsh Ask Equality In Own Law Courts

ABERYSTWYTH, Wales, Dec. 13 —(CP).—Welsh language organizations are planning a nation-wide canvass for signatures to a petition for equality of Welsh and English in Welsh law courts.

The canvass will be conducted on a scale comparable with that of the League of Nations Union 1935 "peace votes in which Wales raised a record number of signatures. Dafydd Jenkins, secretary of the petition movement said:

"The petition is one that should be signed not only by Welsh-speaking persons who themselves suffer the injustice of the ban on the Welsh language in the courts but also by non-Welsh-speaking people who sympathize with them."

He explained the authors of the petition did not wish to impose the Welsh language on all residents of the principality but to place it on an equal footing with English. Canvassing probably will start in the New Year and be compelted by next May.

Previously boxes have been sent to shutins on Christmas eve. Invariably, despite care, someone failed to receive a box. This year a Christmas tree will be near the Cenotaph on Friday evening, Dec. 23. Bags of candy, nuts, oranges, will be given each child under twelve. A Christmas story and Christmas cards will follow. If the evening is stormy the tree will be in the Town Hall. The ladies will send their donations to Mrs. Arthur Pane's so the bags may be filled on Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Cooper gave her report on the convention. Speaking of the spread of Women's gatherings other than purely church ones, she said that in 1893, the first Women's Council was held. In thirty-seven years the W.I. has spread, has gradually divided the province into thirty convention areas and now a fourteenth one is being formed. There are seventeen kinds of women's organizations now in Toronto and adult education is almost a craze.

President Mrs. George Weller, who is director of home economics for the Toronto area spoke of the marriage of Miss Bess McDiarmid on Nov. 21. She had been area president for four years.

The banquet addresses were mostly on education, and stressed that women should attend school meetings, should know what their children are studying and doing at school.

Dr. Helen McMurchy reminded the gathering that free information could be had on practically all subjects bearing on the home by applying for it and urged guarding the health of the young.

Mrs. Weller spoke of handcraft, especially for boys. After the Mizpah benediction the meeting closed and some merry games were enjoyed.

Ladies Are Startled

One of the men startled the ladies by telling them he had come to ask a donation of $100 for the fire protection fund, but he had only come to ask them if they would be willing to hand the engine, now that it is equipped with needed accessories and on a truck, over to the care of the council. The W.I. had given a good donation towards the engine, and is quite willing the council should care for it.

Some time was spent in games and music. Mrs. Cooper assisted by a committee served supper at which a merry time was spent.

ROSENEATH

Re-elect Officers Of Mission Circle

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ROSENEATH, Dec. 13—The reports presented at the annual meeting of the United Church Mission Circle were outstanding. The circle was organized one year ago, and during the year took full charge of two church services.

Another important feature of their activities was the making of a layette, valued at $15.00. The layette was donated to the W.M.S. bale.

The report of the treasurer, Geraldine Hugh, showed over $27.00 raised during the year. A copper contest and a sale of home cooking were two methods used to raise funds.

On motion of Mrs. S. Thackeray and Mrs. C. Sandercock, the officers were re-elected, they are: President, Miss Ruby Blodgett; vice-president, Jessie Smith; secretary, Jean Carew; treasurer, Geraldine Hugh; sunshine committee, Shirley Brisbin and Gwendolyn Varcoe; pianist, Mrs. S. Thackeray.

Temperature Reveals Fertility Periods

CLEVELAND, Dec. 13—(AP). — A woman can determine her periods of fertility with a daily temperature chart, Cleveland's Brush Foundation announced to-day.

Dr. Theodore T. Zuck, Dr. T. Wingate Todd of Western Reserve University, and several other foundation scientists conducted an eight-year study of the subject. Nearly 200 couples co-operated.

Dr. Zuck said a temperature graph also shows, sooner than any other practical method, when conception has occurred.

The method involves taking of the body temperature every morning before arising, always at the same hour, and plotting a curve on a graph.

The Foundation Research found that the temperature curve dropped a degree or more midway between menstrual periods. An interval of not more than three days before the low point on the graph, and one day after, was found to be the period of fertility. This was proved without exception, the Foundation said, in all of 50 conception cases studied.

Dr. Zuck said the graph quickly shows when conception has occurred because in that event there is no further change in temperature.

Has Bullet In Brain

TORONTO, Dec. 13 — (CP). — Physicians said today Michael Collins, Sturgeon Falls man, rushed here Friday with a bullet in his brain, was "much better but still in serious condition." The .22-calibre rifle bullet was lodged in the centre of his brain, a vital section, while a chip of lead was about 1½ inches behind the left side of his forehead.

Due to a suspected meningeal irritation which had developed, doctors said, they were unable to operate immediately.

Despite the gravity of his condition, hospital authorities said, Collins was "bright as a button." His condition had improved tremendously since he was brought 280 miles from Sturgeon Falls by taxi.

Americas Urged Fight As One If Any Attacked

LIMA, Peru, Dec. 13—(AP).—The Pan-American conference peace committee took up today a sweeping project for safeguarding the security of the Americas.

The project was advanced by Venezuela and defines what would be aggression from a non-American nation. It calls for immediate consultation and common action by the American countries in the event of attack.

Some of the delegates considered the project too advanced in concept for conference approval in its present form, but from the committee discussion may emerge a draft acceptable to all.

Some delegates saw a favorable omen for peace legislation in the address by Jose Maria Cantilo, foreign minister of Argentina, who said on Saturday that the American nation were ready to maintain a common front against any danger which might menace the independence and sovereignty of any of them.

In view of the previous Argentina attitude against any step drawing away from European ties, the feeling prevailed that Cantilo took a step further than might have been expected.

Invasion Unlikely?

Much criticism of the Venezuela aggression project was that it did not consider the possibility of invasion of the hemisphere by political activities of the non-American nations, which both Cantilo and state secretary Cordell Hull, chief of the United States delegation, mentioned in their Saturday speeches.

The Venezuela plan, "without exaggerating future dangers" and "without sowing suspicion," declares that "for America the moment has arrived to think and work continually, to unify its action and its methods of defence in the face of emergencies that might arise."

The definition of aggression includes: Force to settle differences rather than use of the courts; declaration of war on the signatories; invasion by armed forces; attack by land, air or sea; a naval blockade; support to armed bands invading one of the Americas.

Constipated? You Should Get at the Cause!

Lots of people think they can't be "regular" without frequent trips to the medicine chest. "I just dose up and get it over," they tell you. But doctors know they don't "get it over" at all—until they get at the cause of the trouble!

Chances are it's simple to find the cause if you eat only what most people do—meat, bread, potatoes. It's likely you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It's a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a bowel movement.

If that fits you, your ticket is a crunchy breakfast cereal—Kellogg's All-Bran. It contains the "bulk" you need plus the intestinal tonic, vitamin B1.

Eat All-Bran every day, drink plenty of water, and just watch the old world grow brighter! Made by Kellogg in London, Ont.

AT 77 HE WALKS 8 MILES SINCE SYNTONA BUILT HIM UP

Nilestown Man Says He Felt Miserable and Rundown for Two Years Previously. Appetite Was Poor, Stomach Upset; Had Dizzy Spells and Headaches.

"I feel years younger since I have taken a treatment of Syntona," said Mr. Albert E. Barnard, well-known Nilestown man, recently.

"I am 77 years of age and I always enjoyed good health until two years ago, when I started having trouble with my stomach. It kept getting worse until it seemed no matter what I ate, I would fill up with gas and belch hot, sour liquids. Then I got spells of dizziness and blinding headaches. My complexion became sallow and I was troubled with pimples. During those two years I felt tired and worn out; had no ambition to get around.

"So many people seemed to be getting good results from Syntona so I started taking it, too. Right from the first, my food began to digest better and I said: 'If this medicine helps me I will surely recommend it.' Now I have been taking it for several weeks and I feel like a different man. My appetite is good and my food digests well. I am free of those headaches and dizzy spells. My skin has cleared up and I sleep better. I have regained some lost weight and I don't tire like I used to. Only the other day I walked home from London, and that is eight miles."

Mr. ALBERT BARNARD.

Syntona contains no drugs or depressors. It is made only from pure herbal juices that aid in the proper assimilation of food for strength and resistance and rid the system of excess acids and impurities. It is pleasant to take and particularly beneficial at this season.

So make up your mind to-day to get yourself a treatment of Syntona at Elliott's Drug Store, Peterborough. The chances are that you too will say it is the best medicine you ever had the good fortune to use.

Danish Nazis Kidnap Plot Nipped

Police Nab 4 Youths Cruising Near Premier's Villa

COPENHAGEN, Dec. 14 (AP). — Police arrested and later released four Danish Nazis today after an intense but fruitless investigation of a suspected plot to kidnap Premier T. H. Stauning.

The four men were arrested in a car filled with Nazi pamphlets outside the Premier's suburban villa. Some hours later police freed them, asserting they were unable to prove the existence of a plot.

Police reinforcements guarded both the Premier's villa in suburban Hellerup, and the ministerial buildings in Copenhagen throughout the night.

Police said the car in which the four youths were arrested belonged to a man implicated in a nation-wide foreign espionage plot uncovered last month. At that time three Danes and nine foreigners were arrested. Several of the latter were expelled.

Extra police were sent to the villa and to Ministerial Buildings when an unusual number of cars were noted on the roads about the former.

Police thought an attempt might be made to seize Stauning on his return to the house after a late night radio speech, made in town, to Greenland.

When the car containing four men passed the villa for the third time, a policeman jumped into the car with drawn pistol, and ordered the driver to go to the police station.

There all four admitted they were Nazis, but denied any criminal intent. Stauning was not molested.

A 65-year-old Socialist, the Premier once was an errand boy and cigar factory employee. He has been a foe of the Nazis for many years.

Girls Beat Off Two Attacks

TORONTO, Dec. 14 (CP)—Biting and kicking, two York township girls beat off an attack made on them by a heavily-set, tall man in North Silverthorn last night.

The attacks were made in different spots in the uninhabited district within 15 minutes of each other, township police believe the same man was responsible.

Police surrounded the area but a thorough search of ravines and fields failed to uncover traces of the attacker.

Both girls were scratched about the eyes and forehead and suffered from shock. They were taken to their homes by police.

The first attack was made on the younger girl, aged 15, as she walked south on Cameron avenue. She was passing a dark vacant field when the six-foot man stepped out from behind a clump of bushes and grabbed her. He put one hand across her mouth and the other around her arms and threw her to the ground.

Biting and kicking, the girl managed to free her mouth and start screaming. The thug dug his fingernails into her face, but she kept on fighting and screaming. She managed to get free and the assailant fled into the nearby thicket.

Fifteen minutes later a 20-year-old girl was grabbed about the throat and mouth as she walked along Hallbrook road. She started screaming and kicking as her attacker tried to throw her to the ground. He riped her face with his fingernails and hurled her to the pavement before escaping.

Widow Beats Out 'Fast Worker' In Court Deal

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 14 — (C.P.) —A London widow went on the County Court witness stand to-day to tell Judge Wearing all about the two years she says she was courted by "a fast worker." The Judge heard about the laundry the widow did, the Sunday meals she cooked when the boy friend got tired of boarding-house fare, and the gifts the two exchanged.

The result of it all is that the widow, Mrs. Gwendoline Harris, is to get $112, and costs, from Henry Ernest Hastings, a London brewery worker. The two consented to a judgment part way through the trial. The money is to pay medical bills. Nothing was provided for the laundry, nor for the furniture she got from him. She sued for $156 laundry bill, $112 medical bills, and he counterclaimed for $300 for furniture.

The widow said her husband died in July, 1935, and before the fall, Hastings "called me on the telephone and asked me to keep company with him." She said she didn't go out with him for two or three months after that.

She bought lots of things for him, she said, such as shirts, ties, underwear, and once a lighter with his name engraved on it.

"He was sick of boarding-house meals, so I gave him his meals every Sunday."

They were going to be married, the widow said. Two or three months after she met him, she found out he was married.

Price Of Bread Drops One Cent

Several bread companies in the city have reduced the price of bread one cent a loaf on cetrain lines, and the reduction became effective yesterday.

Stocks Bread have reduced one grade of bread one cent on the loaf, leaving other lines unchanged. Grady's Bakery have also dropped one cent off the price of the loaf that formerly sold for nine cents. Walkers and Westons could not be reached by telephone, but it was learned on good authority that both companies have made reductions.

German Grab Of Memel Nearly Ready

Berlin Explains Plea From Citizens To Make Job Easy

BERLIN, Dec. 14.—(AP).— Berlin diplomatic quarters expressed the belief to-day that annexation of Memel territory by Chancellor Hitlers greater Germany is but a matter of weeks.

Events were believed moving at such a fast pace that Hitler might be able to call the Reichstag together Jan. 30—the sixth anniversary of his rise to power—to welcome 150,000 Memel Germans into the Fatherland.

Diplomatic quarters felt conditions had ripened within the 1,099 square miles of territory which Lithuania took from Germany after the Great War for a decisive step late in January when the newly chosen Memel Diet (Parliament) meets.

It was believed the almost unanimously German Diet— elected Sunday on the issue of the people's avowal to Germandom—would precipitate the issue by voting that Memel belongs to Germany.

In that fashion Hitler would be invited to step in, these quarters reasoned, on the basis that it was the will of the people of Memel.

The Huehrer has troops handy in the strongly-manned garrisons of Titlist and Koenigberg, in adjoining East Prussia, to take advantage of the invitation.

Such procedure, it was pointed out, would not be out of line with Hitler's declaration after the annexation of Sudetenland that the Nazis had no further territorial claims in Europe.

Couldn't Ignore Plea.

The situation would be one in which Memel Nazis would plead with Hitler to come to them — a plea which he could hardly ignore if he remained true to his chosen role of "protector of all Germans."

That is what happened in Austria as well as Sudetenland, and it worked to perfection in both cases.

Calls at the German Foreign Office by British and French diplomats the day following the Memel election, moreover, indicated London and Paris were watching closely the rapidly developing Memel question.

A mass exodus of Jews from Memelland also claimed the attention of the Nazi press. Field Marshal Goering's newspaper Der Angriff significantly picked up comment of the Amsterdam press of the Jewish exodus as a "symptom of coming events."

Hitler and inner Nazi circles, diplomatic quarters had good reason to believe, already had assurances from the German Minister to Lithuania, Erich Zechlin, that the little Baltic nation would not fight over the Memel issue.

Observers recalled how quickly Lithuania backed down in the face of Polish ultimatums when 20 years of strife over Wilno territory came to a head last March and threatened war.

Really a Plebiscite?

German officialdom, while watching Memel developments closely, naturally has remained silent regarding the Anschluss question.

The controlled press, however, since Sunday's election has been highlighting reaction to the balloting. The newspapers particularly have emphasized foreign views that the election in reality was a plebiscite.

The Boersen Zeitung said the balloting was "more than the election of a diet. It is recognized abroad as an incontestable manifestation of the people's will. This will of the people is German. It demands its uncurtailed right in every sphere and in all directions. It closes forever a chapter."

Achievement Of Good Relations In All Parts Of Canada Is Manion's Pledge In Quebec

QUEBEC, Dec. 14 (CP). — Conservative Leader R. J. Manion today pledged himself to make the achievement of good relations between different sections of Canada one of his chief preoccupations as head of a nation-wide party.

He did so as he addressed a Canadian Club luncheon and made his first public appearance in Quebec Province since his selection as leader of the National Conservative party last July.

Opening his remarks in French, he expressed regret he was unable to make his whole speech in that language. Dr. Manion believed he understood the mentality of French Canada as he had visited Quebec many times and had many friends here.

In order to develop Canada as "an important, progressive and powerful nation," is was necessary for the two major groups which composed the Canadian people to exercise great tolerance toward each other.

"Mutual concessions are absolutely necessary in a country like ours if we wish to enjoy harmony and co-operation in the building of our nation," he said.

As a native of Ontario he could speak for that province and say the vast majority of its people had the greatest friendship for French-Canada and he was sure the majority of the people of Quebec had the same feeling toward the English-speaking sections of Canada..

LONDON, Dec. 14 (AP).—The King observed his 43rd birthday today with a quiet family celebration.

Greetings from his family and from the heads of other nations poured in, but the Empire will not hold its official birthday observance until next summer when the King and Queen will be in Canada.

The official celebration, with a trooping of the colors and other ceremonies, is customarily held in June so that it will not be marred by inclement weather.

A private party at Buckingham Palace tonight will mark the occasion.

The King and Queen were luncheon hosts to Queen Mary and the Princess Royal.

The adult members of the Royal Family, including the King and Queen, were the guests of Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret at a Christmas party attended by about 100 boys and girls.

KING GEORGE VI.

An official announcement from Buckingham Palace yesterday said His Majesty is planning to broadcast a message to the Empire from Canada on Empire Day, 1939. The announcement said he will not broadcast on Christmas Day this year.

"His Majesty as stated in his broadcast last year, does not propose to follow this practice on every Christmas Day in the future," the announcement said.

"The King hopes, however, to take the opportunity of his presence in Canada next summer to speak to the people of the Empire from that Dominion on Empire Day."

Empire Day, better known in Canada as Victoria Day, Falls on May 24.

Visited Hepburn At His Bid Says Gardiner

OTTAWA, Dec. 14—(CP).—The Federal Cabinet will meet again late to-day to make further preparations for the next session of Parliament and probably discuss latest developments in the dispute with Premier Hepburn of Ontario.

Agriculture Minister Gardiner entered the controversy yesterday, when he replied to statements made in Toronto by Mr. Hepburn to the effect that the Federal minister had gone to Toronto on a peace mission to offer the Ontario Liberal leader "certain concessions."

In his answer, Mr. Gardiner said he paid two visits to Mr. Hepburn during November and both were on Mr. Hepburn's invitation.

Mr. Gardiner also revealed that he was one of the Ontario Premier's choices as successor to Prime Minister King. The Dominion-Ontario feud erupted Saturday night on this issue when Labor Minister Rogers and Transport Minister Howe charged in Port Arthur speeches that Premier Hepburn had formed an "unnatural alliance" with Premier Duplessis of Quebec to depose Mr. Mackenzie King.

Mr. Hepburn told the Agriculture Minister at their first interview November 17, that he would not support Mr. King but would support a satisfactory nominee to succeed the present Prime Minister, according to Mr. Gardiner.

"He was prepared to support the nominee of the Liberal party when he came before the people with a progressive party and intimated he would be prepared to support me under those circumstances," Mr. Gardiner continued.

100 Per Cent. Behind King.

"I immediately stated that while I appreciated the compliment I had always been a strong supporter of Mr. King and would continue to support him 100 per cent, so long as he desired to remain leader of the Liberal party. Mr. Hepburn withdrew the suggestion and stated he would expect me to take that position."

The second interview took place November 25. Mr. Gardiner said "Mr. Hepburn then told me that his reason for calling me back was that he was already convinced Mr. King was going to stay, that if he remained he would oppose Mr. King and that rather than break up the Lib-

Any Italian Move On Tunisia To Concern Britain Gravely, Says Chamberlain

Foreign Affairs Official Creates Furore By Revealing Italy Has Landed Troops In Spain Since Treaty With Britain

LONDON, Dec. 14 (AP).—Prime Minister Chamberlain declared in the House of Commons today that any Italian aggression toward French Tunisia would be a "matter of grave concern" to the British Government.

He made the statement in reply to a question whether "undertakings in respect of the status quo in the Mediterranean as embodied in the British-Italian agreement applied to Tunis."

Mr. Chamberlain declared that "certainly" the status quo agreement applied to Tunisia.

A Broken Pledge?

Richard Butler, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, admitted that Italy had landed troops and war materials in Spain in recent weeks to assist General Franco's insurrection.

The admission raised a storm of protest from Labor members, who told Prime Minister Chamberlain he had misled the House on Premier Mussolini's pledges which prefaced the document bringing the Anglo-Italy treaty into effect. They served notice they would raise the whole question at an early opportunity.

Mr. Butler made it plain that Italian assistance to General Franco amounted only to replacements and that there had been no increase in personnel.

Earlier, during the question hour, the Prime Minister had declined to give an assurance he would consult the House before offering belligerent rights to General Franco.

"We cannot, however," Mr. Chamberlain stated, "contemplate the possibility of an attack on Tunis, as suggested in the question," put by Arthur Henderson, Labor.

Mr. Henderson had asked whether "in view of the fact that His Majesty's Government was a signatory of the 1923 convention affecting British citizens in Tunis, and provisions of the Anglo-Italian agreement (put into force November 16) safeguarding the status quo in the Mediterranean, His Majesty's Government will represent to the Italian government that aggression against Tunis will not find this country disinterested."

No Answer.

Mr. Chamberlain refused to answer a question by Geoffrey Mander, Liberal, as to whether Great Britain and France during recent general staff conversations, had made "necessary arrangements for joint defence."

He also declined to reply to Mr. Mander's question: "Is it not important that France should know whether this country is willing to stand by her?"

(On Monday Mr. Chamberlain told the House no specific pact obligated Great Britain to aid France if Italy attacked her. Last night, however, he said: "Our relations with France are so close as to go far beyond mere legal obligations since they are founded on an identity of interest.")

The Labor Party decided to bring a motion of censure during a foreign affairs debate next Monday. It will move "That this House has no confidence in the foreign policy of His Majesty's Government."

LONDON, Dec. 14—(CP-Havas). —The Duke of Kent, who will become Governor General of Australia next year, will broadcast an address to that Dominion January 26 on the occasion of "Commonwealth Day."

Britain's Ire Up At Nazi Slap To Chamberlain

By Rader Winget
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, Dec. 14—(AP).—A Nazi rebuke to Prime Minister Chamberlain for criticism of the German press headed for House of Commons debate to-day, amid speculation whether a barrier was developing to full peace understanding between the two countries.

The Labor party prepared to ask in the House for explanation to-day of the absence of the German ambassador and Nazi press representatives from the Foreign Press Association dinner, at which the Prime Minister spoke last night.

This was expected to be followed by a lengthy review of British-German relations during full dress foreign affairs debate on Monday, before the Christmas recess.

Political quarters saw in the absence of the Germans a sign of official Nazi displeasure with the Prime Minister, since they presumably acted on orders from Berlin.

Germans Resent Criticism.

The Germans declined invitations to the important dinner, attended by ambassadors of Belgium, Brazil, France, Poland, Russia and Italy, after reading advance copies of Mr. Chamberlain's speech.

The speech criticized a German press reference to Earl Baldwin, former Prime Minister, as a "guttersnipe" and, cautiously warned aggressors that "attempts at domination are never long successful."

The declinations came so late time did not permit rearrangement of tables to close the gaps. There were nearly fifty German newspaper and embassy absentees.

Many at the dinner banged tabletops with their fists and there was loud and long applause for Mr. Chamberlain who did not alter his prepared text, except to refer to Germany and Italy as "dictator" states rather than "authoritarian."

British officials did not comment immediately, but unofficially there was speculation over a new coolness between Great Britain and Germany.

Very Touchy Lot.

The Daily Herald (Labor) summed up one section of opinion in an editorial which said "it seems reasonable to the Nazis that they should be free to string together almost every known epithet of abuse in their attacks upon others. Yet they are so touchy that the most restrained expression of what everyone in this country feels is to them an intolerable insult."

Some saw lessening chances for the success of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht,

Cox Not Asked To Introduce Rogers Says Howe—Advised, Stay Away

OTTAWA, Dec. 14—(CP).—Transport Minister Howe said today Mayor Charles W. Cox of Port Arthur had not been invited to introduce Labor Minister Rogers at the political meeting in the Lakehead city last Saturday night.

Mr. Howe was commenting on a newspaper report from Port Arthur yesterday quoting Mayor Cox as saying he had refused to introduce Mr. Rogers and had refused to attend was to be made upon Premier Hepburn of Ontario. Mr. Cox is a Liberal member of the provincial legislature.

The transport minister gave out the following statement:

My attention has been called to despatch from Port Arthur in which Mayor Charles W. Cox said he refused to introduce Hon. Norman Rogers an dhad refused to attend the Saturday evening meeting. The facts are that I. L. Mathews was asked to introduce Mr. Rogers but at the last moment was unable to do so for reasons having to do with his health.

Mayor Cox was not invited to introduce Mr. Rogers or any other speaker. In fairness to Mayor Cox I told him prior to the meeting that remarks might be made that would be embarrassing to him as provincial member and offered my advice that he stay way from the meeting.

Yorkshire's Scared Mill Town 'Feels Its Neck' When 5 'Slasher Attacks' Prove Hoaxes

HALIFAX, England, Dec. 14— (AP).—This Yorkshire mill town to-day suffered a sheepish reaction to its "slasher" scare of last month when the crown prosecutor declared in court at least five of the 13 reported slashings were fakes.

Two girls were bound over for trial on charges of causing malicious mischief by slashing themselves. One said she did it with a penny razor blade because she was angry at her boy friend. The other admitted she had used a comb to inflict a cut because she was "excited" by reports of the "phantom slasher."

Declaring that "now we know that at least five of the 13 attacks never happened at all." Prosecutor W. N. Curtis spoke bitingly of "persons with silly notions."

He recalled the state of alarm that gripped the town through the last week in November, when thousands of persons were afraid to go outdoors after dark, hundreds of men banded themselves together armed with clubs, and mill girls marched to work under escort in fear of the "slasher."

The attacks in Halifax ended after Scotland Yard agents arrived November 30, and began work on the theory that the "slasher" actually was largely the product of imagination.

Sudden German Need Of 25,000 Maids Robs Netherlands

Amsterdam, Dec. 14 (AP)

NETHERLANDS housewives faced an intensified servant problem today as approximately 25,000 German maids were ordered by a German decree to return to Germany as soon as possible.

The decree was issued because of a labor shortage in Germany. Many of the servants have lived and worked in the Netherlands 10 years or more. Some do not want to return to the Reich. The final date for their return was not announced.

110 English, Canadians To Be Freed In Spanish War Christmas Deal

HENDAYE, France, Dec. 14—(CP) —Reports reaching the border today said agents for the Spanish Government and the insurgents are preparing a mass exchange of prisoners during the Christmas season.

Under the reported plan all foreign prisoners held by either side would be exchanged except those listed as special cases.

Among the Canadians believed involved are Leslie Wilson, Frank C. Wood and Peter Maskaluk, of Vancouver; Bowen Cromwell, Charles Scanlan, George Hill, George Markowski, Michael Malicki, Steve Harriot and Paul Scott, of Toronto; John D. Clarence Mann Elected Head Of County U.F.O.

Clarence Mann, Smith township farmer, was elected president of the Peterborough County U.F.O. No. 519 without opposition last night as the annual meeting was held at the Paragon Hall. Vernon Campbell of Douro, was named vice-president, and E. H. Brown of this city, was declared secretary-treasurer after a three-cornered fight with Earl Tully and E. A. Scott, secretary last year.

Earl Tully, of Smith township, retiring president, who has directed the various projects through two years of successful endeavor, and through two terms as president when the club showed a steady gain, occupied the chair.

In describing the social activities of the club, he said every dance sponsored had shown a profit. He extended tribute to the members of the executive for the fine cooperation given him during the year, and urged them to stand together if they hoped to attain the greatest success from the cooperative movement.

Balance On Hand.

E. A. Scott, secretary-treasurer, read the audited financial statement which revealed total cash receipts of $1,506.30 and total expenditures of $1,109.56.

The chairman then called on Charles Brown, chairman of the Peterborough Livestock Shipping Board to give a report for the year. Mr. Brown said it was the 17th annual statement and it showed a considerable improvement in the volume of business over 1937. The total volume of stock handled by the board was $51,338.54, consisting of the following: 1,778 hogs, 75 sheep, 378 calves, 333 cattle. The total was an increase of $6,000. Disposition of the total was as follows: Returns to members $48,919.77; freight, $442.86; feed and yard charges, $169.39; commissions to U.F.O., $212.34; trucking, $678.24; reserve fund, $234.00; commissions, $700.00.

He explained that the board had reduced the rates on cattle from 50 to 40 cents but the rate of 60 cents for calves and sheep remained the same.

Mrs. Milton Clarke of Smith township, Vernon Campbell of Douro, and Earl Tully, delegates to the U.F.O. Provincial convention in Toronto last November, reported. Mrs. Clarke, the first speaker, made a thorough job of telling the audience the program and highlights of the convention.

Babes In Woods Are Recovering

HALIFAX, Dec. 14 — (C.P.). — Three modern "Babes in the Woods" recovered in hospital here to-day from 15 hours of exposure in Halifax County's wild bushland—far more fortunate than two small children whose disappearance 96 years ago formed the basis of one of Nova Scotia's most touching nursery stories.

While Doris and Clyde White and Billie Gilfoy snuggled in warm blankets in the hospital where they were brought this morning from the Lakeside district 15 miles distant, Halifax residents recalled the story of the disappearance of Margaret and Jane Elizabeth Meagher from their home near Dartmouth, across the harbor.

The Meagher girls, aged four and six years, skipped down the path from their home on April 11, 1842, waved good-bye to their mother, and disappeared into the woods looking for spring flowers. They were never seen alive again.

The frantic mother sought neighbors' assistance in hunting them. Six day later searchers found the two dead, clasped in each other's arms, beneath a tree, and half covered with dead leaves.

Ever since then the belief in Nova Scotia has been that the old folk tale "Babes in the Woods" was based on the loss of the two children.

Suez Canal Cuts Passage Rates

PARIS, Dec. 14—(AP)—The Suez Canal Company announced to-day its passage rates would be lowered on Thursday but the action had no connection with Italian agitation for Mediterranean concessions.

Officials of the company said the charge for vessels passing through the canal, now six shillings ($1.44) a ton, would drop to five shillings ninepence ($1.38).

The proposal for the new rates was announced last June at a stock holders' meeting, the officials said, and was formally adopted by the International Board of Directors in September.

Tip-Off Reward Goes Begging

CHATHAM, Ont., Dec. 14— (C.P.) —Thomas Timbers stoutly denied from behind a closed bedroom door to-day that he was the man who supplied police with information that led to the arrest of Earl (Bluebeard) Harris, negro member of a voodoo cult charged with murder in Highland Park, Mich.

Reporters who sought to question Timbers concerning a reward of $50 voted to him by the Highland Park Council last night were told he wasn't the person who heard Harris' description broadcast from a Detroit radio station and informed police.

"Go take a picture of the right man," Timbers shouted as he darted through a door over which was a sign "Private," the bedroom of the Timbers home. "I ain't him. I don't know nothin' about it at all. I never suspected him of being a killer and never said nothin' to police. No, sir. I won't take the money. It ain't coming to me. Go 'way and leave me alone."

Harris, taken into custody on Saturday as he worked as a car washer in Timbers' garage here, pleaded guilty in court at Highland Park yesterday to the murder of Christina Eastmond, 45, in the Detroit suburb last October. He was remanded for trial. He also was sought in connection with the murders of four other negro women.

Refuse to Tell.

Chatham police at the time of Harris' arrest said a man who heard the negro's broadcast description advised them he was working here, but declined to disclose the identity of the informer. Highland Park Council last night voted $50 to Timbers.

But as far as Timbers is concerned, the reward can go begging. When reporters called at his home, a combination house and restaurant run by his wife, he darted into a bedroom and cried his denials from behind a door opened only a quarter of an inch.

The "interview" continued with difficulty. Timbers admitted Harris had worked for him under the name of Joe Brown. He said the negro told him he was from Montreal and had left that city because of a "row over a crap game." Of Harris' arrest, Timbers knew nothing "except what I read in the papers."

Police Chief Lowe, asked whether Timbers was the "tip off" man, replied: "I cannot say anything."

Fugitive From Justice

TORONTO, Dec. 14.—(CP)—A large, shaggy collie dog was a fugitive from justice in the Bellwoods Park-Gorevale avenue district today after biting three persons. Two were children.

Miss Lena Kahfetz was bitten on the leg yesterday while walking through a lane at the rear of her home.

"He tore my clothes and pushed me to the ground," she said. "I went to the hospital after I was told the same dog bit two children the day before."

Lantern Explodes

KITCHENER, Ont., Dec. 14—(CP) —Fire caused by an exploding lantern last night destroyed the barn of George Meumaster, near Wellesley, about 12 miles from Kitchener. Loss, estimated at $6,000, is covered by insurance.

Julius Meumaster, 18, had just hung the lantern up as usual preparatory to milking the cows when it exploded, enveloping the stable in flames, which spread rapidly. Before turning in the alarm, young Meumaster removed a car, five cows and three horses.

Colder, More Snow Seen For Thursday

TORONTO, Dec. 14. — (CP).— Stiff, northwesterly winds blew snow over much of Ontario to-day and though temperatures remained comparatively mild—generally a degree or two above freezing—the Meteorological Bureau forecast "much colder" weather and more snow for to-morrow.

Heaviest snowfalls were reported from Eastern Ontario where high winds, accompanied by rain that turned to snow early to-day, were experienced. Snow fell for more than an hour upon Toronto, melting as it struck the pavements, and light falls were reported in Northern Ontario. Only scattered flurries occurred in western sections of the province.

For a while, driving conditions in Toronto were hazardous as a strong wind from the north-west drove the snow down on the city. Melting snow made streets slippery.

Overcast skies at Kingston indicated the heavy, wet fall there would continue throughout the day. Temperatures were 36 above zero. Seven-eighths of an inch fell upon Sudbury, while at North Bay the mercury slipped below freezing as a light fall left the ground covered with a blanket of snow.

A biting wind from the north had London citizens scurrying along streets, coat collars turned up. Temperatures there dipped to 27 above during the night but rose to 31 by morning. A 15-minute snowfall was reported. Brantford and Galt reported snow flurries, scarcely heavy enough to cover the pavements.

Clear weather and high winds, with temperatures just about freezing, were reported from most western Ontario points.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Dec. 14— (C.P.). — Presence of light offerings and upturns on the Chicago market caused prices to firm at the close of the Winnipeg Wheat Market to-day. Trading was dull, however, and quotations closed ¼ to ⅛ higher, December at 61⅛, May 63¼ to ⅛, and July 63¾ cents.

In contrast to recent heavy output of Canadian wheat, export business was small and unimportant today, with no definite figures available.

Strength at Chicago was caused by unfavorable crop and weather advices from the United States Winter wheat belt.

$20,000 Picture Racket Jails 2 Dozen

SUDBURY, Ont., Dec. 14—(CP).—Police probed deeper today into what they claimed was a big picture racket operating in Ontario and Quebec and involving possibly $20,000. About two dozen men already have been arrested in scattered centres in the two provinces and some are awaiting sentence.

Three men are in jail here on charges arising from the alleged swindle. Three others are awaiting sentence for fraud charges, linked by police to the racket, at St. Josep De Beauce in Quebec. During the past two months seven other men have been arrested at Montreal, two others at St. Jerome, north of Montreal, and another four at New Liskeard, Ont., and Haileybury, Ont.

George Gagnon, W. Arsenault and F. Stepel of Montreal were remanded until Dec. 20 on fraud and theft charges when they appeared in court here yesterday. Three other Montrealers, Paul Bourdon, Alfred Lariviere and Joseph Coutu, are awaiting sentence at St. Joseph De Beauce on a charge of fraud arising from operation of a picture racket in that rural French-Canadian area.

The Contest "Come-On"

The trio held at St. Joseph de Beauce was arrested by Quebec Provincial Police investigating operations of a group of 10 alleged to have sold picture frames under false pretences. Police said the group had told buyers pictures they framed were to be entered in contests by companies the group claimed to represent.

Police here said the men they had arrested posed as agents for an art contest sponsored by a Montreal organization and collected fraudulently amounts of $5 to $3,300.

According to complaints the men collected pictures, charging a small entry fee and tell contributors they were eligible for a $500 prize. On return visits, the complainants said, they were told their pictures had a good chance of winning the contest if they had suitable frames. The subscribers then bought frames and in some cases more visits were made by the accused who allegedly collected further assessments for retouching.

Behind In Alimony Albertan Is Jailed

CALGARY, Dec. 14—(CP).—Herbert Hallman of Brooks, Alta., was committed to jail yesterday for 40 days on a warrant issued by Mr. Justice W. R. Howson of the trial division of the Alberta supreme court for non-payment of alimony to his divorced wife.

The committment was believed the first in the history of Alberta for non-payment of alimony. Hallman was taken into custody by Royal Canadian Mounted Police and will serve his term in Lethbridge jail.

The warrant issued by Mr. Justice Howson declared Hallman was $1,440 in arrears pursuant to an alimony order made by Chief Justice W. C. Simmons in December, 1934. After a hearing Nov. 24 and again Monday to permit Hallman to show cause why he should not be committed, Mr. Justice Howson found Hallman had no intention of paying alimony and the order for his committment to jail was made yesterday.

McKay, Who Opened Riel Fray, Passes

PRINCE ALBERT, Dec. 14 — (C. P.). — The man who fired the first shot of the Riel Rebellion of 1885, Joseph (Gentleman Joe) McKay, 83, veteran of the North-West Mounted Police, died here on Tuesday.

Fifty-three years ago, March 26, 1885, he was with a small detachment of police and volunteers who encountered an angry band of Metis near Duck Lake, 30 miles south of Prince Albert.

Less than an hour later, the police and volunteers had retired to avert a massacre. Nine volunteers and a policeman had been killed in action; two constables died later of wounds.

At Duck Lake, heart of the Metis country, the Riel Rebellion of '85 had flared into open revolt.

"When ordered to fire I whipped out my pistol, shooting an Indian who had been covering me and then another one, and the battle had started," recounted "Gentleman Joe" recently. "The shots I fired were the first in the Rebellion."

A Worthy Cause

The carnival that is to be held under the auspices of the Peterborough branch of the Canadian Legion next Monday night is an event that should obtain a wide measure of support from the public, not only for its value as an entertainment, but because the proceeds are to be used in the Legion's Christmas relief work and in looking after returned soldiers who are in need.

This is a work that the Legion has been carrying on for years and carrying on in a manner that has earned the confidence of the public. It is of course the case that with employment conditions not at their rosiest at the present moment there is this Christmas a greater demand than usual for assistance and it is essential then that the carnival to be held next week should be a financial success because the Legion is counting upon the revenue from this source to help finance its Christmas operations.

If there is any illusion in the minds of the public to the effect that every ex-serviceman is being looked after by the government the Legion officers are in a position to refute the supposition. The simple truth is that many a soldier who played a man's part in France and who came home apparently in first-class condition and therefore received no pension has gradually broken down and is handicapped in the struggle to obtain employment, particularly at a time when there is a surplus of labor and younger and more vigorous men are available.

These are the cases that have to be helped by the Legion and there are more of them this year than ever. That in turn should mean a greater response than ever on the part of the public in support of the carnival one of the Legion's most effective method of raising funds for its work.

Gets Back To The Home

Chief Constable Samuel Newhall has found distinguished and authoritative backing for the opinion he expressed not long ago in a public address in Toronto, that one of the chief causes of juvenile delinquency was the lack of proper home training and the indifference of many parents as to where the evening hours of their boys and girls were being spent.

Exactly the same opinion has been voiced by a statesman who should know what he is talking about—none other than Sir Samuel Hoare, the British Home Secretary, who says the young people of today are not any more wicked than the youth of earlier generations but that the fault is in the home. Sir Samuel, in introducing his prison reform bill in the House of Commons the other day, made the startling statement that in Britain last year 38 per cent. of all the cases in which individuals were found guilty of indictable offences involved boys and girls under 17 years of age and that condition, he said was explained by the fact that the children of today are less controlled by their parents than were those parents themselves when they were young. Broken homes, indulgent mothers—and Viscountess Astor wanted lazy fathers bracketed in that class — and unkind stepmothers were conditions that made for juvenile delinquency, the Home Secretary said.

These were factors, it will be remembered that Chief Newhall mentioned in his recent paper and it is interesting to recall, too, that some of them were spoken of by Rev. W. A. McIlroy, prisoners' rehabilitation association officer, in his Sunday speech here. When the man who is responsible for prison administration in Britain, the chief constable of a Canadian city and an official whose work brings him into daily contact with young criminals all three put a finger upon the same weakness, it must be admitted that a strong case has been made out against present-day conditions in the home and against the type of parental control that prevails in this day and age.

He Will Be Missed

The news of the death of M. A. Sorseleil, who has served Ontario well in a number of public positions for many years was received with regret in many parts of the province, but nowhere perhaps with more genuine sorrow than in Peterborough, where the former deputy-minister of public welfare is well remembered as a capable teacher, a wholesome and likeable citizen and a keen supporter of amateur sport.

Mr. Sorseleil had many qualities that endeared him to those with whom he came into contact. Full of the milk of human kindness, he made friends easily and he had the faculty of binding them to him, when once made. In his various public positions he had made contacts all over the province and his friends rallied to his assistance at a time when it seemed that he was destined to go the way of many other civil servants when the Hepburn government came into power at Toronto. It will be remembered that when it was intimated that Mr. Sorseleil was to be dropped from the roster there were protests from Liberals and Conservatives alike in many sections of Ontario and the final result was that he was retained in the government service until his retirement on pension several years ago.

That outcry of resentment from citizens of all shades of politics was perhaps the finest tribute that could have been paid to a man who in the general opinion had always given of his best in the public service and a man too who had by his own wholesome conduct been an inspiration as a teacher and as a civil servant to many of his fellow citizens.

A Necessity Today

A few days ago a system of police radio communication was demonstrated in Peterborough and the effectiveness of the apparatus in two-way communication between the central station and a prowling police radio car was clearly shown. We do not profess to know what is in the minds of members of the police commission and the council in regard to police radio but it would seem that if the cost of some such apparatus as was tested here is not in the luxury range serious consideration might be given to the advisability of modernizing the local police department by giving it radio equipment.

The mobility of a police force, it is obvious, would be very materially increased by two-way radio facilities and a police car or two, so equipped, would do better and more effective work in covering the city and preventing crime and apprehending law-breakers than a half-dozen patrol cars operating without means of communication.

There are evidences that Ontario is in the grip of a crime wave of steadily increasing proportions and under the circumstances it is merely common sense to increase our protections against the burglars and holdup men who are terrorizing different sections of the province.

The time had come, too, we believe, when our provincial police should be made a more effective striking force by being linked up by radio from one end of the province to the other. There is room for some very effective re-organization, along the lines of the state police in a number of states across the border where radio has made possible a compact, quickly controlled force, every member of which can be marshalled in a few seconds to deal with an emergency situation caused by a major crime. Crooks move at more than a mile these days and they can cover a wide area and strike quickly. Horse-and-buggy equipment cannot hope to be effective against that kind of thing.

The need of quicker communication was demonstrated in this district last summer when the Campbell gang might have been rounded up and a lot of trouble averted if it had not been for the time lost in securing information that radio communication would have made instantly available.

Takes a Lot Of Time

It is learned that Ald. Herb. McCannan, elected last year for a one-year term, is doubtful about accepting another nomination for council because he has found that the city's affairs have crowded in considerably upon his own business. It is to be hoped that Ald. McCannan will reconsider his decision, for the general opinion is that he has done a very fine job as chairman of the property committee in his freshman year in council and the electors would like to be sure of his services for a further term.

The reason why he is considering dropping out of public life is proof of the fact that being an alderman in a city of this size under present-day conditions is not a sinecure for any man who takes his duties and his responsibilities seriously. The reason for that of course is that municipal services have expanded materially in recent years. Relief administration, once a matter for a small separate board to handle, has now become a municipal department and a decidedly busy one. The advent of the automobile has brought the parking problem to the doorstep of municipal councils and left it there and it means nights of discussion and worry for members of council. The work of other departments of council has widened with changing conditions and increased population.

The time is not far off indeed when some change in the civic machinery will become necessary. This may take the form of an elective council whose duties shall be more or less window dressing, leaving the executive work either to a city manager—and there are many who believe that provided the proper man can be secured for the position that is the ideal system—or to a small body of controllers elected by the people but paid enough so that they may devote their time to the city's business.

The trend is in the direction of smaller executive bodies, full-time preferred, rather than to continue to rely upon the public-spiritedness of citizens and their willingness to sacrifice their own business to devote many hours a week to looking after the affairs of the community. Up to the present we have been well served by these voluntary workers in the public cause but we cannot expect to be so fortunate as the city's business keeps on expanding.

Strange Politics

Some of our leading politicians have been doing considerable talking in the last few days and the more they talk the more Alice-in-Wonderland-like appears the political scene.

Here is a typical quotation:

"In a nutshell, Mr. King's whole attitude has been one of hostility to Ontario since he enunciated his 'not-a-five-cent-piece' policy in 1930. I am convinced that Mr. King literally hates Ontario for the personal defeats he has suffered in his native Waterloo and in North York, which compelled him to go to the north part of Saskatchewan for a seat in order to enter parliament. He has never forgiven Ontario for that. King inaction is too much for me. He is living in another generation."

If you have been out of the country for a while and some one read you that extract on your return you'd immediately arrive at the conclusion that Dr. Manion, the new Conservative Federal leader, had begun to warm up and that he was training his guns upon the Dominion prime minister with some effect. But you would be wrong of course, for that assault upon Mr. King and his attitude toward Ontario is not out of the mouth of the Conservative chieftain but off the lips of Mitchell Hepburn, the Liberal premier of Ontario, who in 1935 helped elect Mr. King.

In the same paper you probably read a statement to the effect that "Premier Hepburn should resign." Naturally you might think the politician who voiced that opinion was Col. George A. Drew, the new Conservative leader in Ontario. But again you would be wrong. Col. Drew as a matter of fact is in New York enjoying a brief holiday, and the politician who expressed the view that Premier Hepburn should shuffle off the political stage without delay was none other than Arthur W. Roebuck, but yesterday Premier Hepburn's Attorney-General and at present one of the Toronto Liberal group in the Legislature.

It all has a Gilbert and Sullivan atmosphere and as family rows are always sure of a good audience this particular battle has the whole of Canada listening in, wondering what is going to be said or done next.

NOTE AND COMMENT

"King or Chaos" the billboards used to scream at us. Now the question seems to be King or Hepburn.

In the words of the wartime communiques there seems to be a certain liveliness in Liberal political circles.

Premier Aberhart says he has no political aspirations. In that case if he is merely trying to remain in power until social credit works he might as well toss in the sponge now.

British farmers are planning a march on London. If the motor traffic in the Old Country moves like it does here we would suggest that each of the marchers provide himself with a lantern.

Probably the department of fish and game has not failed to notice the statement from Hon. G. Howard Ferguson that he proposes to do a little gunning in this province.

British nurse is on her way out here to marry a Canadian she never saw. That is different from ordinary weddings which the bride hardly ever sees her husband after the honeymoon is over.

Still it must be admitted that while robberies in Toronto are at a new peak all the criminals do not escape. Two score Chinese fan tan players have been arrested.

In one day Hon. G. Howard Ferguson has named Anthony Eden as next premier of Britain, and Col. Drew as the coming premier of Ontario. That's not bad predicting in the midst of the Christmas shopping season.

Premier Hepburn says that Canada has failed to solve the unemployment problem and we have an idea that sentence will not appear in the Liberal speaker's handbook when the next Federal election arrives.

A bureau to supply chauffeurs for motorists who misjudge their capacity for liquid refreshment on Christmas and New Year's Eves has been formed in Toronto, and the worst thing about it is that there should be plenty of demand for its services.

WINTER RAIN

Edmund Gilligan in the New York Sun

Tender lute of the rain
Come in the night to borrow
Hours of a sleeping soul
To play a song of tomorrow
When meadow and hill and plain,
Fountain, fall and shallow,
Flower in Summer again
Born of the Winter fallow.

Lutanist of today,
Lutany of tomorrow,
Ever the theme is sorrow,
Never an end to pain,
Soon let a gay song follow,
Tender lute of the rain.

Our Youth And Unemployment

(From the Woodstock Sentinel-Review)

THE MATTER of unemployment, and especially of unemployed youth, is receiving much attention from the platform and in the press. Undoubtedly it is the most urgent problem confronting those in authority in this country. Conditions now existing are responsible in some cases for crime; in more cases for discouragement and hopelessness accompanied by loss of initiative.

"There is something far more tragic in the out-of-work situation than the mere being without a job," says the Canadian Baptist. "It's that ruining understanding that in a great, wide world no one wants the service that can be rendered."

Rev. Norman Rawson in his speech at the Ontario Conservative convention put it this way: "I wonder if you know what it means to be 21, to be trained, and not to be wanted by anybody." He told of boys and young men, some of them university graduates, coming to him almost daily for help to find jobs—jobs of any kind.

At the same gathering in Toronto, Hon. Earl Lawson charged that the Ontario government had failed to co-operate with Ottawa in the scheme of training schools, and declared that nothing would be done for youth in this province until the Hepburn administration was turned out.

That is probably a bit too sweeping, because whatever governments may be doing or failing to do, young people are taking full advantage of day and evening vocational classes in the urban centres of Ontario. The Department of Agriculture, this year as for many years, is conducting courses in agriculture and home economics, and Ontario has also provided instruction at several centres for young men interested in mining. But one always comes back to the question as to what these young people are going to do when they are trained.

In Canada, as in the United States, the opening up of new frontiers operated for decades to provide ample openings for adventurous young people, but that door is almost closed. Mechanization has restricted the requirements for labor in many lines of primary and secondary industry. Immigration has been so curbed for the past eight years as to exercise little influence upon production or services required by the population. Since advent of the automotive industry, there has been virtually no important stimulus to employment in this country except through mining developments. Young people remain much longer in school, on the average, than in former years, and still the annual output is far in excess of the labor market. The situation is little better, on the whole, in respect of those highly educated and specially trained than for others.

Some speakers have pointed to the totalitarian countries of Europe as dealing effectively with the problem, through training schools and labor camps. The United States also has absorbed vast numbers of employed in the carrying on of public works. The value of the latter is subject of controversy, and there seems to be much waste of money. At its best, this sort of thing is a palliative, and not a solution; but it at least maintains morale. Because it costs a tremendous amount of money, it inevitably adds to taxation, and so to the restriction of private enterprise. In this country it has been repeatedly said that some relief from the burdensome taxation upon real estate would so encourage construction that the employment situation would at once become materially improved.

Sir Edward Beatty recently went a little farther and suggested that the Dominion government might find it in the public interest to lighten or forego taxation generally, for a time, even at the cost of increased deficits and debt, in order to stimulate business and industry. Very likely it would achieve the desired result, and if the impetus continued the deferred payments might not be too burdensome upon a numerous and more prosperous posterity.

In any event, governments may as well make up their minds that this matter of youth employment is urgent, and if no better alternative presents itself, then public works of useful character must be undertaken, or private enterprises bonused in some way to absorb more personnel than normally they would do. As for young people themselves, they must be prepared, if they cannot get what they like, to take what they can get and qualify for something better when it offers. This country will not always be in the doldrums.

NOT HAVELOCK COUNCIL

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—I would appreciate very much having a correction made with reference to write up which appeared in the Examiner recently.

This item stated that at the November meeting of the County Council a resolution from the Havelock Council re indigent patients was received which sought to have the county enter into an agreement with Mrs. Cummings' Nursing Home at Havelock, whereby indigent patients may be treated. There was no motion of this nature from Havelock, presented at County Council, this application came from Belmont Township Council.

A resolution was passed at the January session which provided that any municipality may enter into an agreement with a private hospital if they so desire re admittance of indigent patients providing they have the approval of the department and that such municipality be permitted to submit their accounts to the finance committee of the council with a view of receiving a grant of 50 per cent on same as the committee so decide. This motion remains in effect.

There was no such application made by the Havelock Council.

Trusting you will give this your attention and thanking you in advance, I remain

Sincerely yours,

• Millions Unclaimed In Banks

(From the Toronto Star Weekly)

THREE MILLION DOLLARS in crisp Canadian money—and nobody will claim it. Over 13,000 bank balances ranging from $10 to $10,000 just pleading to be withdrawn.

That's the story painted by the department of finance at Ottawa—the nutshell story of unclaimed millions scattered across Canada in banks.

Some may be yours, bank authorities say. You may be next of kin to some one who has died, leaving an unclaimed balance and of whose death the bank is unaware. Or you may have opened an account and then forgotten about it—that often happens.

While bank officials do not give information regarding affairs of clients, they tell the story of the man who stepped into the head office of the Dominion Bank and collected $1,000 which had been lying in the bank for 20 years. "I just forgot about it," he said.

The other day, another man stepped into the branch office of a Toronto bank and collected $15—balance of an account he had opened before going overseas in 1914. He needed the money and suddenly remembered opening the account.

"If this man happened to be killed in the war," a bank spokesman said, "his little account might have been unclaimed for years. How were we to know if he was dead or alive?"

Of such balances are bank balances composed. They remain a mystery until the depositor reappears or someone proves he or she is dead. Bank officials say there is really no mystery.

"A depositor is either alive or dead," they said. "Alive he receives his money if he wants it; missing, it remains unclaimed; dead his relatives receive their legal share; no relatives, the treasury take it over."

Why are there so many unclaimed bank balances? "It can be traced back to the old habit of a desire to hide something," one banker explained. "Many years ago, they hid their money in trees or buried it. Today they put it in the bank under an assumed name."

Another thing, the banker pointed out, was that quite often a man will put some money in the bank—cash that he doesn't want his wife, or perhaps a grabbing family, to know anything about.

• Restocking the Lakes With Fish

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—As one who has been actively interested in the Peterborough Fish and Game Association I wish to state that I am in accord with the views expressed by the Hon. H. C. Nixon to the press and that the opinions of the citizens in this district are not represented by the report of the recent meeting of the local Fish and Game Association.

The volume of tourist and local residents who annually fish and hunt in this district has been continually increasing. Notwithstanding, never, for years, have the hunters enjoyed the success they did this past deer season. We are grateful to the government for the appointment this year of Stanley Windsor at Apsley to patrol the Game Preserve. This is something that is well needed and if the deer increase as they have been during the passed few years the time will come when deer will be seen on the lakes and on the highways by our summer tourists as they are in the Algonquin area. There is nothing like live game to attract tourists.

The quantity of fish fry and fingerlings that have been placed in the Kawartha waters has been greatly increased and particularly during the last three or 4 years. We all remember the time when there were no pickerel in Rice Lake and this lake was stocked for years with pickerel fry with the result that pickerel became plentiful in Rice Lake. Because of the hundreds, if not thousands, who fish for pickerel every year from May 15th the supply has been diminishing. This is an example, however, to indicate that the placing of fry is a successful way to propagate fish.

As last year's chairman of the restocking committee of the Fish and Game Association no one is more conscious than I am of what the government is doing to ensure good fishing in our waters.

The following is a statement of the fish coming through my hands for the year 1938:

Jacks Lake, grey trout 10,000; bass 5,000; pickerel 1,000.

Loon Lake, grey trout 10,000; bass 1,000; pickerel 1,000.

Little Cedar Lake, bass 1,000; grey trout 2,000.

Long Lake, grey trout 5,000.

Trout Lake, grey trout 5,000.

Cox Lake, grey trout 2,000.

Eels Creek, brook trout 5,000; brown trout 1,000.

Jacks Creek, brook trout 2,000; brown trout 1,000.

Deer Bay, bass 5,000; lunge 50,000.

Mississauga Lake, grey trout 20,000; bass 1,000.

Stoney Lake, lunge 25,000; bass 5,000.

Pidgeon Lake, lunge 50,000; bass 5,000.

Clear Lake, lunge 50,000; bass 5,000.

Catchewanooka Lake, lunge 100,000; bass 5,000.

Otonabee River, lunge 50,000; bass 5,000; pickerel 1,000,000.

Chemong Lake, lunge 25,000; bass 5,000.

Little Mudd Lake, lunge 25,000; bass 5,000.

Little Lake, lunge 10,000; bass 5,000; pickerel 250,000.

Sandy Lake, bass 5,000.

Buckhorn Lake, lunge 50,000; bass 1,000.

Cavan Stream, brook trout, 20,000.

Mount Pleasant Stream, brook trout 1,000.

Little Ouse, brock trout 20,000.

Big Ouse, brook trout 20,000.

Indian River, lunge 1,000; bass 1,000.

Lovesick Lake, lunge 50,000; bass 1,000.

Pidgeon Creek, lunge 50,000; bass 5,000.

Mississauga Creek, brown trout 5,000; bass 5,000.

The above, by no means represents the total of the fish fry and fingerlings placed in our waters in 1938. In many instances requisitions for fish are made by private parties and are sent direct by the Department and have been placed in various waters throughout this district.

The building of a fish hatchery right at our door which promises to be one of the largest if not the largest in the province is something that everyone in this district appreciates and those particularly actively interested in the tourist trade are indeed grateful to the government that Peterborough County has been so favored. The least we can do is to be thankful to the Department of Fish and Game and to co-operate with the department officials in the splendid work that they are carrying on in this county.

Yours truly,
CHARLES G. KINGAN.

A Bit of Nonsense

Labour In Vain

When Tommy was taking his father's dinner he stopped for a moment to watch a workman emptying a sewer.

"That" remarked Tommy, interestedly, "is the grating my brother lost a quarter down."

The workman's eyes lit up.

"Well, young man," he said, with a show of carelessness, "you'd better get along with that dinner before it's cold."

In about half an hour Tommy returned to find the man still at the same grating.

"Are you quite sure it was this grating the quarter was lost in?" said the workman.

"I'm certain," replied Tommy, "because I saw father get it out."

Lakefield High School Presents Prize Play "Nellie McNab"

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 14. — "Nellie McNab," a one-act comedy recently awarded first prize in the Hart House Drama Festival, scored a hit here Friday evening, when it was presented in the Memorial Hall by members of the Lakefield High School Literary Society, under the direction of Miss B. Dunn. The play brought to a successful climax an evening of delightful entertainment which was arranged by the Literary Society, assisted by the High school staff, who uncovered and polished up, quite a considerable amount of dramatic and musical talent found hidden away among the school pupils.

Gordon Hampton, president of the society, acted as chairman for the evening. He welcomed those present and introduced the members of the program. A group of choral numbers were sung by the Girls' Glee Club, under the capable direction of Chas. Renaud, director of music. The numbers, which included "Come All Ye Faithful," "I Am a Mountain Herd Boy," and "The Rain," were well rendered.

French Play.

A little French play, entitled, "Le Bouquet," was presented by four girls in the Junior High school, and was entirely in French. The introduction into this short skit of a bit of French folk song robbed the production of any monotony which a French play might have had for an English audience. Miss Jean Clarke played the role of the mother, Alvida Pearson was the maid and Gladys Allen and Rose Wong were children. Miss Dunn, the teacher of French in the High school, was responsible for training the cast, who succeeded remarkably well in getting across to the audience the message of the play despite the language handicap.

A second group of selections by the Girls' Glee Club included "Santa Lucia," "Silver Bells" and "O Seraph Sweet of Summer Time."

Sings Motion Song.

A motion song by Mary Alice Renwick and Winifred Murphy, who sang "Roll Out of Bed with a Song," which was popular with the audience and the couple responded to a hearty encore with a second humorous selection, "There Was a Bee-i-ee-i-ee."

A chorus by fifth form boys in neat sports costumes of black and white, sang "The Rangers' Cong," "Softly the Ships Come Sailing In" and "Shortnin' Bread." These numbers, directed by E. H. Brohman, were thoroughly enjoyed and "Shortnin' Bread" which was presented in an unusual and clever arrangement, was perhaps the most popular number of the evening.

A second French play, entitled "Pour Acheter Un Chapeu" included in its cast Isobel Bullock, June McConkey, Mary Alice Renwick, and Vernabelle Patterson, who had the roles of purchasers of hats, while Hilda McConkey, Winifred Murphy, Leona Shearer and Doris Jackman played the parts of sales girls in a millinery store.

The presentation of the school paper took the form of a radio broadcast featuring Blobb's double bubble gum, wth Don "Cheerio" Smith acting as station announcer and master of ceremonies. Sound effects, provided by Ken Morris with an unusual selection of equipment, created considerable fun.

Comedy Presented.

Following selections by the Girls' Glee Club, the Literary Society produced the one-act comedy, "Nellie McNab." The cast included: Helen Kelly as Helen Stratford; Betty Brown as Daphne Stratford, Helen's daughter; Doris Chittick as Carol Stratford, Daphne's sister; Don Smith as Rollie Martin, and Gordon Hampton, John Appleford. The costumes were modish and colorful and they combined with the modern stage settings to make a decided contribution to one of the most successful plays the Literary Society has attempted.

Mrs. Chas. Renaud acted as accompanist for the Glee Club. Miss Leona Murphy accompanied Misses Winifred Murphy and Mary Renwick, and the boy choristers were accompanied by Miss Minnie Charlton at the piano and Kevin Leahy and Philip Leahy on their violins.

City Hall Press Reading Limited

TORONTO, Oec. 14 (CP). — City Council voted support yesterday to a Board of Control motion stipulating what newspapers are to receive press privileges at City Hall.

In recommending a motion that "all daily papers in Toronto should enjoy equal facilities in reporting council meetings and the news of city activities," the council laid down a condition that facilities should be given to all dailies associated in membership with The Canadian Press, the Audit Bureau of Circulation and the Canadian Daily Newspaper Association.

Alderman Stewart Smith and Alderman J. B. Salesberg, who introduced the motion, protested against the stipulation, on the ground it would bar the Daily Clarion from equal facilities with other papers.

"Obviously, a daily newspaper is one that is published daily," Alderman Smith said.

Turning to Mayor Ralph C. Day, Alderman Salsberg asked: "Do you know how much it would cost a newspaper to obtain a franchise with The Canadian Press?"

The Mayor said he did not know and Alderman Salsberg claimed the cost was beyond reach of the Labor press.

Alderman F. M. Johnston opened the argument with the declaration: "This paper (the Daily Clarion) is simply the mouthpiece of the Communist party and the head office of the Communist party is in Moscow."

He asked if the paper was "an organ of the Communist party," and Alderman Smith replied: "It is not and it has the endorsation of the Trades and Labor Council."

Boys And Dads Hold Banquet

(Examiner Correspondence.)

APSLEY, Dec. 14—A banquet was given on Friday evening at 6.30 o'clock in the Parish Hall by the boys from the Apsley district who attended the summer camp at Loon Lake.

About sixty boys and their dads sat down to a bountiful supper provided by the mothers. Ten boys and their fathers attended from Bancroft and quite a few from Coe Hill.

After they had all done full justice to the supper, Rev. R. McMullen proposed the toast to the King. A toast to the campers was proposed by Don Jackson; one to the Dads by Jack Guntor of Coe Hill. Greg McMullen, proposing one to the visitors, who were present.

Between toasts several of the boys gave musical numbers, both vocal and instrumental. The last toast of the evening was to the mothers who were present and to those who were not, to the mothers who had made it possible for the boys to attend and to those who had worked so hard to make it such a success, proposed by Alan Joynt. After this several speeches were given by Rev. Buchanan of Coe Hill and Dr. Carr Harris of Apsley and Rev. Frank McMulkin of St. George's church.

Find France Wanted To Aid Czechs But Every Ally "Blew Up" On Her

By Dewitt Mackenzie
(Associated Press Foreign Affairs Writer.)

PARIS, Dec. 14—(AP).—This is the French side of the story of the hotly debated French position in the events which had their denouement in the four power conference of Munich.

It gives a new complexion to France's failure to go to the aid of Czechoslovakia in the face of Nazi threat to resort to force.

Many people have given thanks to France and Great Britain, crediting these powerful democracies with having prevented another European war. At the same time, however, there have been widespread expressions of disapproval, it being charged the Anglo-French allies have preserved peace at the cost of tossing Czechoslovakia to the wolves, and even at that gaining only a temporary respite from a showdown with the totalitarian powers.

I was present at the Munich conference, and those of Berchtesgaden and Godesberg as well. The explanation of the democracies—that they were impelled to maintain peace—lacked something which observers couldn't quite put their fingers on. It was unsatisfactory in that it didn't seem the whole truth.

Later I toured eastern Europe and the Balkans and was startled at the heat of the criticism—of France, and to a lesser degree of Great Britain. France was charged with having in effect broken her bond to protect Czechoslovakia. Some asserted France was afraid of Germany.

The Missing Reason.

Decidedly that didn't sound like France to me. Something was missing to make the picture complete.

So since my arrival in Paris I have persistently pursued that phantom clue until I had a very definite impression of the French viewpoint. This is not official, but my sources are in a position to know whereof they speak. Here is the explanation as the Frenchman looks at it:

The French at the outset were prepared to fight over the Czecho-Slovak issue, not only because the two countries were allies, but because Paris felt it was time the democracies made a stand. That is, France was ready to fight if she got the support of her friends. So she started inquiries, with this result:

The only military assistance Great Britain would be able to give for a long time, according to my sources, would be about two divisions of troops—say 30,000 men—and maybe 250 fighting airplanes. This was apart from naval aid, of course.

That meant France would have to smash the powerful defences of the German western front with her own two fists.

Russia couldn't do more than send warplanes to Czechoslovakia, because the Soviet Union is separated from Czecho-Slovakia by Polish and Rumanian territory.

Rumania could offer no military aid. In other words, the Little Entente—Czecho-Slovakia, Rumania and Yugoslavia—which France has fostered as a bulwark against possible German aggression, blew up in her hands.

Poland the Worst Shock.

But there still was Poland, with one of Europe's crack armies. However, Poland not only declined to oppose Germany, but the French got the distinct impression that their former close friend might even give support to the Reich in the event of hostilities. That was a shock.

The United States is said to have been sounded out. I understand the answer was that the United States would be unable to furnish any military assistance and couldn't even promise to provide supplies.

Thus all in all France felt itself in the position of making the gallant gesture of going out largey alone, at least at the outset, to wage battle in defence, not of French territory, but of foreign soil. Paris declined to go that far. And that is the French version of l'Affair de Munich.

A THREE-TONNER JOINS THE

FORD V·8

TRUCK AND COMMERCIAL LINE for 1939

For 1939, the Ford truck and commercial line provides greater economy in a wider range of hauling and delivery equipment than ever before. Units in ratings of one-half ton to three tons are now available. Addition of the new three-tonner has broadened the scope of Ford Truck operations to cover over 95% of all commercial requirements. With choice of 61 different units, three clutches, three transmissions and six rear axle ratios, in addition to various wheel and tire sizes, operators can buy V-8 trucks and commercial cars that are specially adapted to their own particular commercial transportation needs.

There is a new 100-hp. V-8 engine in the 3-ton trucks. Both the 85-hp. and 95-hp. engines have been improved. Crankshafts are larger and heavier with main-bearing diameters increased to 2.5 inches. Tungsten steel valve-seat inserts are used on all valve-seats in all three engines. New-type piston rings in all three give even greater oil and over-all economy.

Hydraulic brakes are also new for 1939. They are big and powerful—precision-built to Ford safety standards. Clutches are improved.

Other earmarks of quality construction are found in the time-proved Ford features. Deep, rugged frames that stand up under the hardest service. Torque-tube drive. Rear axles with straddle-mounted pinions for greater power-transmitting efficiency. Worm and roller steering for easier handling.

All these are reasons why a 1939 Ford unit will do your job reliably and at low cost. They are reasons why you should look at the new Ford line before you buy any truck at any price. Arrange for an "on-the-job" test. See your Ford Dealer today.

HIGHLIGHTS OF THE 1939 FORD V·8 TRUCKS

Louis' K.O. Of Max Schmeling; Feats Of Armstrong Are Tops In 1938 Ring Doings

By PAT ROBINSON
Central Press Canadian Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—The passing year may have left something to be desired from an artistic viewpoint in prize ring circles, but financially it was a huge success.

Mike Jacobs

Fight gates in New York grossed more than $2,000,000 and it is conservatively estimated that fight fans spent more than $5,000,000 to see their favorite sport.

Max Schmeling and Joe Louis drew a near-million dollar gate to their heavyweight title bout that lasted less than a round. This was the banner shot of the year. No other fighter approached it, but there were several that ran into what the boys along Broadway call "important money."

Promoter Mike Jacobs, who definitely established himself as ruler of fistiana during the year, had some good shots in Madison Square Garden. Among these were the Louis-Mann battle which drew $110,000; the Henry Armstrong-Lou Ambers fight for the lightweight title which grossed $104,000; the Jim Braddock-Tommy Farr shot worth $80,000; the Henry Armstrong-Ceferino Garcia welterweight title bout which drew $79,000 and the Tommy Farr-Max Baer title which lured $74,000 worth of trade through the turnstiles.

Henry Armstrong was the sensation of the year. After winning the featherweight title from Petey Sarron late in 1937, the little chocolate colored battler added the lightweight and welterweight crowns to his laurels and thus became the first man in the history of the ring to be champion of three divisions at the same time. He voluntarily relinquished the feather title later.

He was a life-saver to the game which produced few new faces to add interest to the warfare. In fact, promoters are hard-pressed to find worthwhile cards, so great is the shortage of classy fighters.

Take a look at the situation as the year draws to a close. Joe Louis, the heavyweight champion, is a worthy successor to other great fighters who have had the title, but where are his challengers. There isn't one worthy of a title shot. Max Baer still gets cold chills every time Louis' name is mentioned. Tommy Farr has the heart but not the punch. Tony Galento is more clown than fighter. And the others are a dime a dozen.

The light heavyweight title is clouded. The National Boxing association still recognizes John Henry Lewis, although he has apparently outgrown the class. The New York commission has declared his title vacant and is staging an elimination series.

Henry Armstrong

The best middleweight fighter in the world is Fred Apostoli, but he is recognized as champion only in New York and California. National Boxing association recognizes Sol Krieger, who whipped Al Hostak, who knocked out Fred Steele. Apostoli has already knocked out both Steele and Krieger.

Armstrong lifted the lightweight crown from Lou Ambers in a close contest, won the welterweight title from Barney Ross with ease and defended the latter successfully against Ceferino Garcia and Al Manfredo.

The featherweight situation is muddled. The N.B.A. recognizes as champion Leo Rodak, who beat Fred Miller; the N.Y. commission recognizes Joey Archibald, who beat Mike Belloise after Armstrong gave up the crown. A battle between Rodak and Archibald would clear up the situation but would hardly produce a great champion.

Escobar regained his bantamweight title by beating Harry Jeffra in Escobar's native Puerto Rico and has since spent much of his time getting licked in non-title fights.

Nobody pays any attention to the flyweights, although little Dado generally is recognized as champion.

Farr Now Seen At Crossroads

By Alan Randal
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(CP). —For the second time since Tommy Farr came to these shores about 18 months ago, those who claim some ability as boxing seers have placed the Welsh coal miner, now preparing for a 15-round session with Lou Nova, at the cross-roads of his fight career.

The claim is Farr must win to remain a fighter in these parts. That, it might be remembered, is what they said last March when Tommy met Maxie Baer.

As it happened Tommy lost to the Baer, a close one true enough, but nevertheless his third straight defeat, and proved the exception to the rule. He is still rated as quite a scrapper.

For Friday's bout with the California clouter in Madison Square Garden, the Broadway boys have installed Thomas George Paul the 5 to 6 favorite, mainly because the prescribed 15-round route is old stuff to the tonypandy thumper. Nova in his 25 pro fights has never gone more than 10 rounds. Farr has fought 2? 15-rounders, not to mention a good sprinkling of the 10 and 12-round variety.

Nova Boasts.

Nova, as is customary before any kind of fight, has quietly expressed belief the bout won't go 15 rounds; that he will end it earlier. This in spite of the fact Farr kept step with champion Joe Louis for 15 rounds and absorbed some pretty heavy going over in bouts with Baer and former champion Jimmy Braddock.

Tommy, at the same time, is inclined to agree with Nova, but only as to the length of the bout. Farr and his handlers have gone on record during training at Pompton Lakes, N.J., as saying Nova will be in no shape to answer the bell in one or other of the late rounds and possibly in an early round if all goes well.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

There may be a Sports Scribes Union 673¾ before long, the Western Ontario Sports Writers Assoc. spreading to Toronto and east. At the last meeting, Bill Walshe of Kingston, Red Burnett of Toronto and Ivan Miller of Hamilton plunked down two iron men to join. Vern DeGeer of the Globe and Jack Calder of Can. Press are also Toronto members, whilst Art Elliott of Ganonoque is listed, too. The secretary says 'there is an indication that the association will become province-wide before very long." Aside from some jolly get-togethers with erstwhile writing rivals—nearly always a swell gang of sports—we don't know as there's much advantage to such a union, but it probably has some good points. In the U.S. there is a strong and snooty group known as the Baseball Writers Association, and it is a tough outfit to crash. There is a growing tendency on the smaller Ontario dailies toward having one reporter who covers nothing but sports.

Well, sir, an A.P. dispatch tells of the first Florida puck fray with Miami Clippers—with Magee and Ellis of here aboard — beating the Pirates. Some 3,000 fans (many wearing top coats) pronounced it fine, especially a flurry of fists near the close. There were frequent huddles among fans as Southerners — who never saw hockey before—queried Northern visitors on the fine points of the game. It was tied at 2-all near the end when Capt. Jim Ellis of the Clippers—yeah, Jim from Mark St., Peterborough—scored the deciding tally on a swell rush. No mention of Magee, but no doubt Mick knocked the wind out of a few rushers with his bashing body checks back of the blue line.

Greek To Southerners

The dispatch adds: "Southerners were perplexed but Northerners roared when an argument broke out at the goal which ended in momentary fighting among players. After things quietened down, out-of-staters told hometown spectators that Miami Beach had slid the puck into the goal but the referee hadn't allowed it because it had to enter through the air! Bullet Joe Simpson, Miami coach, said the game was fast and the ice good. 'Warm weather may slow the boys down later,' he added." The boys play a 48-game schedule, about three nights a week, which leaves 'em lots of time for swimming in the ocean or strolling with charming heiresses 'neath the palms by moonlight. A gruelling game, hockey!

Gate receipts at the Winnipeg-Argo game in Toronto Saturday totalled about $17,500, 'tis said. About 19,000 cash fans at the game — not counting the Oshawa writer who slipped in on a used-ticket stub! And we don't blame him a bit. The teams split what is left after expenses and will get about $5,500 each. Which is a lotta frogskins and would purchase quite a few tons of coal. The senior O.R.F.U. didn't do so well, but had a good playoff gate in Toronto, with all teams sharing on the pooled-gate idea, so the Orfuns must have about broke even on the season. Or close to it. They started out financially travelling as light as a banana boat going south but picked up a bit of cargo at every stop. And local crowds averaged as much as those in Sarnia and close to what Montreal Nats drew at home.

Not A Drop Of Ice

Dropped into the Brock the other day and saw a rather damp floor, but no ice. President-in-charge-of-ice-making Ben English said he'd sprayed the ground Monday night but that the water vanished like mulligan stew at a hobos' convention. Not enough frost in the earth to hold it. So there is as little chance of having ice this week as there is of King and Hepburn having Xmas dinner together! All the rink gents ask of Santa is a prolonged spell of sub-zero weather, and the would-be puckists here agree.

After hours of bickering in Port Hope last e'en, the eight-team junior puck grouping emerged in two four-squad sections like this: Oshawa, Whitby, Bowmanville and Lindsay in one, with Bowmanville having a bye into junior "C" group playoffs; and Cobourg, Port Hope, our Monarchs and our Colts in the other, with the Colts having a bye into the "B" group playoffs. The Oshawa and Whitby delegates were tough and refused to give an inch—Oshawa pointing out that their rink wouldn't permit an eight-team group, not having enough free nights. Then Bowmanville insisted on playing in the same group as Whitby. The best that could be worked out to suit everyone was to put our "B" Colts in with three "C" teams, while sticking the Bowmanville "C" crew in with three "B" teams, Lindsay going into a "B" rating. Top two "C" clubs in our group playoff at the end of a double schedule, while our Colts meet the winnah of the other group, which runs a single schedule. Yes, it's all balled up like Aunt Hetty's yarn.

* * * * * *

As The Weeks Roll On

Our junior schedule starts with the Colts in Port Hope on Jan. 3rd, Monarchs going to Cobourg on the 4th, and the two local clubs meeting here on the 6th. It winds up Feb. 10th, and then the complicated playoffs. Referees named are Hoot Gibson of Cobourg, Jerry Rowden of Port Hope, and Red Creighton of Peterborough, neutral man acting at each game. We are not a bit tickled with the re-arranged groupings, the schedule or playoffs—but what can be done about it? Goodness knows, the local contingent strove with might and main to get a better setup for this town, but had to give a foot to gain an inch. So neither our senior or junior groups are anything to brag lustily about this cold spell, it seems.

Promoter Chas. Kumpf of Toronto writes the local Riverview A.C. re that fight mixup recently as folows: "I wrote Auggie Ferguson at Barrie and asked him to come down there and I never had an answer, so when he says he refused that is stretching it a little. Not hearing from him, I picked up Bobbie Ferguson of Toronto and took him along. The two names are almost the same and this boy I took there fought under his own name. When my boy told the announcer his name I don't believe the announcer caught it just right, so we let it go at that. If I had meant any deception I would have had him introduced as Auggie Ferguson of Barrie, which of course would not have been correct, as Auggie has never lived in Toronto to my knowledge. You are free to show this to your local paper for publication as I have a good name throughout Ontario for square shooting in the mitt and mat industry for 20 years. Sportfully yours, Charlie Kumpf." Okay, Charlie, that clears it up.

Pleads Guilty To Murder

DETROIT, Dec. 14—(CP).—Earl Carl Harris, 36, pleaded guilty in court here to-day to the murder of Christiana Eastmond, 36, in suburban Highland Park Oct. 17. He was ordered held without bail to appear in Wayne county circuit court within 10 days or two weeks. Harris was arrested in Chatham, Ont., Saturday.

The negro voodoo killer is wanted in connection with five other slayings, but court authorities said Harris probably would go to Missouri for trial. Penalty for first degree murder in Michigan is life imprisonment, in Missouri, the penalty is hanging.

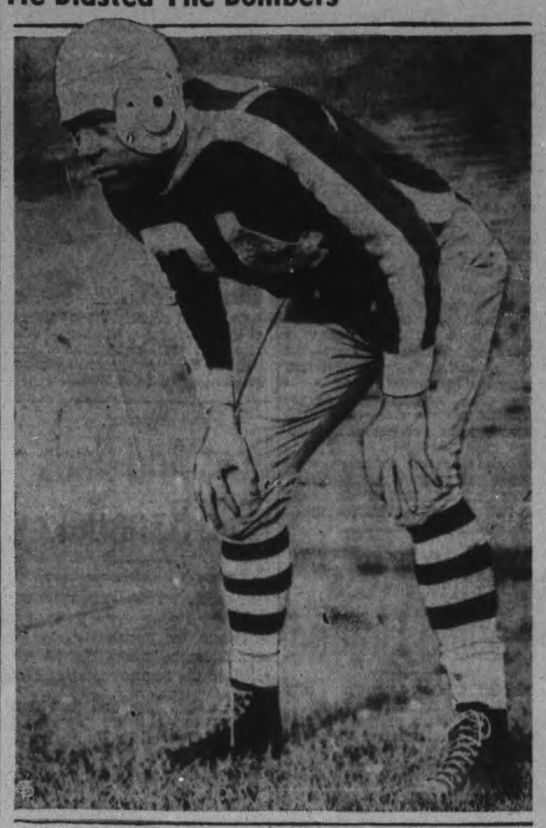
LONDON, Dec. 14.—(CP Cable)—Hugh McAlevey, Belfast sportsman, today offered to back Al Delaney of Oshawa, Ont., to the extent of £1,000 ($4,667) for a fight with Len Harvey British Empire heavyweight champion. The National Sporting Club also is supporting the Canadian boxer's claims for an Empire title bout with Harvey who won the championship last week from Eddie Phillips of England.

DISLOYAL SUPPORTERS

Not a single vote was cast for C. B. Westcott, a candidate in the municipal elections at Klerksdorp, Transvaal, although his candidature had been supported by a petition signed by 25 registered voters.

He Blasted The Bombers



To ring down the curtain on the 1938 rugby season what's more fitting than a picture of Red Storey, outstanding figure in the Dominion final in Toronto when Argonauts took their second successive title by defeating Winnipeg Blue Bombers, champions of the west, 30-7. Storey, one of the many versatile backfielders with the champions, ran wild in the last quarter of the game, scoring three touchdowns on sensational plays and running 100 yards after a pass intercepution to set up the play for another.

Historic R.M.C.-West Point Scrap Is Filmed As Hockey Romance

NEW YORK, Dec. 14—(CP).—The annual hockey game between Royal Military College of Canada and the United States Military Academy, "sportingest" spectacle on the sports calendar, has been woven into an instructive bit of motion picture entertainment called "The Duke of West Point."

The unique and historic ice warfare between the military service schools of the "good neighbor" countries—unique in the fact the challenge trophy goes to the losing team rather than the winner, and because no penalty has been called in the 15 games played to date—furnishes the climax of the film.

Before receiving its New York premiere tomorrow, the latest Hollywood venture into the realm of athletics and military academy tradition was previewed by an imposing array of Canada's hockey ambassadors—Lester Patrick, all the members of his New York Rangers team and Frank Boucher, erstwhile Ottawa oracle of the ice who now manages New York Rovers.

Lester gave "The Duke of West Point," a United Artists Production, a 10-goal rating.

The hockey sequences are closer to the real thing than any previous Hollywood attempt to transfer the thrills and spills of Canada's winter pastime to the screen.

For the sake of the script and a love interest wisely played down, the hero of the piece, acting by Louis Hayward, scores the goal that gives West Point its first hockey triumph over Canada's gentlemen cadets. For the sake of the record, a tie game is the closest the West Pointers actually have come to beating R.M.C. since the series was inaugurated.

Girls' Cage Loop Officers Named

Joe Cooper was re-elected president of the Ladies' Basketball League at the annual meeting of officers, coaches and captains held last evening in the Y.W.C.A. Aside from the election of officers for the 1939 girls' cage season, little business was done, but an executive meeting will be called sometime next week to attend to various details before taking entries and arranging schedules. Play will not begin before January.

Following are the 1939 officers: Hon. President, Mrs. R. E. Cutting; president, Joe Cooper; vice-president, Dorothy Dawson; secretary, Sybil Ecobichon; treasurer, Shirley Zack; executive committee, Miss C. Littlefield, Harold Cutting, Whitty Thirnbeck and B. Begley.

Open Schedule In Port Hope On January 3rd

The proposed O.H.A. eight-team junior grouping in Central Ontario was wrecked last night by stubborn delegates and from the wreckage at the schedule meeting in Port Hope emerged two four-team groupings. In one are: Lindsay, Whitby, Oshawa and Bowmanville, the latter being the lone "C" squad and having a bye into inter-group playoffs. In the other are: Port Hope, Cobourg, Peterborough Monarchs and Peterborough Colts, the latter being the only "B" team and having a bye into the playoffs. The first group has a single schedule, and the other a double, top two "C" teams having a playoff, winner then meeting Bowmanville. Colts meet the winner of the first group.

A large contingent of Peterborough officers were on hand, including O.H.A. convenor R. M. Glover. The gathering argued for hours on all angles and considerable changing-around had to be done before any agreement could be reached. At first it was suggested that Lindsay and Whitby—who had to go "B" instead of "C"—be grouped with Oshawa and Peterborough, but Bowmanville, with no rink, insisted upon being grouped with Whitby. And the Whitby bunch were against being grouped with Peterborough. While Oshawa pointed out that their rink hadn't accommodation for an eight-team junior group this season.

Split Them Up

After much discussion, it was finally setled by drawing up two separate groups, with the various "B" and "C" winners to have interschedules. Fo rthe local group, Hoot schedules. Fo rthe local group, Hoot Gibson of Cobourg, Perry Rowden of Port Hope and Red Creighton of Peterborough were named referees, a neutral man to be used at each game. All schedule games will count in the standings, it was pointed out. Following is the double schedule affecting the local clubs:

Jan. 3—Colts at Port Hope.
Jan. 4—Monarchs at Cobourg.
Jan. 6—Monarchs at Colts; Cobourg at Port Hope.
Jan. 10—Port Hope at Monarchs; Colts at Cobourg.
Jan. 13—Monarchs at Cobourg; Colts at Port Hope.
Jan. 17—Cobourg at Port Hope; Colts at Monarchs.
Jan. 20—Colts at Cobourg; Monarchs at Port Hope.
Jan. 23—Cobourg at Monarchs.
Jan. 24—Port Hope at Colts.
Jan. 27—Colts at Monarchs; Port Hope at Cobourg.
Jan. 31—Monarchs at Port Hope; Cobourg at Colts.
Feb. 2—Cobourg at Monarchs.
Feb. 3—Colts at Port Hope.
Feb. 7—Port Hope at Cobourg; Monarchs at Colts.
Feb. 9—Port Hope at Monarchs
Feb. 10—Cobourg at Colts.

Hockey Players Attention!
When your skates are dull, it is well to remember that in skate grinding, as with everything else, EXPERIENCE DOES COUNT!
The grind on a skate must not only be smooth, but also hollow ground and true from toe to heel, with both edges of the blade of an equal height, correctly rockered for hockey, and finally oil stoned, for a keen lasting edge.
We recommend the lengthwise grind, which we introduced five years ago; and which has been tested and used exclusively by the Petes, and most hockey players in this district since that time.
We believe our skate grinding is unequalled in the city. May we show You why?

BRUINS AND AMERKS DEFEAT CANADIENS AND RED WINGS

3 Jackson Goals Down Wings In 5-1 Victory

By Jack Calder
(Canadian Press Sports Writer.)

Just about any manager in the National Hockey League except Art Ross would go around muttering to himself if a player he had cast off should step out to score three goals for another club some night.

But Arthur the adroit, who sent Art Jackson to New York Americans just before the current campaign started, didn't even stop to ask if he were hearing correctly when Jackson scored three times in Americans' 5-1 victory over Detroit at New York last night. Ross is developing too many youngsters at Boston who might do the same thing almost any night themselves.

While Jackson was getting his first three goals of the season, Ross' Bruins were defeating the Montreal Canadiens 3-2 at Boston, to gain a five-point lead over the rest of the league. The game brought Boston a quarter of the way through its schedule and Ross hasn't had reason yet to feel disappointed about any of the kids who pushed Jackson and Leroy Goldsworthy out of the lineup and over to the Americans.

He has had no kick-backs, either, on his sale of Tiny Thompson to Detroit. Frank Brimsek, replacing Thompson in goal, extended his shutout streak to 231 minutes and 54 seconds before Herbie Cain of Canadiens beat him in the third period. The best similar run Thompson ever enjoyed was 224 minutes and 47 seconds without a goal in 1935-36.

Bobby Bauer sent Boston into the lead within two minutes of the start on a pass from Jack Portland, who is rapidly becoming one of the league's better rushing defencemen. Gordie Pettinger extended the advantage four minutes later and Milt Schmidt ended the Bruin scoring in the second, aided by Bauer and Porky Dumart, who came with him to Boston from Kitchener, Ont.

When Bruins kept after goals, Cain broke away with George Brown and narrowed the gap with a close-in shot. Canadiens assumed new spirit with that one and Toe Blake got their second goal early in the last period. But Brimsek was unbeatable from then on.

Sweeney Schriner had given Americans a lead when Jackson got his first goal after 15 minutes, aided by Golsworthy. He made the score 3-0 in the second and after Carl Liscombe had scored for the Red Wings in the third he completed his hat trick. Eddie Wiseman completed the scoring in the last minute.

Charlie Conacher returned to Detroit's right wing after a long absence through injury, and at the same time the Red Wings announced ecquisition of Dave Trottier in one of the most unusual deals in N.H.L. history.

Trottier accepted the terms of owner James J. Norris on condition that all Norris grain boats would be supplied next year by oil from the firm which employs Trottier at Montreal. Dave, who always had smart busines acumen along with his pretty skating, gets a fat 10 per cent commission from the oil deal, plus his hockey salary.

Previously Trottier had refused to sign with other N.H.L. clubs because he didn't want to leave his work. He had been declared a free agent by the defunct Montreal Maroons.

Steve Rocco, Toronto, was disqualified for hitting low in his world's flyweight boxing bout with Champion Frankie Genero at Detroit, 10 years ago tonight. The fight ended in the second round.

Six Stars Change Uniform In Giant-Cub Deal

Biggest trade of the baseball off-season to be put through so far was engineered at the New Orleans meeting by New York Giants and Chicago Cubs of the National League. It was a straight swap, Bill Terry exchanging three of his players for a trio offered by Gabby Hartnet of the league champions. The six men involved are shown ABOVE, the three Giants who will be in Cub uniform next year along the TOP, and the Windy City threesome who will play at the Polo Grounds next year along the BOTTOM.

Mexican Martinez Falls To Wenstob

EDMONTON, Dec. 14—(CP). — Eddie Wenstob of Edmonton, Western Canada heavyweight and light-heavyweight champion, today holds an important victory over Emilio Martinez, Denver, who stands fourth in the challenger ratings of the National Boxing Association.

Wenstob won the unanimous decision of two judges and Referee Jerry Delane in his 10-round bout with the Mexican here last night. Wenstob weighed 175½ and Martinez 179½.

St. Kitts' Chiefs Take Falls By 4-2, While Brant Indians Drop 7th, 6-4 To Pt. Colborne

(By the Canadian Press.)

St. Catharines Chiefs are a great source of worry to other clubs in the Senior "A" division of the Ontario Hockey Association this winter. Any player on the Chiefs' roster is liable to break out with a payoff goal.

The Chiefs have employed the system a lot this season to win four or five games played. They won their latest 4-2 last night in Niagara Falls on the strength of two clever goals by Jack Boyd in the final period. The teams were tied 2-2 at the end of the second.

The other pair of St. Catharines goals came in the middle session after the Falls had taken a 2-0 lead. Sammy Phillips scored both. And while the opposition pays close attention to Boyd and Phillips in the next league tilt, someone else, like Ossie Carnegie, Negro forward; Eddie Lister or Bobby Pinder, may break loose.

Over at Brantford, the home-town Indians, strengthened by three Hamilton Mercantile League players, lost to the Hardy Tars from Port Colborne, 6-4. It was the seventh defeat for Leo Reise's Brants who have won but one game this season.

Even though bolstered by Johnny Conick Red Dunne and George Cooper, the Hamilton trio, Brantford was handicapped by loss of two players. Jack Webster is ill and Len Wilkes is out with a shoulder injury.

The win gave St. Catharines and Port Colborne a total of eight points each for second position in the standing.

Goodyears Tonight

Toronto Goodyears league champions last season, head the ladder with five straight wins. Goodyears' unblemished record may be shattered tonight, however, when they travel to Oshawa to meet the desperate G-men who won only two games of five played.

Conick and Dunne each scored a goal in the first appearance with the Brants. Ebby Edmison was the marksmen on the other two. Doug Runions tallied two for the Ports, with Captain Vince Upper, Goney McGowan, Earl Laroche and Gal Gallinger making up the total.

The goal by McGowan veteran of more than a dozen years in amateur ranks, placed him in a tie with George Imlach of Toronto Goodyears for league scoring honors. Each has scored six goals and five assists for 11 points.

Old Goney, who makes plays at centre for younger teammates and scarcely ever draws a penalty, was a two-time victor to the penalty pew last night for minor offences. It was the first time this season that Goney has served penitence.

It looked tough for St. Catharines before they opened their bag of tricks and let out Phillips and Boyd. Mason of the Falls scored the only goal of the first period and Steak Morrison added another early in the second. Boyd scored St. Catharines' final goal with 20 seconds of third-period play remaining.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14—(AP). — The Pirates are trying to land one of the Bees' catchers. . . . Turned down flat on a deal for Al Lopez, they're after Ray Mueller now. . . Incidentally Pittsburgh offered Seattle 35 grand in cash and five players—including Johnny Dickshot and Woody Jensen—for Freddy Hutchinson. . . So you can just picture what the Tigers paid for the Kid. . . . Doc Prothro is around the baseball meeting telling the boys there's hardly a pitcher can match the speed of his new Phillies' flinger, Jennings Poindexter, late of the Red Sox. . . .

Only manager not on hand is Ray Blades, the Cardinals' new pilot. . . And everybody's wondering why . . Don Budge will work out with Sidney Wood, the ex-Davis cupper, to get ready for his pro. ramblings with Elly Vines. . . . Tommy Farr is peeved no end since Ray Carlen, Lou Nova's manager, classed him as a third-rater. . . So he's shouting that he'll be after Lou's hide in their fight Friday night.

Bill Terry and Pie Traynor had their heads together for a long time after the baseball writer's luncheon. . . . A swap, boys?. . . Story around the baseball meeting tells about Hollis Thurston, the old pitcher, opening a beer place on the coast, called "First Base," and wiring all his old pals to stop at "First Base" any time. . . . Al Lopez got one of the invites, and wired right back: "Hope all your pals stop at First Base, Toots. . . . None of the hitters you pitched against ever did." . . .

Campbell's death came as Nova Scotia Government investigators prepared to seek the cause of the disaster. The inquiry opens to-day.

Canadian Shows Londoners Winter Sport

LONDON, Dec. 14—(CP). — In this damp metropolis where a snowstorm comes once in a blue moon and is about as substantial as dandruff on a blue suit, a Canadian is being hailed the creator of Winter.

He is suave Armand Vincent of Montreal, whose $150,000 Winter Cavalcade at Earl's Court is the biggest sport promotional venture ever staged under one roof in Britain.

It is a large-scale international indoor winter sports display with trimmings. The program includes a snowstorm, skiing, skijumping and snowshoeing competition, and a French revue of 100 chorus girls.

Twelve thousand spectators including members of the royal family are expected nightly to watch the big show, staged on a full-sized snow-covered ski run with a realistic scenic mountain in the background.

Bert Paaske, floor manager; Norman Gagne, ski jumper, and Chief Poking Fire, Louis Thorval, Peter Vavuzzi and Dan Cunningham, snowshoers, all from Quebec, are other Canadians taking part.

Eagles Perk Up Take Stars 2-1

SYRACUSE, Dec. 14—(CP).—The road doesn't look so rough now to Pete Lepine, who found the way pretty bumpy at first in his debut as playing-coach of New Haven's International - American Hockey League Eagles. The former National league star is finding plenty to enthuse about in the recent showings of his charges.

Eagles, though still only in a tie for the last place in the Eastern division, won 2-1 last night over Syracuse Stars in the only scheduled Intam contest. The victory gave them a record of four wins, a draw and a loss in their last six games.

Louis Trudel and Glenn Brydson scored for Eagles. The Syracuse goal came in the last minute to play with Eddie Convey beating Goalie Bill Beveridge.

Trades Planned For The Tigers

NEW YORK, Dec. 14—As Walter O. Briggs Sr. served an ultimatum, 10 Tigers were ruled on the baseball mart here as major leaguers prepared to go into their annual December dance.

The Detroit club owner's ultimatum demands that Jack Zeller and Del Baker "give Detroit another championship team."

And, the Motor City baseball magnate, a thirty-third degree fan himself, doesn't mean 1940 or '41 or '42. He wants a team that will win the American League pennant next year. All of which puts Zeller and Baker pretty much on the spot. You can't always do what you would like to do in the baseball business.

All they can do is try and it's a lead pipe cinch they'll be struggling here.

Tigers on the market include: Elden Auker, pitcher.

Pete Fox, Dixie Walker, Chet Laabs, Roy Cullenbine, Jo-Jo White and Chet Morgan, outfielders.

Bill Rogell, Tony Piet, infielders.

George (Birdie) Tebbetts, catcher.

Three Secure

There are others that would be considered if clubs have anything that looks like an attractive lead. Three not for sale nor trade are Charley Gehringer, Hank Greenberg and Rudy York, as reported before.

Whether the Tigers and other clubs can get together is something else again. They're talking a trade between Detroit and Cleveland involving three or four players on each side. The Tigers traded would come out of the nine, if such a deal were made.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A more bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c

Yankees Chosen Ace Team For '38 Season

NEW YORK, Dec. 14—(AP).—By a margin as decisive as their American league and world series triumphs, New York Yankees were named today as the outstanding sports team for 1938.

Joe McCarthy's bombers who created a new all-time record by whipping Chicago Cubs, four games to none, for their third successive world baseball championship, were named at the top of the heap by 61 of 67 sports editors participating in the eighth annual Associated Press poll.

Three other sports editors picked the Yankees for the No. 2 spot and and three for No. 3, thus giving the baseball title-holders a total of 192 points out of a possible 201. Points were awarded on the basis of three for No. 1 ranking, two for No. 2 and one for No. 3.

Value Of Farm Woodlot Is Emphasized

The dollars and cents value of farm wood lots was emphasized by I. C. Marritt, B.Sc.F., in his address Tuesday afternoon to the boys and girls who are taking the short courses in agriculture and home economics at Keene. He discussed the subject in many of its practical phases first to the boys alone, and then reviewed it with pictorial aid to the entire company of junior farmers in the town hall. "It has taken us a long time to reverse the attitude of our people toward the forest," Mr. Marritt said. "To the pioneers of this province, only one hundred years ago, trees were an impediment, an obstable that had to be got rid of. The land had to be cleared quickly, and it was hard work. So, they began slashing down the trees, and we have gotten on about the same way ever since."

In the last ten to fifteen years the people of Ontario had steadily become conscious of the problem of reforestation that confronted them, with a resulting progress in that direction that has been greatly accelerated during the last five years.

"What we can do now is to look after the wood lots we still have, apart altogether from any large plan of reforestation. Many farms have been stripped of wood, forcing farmers in quite a number of cases to buy coal, to pay out cash a wood lot would have saved him."

The Annual Fuel Bill

The ordinary farm house requires ten to fifteen cords of wood a year for fuel. One acre will grow from 1½ to 2 cords of wood annually, and on that basis a bush of 10 to 15 acres will produce all the fuel requirements of the household. One of the boys estimated the value of the wood from $75 to $100 a year, probably excluding labor which could be applied during the winter when farmers were not so busy, and when they hadn't much work for their teams.

"The farmer with 25 acres of bush gets all the fuel he needs himself, and he can find a sale for cordwood and lumber in town that might bring him $100 a year. And he is giving work to men, probably helping some of them to keep off relief," Mr. Marrit said.

The value of woods as windbreaks near the house, to check and prevent blow sand, to plant on steep hills to stop their erosion, to control floods, to keep snow and moisture longer in the ground and thereby maintain springs throughout the year, were also mentioned.

"It doesn't take a big area of bush to keep spirngs running, and you all know the value of water on the farm."

Wood used to be so cheap that farmers said they could slash it off and grow crops at a price that would enable them to buy all the wood they needed; but since then wood has increased greatly in value while some farm products have slumped black.

Fuel Values Of Wood

Tests made in the United States had rated rock elm as possessing the highest fuel value of the woods, placing it at 102 per cent as compared with coal's 100 per cent. Iron wood was second with 99 per cent., "so a buyer needn't kick if he gets rock elm or iron wood in his load." Other rating were: white oak, 88 per cent.; sugar maple, 84 per cent.; red oak, 84 per cent.; beech, 80 per cent.; elm, 70 per cent.; popular, 55 per cent., and so on down to cedar.

The farmer who will pay some attention to his wood lot and keep the cattle out of it can obtain exemption of taxes on it in the ratio of one acre in ten, that is, ten acres of wood lot free of taxes on a farm of 100 acres; or twenty acres on a 200-acre farm.

Mr. Marritt strongly advised that livestock be kept out of the woods to let the trees do their own reproducing in the way of nature. "Let the bush seed itself. The seedlings will grow up close together, but nature will gradually thin them out."

Mr. Marritt devoted a large section of his address to the detail of how to thin out a bush, what trees should be removed, and what others should be permitted to develop. Dead and decaying trees should be the first to go; those that are crooked or slanting; some of the taller trees that cast too much shade, interfering with the growth of saplings beneath them. Evergreens should average six feet apart and hardwoods four feet, "but you can't go around through a bush with a measuring rod to see that the trees keep their distance."

"If you have fifty acres of bush and you let the cattle pasture in it, you would find it far better to clear up twenty-five acres, leaving a few trees for shade, and keep them for the cattle and then reserve the other twenty-five acres for a wood lot."

Some of the kinds of wood that should be cultivated or encouraged in a bush, and the reasons therefor, were mentioned by boys in the class. Mr. Marritt supplemented their summary; white ash for skiis, whiffle-trees, wagon tongues and so on; hard maple for syrup and sugar, fuel and a good material for lumber; pine or hemlock especially as a source of lumber that could be used on the farm or sold; a few cedars for posts; elms and soft maples in the swamps. "Beech also for fuel, but we are not so particular about it."

Our objective should be to make it a mixed bush, Mr. Marritt said. Iron wood is a prolific seeder, the cattle won't eat it, and it is a good fuel wood but it doesn't grow big enough.

Get rid of the iron wood, the blue beech and the hawthornes, Mr. Marritt suggested.

Trees To The Cord

"At what size should trees be cut?" he asked. His answer was to the effect that it generally takes 36 trees of five inches in diameter to make a cord of four foot wood; and probably six ten-inch trees would make a cord.

A tree of from five to ten inches in the bole grows more quickly than the tree of less than five inches. There is more wood growing, and the same fact applies to the larger tree of from ten to fifteen inches.

Mr. Marritt advised the boys to buy a wood lot which they believed to be a bargain, take care of it themselves, and in the course of years their investment would bring them satisfactory returns. Some times such lots were offered away below their real value by persons who did not know their worth.

The address was concluded with suggestions as to how to get and plant trees. Mr. Marritt said that a good bush, properly managed, could become good insurance for the farm and its family, with no premium.

Reichsbank President, who arrives today on a financial-trade mission. There was speculation, too, whether the Germans might be further disinclined to co-operate in the speeding of German Jewish emigration.

A majority of British newspapers backed the Prime Minister, who declared he was determined to continue his policy of European appeasement, warned against aggression and declared the nation was ready to defend her Empire and allies, particularly France, of whom he said:

"Our relations with France are so close they go far beyond mere legal obligations since they are founded on an identity of interest."

The Daily Telegraph and Morning Post (Conservative), which usually has a most friendly word for the government, found no comfort, however, in the Prime Minister's reference to the Munich pact as a "victory."

"It is high time that other parties to the Munich agreement made some positive contribution to the effort to remove causes of war, instead of persisting in new demands and provocations," the paper said.

The German attack was upon a speech Earl Baldwin made Dec. 8, opening an appeal for contributing to a refugee fund after the Nazi anti-semitic drive.

No Press Betrayal

Mr. Chamberlain praised the press, saying "I have hardly ever known a case where my confidence has been deliberately betrayed," and then with a defence of Munich, claimed these accords for his foreign policy, the British-Irish, British-Italian, British-German, French-German and British - American agreements.

Prime Minister disclaimed any personal preference for Nazism or Fascism but did state that "history teaches us that no form of government ever remains the same."

This brought from the newspaper Voelkischer Beobachter, Chancellor Hitler's mouthpiece, the assertion that "in political developments there will be one unchanging factor—the authoritarian system in Germany."

Attention was given, meanwhile, to a speech before the constitutional (Conservative) club last night by Malcolm Macdonald, Dominions and colonial secretary.

Endure May Crises

He declared the empire might "crumble and fall to pieces" in the lifetime of the present generation but he belived it would endure through "many crises."

The Daily Mail (Independent) expressed "amazed bewilderment" at the "astonishing speech."

Mr. Macdonald told the club the Dominions were so anxious that their national freedom not be compromised that they might want to break away from Great Britain.

The "boycott" of Prime Minister Chamberlain's address created considerable speculation in parliamentary and newspaper circles alike.

It was pointed out Mr. Chamberlain released copies of his speech to the correspondents—his hosts—in advance as matter of courtesy and particularly because it would obviate the necessity of their leaving their own dinner hastily in order to transmit the speech to their papers.

In many quarters it was argued a serious breach of etiquette had been committed by the German group in staying away from the dinner on the basis of a confidential copy of the speech placed in their hands, because there was something in the speech—criticism of the Nazi press—which they did not like.

Technically they were obliged, it was argued, to consider the contents of the speech as undivulged until it was pronounced.

Germans Warned Away.

After the banquet Dr. Stefan Litauer, president of the association, said:

"It was not until 7 o'clock that I had a message stating that the German press representatives and German officials at the Embassy would not attend the dinner. This was only three-quarters of an hour before the function was due to begin. I have received no message from Herr von Dirksen, the German Ambassador, who was to have been a guest."

Some of the German journalists had not received their instructions concerning the "boycott" and turned up at the dinner, but a German colleague was stationed nearby to warn them away.

The German Embassy issued the following statement:

"The point of view of the German Embassy is that it was a matter for regret that members of the Embassy were unable to attend the anniversary dinner of the Foreign Press Association at which the Prime Minister himself was the principal speaker.

"But it should be borne in mind that the German journalists in London, as members of the Foreign Press Association, were themselves associated with the invitations issued to the guests of the association. That being so, it was felt that an embarrassing situation might arise if, in the course of the evening, mention was made of subjects which entailed criticism of German affairs."

Gave Snyder $150,000, Sought More Says Torch Singer At Trial

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 14—(AP).—Torch singer Ruth Etting, who signed herself "Nutsy" in a telegram to pianist Myrl Alderman, faced cross-examination today on her accusation that Martin Snyder shot Alderman at the musician's Hollywood Hills home last Oct. 15.

Miss Etting first took the stand yesterday at Snyder's trial on six felony charges—three of attempted murder, two of kidnapping and one of carrying a gun with the numbers filed off.

In the same throaty voice which brought her fame as a blues singer, she charged Snyder, her husband and manager for 17 years, with threatening her life and with wounding Alderman in the abdomen as he sat on a piano bench in the music room of his residence.

She said Snyder forced Alderman at gunpoint into the home where she and Snyder's daughter, Edith, were preparing dinner, and announcing "he had us all where he wanted us."

End of the Family

"Waving a pistol he forced us into the music room and told us this was the end of all three of us," Miss Etting testified.

"Then, Myral opened his mouth and Snyder shot—twice—and then the light went out," she said. "Mr. Alderman fell off the piano bench on his face, I screamed.

"Then Mr. Snyder said: 'I've had my revenge. Now you can call the police'."

She described rushing to the bedroom to get a revolver which "because of his (Snyder's) recent threats" she had taken to Alderman's house.

"He came after me," she continued, "and we met in the bedroom. He made a grab for me, I had the gun behind my back and it exploded."

She fled, she said, when Edith ran into the room and separated them. As she ran from the house, she heard another shot and saw Snyder dash past her and into the street.

She divulged how at the time of her divorce she gave Snyder stocks and securities valued at $75,000, a half-interest in her Beverly Hills home and paid off $50,000 of his gambling debts. Since then, she said, he had tried to obtain more money from her.

700 Fox, 125 Mink Pelts In Contest

TORONTO, Dec. 13—(CP).—The fifth annual Ontario fur farmers' pelt show, sponsored by the Ontario Fur Farmers' Association to give the 1,700 fox and mink rangers in the province an opportunity of comparing pelts, opened here to-day with grading of the 700 fox and 125 mink pelts entered.

Judging begins to-morrow when three prominent fur dealers select the champion pelts on the basis of color, sharpness of silver and density of fur. Judges are Robert Fraser, New York; W. F. Ritchie, Montreal, and F. H. Pingree, Montreal.

All pelts shown will be sold at the Canadian Fur Auction Sales Company, Limited, sale at Montreal opening Jan. 4, 1939. Among the 15 championships to be decided Thursday night are the grand champion silver fox pelt and the grand champion mink pelt. Cups have been donated by the Ontario government and prominent fur dealers and firms.

Among the entries is O. W. Thompson of Kitchener, president of the Association and one of the largest fox ranchers in Ontario. Mr. Thompson pelted 5,000 foxes this year.

E. A. Scott, secertary-treasurer for 1937, hurled a barrage of criticism at the members when his name was placed for office. He claimed they had taken advantage of bargains earlier in the year, then left him holding the bag with large shipments of poultry feed, and as a result he had lost money. He suggested the club would be farther ahead if they took over his mill themselves.

Board of directors elected for the year were: A. Armstrong and C. E. Moore of Smith; W. W. Dawson and Wm. Henderson, Otonabee; W. G. Waterman, North Monaghan; Cephas Bolton, Douro; James Gifford, Ennismore; and four women, Mrs. Wm. Henderson, Otonabee, Mrs. M. Clarke, Smith, Mrs. V. Campbell, Douro, and Mrs. W. G. Sixty dollars was set aside during the year as a prize fund to stimulate buying and selling within the organization and 24 shared in the prizes. Twelve winners who bought through the warehouse were Earl Tully, Ralph Scott, William Hutchinson, Kenneth Petrie, W. Garbutt, Wm. Bell, W. G. Waterman, W. W. Shippers who won prizes were W. G. Waterman, A. Armstrong, Walter Garbutt, T. Petrie, J. D. Matchett, Stewart Armstrong, J. T. Tully, Alma Milburn, Harry Franks, C. S. Brown, Rose Harrison, Howard Quinn.

eral party as suggested previously he was considering quitting."

While Mr. Duplessis was implicated in the Port Arthur speeches, Mr. Gardiner said he had no discussion with Mr. Hepburn with regard to the Quebec Premier.

In Quebec, Mr. Duplessis told newspapermen he had no statement to make on political affairs.

Mr. Gardiner's statement was the only official comment made following yesterday's Cabinet session, the first of four scheduled for this week as the government makes strenuous effort to have the legislative program prepared by January 12 when parliament will open.

The offer of the Ontario Premier to support Mr. Gardiner, a former Premier of Saskatchewan and able debater in the Commons, as Federal Liberal leader did not occasion much surprise here. It has been rumored for some time that the Agriculture Minister might become the leader if Mr. Mackenzie King retired.

Cottages Looted On 3 Upper Kawartha Lakes

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, Dec. 14.—Fresh reports came in today to the Provincial police from the lake resorts in this district concerning the depredations of thieves who have pillaged and ransacked cottages on Sturgeon, Cameron and Balsam lakes. The police are satisfied that the thefts have not been committed by parties in this district. The looting was carried out in a systematic manner. Trucks were used to carry off the contents of cottages, and all kinds of household effects was included in the loot. Some of the cottages were completely cleaned out. Beds, tables, stoves chesterfields outboard motors and other articles too numerous to mention are found missing and the opinion is expressed that the loot was taken to Toronto, where it will likely be disposed to second hand dealers. Thursday cottage owners from different points in the province passed through Lindsay on their way to the lake resorts in order to inspect their property. The police are unable to give an estimate of the loss sustained in this clean-up, but it will run into several thousand dollars. Since the robbery men have been engaged to patrol the property at a number of resorts in Victoria and Haliburton counties. Farmers as well as cottage owners have been raided also during the past several weeks.

Express Firms Are Looking For Rush

An exceptionally heavy Christmas business is anticipated by officials of the Canadian Pacific Express and Canadian National Express, who announce that equipment is being lined up and all necessary preparations made to handle the traffic efficiently.

As the festive season approaches, it is felt there will be a decided increase in the interchange of Christmas gifts this year, and with the very low express rates on small packages, coupled with door-to-door service at principal points, express officials of both companies look forward to the heaviest Christmas traffic for some time. Housewives are familiar with express pick-up and delivery service and realize all that is necessary to obtain such service is to telephone the express companies when their Christmas packages are ready and the parcels will be picked up promptly by courteous express vehiclemen.

Every employe of both companies from coast to coast is ready to ensure expeditions and careful handling, being determined to maintain the record that all parcels received at destination on Christmas morning are delivered to the recipient by 9 a.m.

Transients Blamed For Fire In Barn

Transients were blamed for fire that broke out last night in an old barn belonging to Constable Leo Murphy at his residence on Park Hill Road.

No suggestion was made that any hobo had a grudge against the constable, but people in that area have been troubled by transients recently and some of them may have been burning themselves in the barn. The blaze was first noticed shortly before ten o'clock last night and a fine line played on the building by the fire department soon extinguished it, and little damage resulted. The barn, used as a garage, had about a quarter of a ton of hay in it.

The fire department was kept busy last night, three chimney fires in addition to the barn fire being reported.

More Cheese Made In Township Of Seymour Than In Peterborough And Victoria Counties

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 14. — Losses for undergrades were down forty per cent below what they were a year ago was the encouraging report given by district dairy instructor J. A. Murray before patrons of the I.X.L. Cheese Company at their annual meeting held on Tuesday.

"It is the large factories which bring our averages down and if the patrons of the smaller ones will only keep their milk right they will render a great service. We make more cheese in Seymour township than in Peterborough and Victoria combined," he stated.

Recalling the large amount of butter being held in storage at the present time he pointed out that more cheese could be sold if it were made, A year ago the farmer was getting a pretty good price for his fat at the creamery but now that the price has gone the trend back to the factory has not yet been as large as was expected. In the future whey vats must be cleaned every day as they play an important part in keeping up flavor.

The fact there are ten million pounds of butter held in storage will tend to keep the price down for some time to come J. D. Mills, manager of the Bank of Montreal at Campbellford, told patrons. Our shipments of butter to England are small and he suggested a quota system similar to that on bacon as the answer to the present condition.

Mac Waddell, secretary of the company, who was reappointed, claimed that production was up considerably above last years. Patrons supplied 695,833 pounds of milk to the factory to make 21,955.3 pounds of butter fat and 57,319 pounds of cheese. Price paid per pound butter fat was 29.67 cents and it too ktwelve pounds of milk to produce one pound of cheese. Average price paid for cheese was 13.6 cents and patrons received a total of $6,335.29 for the season.

Eric Little will again be maker and William Anderson was re-elected president. The directors were elected as follows: Douglas Rutherford, Howard Clark, Charles Clark, and Wm. McKenzie.

Boys And Girls Are Deeply Interested In Welfare Of One Of Santa's Reindeer

Boys and girls of the city and district who have been writing to Santa Claus have touched his heart with their good wishes for himself and also their concern for the recovery of his reindeer that met with a slight accident to its leg some weeks ago.

Santa Claus has sent through C.D.S. a reply relating to those solicitous enquiries, and assuring all his little friends that he expects his deer, perhaps it's Blitzen, will be ready for the big trip Christmas Eve. He sent along with his reply various quotations from the pile of letters he has received reflecting the fine, unselfish spirit of many of the Peterboro girls and boys who have been writing to him.

A little Lakefield girl wrote: "Dear Santa Claus! How are you? How is Mrs. Santa? How is your reindeer? I hope that it is getting better." She asked for a ball and a coloring book.

A Payne avenue girl's letter was: "I hope you will come to me as there are so many things I want and also you will make other little boys and girls happy and have a merry Xmas. merry Xmas yourself."

Another girl's letter was of only five words: "Dear Santa I like cradle." And a boy wrote "Please bring a toboggan and a tractor to ——. That is all; thank you." An Ashburnham boy asked for a sleigh, a wagon and a set of boxing gloves.

Here's one from another little girl that Santa Claus also mentioned: "Dear Santa—How is Mrs. Santa and I am very sorry that your reindeer broke its leg. I would like a go cart and a doll blanket, bonnet, doll, a suitcase and some candies. Your friend ——."

Santa Claus says in his letter that he is trying to reply to everyone who writes to him, and he hopes no one will be missed.

Carpet Weavers Seeking Redress

BRANTFORD, Ont., Dec. 14 (CP)—Arthur Laverty, Cornwall, Ont., field organizer for the textile division for the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, stated yesterday that he intended to stay in Brantford until settlement had been effected in a dispute involving a local carpet factory, the difficulty that has arisen between the management and the employees, engaged in the carpet-weaving department who are members of the Textile Workers' Union, Local No. 8, is that an "outside" official has been brought into the factory from Quebec province and placed in charge of the department, according to Laverty. He added that the carpet weavers were not on full time at present and it was felt that the policy would create hardship, as one more employee would not have to be accommodated in spreading work. The textile workers recently affiliated with the T. and L. Congress.

Laverty claimed that the employees had discussed the matter with the management but had received "no satisfaction." He said they had asked only that the man be transferred to another department. "The men are prepared to take action if necessary and they will have the sympathy of every other department in the mill," said Laverty.

Tale Of Girl 13, Opens White Slavery Drive

DETROIT, Dec. 14 (CP)—Detroit police sought today to close disorderly houses in many sections of the city as a result of a white slavery story related by a 13-year-old Detroit girl.

Police held Louis Miholich, 29, on a serious charge after the young girl said he kept her in his room all night and then took her on a tour of disorderly houses in Detroit to find one that would accept her.

The girl said she met Miholich at a beer garden she attended with her mother. Miholich arranged to meet her two nights later, and, with another young girl, they had a party. She said the other girl was placed in another disorderly house.

She said Miholich told her "she could use her imagination about what would happen" if she ever left the house or talked. Police located her after a long search.

The Rambling REPORTERS

A UNUSUAL PLOUGH.

The death of G. A. Welbourn on Sunday brings memories flooding back to the minds of several older citizens of this city who once lived in Sydeny township, near Belleville. One of them, W. H. Merrill, had lived on the 5th Concession of Sydney, not two miles from the farm of Mr. Welbourn's father. He recalled that G. A. Welbourn's father came to this country from Scotland some seventy-five years ago, and that he brought with him a great high plough that was unusual in this country. A great ploughman, he took a keen interest in teaching the youngsters of the 5th Concession how to plough properly, and the district later turned out some extremely proficient men. It was through that interest that Mr. Welbourn was later instrumental to a large extent in having ploughing matches started all over this province, Mr. Merrill said.—

LOST HIS BET.

The story from Hastings, regarding strange doings in a vacant house in that town, brings to light a true yarn concerning a former business man of Hastings.

It was generally rumored about town that a certain house was haunted a few years ago. A group of men one evening offered the business man $5 if he would stay in the house for two hours alone. He accepted the bet and accompanied by his "friends" proceeded to the house. An accomplice, however, hurried to the house ahead of the group and hid in an upstairs room.

The victim was in the house but a few moments when a voice called out "Am I alone:" A second time it called out but without reply from downstairs. The third call brought the answer, "No, but you are soon going to be," and at that he crawled through a window to outside and safety. He lost the bet.

Second Offender Is Given Month

Dame Fortune was not smiling on Frank Currie when he was charged in police court this morning with being drunk. Magistrate Langley had just read the charge to him and he had pleaded guilty when Chief Newhall halted the proceedings.

"That should be a second offence charge, I believe," he said and a short investigation showed that the chief's memory was good so Curry was arraigned again, this time as a second offender.

He pleaded guilty to being drunk yesterday and when the previous conviction which took place on August 15 was mentioned he remarked to the court that he had already served time for that.

"The law presumes that a man will learn after being punished once," remarked Magistrate Langley.

"Make the sentence as light as possible," pleaded the accused.

"A month is the shortest the law allows me to give," returned His Worship. "I'll make it $50 fine without costs or a months imprisonment."

The accused will therefore be booked to spend Christmas and New Year's Day in the county bastille and in that respect was much less lucky than another man charged today with drunkenness. He was fined $10 and costs with the alternative of seven days in jail which will allow him out two days before Christmas.

"Better be careful when you get out," remarked the Magistrate. "There will probably be more temptation than usual to drink in the case of a man coming out of jail just at Christmas time."

A man of quiet disposition, he gained the friendship of all with whom he came in contact, and held it through all his life. He was a member of St. Joseph's church, Douro, for more than sixty years.

Coroner Dr. F. W. Tickett is investigating.

Young Man Is Victim Of Malaria Fever

Malaria fever, disease and scourge of the tropics has been contracted by a 24-year-old Peterborough boy who is at present confined to his home, and is being treated for the affliction.

The disease is very uncommon in the temperate regions and is characterized by the occurrence of violent chills, fever and sweating in distinct paroxysms at intervals of definite and often uniform duration. Those afflicted shiver so violently they shake the bed and no amount of warm wool blankets will have any effect on the condition.

The patient arrived home from the southern States during the early part of November after having worked at New Orleans in Louisiana, in different parts of Texas and finally in the Tenessee cotton belt. He was not ill until he had been home for some time, and doctors believe the germs lie dormant until conditions are ideal for action.

In Weak Condition

The last reports indicate the man has had no chill since last Saturday but is in an extremely weak condition and unable to eat.

The disease is transmitted by a bite from the anopheles mosquito which breeds only in tropical or semi-tropical climates. It is not contagious.

This type of mosquito is a night feeding insect and the germ enters the body of a person bitten by the mosquito.

For centuries quinine was the recognized treatment of this disease but in recent years more effective preparations have been compounded.

The germ can live in the body for a considerable length of time and many members of the medical profession believe that after a period of six years the disease will not recur.

Dr. G. Murray Fraser, M.O.H., said today he had received no official notification of this case. In view of the fact that the disease is not contagious the patient will receive attention from his family doctor and not through the Department of Public Health in this city.

Man Is Fined $150 Having Illegally

COLLINGWOOD, Dec. 14.—Pleading guilty to a charge of having liquor in an illegal place, Joseph Wheeler, proprietor of a building formerly known as the Queen's Hotel, was fined $150 and costs by Magistrate Compton Jeffs in Police Court. A second charge of keeping for sale was withdrawn by Crown Attorney Frank Hammond.

The charge was laid by Chief of Police Lorne Davidson of Collingwood following a raid on November 5th, conducted by the local chief and assisted by Sergeant Wilkinson of the Ontario Provincial Police and Provincial Constables J. A. Rowe of Collingwood and William Peters of Elmvale.

Provincial Constable Rowe testified that the police found 72 pints of ale and two part-filled bottles of whisky in one room and 17 pints, a full quart and part of a quart of whisky in another room.

Youths Are Charged Attempting Burglary

Joseph Fountaine, 18, and Thomas Madill, 19, were charged before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning with attempting to break and enter the Ashburnham store of Fitzpatrick and Geraghty Tuesday night with intent to commit theft. The two youths were arrested near the store last night.

This morning both elected trial by magistrate and both pleaded not guilty.

Neither was ready to go ahead with his trial and Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry also wanted a remand so the pair were remanded until Wednesday of next week.

Bail was fixed at $1,000 in each case.

10,000 Tons Of Gravel To Be Spread On Lindsay-Newcastle Road

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, Dec. 14—The Examiner was informed Tuesday by a representative of the McLaren Co., of Picton, that work would commence this week on the Lindsay-Newcastle Highway. Commencing at Pontypool the company will lay 10,000 tons of crushed gravel. This highway has been assumed by the Department of Highways, and it is the dream of local merchants that the road will be paved during the coming year.

H. B. Cowan of Peterborough was the guest speaker at the local Rotary Club luncheon this week. The speaker recently returned from a trip through the United States and Europe, and he took as his topic the establishment of an International Marketing Committee, which he contended would tend greatly to eliminate the prejudical slumps which the Canadian, as well as every other world market, experiences from time to time.

The death Tuesday afternoon at her father's residence, Russell street, of Miss Clara Robertson, came as a distinct shock to the community, as few were aware of her illness. Miss Robertson, who was a daughter of Mr. Andrew Robertson was widely known throughout the district. Besides her father, she is survived by one sister (Mrs. Thurston) residing in British Columbia.

The death is announced at Whitby of a former well known resident of Mariposa township, in the person of Charles Osborne, aged 59 years. A brother of Richard Osborne of Peterborough, he gave up farming a few years ago and moved to Lindsay later taking up residence with his sister in Whitby. He is survived by three brothers and three sisters.

Neighbors Again Report Seeing Lights In Hastings House Reported Haunted

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Dec. 14 — Wierd lights, in a house in the north section of this town, continue to appear, according to neighbors. Mrs. Thomas Carroll claims to have seen a light in the kitchen of the house Monday night about 9.30 p.m. and again last night at the same hour. Sydney Linton, living next door to the house, said he saw the light in the same room a few minutes before the hour Mrs. Carroll claims to have seen it.

Lewis Drope, residing with Mr. and Mrs. Carroll, said he saw the light when he was going to work, early yesterday morning.

M. A. O'Shea, agent in charge of renting the house, accompanied by an Examiner reporter, visited the house about five p.m. last night. They could find nothing that would give source to the mysterious light. Four young men visited the house again late last night but without results.

Residents here are inclined to believe the reflection from nearby street lights is responsible but those who have witnessed the strange light believe it comes from an unknown source, other than street lights reflection.

"I never believed in ghosts before but this thing has got me wondering," Linton declared last night. "I thought at first it might have been some tramps seeking shelter, but after I saw those two men on the front verandah, I changed my mind."

Happy New Year.

GLAMOROUS CALENDARS.

Those glamorous calendars, portraying beauty such as never was seen in human form, are making their brief appearance these days. Those exotic, daringly-robed ladies always are seen about this time of year, but seldom last for long. Husbands proudly hang them up in stores and homes, wives jealously tear them up as quickly as possible. Occasionally one of that amazing clan—he who is master in his own home—can make one last for the entire year.

PUTTING WINGS ON LETTERS

How many persons realize that a letter posted in Peterborough at 6 a.m. today can be delivered by special messenger anywhere in Winnipeg by 8 o'clock this evening, Post Master Chas. Lacheur remarked to the Examiner this morning. And the same letter, if so desired, would reach Vancouver at 5.20 a.m. Thursday in time for the first morning delivery. The air mail plane leaves Toronto at 12.15 noon. The postage charge to Winnipeg is 6 cents for the first ounce and five cents for each additional ounce, with an added charge of 20 cents for special delivery.

THEY WANT SNOW.

Members of the Peterborough Ski club greeted a fall of snow to-day with enthusiasm. For weeks newcomers have been grumbling that club officials have been lax in their duties; each says he has paid his membership fee but no snow has been provided. A rebate might be in order. Many skiiers have been using their spare time in recent weeks in placing runs in condition for the big ski meet to be held here this winter. The downhill course will be near the Devil's Elbow, not far from Bethany, only a short distance from the point where a truck laden with logs overturned on Saturday.

ODDS AND ENDS

The Collegiate dance is booked for December 26. And that recalls a recent comment that may possibly emanate from the tailors that some of the young blades around town complain there are not enough dances requiring formal dress. They invest in a wardrobe and then have to keep it in the moth balls instead of dazzling some of the lasses.... Nothing like the poincettias down in Parker's window have appeared in the holiday decorations scheme ....Local greenhouses are full of lovaly blooms, azaleas, cyclamen, poincettias, begonias and so on.... According to a rave by Dorothy Kilgallen in the Chicago Herald and Examiner, none of the cameras do justice to Anthony Eden. In the accents of the good old bromide "He's wonderful" or words to that effect. In fact in the same terms "Dot goes for the debonair Captain in a big way"....A farmer friend reported that several of those in the same opinion as himself held a caucus early Tuesday evening and went up to the U.F.O. meeting, deciding to do some changing of personnel.... They say a roll call of the doctors would have discovered most of them at the Capitol's "Citadel."

OFFICE SAFE OPENED

Thieves forced an entrance into the office at Curtis Brickyard Tuesday night and opened the door of the safe. The money had been taken out before closing and they had the work for nothing. Near Collisions At Crossings With Two Trains

Glare ice and firm-packed snow combined to-day with lack of sand to make Peterborough's streets a nightmare for motorists, particularly during a crowded noon hour.

While sand had been placed at interesections downtown there was still many a danger spot that had either been overlook or that hard-worked board of works' men had not had time to reach.

Among the worst hazards were approaches to railway crossings on Park Hill Road, where serious accidents were narrowly averted just before one o'clock this afternoon. One worried motorist, travelling down the long hill toward George street, became considerably alarmed when he saw a freight train crossing the street below him. His brakes were useless and even though he was in low gear he was unable to stop. Luckily for him, Benson avenue crosses Park Hill road just before the tracks are reached and he turned down that street, then found ascent up that hill amost impossible.

Three other motorists had an even closer escape on Park Hill road. The three cars were coming down another long hill, in the opposite direction, toward Inverlea bridge from Armour road, when the first one suddenly found a train ahead of him. Once again brakes were useles sand he skidded back and forth acros sthe road. With luck in his favor he bumped against the curb at the side of the road and stopped. The other two cars behind him, in the same precarious position, bumped into the first car and were saved. Not a speck of sand was visible in either direction from either of the two crossings.

Plans To Organize Class In Psychology

The Workers' Education Association is planning to organize in January a special class in psychology for men and women of from 18 to 35 years who are unemployed or are on part time employment. The lecturer will be Prof. Dhami of the University of Toronto, who is conducting this season's W. E. A. course. A self-made man, having come up from the lumber woods of British Columbia to an important post on the University staff, Dr. Dhami understands the problems of youth, and especially of the necessity of initiative and the maintenance of personal morale.

These classes will be held on Monday afternoons at the Public Library with no charge for those who are out of work, and a fee of one dollar for those on part-time employment. More details of this project will be published later.

Professor Achilo Vogliano, back in Milan, Italy, from Egypt, reports that among the 12,000 papyri he discovered is one containing fragments of a poem by Sappho, most famous woman poet of ancient Greece.

CHAPTER 25

ROBERT TOWNE was a somewhat unhappy young man for two reasons. First, his rather juvenile rival, Worthington Gurley, had taken his girl to a dance. Second, his older and now equally (or more!) potent rival had walked into Sara Sue's cottage and taken her away, right under his nose. And to church, at that.

He didn't know what plans Sara Sue had for the afternoon. Normally a happy-go-lucky person, Bob was disposed to be gloomy when he left the Davis cottage at noon. But he was not licked. He planned to grab a bite of lunch, then go back to her cottage. He had entree always because he was a member of her social organization, for which he paid the regulation fee. But he also meant to until he got a date with her. Persistence was one of Bob Towne's assets.

He called at 1:20 and found her in. But she was also in bed.

"Take yo'self on away fum here, Mistuh Bob, suh," Cleopatra Jones ordered the young man. "You knows Miss Sara Sue got to have some sleep! I ain't gon' let no young man come courtin' her till she gits three hours sleep."

You couldn't budge black Cleo. Massive psysically, she could also be a mental blockade, which is one reason why Sara Sue kept her. Calculus, her long and lanky husband, chuckled at the conversation.

"Mistuh T. J. cuttin' in on you, Mistuh Bob," Calculus informed the caller.

"You're telling me!" Bob grinned. "Calculus, I'll break your neck if you let Sanders hang around here."

"Yassuh. I knows you can do it, too. I sees you ran yo'self right through three tacklers at once Sat'day unh UNH! I betcha you tears 'em up right on through the Mexico game, too, yas suh!"

Rice was to close her football season this year by playing the University of Mexico. Some authorities said Mexico was to be the biggest hurdle Rice faced. But Calculus had faith. He thought Bob Towne unconquerable; he secretly and openly admired him.

"Lemme tell you what—you come back here long about fo' p. m. and sweet-talk Miss Sara Sue. Betcha you gits a date, then."

"I'll do it, Calculus."

But he didn't quite connect at "fo' p. m." Sara Sue slept, shamefully, until almost 5. Calculus and Cleo had to side-track three telephone calls and one or two personal calls for her. But when she finally did come out of her bedroom, Bob was on deck, smiling, shining, whistling.

"For goodness sake, Bob Towne! Have you taken root here?"

"It's an idea," he assured her.

She yawned at him.

"How was church?"

"Fine. Excellent sermon. And music. You ought to go. Once. New experiences broaden young college men, I'm told."

"I have another rare experience in mind. Very rare, for me."

"What?"

"Taking you downtown for dinner. An honest date with you. See?"

He spread his long legs, planted himself firmly in front of her. It was as if he dared her to refuse. His big square jaw protruded. He wasn't going to hear "no".

He needn't have worried.

"All right, Bob!" She laughed gaily at him. "You're a dear! We'll go to dinner. I'm starved. Honest. We may have to bribe Cleo—she was baking chicken dumpling for me— Oh, say, would you like to eat here? With me? We could eat privately."

"Thanks, no. I want to get you away. I haven't held your hand even, in weeks. Woman, everybody on the campus knows you are my sweetheart but you! I've got to take you out and administer a little woo."

She laughed again. "Silly! But talk on. It's part of you, and I like it. What time did you want to start?"

"Instantly, if not sooner. Now."

"Okay, pal. But I'm getting to be a terrible gadabout. I'm supposed to be a working lady."

They drove north on Main boulevard, debating as to restaurants. They parked for a moment at Red Dog Johnson's "Gables". Red Dog —legal name, Gaylord Johnson, Ph. D—was a Rice grad and manager of athletics, as well as "Gables" owner. But—

"Nerts. There half a dozen mugs in there I know," Bob ruled. "I want you alone. Please, Honey. Sara Sue, I—I've just got to take you off alone somewhere and make love to you. I'm crazy for loving you. I mean it! Football and studies and money have got me down at the moment, but so help me, our time's coming! Sara Sue.

He had suddenly spoken his heart so earnestly, so sincerely, that the girl turned to him in some alarm. She saw the pleading in his eyes.

"Why, Bob!"

"I'm not joking, honey. I mean every word I say. I've never felt like this toward any other girl. I stole one kiss from you, on our first date. But I'll never steal another. I worship you too much. I want you to want me to kiss you!"

Sara Sue was almost frantic for a moment.

She had expected a somewhat pleasant evening of banter and play-fighting and general tom-foolery in conversation. For Bob had been like that. But now he was soft and terribly sincere. She inspected his face again, to be sure he wasn't acting. He wasn't, and that made her position harder. She bit her lip, trembling a little.

He would have taken her in his arms then, but for her quick response.

"Thank you, Bob. I think you are fine. Honestly I do. But—we must not talk now of such things! We mustn't! Simply must not. You have your—your schooling, your football and everything. I am smothered with business. And—and—well, Bob, I honestly don't feel in that mood right now. I think you are just impulsive. It takes a lot of time to fall in—to be deeply in love. Why, we hardly know each other! Come on, let's just go eat and be gay again, and not talk about us."

A man can do nothing to combat such a mood as that.

He drove on away with her, up the street, and forced himself back into the bantering tone. But each of them knew that a spiritual something hovered between them, or over them. One cannot bare his soul one moment, and close it the next. Sara Sue set out to be extra kind to him. She was thankful to have gotten out of a delicate spot as easily as she did. Never for anything in the world would she have wanted to hurt his feelings; certainly not the feelings of any man in love.

The meal they finally ate was good. There was music, too, and pleasant reminiscences about the dance and about football and such things. They lingered until 9:30 at their table, then walked out into Main street, there where the skyscrapers are.

At once the raucous voices of newsboys assailed them. Which phenomenon was common enough, but for the fact that they were calling extras. Casually, Bob bought a paper, and held it under a neon light for both of them to scan.

"BOB! Look! . . . Look!" Sara Sue grabbed his arm, leaning close the better to read, tense in every muscle now. And Bob himself was equally alarmed.

There were large photographs of Peaches Pomeroy, of Thornton Holgate, of a strange woman, a Mrs. Diehl, and her small daughter. Of two other Rice girls, and of some freshmen boys—and Galveston beach.

There were headlines—boxcar headlines—and sub-heads no less black. And two-column type away down the page. Bob and Sara Sue read every word.

"Bob," she suddenly spoke. Take me to Galveston at once!"

"Why, honey, what can you—?"

"Take me! Now! I'll pay the cost. Or I'll have to hire another car. This instant, I tell you! He's dying! It says so, there! His head struck the side of the rescue boat! Didn't you read it? Concussion! It says he's dying! A wave!"

"Yeah, but—do you know Holgate? I mean—"

"Yes! Come on!"

She grabbed his hand and raced him to the car, parked a block away. Obediently, without further question, Bob sped them away, heading for Galveston.

DOROTHY DIX

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a high school graduate and a registered nurse and am now assistant night superintendent in a big hospital. I am engaged to a young man of excellent character and splendid ability who has a fine job and is greatly respected by all who know him. But I cannot get over the fact that he stopped school just before he graduated and is not even a high school graduate. He also has a sister who is not a high school graduate. All of my family, three boys and four girls excepting myself, have college educations and I feel that he is in Class B, in so far as education is concerned, compared with me. When I am with this man I am very sure that I love him, but when I am away from him I begin doubting whether I love him enough to make up the difference in education between us. What would you advise me to do? LOIS.

ANSWER:

I would certainly advise you most earnestly not to marry him, for there can be no happiness in a marriage in which the wife considers herself her husband's superior and looks down upon him with contempt.

There is no difference between the sexes that is so marked as the way in which men and women look at this subject. Men do not seem to care whether their wives are their equals or not. In fact, sometimes it seems that they prefer their inferiors. All of us know brilliant cultured, witty men who are married to dull, stupid, uncultured women who murder the King's English; who never learn how to dress, or what to say, or even how to handle a fork; who never seem to notice their wives' tediousness, or lapses in grammar, or social blunders. Because these women are good, kind, tender, loyal and true, and have graces of soul instead of mind and body, their husbands love them and apparently are not ashamed of their defects.

But it burns a woman up with humiliation if her husband is uncouth and ignorant while she is educated and clever. She writhes with mortification if he is dumb in company, or else expresses opinions that are childish in their lack of knowledge and sophistication. She simply cannot stand it if he does not know his way among the silver at a dinner party, nor what is expected of him in polite society.

In a word, men like to look down on their wives, but women are miserable if they cannot look up to their husbands. And so a woman should never marry any man whom she does not regard as a little tin god. And this is for the man's good as well as the woman's, because a woman who considers herself above her husband invariably henpecks him to death and never, never leaves him a minute's peace. She is always nagging him, correcting him, rubbing in his inferiority on him and generally making his life a thing of torment.

Your young man seems to be too fine a chap to have such a fate thrust upon him, so I earnestly advise you to have mercy upon him and let him go. Hunt for yourself a college professor at whose feet you can worship.

You seem to make a fetish of a college education. Apparently your idea is that all knowledge comes put up in school books. That is your mistake. Some of the wisest people in the world, some of the most cultured, some who have made the greatest discoveries and done the finest work have had little formal education, but they knew life. They had the wisdom that the fields and brooks and toiling men had taught them, and perhaps your fiance is one of these.

Compare him with your college brother and see if he hasn't learned more in the school of hard knocks than your brother has at any university. Ask yourself if what you have seen in a hospital of the skill of doctors, of suffering, of courage and agony and despair, of birth and death, has not given you more real education than your sister has got in college.

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a young man 19 years old and a junior at college. I am very much in love with a girl of my own age, but we are both poor and cannot afford to marry. I am planning to enter a profession and will have five more years in school. It will take another year or two to get established so that I can afford a wife. Is it fair to ask her to wait for me that long? I love her dearly, but am very jealous. Because it is impossible for me to see her while I am away at school, we are puzzled as to what course to follow. What is your advice? JIM AND ANNA.

ANSWER:

I do not think under the circumstances that you should bind yourself with a definite engagement. You should just sort of take an option, so to speak, on each other, with the understanding that you will let the love fire smolder along on the hearth. If at the end of the six or seven years you still feel about each other as you do now, then you will get married.

I think that for a young man in your position to enter into a long engagement is about the most disastrous thing he can do, and for the girl it is virtually suicide. Consider the case from your point of view. You are just a boy, with a boy's taste in women as well as in everything else in life. In seven years you will be a man, with a man's taste in women, which may not be at all what your boy's tastes were. You are going away from the girl and that means an inevitable growing apart. You are going to be thrown with new people, see new girls, associate with scholarly and cultured people. You are going to study, learn, develop and when you come back home after seven years you will be a new man.

Consider the case from the girl's standpoint. If you definitely engage yourself to her, you are going to demand that she virtually make a hermit of herself for the next seven years. That she cut herself off from all the pleasures that belong to her time of life, from knowing other men and going with them. You are asking the sacrifice of her girlhood. You are keeping her from marrying any other man. And yet after seven years of waiting you may not want to marry her. She may not want to marry you.

So I urge you, for both of your sakes, not to enter into an engagement. If your love is really strong enough to endure the test of seven years of separation and change, you will wait for each other, with or without a definite bargain.

GOODNIGHT STORY

By MAX TRELL

"Let's go and look at the seals. They're swimming in their pool over there," Frank said to his sister, Dinah. The two children were walking in the park nea rthe zoo. And, of course, Knarf and Hanid, the children's shadows, were with them.

The children walked quickly toward the seals' pool and the two shadows followed right in their footsteps. Finally, they reached the pool, which was rather large and had an iron fence all around it. Lots of folks were leaning on the fence, watching the seals swim round and round. There wasn't a bit of room left for Knarf and Hanid to lean on, although there was just enough for the two children.

Hanid didn't mind very much. But Knarf was different. He was very dissatisfied. "When I come to see seals, I like to see them," he said in a loud voice.

Hears Seal Talking.

He waited for a minute or two to see if the children would answer him. Suddenly he was startled to hear a very gruff voice exclaiming:

He jumped on the seal's back.

"Humph! — just look at all these people standing around and looking at me! But none of them is brave enough to come in for a swim!"

"Oh!—it's a seal! Just look!" Hanid cried. Knarf peeked through the people's legs and there, on the other side of the railing he saw a large black seal, lying on the edge of the pool.

"Hello!" shouted Knarf. "I just heard what you said. I'm not afraid. I'll go in for a swim!"

The seal glanced around. He peered through the railing and saw Knarf.

"Well, why don't you come in? Crawl through this railing. Hurry! I'm going to jump in myself. I'll let you ride on my back."

When Knarf heard that he instantly pushed through the legs in front of him, squeezed through the space in the railing, and stood in front of the seal. "Here I am," he said gaily. "Now do as you promised. Let me ride on your back."

Knarf Goes In.

"All right. Get on my back, but hold on tightly. I'm going to swim awfully fast and awfully deep. And then I'm going to twist and turn and leap and splash."

Knarf didn't care. He jumped on the seal's back and threw his arms tightly around the seal's neck.

"Jump!" Knarf shouted to the seal.

And oh!—how that seal jumped! He splashed into the water and went down, down until the tip of his nose almost touched the bottom. Then he swept up again, leaped out of the water and splashed back again. And Knarf felt so proud of himself. For of all the people watching, he was the only one who was brave enough to go in for a swim on the seal's back!

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, December 15.

The planetary rulership on this day is doubtful and perplexing, with many problems and readjustments needed to promote well-being, prosperity and happy relations, particularly with elders and superiors or old established institutions. This situation calls for some compromises as many dangers lurk in open opposition and through subtle and probably sinister undercurrents.

Finances are in jeopardy, so shun ways of trickery and deceit, especially in investments and other important ventures that affect both the private and business lives.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of perplexity, limitation and setback, with a tendency to gloom and depression caused by frustration. There are signs of opposition from elders or superiors, and also of treacheries and sinister schemes from large organizations. All affect finances, investments and property, and may have gloomy reactions on the personal life. Be alert to fraudulent propositions and manipulations.

A child born on this day may have a difficult character to analyze or understand, as it may be rigid, hidebound, and tenacious, with tendencies to manage affairs by strategem or peculiar tactics. Its intentions may not be sinister, although they may be misjudged and excite bitter opposition.

Messrs. J. Aitchison, D. Airhart and T. Foley spent the weekend at their respective homes in Belleville.

Morrison; an item on Temperance by Isobel Skitch; an article on Christian Stewardship in keeping with the season was read by Mrs. George Taylor. Miss Ida Stanbury gave in an interesting manner the second chapter of the Study Book.

It was decided at the November meeting that each member would bring a toy to the December meeting which would be contributed to the Firemen's Christmas supply. This met with a generous response.

The Circle members were entertained at the close of the meeting with several guitar numbers by Miss Jean McIlwain, and refreshments were served by the two groups in charge.

We Noticed

...The Duchess of Kent is fashion news, and her costumes are eagerly copied by other English women. Adaptations of a black crinoline frock, which the Duchess wore recently to the Bath Assembly Rooms are already in demand in London as holiday party frocks. She wore black net gloves and a black lace fichu, fastened with an old-fashioned diamond bow-knot.

✧ ✧ ✧

...And now the Australian Country Women's Association is discussing a proposal urging the Duchess of Kent, the "best-dressed woman of British royalty," to set a new fashion by wearing woollen stockings when she comes to Australia. The Association pointed out Australia's most important industry, wool, would be greatly benefited if the Duchess, the former Princess Marina of Greece would set the style for wool stockings. One of them said it would be a "nice gesture" if the association presented her with a pair of wool stockings with the Royal Crest embroidered on them.

Board Pays Tribute To Miss Young

Appreciation of the fine work which Miss Rachel M. Young, Children's Aid Society Superintendent, has accomplished during the year was expressed at Tuesday's Board meeting by Alderman James Dutton, following Miss Young's report for the month of November.

"From month to month these reports reveal in a very striking way what is being accomplished by intelligent direction," Alderman Dutton said. In referring to a paragraph in the report which told of a young girl who had gone from the Shelter into a place where she was earning money, and who had come back to the office to ask for advice on how to handle it, Alderman Dutton remarked that this incident in itself was eloquent testimony of the splendid work that is being done.

A letter from T. J. Carley with regard to whether or not wards of the Children's Aid Society are indigents will be discussed at the January meeting after it has been taken up by the County Council.

The question of life membership was referred back to the committee who had prepared the original plan for life members, at the suggestion of Alderman Dutton, and it was unanimously agreed that Merrett's Hygienic Dairy be added to the list of dairies now supplying the Shelter, which at the present time includes Silverwood's, Sunshine, Campbell's, Ideal, and C. B. Young.

Mrs. J. S. Fanning was appointed convener of the Purchasing committee for the annual Christmas party which the Board of the Children's Aid Society is holding at the Shelter on Wednesday, December 21, and to which friends of the Society are invited. The Society greatly appreciates the financial assistance that is given them, and which makes Christmas possible for the children. At a bazaar held by Beverly and Barbara Hughes, Nancy Staunton, Jean Hills, Nancy Derry, Anne Boyle and Jane Gillespie the sum of $6.10 was raised to be used for Christmas cheer. Members were in accord with the motion made by Mr. H. L. Garner that this year skates be bought for all the inmates of the Society.

"With the coming of winter there has been a tremendous increase in the problems facing the Society, Miss Young stated. "One of these is overcrowding and other poor housing conditions. It is not now but in a few years that we shall have to face the results of such conditions. Something happens to a family who has to live under serious adverse housing conditions.

Clothing is another problem with children in their own homes. The winter so far has been comparative-mild but every now and again we have some cold days and it almost makes one shiver to see some of the children on the streets. Such situations produce a very great strain on a family—sometimes more than they can bear, with resultant discord. It is probably little wonder that some children find little to keep them in their own homes and wander the streets alone—too frequently getting into trouble."

Visits for November numbered 115, office interviews 97, telephone calls 171, letters sent out 113, court attendances 9, addresses 3. Donations for November were as follows: Giblets from Knox United church; potatoes, gravy, beans and bread from St. James' Fowl supper; bread from St. James Brotherhood; fruit (about 1 dozen quarts) from Nova Scotia Apartments; candy from Mrs. Clare Collins; used linen from Y.M.C.A.; seven boys' memberships from Y.M.C.A.; Jane Withers movie from Regent Theatre; African Missionary Pictures, St. James' Mission Circle; slab white cake from Quaker Oats dance; six bricks ice cream and 14 packages candy from Mrs. Louis Yeotes; sandwiches from Excel Mission Circle, St. James church.

DO NOT OPEN UNTIL CHRISTMAS

By PRUNELLA WOOD

When the lucky winner of one of these bags opens it, she'll be more than surprised. A light touch and—presto! it's contents are exposed. Touch again and the bag's closed air-tight.

The woman who carries practically all of her possessions with her will go crazy over the tremendous muff-bag, top right. It is of black mocha suede, its only decoration being an enamelled jewelled pin. The squarish draped bag, upper left, is in antelope suede with crushed ribbon handle.

A real, live clothespin fastens the calf bag, lower right, which comes in several luscious shades, with contrasting leather lining.

The large pouch bag, lower left, springs open to a wide, junctional oval. It is made of calfskin, and it has a double handle.

80 Percent. of Family Income Spent By Canadian Women

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MOUNT PLEASANT, Dec. 14—Members of the Mount Pleasant Women's Institute who gathered to hear the initial lecture of their local leader, Mrs. H. Gardiner on their new project, "Better Buymanship," were delighted with the information given and the demonstrations of material purchased in everyday life.

"The Canadian Woman is beneficiary to eighty per cent of all outstanding life insurance, which makes her an heiress to a five billion dollar estate, which does not depreciate in value and is paid in cash.

"The Canadian woman also controls 40 per cent of all real estate titles and this percentage is mounting and in ten years will be found to be much higher. She spends 80 per cent of the family income and regulates the expenditures of one billion domestic budgets. She controls the largest single industry, housekeeping. This is equivalent to five leading industries in point of investment, people employed and annual expenditures.

"She represents one in five, of all gainfully employed, and receives a five and one-half million dollar pay envelope every week," Mrs. Gardiner declared.

"A woman buys nine-tenths of the wearing apparel and exerts a powerful influence on merchandise and its quality, by her buying habits and services expected, and the old saying a woman if she gooes at it the right way can get most any thing she wishes, if done in a tactful way."

The object of this course is,

1. To realize that to spend money is a most vital part of our education.
2. To appreciate the value and power that knowledge of clothing has in helping to overcome some of the disadvantages of an inadequate income.
3. To acquire a knowledge of household fabrics and wearing apparel in everyday use.
4. To foster and develop an interest in names, terms and facts that an intelligent person should know.
5. To consider women's responsibility in the economic conditions which make it impossible for so many to be adequately clothed.

GIFTS FOR BABY

Interesting service may intrigue the small child into eating his meals without protest—perhaps his own silver and his very own special dish. An amusingly decorated plate with the flange widened on each side to accommodate a small-sized spoon and fork, in one gift package, would make fine Christmas or birthday presents for small members of the family.

Mrs. Wesley Rose Heads W.M.S.

St. James' Auxiliary of the W.M.S. held their Christmas meeting together with their annual business meeting on Monday afternoon in the Sunday School auditorium, when a splendid attendance responded to the roll call.

Mrs. E. L. Woodley, vice-president, presided over the meeting, which opened with a Christmas responsive service, and was followed by the business session, with the usual routine, including minutes and reports from department heads. Among these were, the treasurer's, always of special interest at the end of the year.

The Missionary Monthly, mite box and Associate Helpers, strangers' secretary, supply and literature departments were all called upon, while Mrs. Beavis reported for temperance in a fine reading as did the Christian stewardship secretary, Mrs. F. W. Craik.

The nominating committee for the 1939 executive presented its report through the convener, Mrs. G. H. Rowe, who thanked the auxiliary members for the gracious way in which they responded. Rev. Mr. Craik presided during the election which resulted in the following slate of officers for the new year:

Honorary presidents, Mesdames W. H. Buckler, W. Sollitt; president, Mrs. Wesley Rose; 1st vice-president, Mrs. E. L. Woodley; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. George H. Rowe; recording secretary, Mrs. A. Rosborough; corresponding secretary, Mrs. E. J. Wagar; treasurer, Mrs. R. B. English; secretary christian stewardship and finance, Mrs. F. W. Craik; strangers' secretary, Mrs. A. Davis; supply secretary, Mrs. A. Cripps; associate helpers' secretary, Mrs. B. Pitchford; temperance secretary, Mrs. E. Beavis; missionary monthly secretary, Mrs. W. K. Sloane; literature sec., Mrs. George H. Rowe; press secretary, Mrs. E. J. Wagar; Mission Band secretary, Miss Constance Wagar; Baby Band secretary, Mrs. L. Breadman; pianist, Mrs. H. F. Doig.

Taking charge of the Missionary part of the program, Mrs. Bert Pitchford, the group leader, took the chair, and led the beautiful Christmas worship service built up around "The Christmas Star," the appropriate theme of the service.

"The Black Madonna," a Christmas legend, read by Mrs. G. H. Rowe, was also in keeping. Mrs. E. Kitney sang the hymn, "We Would See Jesus," as a solo.

A delightful solo "The Gift," contributed by Mrs. J. M. Arnold, was accompanied by Mrs. H. F. Doig, who presided at the piano throughout the meeting.

The service was concluded with the declaration of the leader that:

"The Word of God must go
To waiting lands afar,
Till every distant land shall know
The beauty of the Star."

And the hymn "Silent Night" and the benediction in unison.

Both Mrs. Woodley, who retired from the chair as vice-president, and Mrs. Rose, the newly-elected president, spoke in thanks for the kindly co-operation of the members in the past and for their prayers and continued interest in the new year.

Jean Wagar Circle Elects Officers

"The Visit of the Wise Men" was the theme for worship at the Christmas meeting of the Jean Wagar Mission Circle, held at the home of the Advisory President Tuesday night.

The singing of familiar Christmas carols, with June Deyell at the piano, opened the meeting which was led by the president, Jessie Martin. Jean Hammond read the call to worship and led the responsive Scripture lesson. In response the members sang appropriate verses of a Christmas hymn and the service concluded with prayer offered by Marjorie Sedore, Mrs. Sedgwick and Mrs. Rose.

"Frankincense and Myrrh," a poem read by Gladys Langton, was also in keeping with the theme; as was the beautiful story of "The Other Wise Man," told by Connie Wagar.

"Christmas Giving" was a brief reading given by the president as an offertory sentence and the offering was dedicated with the singing of "We Give Thee But Thine Own."

A Christmas message, bringing good wishes for the success of the Circle was contributed by Mrs. Wagar, following which May Rosborough sang the lovely hymn "Silent Night."

The election of officers was conducted by Rev. Mr. Craik and the following executive resulted:

Advisory President, Mrs. E. J. Wagar; President, Effie Rowe; 1st Vice-president, Jessie Martin; 2nd Vice-president, Olive Searles; 3rd Vice-president, Marion Wagar; Recording Secretary, Marjorie Sedore; Corresponding Secretary, Connie Wagar; Assistant Secertary, Greta Van Nest; Treasurer, Jean Hammond; Assistant Treasurer, Jean Rose; Secretary of Christian Stewardship, Zetta Wood; Temperance Secretary, Gladys Langton; Mite Box Secretary, Gladys Rutherford; Community Friendship Secretary, Jennie Cuff; Missionary Monthly Secretary, Dorothy Drysdale; Supply Secretaries, 1. Mrs. Sedgwick; 2, Vera Leggitt; Literature Secretary, May Welch; Pianist, Anne Deyell.

A pleasing feature was the presentation of a life membership to Jean Rose in appreciation of faithful service to the Circle, both as an officer and member.

This part of the program closed with prayer by the pastor, after which all joined enthusiastically in a Christmas contest. Refreshments were served by the hostesses assisted by Jessie Martin and Jean Hammond, bringing to a close this inspiring Christmas meeting.

Strengthen Towels For Better Wear

Turkish towels of the best quality slightly damaged by flaws in the weaving may sometimes be bought as "seconds" at economical prices. The weak places are often hardly perceptible unless the towels are held up against the light, and if they are carefully strengthened before the towels are used they are not a serious drawback. It is a good plan to run threads of three-ply wool along the weak places to fill them in. The end of the wool must be left loose so that in shrinking it will not pucker. It felts with washing, making a neat repair that is both soft and durable.

For Quick Cough Relief, Try This Home Mixture

Splendid Results. Saves Money. Easily Mixed.

You'll never know how quickly and easily you can overcome a bad winter cough, until you try this well known recipe. It gives you four times as much cough medicine for your money and you'll find it very pleasant and dependable, for real relief.

Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. No cooking needed—it's no trouble at all. Then put 2½ ounces of Pinex (obtained from any druggist) into a 16 oz. bottle. Add your syrup and you have 16 ounces of medicine that will surprise you by its quick action. It never spoils, lasts a family a long time, and tastes fine—children love it.

This home mixture takes right hold of a severe cough. For real results, you'll say it's splendid. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and quickly eases soreness and difficult breathing.

Pinex is a compound containing Norway Pine, in concentrated form, well known for its soothing effect on throat membranes. Money refunded if it doesn't please you perfectly.

Bennett and State Secretary Fernand Rinfret will be present Saturday at the annual dinner here of the Dominion Commercial Travellers' Association, also to be attended by Dr. R. J. Daladier Budget Wins Approval

PARIS, Dec. 14 (AP)—The chamber of deputies today approved Premier Daladier's request for emergency measures to speed passage of the ordinary and extraordinary budgets for 1939.

The measures, providing that the appropriation bills be debated by ministries instead of by more detailed chapter divisions, were approved by a show of hands.

Even the socialists backed the government on the vote, which was purely technical and carried no indication of possible future support or opposition to the 1939 allocations.

The premier rode his small chamber of deputies majority of 74 votes with a close rein in an effort to get approval of the budget and of financial decree laws he already had issued.

Throughout the night and into the early morning, Finance Minister Paul Reynaud wrestled with the chamber finance committee, finally emerging with a 25 to 17 vote of tentative approval for the ordinary budget of 66,345,000,000 francs about $1,724,970,000, to meet normal expenses, including a normal program of armament.

All Outlays Increased

This represents a sharp increase over the 1938 ordinary budget of 54,739,000,000 francs (about $1,423,214,000), while the extraordinary budget for 1939 is estimated at 28,286,000,000 francs (about $735,436,000) compared with 14,231,000,000 francs (about $370,006,000) for this year. The extraordinary budget is largely for armament under Daladier's special, national defence program.

Daladier's position has not been helped by the growing feeling among chamber circles that Chancellor Hitler was planning further moves toward the east in the near future.

Many deputies who supported Daladier on his strong policy of using troops to crush the recent general strike and restore internal order were unable to go along with him on foreign affairs.

The increasing acuteness of the internal situation caused by reported Nazi moves in the Polish Ukraine and Memel called these nationalist deputies back to their previous opposition which was based upon the belief that Daladier's concessions at Munich had reduced France to the position of at least a second-rate European power.

Press Hail Chamberlain's Boast 'Arms Enough To Defend Empire'

LONDON, Dec. 14 — (CP-Havas). —Prime Minister Chamberlain's assertion in his speech before the Foreign Press Association that British armaments are strong enough to defend the Empire's interests was hailed with gratification in this morning's newspapers.

"The greatest enemies to freedom are objective rather than subjective," The Daily Telegraph (Conservative) said, "and they are not to be converted by surrender.

"On that account the Prime Minister's assurance that already we are strong enough to fulfill our obligation to the Empire and to our Allies is heartily welcome. That is the paramount need of the hour—not only to be strong, but for the world to know that we are strong.

"It is also especially satisfying to note the Premier's pointed allusion to France and his statement, 'Our relations with France are so close as to pass beyond mere legal obligations.' It is an assurance that will be specially welcome at the present moment, on the other side of the Channel as well as on this."

The Daily Express (Independent) said:

"Quite beyond appeasement lies a greater policy—isolation. One passage in Mr. Chamberlain's speech should be seized upon with joy. He says our preparations for defence have reached a point where we can carry out our obligations to defend our Empire.

"So let there be satisfaction. Britain and the Empire are safe. The arms are there. The policy, be sure, will follow—isolation."

Deeds Belie Words?

The Daily Herald (Labor) charged that while many of Mr. Chamberlain's sentiments were acceptable, his deeds belied his words.

"The difficulties of any who would seek agreement with Herr Hitler's government are illustrated by the refusal of all Germans to attend last night's dinner of the foreign press association," the editorial said.

"In general Mr. Chamberlain's sentiments will not be rejected. But Mr. Chamberlain's deeds do not merely belie his words. They made nonsense of them.

"He praises democracy. But when the Spanish people offer their lives for it, he connives at a policy designed to starve them into submission to tyranny. By 12 months of policy rather than by 40 minutes of speech Mr. Chamberlain must be judged."

Threatened Wife

WINDSOR, Ont., Dec. 14—(CP). —Raymond Newton, 47, was arrested to-day and charged with having an unlicensed revolver after his wife complained to police he threatened to shoot her. Police went to their hotel room, they said, but were driven away by Newton, who pointed the gun at them.

Police waited outside and when Newton arrived, he threatened them again ,then drove away. The police forced his car to the curb a few blocks away and Newton surrendered his gun. He will appear in court to-morrow.

No Conspiracies Says Lapointe

QUEBEC, Dec. 14—(CP). — Opponents of Prime Minister Mackenzie King who "speak against" and "insult" him were described last night by Justice Minister Lapointe as "not worthy of tying his boot strings."

"Prime Minister King will defeat opposition out in the open or from dark corners," the minister said in a speech to his Quebec East constituents. "No conspiring will conquer him. In five general election battles, the Prime Minister was victorious four times. And he will win the next time."

Mr. Lapointe did not specify any persons or circumstances in his reference to the Prime Minister.

In a brief discussion of Canada's railway problem, he declared the Canadian National Railways will "keep its identity."

"The men seeking unification of Canada's railways will find the Liberals standing in their path," he said.

Asserting the Federal Government was "determined" to establish a plan of unemployment insurance but "cannot because of the action of certain Provincial Governments." Mr. Lapointe said: "If there is failure in this, the people will remember and the workers will remember what caused failure."

He asked why there was "conflict between one province and another or a province and the Dominion. Some quarters hold up the constitution seeking to destroy the unity the constitution was made for."

Too Much Confusion

SARNIA, Ont., Dec. 14—(CP).—A resolution from Kitchener council urging a province wide plan of health insurance has been referred to the finance committee for consideration and a report by the Sarnia city council.

Finance committee will also discuss a St. Thomas council resolution calling for "proper observance" of Remembrance Day on Nov. 11. The resolution suggested elimination of some of the "confusion" regarding observance which now exists.

"The Authority on Authorities"

THE SMOTHER PLAY

ONE OF THE prettiest, yet least understood, maneuvers in the game is that which has become known as the "smother play." It is a device to prevent a trump trick by an opponent who seems offhand to have a secondary honor so thoroughly guarded that he is sure of a trick. Opportunities for the play are rare, but its execution brings enough satisfaction to the real bridge artist to inst him for a good wh

North and South reached a contract of 5-Diamonds on this deal, South having started with a bid of 1-Diamond, after a pass by East, and North having jumped to 2-No Trump. South went to 3-Diamonds, North 4-Diamonds and South 5-Diamonds.

The heart K was cashed by West, who followed with the Heart A. South ruffed with the diamond 2 and played the diamond Q, which held. Next came a diamond to the 9 and when it seemed certain that West was bound to win the diamond K, South discontinued that suit. He next played three rounds of clubs and two of spades, and ruffed a heart. Then a losing spade was offered with the hope that East would have to take it. When he did, he was in the position where he could return only a heart or a club.

His selection was a heart, on which South played the diamond 10. West was in the position where he had to under-ruff or put on his King. In either event, declarer makes game.

Ennismore Club Discusses Co-operation

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ENNISMORE, Dec. 14. — The monthly open meeting of the Young People's Club was held on Tuesday evening in the parish hall, with the president, Leo Scollard, presiding. Parents and friends of the members are invited to be present at these special meetings so as to get an insight into the activities of the club. A most enjoyable programme was arranged and the evening proved most entertaining.

Miss Helen Maloney read a paper on "The Spirit of Advent," which was followed by discussion of the topic. A very interesting paper in which the essentials of co-operation was outlined, was given by Kenneth Kyle, vice-president of the club. "Money," said the speaker, "does not make co-operation; it requires men and loyalty."

In the discussion which followed, Reeve Jas. A. Gifford drew the attention of the audience to several instances where very recently he had the opportunity of viewing the results of co-operation.

Reverend Father Gillogly screened a very educational film, "Seed Germination," which was followed by a humorous novelty film. The attention of the club at present centres on the skating rink which is now under construction. The president and his executive are sparing no efforts to make a success of the undertaking. Many volunteers lent assistance during the week and much was accomplished. The boys feel sure that old Jack Frost will eventually call on them and complete their work.

A very beautiful ceremony took place in St. Martin's church on Thursday evening when twenty-two candidates were received into the Society of the Sodality of the Blessed Virgin Mary. The young ladies who consecrated themselves to the Mother of God were addressed in very impressive words by Reverend Father Gillogly, urging them to take her as their model during their lives. By so doing they would insure themselves against the vices and temptations of the world.

A Help To Those Past Middle Age

When men and women get past middle age their energy and activity, in many instances, begin to decline, and their general vitality is on the wane.

Little sicknesses and ailments seem harder to shake off than formerly, and, here and there, evidences of a breakdown begin to appear.

Now is the time when those who wish to maintain their health and vigor, and retain their energy unimpaired should take a course of Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills.

They brace up and invigorate the system, and help stall off the decrepitude of advancing years.

Christmas Relief Increase Municipal Affair

Toronto, Dec. 13 (CP)

CHRISTMAS GIFTS to relief recipients in increased allowances are entirely a municipal responsibility, in which the Ontario government will not share, Hon. Eric Cross, Minister of Municipal Affairs and Public Welfare, ruled today.

Mr. Cross was replying to a request from the city of Toronto that the government and municipalities should share the cost of a 30 per cent increase in Christmas allowances.

The minister said this departmental policy had been established in previous years. Such increased allowances, he said, were generally provided through service clubs and charitable organizations. He emphasized the government does not wish to discourage voluntary charities.

The council adjourned to meet in final session on December 15.

As Anthony Eden Addressed New York Audience

This series of intimate closeups of Anthony Eden was made during the annual dinner of the National Association of Manufacturers in New York, when the former British Foreign Minister told the assembled 4,000 American businessmen—and the rest of the United States via a national radio hookup—that England, despite its apparent peace-at-any-price policy, was preparing to fight the threat of dictatorships against democracies.

Commencement Exercises Held By Millbrook High School

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Dec. 14—A capacity audience, that left many standing throughout the entire two-hour program, assembled in the town hall on Friday evening for the annual Continuation School commencement.

Dr. J. W. Wright, chairman of the school board, welcomed the audience and invited the graduates and successful pupils to the platform. The diplomas were given out by Nan Fallis, and each pupil was given a lovely red rose by Elsie Theobald. Both girls were dressed as pages, with black silk coats, gold-trimmed, jabot of cream lace, white satin breeches, long white stockings and black buckled shoes, white wigs tied at the back with black silk ribbon completing the costume.

Receive Certificates

Pupils who received certificates for having passed in five or more subjects at the June examinations, all of whom were in the honor class with Tom Belch and Melville Wood oustanding, included: Barbara Argue, Eleanor Bigelow, Tom Belch, Rex Carr, Beatrice Fallis, Jacqueline Fallis, Leatha Rowland, D. Sutton, Joyce Trumpour, Melville Wood.

Receiving diplomas for graduation from Upper school, with Harry McLeod taking complete honor standing, and Marian Belch, who won a Queen's University scholarship, coming second, were: Jean Belch, Marian Belch, Marie Douglas, Harry McLeod, Lloyd McMahon, Kathleen Smith, Gwen Staples and Jack Whittington.

Miss Flora E. Morgan, B.A., principal of the Continuation school, received from W. R. Howard, M.A., secretary-treasurer of the school board, the two shields which are annually competed for, one having been donated by himself, and the other by Barringer Bros. Miss Morgan explained that the shields remain in the school, the winning pupil's name being engraved on a small shield and fastened to the large oak one which forms the background. "We hope eventually to have both sides of this shield filled with the smaller ones. We lack similar shields for competition in both second and third forms, and would be glad if some public-minded citizen would donate these for this helpful purpose."

Won Barringer Shield

Henrietta Wood, the pupil obtaining highest standing in First Form, was the winner of the Barringer Shield, Walter Zeigler, B.A., a new teacher on the staff this year, made the presentation. The Howard shield goes to the pupil having the highest standing in Fifth Form, Harry McLeod having this honor. Miss Shirley Buckingham, B.A., the other new teacher on the staff, was introduced by Miss Morgan, and presented the medal donated by the principal, to Robina Tate, the pupil taking highest standing in second form.

Pupils receiving diplomas for completing subjects in Middle School, included Dorothy Anderson, who took all her subjects with honors, later gave the valedictory address; Dorothy Armstrong, Jack Arundel, who was afterward presented with the Dr. Norman Allen Scholarship (a cheque for fifty dollars), for the boy graduating with highest standing from Middle School; Betty Carveth, Marjorie McDowell, Esther Might, Dorothy Smith, Robert Theobald, Jean Trumpour and Howard Sutton.

Presentation Made.

A pleasant surprise was prepared for the members of the Continuation School staff, and Leslie Unitt, musical instructor, when they were called to the stage and presented with daintily-tied packages containing tangible evidence of the pupils' appreciation of their services. Jean Trumpour reading the address, and the gifts being offered by George Sisco, Mary Handley, Leitha Edworthy and Tom Allen. Mr. Zeigler acknowledged the gifts on behalf of the teaching staff, and the program continued with an English Folk Dance, "The Keys of Heaven," a very attractive number, the four taking part, Gladys Coulter, Maretta Graham, Nan Fallis and Elsie Theobald, being attractively costumed, and interpreting the dance with precision, and correct rhythm.

A highlight in the entertainment was the one-act play, "Brothers-in-Arms," by Merill Denison, the scene being laid in the hunting shack of Sid Whyte (Grenfell Trumpour), who was quite unmoved by the impatience of Major J. Altruss Brown (Earl Sutton), as he thumped angrily up and down the uneven floor, waiting for the arrival of his taxi driver, Charlie Henderson (William Kerr). The Major's wife, Dorothea Brown, (Bea Fallis), who was continually voicing her love for the 'great open spaces and the simple life', tried in vain to pacify her impetuous husband, the latter declaring that he stood to lose $25,000 unless he caught the next train to Toronto, the station being twenty miles away. After the arrival of Henderson, who 'wouldn't take that drive for a thousand dollars,' it turned out that Sid owed a half interest in the Ford, and could have driven the irate Major a full hour earlier, his only excuse for not mentioning this fact being: "He seemed sorter set on having you, and he never asked me."

The "Kerry Dance" was one of the prettiest numbers of the evening, those taking part, in attractive Irish costumes, being: Betty Moncrief, Elaine Argue, Mary Armstrong, Ruth Richards, Dorothy Sisco and Jean Gillis, the air being sung off stage by Marjorie McDowell, Robina Tate presiding at the piano, and violin obligato being supplied by Elwood Fallis and Earl Sutton. Mr. L. Unitt was the other accompanist of the evening.

Winning frequent applause from the audience, a well-chosen caste presented the operetta, "The Tea House of Sing-Lo," the acting, the catchy air of the various choruses, the solos all of which were given with excellent voice and expression, the rich and suitable costumes, and the stage setting, which was in the garden of the tea house at Shanghai, China, and was lovely with rose-twined trellis beneath which a tea table was daintily laid, lighted Chinese lanterns swaying gently with the soft air currents, and painted background showing blue waters with sampans sailing thereon, birds in flight, Mt. Omei, and other appropriate details, all making a strong appeal.

The cast included; Sing-Lo, proprietor of the tea house, Ken Kidd, who was losing trade because he would not adopt any method of modern advertising; his two daughters, Ah-Me, and So-Hi, Dorothy Anderson and Beatrice McDowell; his Chinese men-of-all-work, William Ridge, whose instructions were to forcibly eject any foreign salesman, who came with the idea of selling Sing-Lo advertising signs; instructions which he carried out to the letter, to the great amusement of the audience, especially when, through mistaken identity, he twice threw out the distinguished Canadian Consul, the Honorable Alexander Appletree (William Kerr). Bert McKee, a smart young Canadian salesman, (Orval Wainman), was mistaken for the Consul, and carried off the part so well before the discovery that he actually had Sing-Lo on the dotted line of a contract for a huge electric sign on the front of the tea-house, to the great delight of his 'boss,' J. Mortimer Maxwell (Earl Edworthy), a Canadian business man, whose daughter, June (Eleanor Bigelow), was in love with McKee, and whose hand he had promised to his enterprising salesman if he succeeded in putting the deal over; Mrs. Maxwell (Marjorie McDowell), was an able second to her husband in his business aspirations. Lighting effects throughout the two-act operetta were effective and added much to its attractiveness.

The ladies of the chorus included: Laureen Handley, Esther Might, B. McDowell, D. Anderson, Jean Trumpour, M. Smith, Bernice Richards, Barbara Argue, Mary Eakins, Edna McKnight, R. Tate and Dorothy Smith.

The concert was repeated on Saturday evening before a large audience, ex-Warden Percy Stinson acting as chairman, and presenting the medals, and shield, won at the inter-collegiate field day, with Orono and Millbrook competing last fall. Medals in the junior class were of bronze, and in the other classes of silver. The winners included:

Junior Girls—Mary Whittington and Marjorie Sutton (tied).

Junior Boys—Ross Lunn.

Intermediate Girls —Ruth Richards.

Intermediate Boys—William Kerr.

Senior Girls—Beatrice McDowell.

Senior Boys—Elwood Fallis.

The handsome oak shield, which was competed for the second consecutive year, and was won by Orono in 1937, came back to Millbrook in October, and was received, on behalf of the school, by Bea McDowell.

After the entertainment on Saturday night, Mr. and Mrs. Unitt were host and hostess to the staff, and the main characters in the play and operetta at their home, when an enjoyable social time was spent, and a dainty lunch served.

The part of Mrs. Rebecca Rhubarb, mother of the family was taken by Mrs. Rod MacLean, while Miss Marjorie McCulolch acted the part of her daughter Araminta. Miss Gladys Thorld took the part of Ketura Melon, a maiden aunt. Parsley Endive, a mistaken suitor, was taken by Robert Bell and Joshia Buckley, a one-time lover of Ketura, was taken by Cecil Lean.

As the stage was being re-arranged Mr. Joe Walker pleased the audience with his songs, "Alexander's Ragtime Band" and "I've Got a Pocketful of Dreams."

Miss Dorothy McCulloch introduced the second play. The parts of the bachelor brothers of the Goslin family were taken by Mr. Glenn Hogg and Mr. Harry Hutchinson, while Miss Dora O'Connell took the part of their lovable young housekeeper, Betty Winters. Phillys Goslin, nephew of the Goslin brothers, and lover of Miss Betty, was taken by John Lean.

These plays were both well presented and were directed by Mrs. Wallace Bell and Miss Dorothy McCulloch.

No Refugees For Canada Says Manion

Too Many Canadians Out Of Jobs And On Relief

By Frank Flaherty
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

QUEBEC, Dec. 15—(CP).—While unemployment continues Canada should admit no immigrants from Europe in the opinion of Conservative leader R. J. Manion who is on his way to Toronto today after delivering two speeches here.

They constituted his first public appearance in the province of Quebec since his election as leader of his party and his first appearance anywhere since his election to the House of Commons as member for London.

In 1934 as head of the Canadian delegation to the League of Nations assembly, Dr. Manion said, he had opposed the admission to Canada of refugees from Germany and he took the same stand now. So long as hundreds of thousands of Canadians were unable to obtain work and were forced to accept relief, people from other countries should not be admitted to Canada.

The Conservative leader made his statement as the Canadian government with the governments of other countries, was considering the problem of Jewish refugees from Germany.

Predicting the success of his party at the next general election, Dr. Manion said it was a progressive party, eager to bring justice and fair dealing to all the people of Canada, to all classes and to all districts.

In contrast the Mackenzie King government was a "laissez-faire government, a do-nothing government." It refused to face the problems of unemployment and lack of opportunity for youth. The first act of a Conservative government would be to appoint a minister of youth welfare.

Skips Quarrel

The Conservative leader made no reference to the quarrel between Prime Minister Mackenzie King and Premier Hepburn except indirectly when he advised his hearers to look at the daily papers for proof of his statement more disharmony existed in Canada now than at any time in the past. And this was only three years after Mr. King promised the election of a Liberal government would bring about harmony.

In a brief reference to the recently signed trade treaty between Canada and the United States he predicted loss of the British preference on wheat would injure Quebec and other Canadian ports. So long as that preference remained it caused Canadian wheat shipped to the United Kingdom to move through Canadian ports. Now there was nothing to prevent it going through American ports.

In asking the loyal support of Quebec Conservatives Dr. Manion predicted he would make some mistakes. No leader could always be right but occasional differences of opinion need not conflict with party loyalty.

"Remember that while you may differ from your leader, your leader may be right and you may be wrong," he advised. "And remember also that while you have to think for the city of Quebec your leader has to think for the nine provinces of Canada."

80 Pupils Escape Blaze At School

TORONTO, Dec. 15—(CP).—Fire which started in the junior hall of the De La Salle Oaklands school today caused heavy damage, but all of the 80-odd pupils whose classrooms were in the building, marched out quietly. There was no confusion, no panic and no one was hurt. Seventeen pupils from other classrooms also were forced to leave.

Some of the boys even went back into the burning edifice and rescued some of their school books, while another band smashed a door into one of the senior fourth classrooms and shoved a piano outside far from the creeping flames.

Over the classrooms was the apartment of John Dinner, an assistant teacher. He was not there at the time and firemen managed to salvage most of his personal belongings, including a trunk which they dropped out of a window.

Father Decides Death Better For Daughter 8, Than Gamble On Being Cripple For Life

NEW YORK, Dec. 15 (AP)—A decision that death was better than the life of a cripple was reached today by William Lewis in determining the fate of his cancer-stricken daughter, Dorothy, eight.

Inundated by letters from all over the country, citing pro and con arguments by those who had read of the little Brooklyn cripple's plight, the distraught father made his choice—

"She will live or die on both legs."

Surgeons have told him the daughter, afflicted with sarcoma, or cancer of the thigh bone, must die within eight or 10 months unless her leg is amputated.

On the other hand, an operation would give her one chance in 10 of living—healthy, but a cripple.

"I have made up my mind," Lewis said. "I have gone through torture, but in the end I knew I could not consign the child to a cripple's life."

"My reasons are not emotional or sentimental. They are based on the medical profession's own word that an amputation could not be proved successful until five years have passed."

Pinochle Gang Pot Silences Kicks From Peeved Wives

Scranton, Pa., Dec. 15 (AP)

FIVE pinochle players found a neat solution to that old problem of how to spend the night out and still keep peace in the family.

They formed a "corporation" and put their playing on a business basis. They kept records of each game's "pot" and declared semi-annual dividends — payable to their wives. The wives shared a Christmas payment of $45.

Mounties Nab 8 In N.S. Drive On Rum Runners

HALIFAX, Dec. 15—(CP).—Royal Canadian Mounted Police swung into action to stamp out rum-running in Nova Scotia today with the arrest of eight Halifax city and county men on charges of conspiring to defraud the federal government by illegal importation and transportation of liquor.

Fifteen others, the majority from Cape Breton Island, were named in the informations read to the first man to be arraigned before Magistrate B. W. Russell.

The eight arrested were: Lloyd Walker, John Tanner, Colin Chisholm, James Bateman, Sydney J. Regan and William Morash, Halifax city, Joshua Young, West Dover, and Benjamin O. Johnson, Beechville.

Walker, Johnson, Tanner and Young were arraigned immediately before Magistrate Russell. At request of R.C.M.P. officials, they were fingerprinted by city police. Bail of $1,000 each with two securities of $1,000 was granted.

Officers Desert?

HENDAYE, France, Dec. 15 (AP)—Reports General Franco's offensive had been held up because insurgent officers had crossed to government lines with complete plans of the drive caused excitement in the border region today.

Insurgent sources denied the reports, declaring the drive would be launched "on schedule." Government spokesmen said only that the central Spanish army and Catalonian forces were "well advised on insurgent plans."

British Finances Curb On Nazi Dreams Of War

LONDON, Dec. 15 — (A.P.). — Prime Minister Chamberlain, in an outspoken reference to Germany, told a luncheon audience to-day that Great Britain's financial power was a curb on German statesmen when they thought of war.

The Prime Minister said:

"We may take it that when German statesmen—I will not say the German people—reflect on the possible consequences of a conflict, if ever a conflict should arise between our two countries, they think not only of our armaments, but of our great financial resources, which in a war of long duration might well prove to be a deciding factor.

"It is this sense which is always with us and which I am sure is in itself a very great influence in preserving the peace of the world."

Mr. Chamberlain's brief reference to Germany seemed to indicate a somewhat stronger line toward the Nazi leadership since the German Ambassador and other Nazi representatives boycotted his Tuesday night speech in which he rebuked the German press for its attack on Earl Baldwin.

Observers were quick to notice that to-day Mr. Chamberlain differentiated between German statesmen and people. In his Tuesday speech he reiterated his belief that the German and British people never wished to go to war again—the main point of the joint declaration he and Chancellor Hitler signed at Munich on September 30.

Schacht Absent.

Mr. Chamberlain spoke to-day at a luncheon at the House of Commons to celebrate the elevation to the Peerage of Lord Bicester, formerly Vivian Smith, partner in Morgan, Grenfell and Company.

The German statesman probably most aware of Britain's financial power, Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank, was not among the guests, although he is a visitor in London. The German financier spent considerable time to-day at the Bank of England, with the governor of which, Montagu Norman, he came to London to confer.

25 Boer Couples Try Mass Marriage

PRETORIA, South Africa, Dec. 15—(CP-Reuters).—A mass marriage of 25 couples dressed in Voortrekker costume was a highlight of today's celebration of the centenary of the great trek of the Boers to the north to escape British rule at the cape.

The women were without cosmetics and wore long hair and sunbonnets. The men were dressed in corduroys, wide Boer hats and untanned leather shoes.

After the ceremony a military display was held at which 3,000 Burgher Commandos, armed and bearded, and dressed in the costume of Boer war days, participated. Boer war veterans were adddressed by their former commanders, General Chris Muller and Commandant J. Lombard.

New Hatchery

Rapidly becoming a point of interest to visitors is the fish hatchery which the Ontario government is constructing at Deer Lake in Belmont Township at an estimated cost of about $60,000. Aided greatly by ideal weather, the hatchery is beginning to assume a definite outline now. At UPPER LEFT is the large hatchery building itself, now under construction. UPPER RIGHT shows the old dam at Deer Lake, once used by the Cordova Mining Company, now re-faced with concrete and the opening reduced from its original six feet to fit the 18-inch diameter of the new flume. At LOWER LEFT is the pipe line which conducts the water supply to the rearing pond some 1,500 feet away. The pipes are of British Columbia fir especially reinforced and treated. The sections are jointed together and supported on concrete trusses along the trench, dug from rock. LOWER RIGHT shows the upper pond. It is about 36,000 square feet in area, and is being faced with clay to prevent leakage.

King Challenges Labor Congress To Say Calling Parliament Wise, In Last European Crisis

OTTAWA, Dec. 15 — (C.P.). — Prime Minister Mackenzie King today challenged a large delegation of workers to say he would have "acted wisely," if he had summoned the Dominion Parliament during the European crisis last September. In company with 10 of his Cabinet ministers the Prime Minister received the annual legislative recommendations of three labor organizations—The Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, the Railway Transportation Brotherhoods, and the Federation of Catholic Workers.

Reference was made in the Congress brief to a resolution adopted at the annual convention last summer, urging the Prime Minister to call Parliament to deal with the European crisis.

Replying briefly to the submissions the Prime Minister referred particularly to that recommendation. He said:

"I would like most of all to impress upon you that the Government in all its decisions must take into consideration every aspect of every problem.

"The Government is responsible not only for what it does but for what it does not do. The Government has a knowledge of these matters which its critics cannot possibly have. You must realize that failure of the Government to act, even when under great pressure, is because of what seems to be good reasons.

"Is there one of you who is now prepared to say the Government

Toronto, Dec. 15 (CP)

TODAY started off prosaically enough for Mrs. George Chapman, even though it was her 100th birthday anniversary.

She was making toast for breakfast when a cable of "hearty congratulations and good wishes" was received from King George and Queen Elizabeth.

Then the neighbors came in with more greetings and 100 roses which were placed in a vase brought by a niece.

Tonight Mrs. Chapman will be given a birthday party, complete with cake, candles n'everything.

Lost Nine Hours Lad 7, Dies Of Exposure

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Dec. 15 (CP)—Found by a search party nine hours after he disappeared from his home, Lorne Servos, seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Servos, Niagara Gardens, died from exposure early today.

The boy, in poor health, left his home late yesterday afternoon. When he failed to return his parents notified friends and police and a search party was organized.

The Servos home is just outside the city and is in an area where there are several ravines and thick bush. At one o'clock this morning two of the searchers, Darcy Smith and Dan Weir, found the boy at the bottom of one of the ravines. He was unconscious and was soaking wet from his waist down. Efforts to revive him in hospital were unsuccessful.

Deny Grand Duke In Ukraine Plot

LONDON, Dec. 15—(AP).—Grand Duke Vladimir, 21-year-old pretender to the Russian throne, today left for Paris on his way to Berlin, where he plans to spend Christmas with his sister, Grand Duchess Kira, and possibly see Chancellor Hitler.

The Grand Duke's London friends declined to take seriously published reports he might have a place in Hitler's Ukrainian ambitions. A spokesman for him said he "might or might not make a courtesy call on Hitler during the four days he expects to stay in the home of Prince Louis Ferdinand, husband of the Grand Duchess.

He stressed, however, the visit had no political flavor. He said: "This young man does not know anything about political intrigue."

Commenting on the Ukrainian reports, one of the Grand Duke's friends said: "That is all very well, but what would Mr. Stalin say? I can tell you that Ukraine is not going to be as easy as Austria or Czecho-slovakia."

These friends said Grand Duke Vladimir expects to return to London to live and resume his studies. Plans are under consideration for him to enter Oxford or Cambridge.

Woman Town Treasurer

BROCKVILLE, Ont, Dec. 15—(CP)—For the first time since incorporation more than a century ago, the municipal corporation of Brockville today has a woman treasurer as a result of action by the council last night. Miss Hazel Doyle, employed in the town offices for 17 years, was promoted to treasurer at an annual salary of $1,200 Fully 17 applications from men were considered before the appointment was made.

The council also adopted a resolution rescinding the by-law passed in 1936 under which the police department is directed by a commission consisting of the mayor, county judge and police magistrate.

Dash Back For Valuables Costs Woman Life In Blaze At Tottenham

Husband And School Teacher Boarder Escape Along With 3 In Adjoining Rooms As They Leap From Second Story Windows

TOTTENHAM, Ont., Dec. 15 (CP).—Trapped in a quick-spreading, two-house blaze at Tottenham, one woman was burned to death today. Tottenham is 35 miles northwest of Toronto.

Three men and two women jumped to safety from second story windows. They landed on frozen ground, barely covered by a light scattering of snow, but were not injured. The cause of the fire was unknown.

Mrs. Garnett Bredin, about 40, was on her way to safety when, it is believed, she returned to her room to save some valuables. In the smoke and confusion and the roar of the fast-mounting flames her absence was not noticed. Her charred body was recovered later.

Her husband escaped. So did W. Fry, principal of the Tottenham Public School, and a boarder at the Bredin home.

In the adjoining section of the double house, occupied by the Hammond family, W. Hammond was already at work when the fire broke out. His wife and daughter, Evelyn, 22, however, jumped from a window along with a cousin, Gilbert.

The Tottenham fire brigade saw there was no hope of saving the building and concentrated on keeping the flames from spreading.

Oakville Church Tax Scrap Goes To Mat

OAKVILLE, Ont., Dec. 15 — (C. P.). — Oakville's Town Council meet to-night to settle, once and for all, a church tax assessment dispute that has been hanging fire since 1935 and has resulted in the discovery that for 10 years three churches have paid thousands of dollars in illegally assessed taxes.

An error by someone who misinterpreted the provisions of the Local Improvement Act which exempts churches from local improvement taxation caused the trouble. Mayor George Jacobs to-day deplored the mistake, but figuratively washed his hands of it. "It started before my time," he said. "Or before the present Town Clerk's, or even before Mr. Gallagher's time here."

Mr. Gallagher is the Rev. D. H. Gallagher, minister of St. John's United Church, which has refused to pay taxes for three years in protest against what is claimed to be illegal assessment. The amount owing is $75. The church was gazetted for sale for unpaid taxes, but peace conferences resulted in it being removed from the tax-sale list.

St. John's Church officials discovered the error in assessment in 1935 and refused to pay further tayes. It subsequently was discovered that for 10 years prior to 1935 churches in Oakville had paid local improvement taxes. The total amount paid was said to be thousands of dollars.

Town officials said the money was not recoverable in law as the tax bills were paid by the churches without protest. Meanwhile, Council to-night confers with St. John's Church officials to settle the long-standing dispute.

Seas Foil Rescue Of Lightkeeper

PLYMOUTH, England, Dec. 15 — (C.P. Cable). — The turbulent sea was still master off England's southwest coast to-day as a rescue party continued its efforts to reach William Jordan, principal keeper of the Eddystone Lighthouse outside Plymouth Sound. Jordan has been suffering from a severe hernia since December 8.

The crew of the tender Satellite made a further attempt to move alongside the lighthouse this afternoon, but was forced to give up when the gale freshened and struck a 50-mile-an-hour velocity. Previous attempts to reach the lighthouse during the past seven days also were frustrated by stormy weather.

Meanwhile, Jordan was reported resting satisfactorily after his trying experience last night when he lost consciousness just as rescue attempts were on the point of succeeding. A relief keeper who had reached the light on a breeches buoy was preparing to lower him into the launch from the Satellite when Jordan collapsed. It was too rough, on his return to consciousness, to effect the transfer.

The relief lighthouse keeper was able to land supplies of food and water to last for two months.

At the Longship Lighthouse, off Land's End, the assistant keeper, W. J. Griffiths is ill and food supplies are running low. Violent seas have prevented relief from starting to his aid.

Assassin Slays Sheik Mahmoud

JERUSALEM, Dec. 15 —(C.P.).—Sheik Mahmoud el Ansari, curator of the Mosque of Omar and lifelong opponent of the exiled Grand Mufti of Jerusalem, was shot to death today while walking on a street in New Jerusalem. His assassin, described in first reports as an Arab, escaped.

Sheik Mahmoud recently had been active in reviving an Arab Party opposed to the Grand Mufti, Haj Amin Effendi al Husseini, who from exile in Syria has been credited with leadership of the Arab revolt.

Three previous attempts had been made on Sheik Mahmoud's life within the last year and three months ago he was seriously wounded. Several members of his family have been slain since the outbreak of disorder in the Holy Land, engendered by rival claims of Arabs and Jews.

Lance-Corporal James MacDonMeryfield seriously injured in fight was killed and Lance-Corporal Clarence Peacock and Private N. H. nell of the Green Howards Regiment ing with a band of Arabs on the Nablus-Tulkarem Highway. The Arabs suffered a large number of dead and wounded.

Five Arabs, including a woman, were killed in other parts of the Holy Land. Two Jews were seriously wounded at Haifa.

Russia Warns Czechs Steer Off Ukraine

PRAGUE, Dec. 15 (CP-Havas)—Russia has warned Czechoslovakia to refrain from supporting German-sponsored plans for a "greater Ukraine," it was learned today.

During two meetings with Foreign Minister Frantisek Chvalkovsky, Soviet Minister Serge Alexandrovsky said recent support of the German plan by Czecho-Slovak newspapers might endanger the friendly ties existing between Moscow and Prague.

Poland and Russia long have accused Germany of sponsoring the "greater Ukraine" movement as a step in the "drang nach osten" (drive to the east). Germany is said to covet the rich grain fields of the Ukraine, divided among the Soviet Union, Rumania, Poland and Czecho-Slovakia.

Aberhart Ready To Open Government House For The King's Visit "If Required"

EDMONTON, Dec. 15 (CP)—Premier Aberhart said today that "if required" government house will be opened during the visit here next May of King George and Queen Elizabeth.

Official residence of the Lieutenant - Governor, Government House has been vacant since last May, when it was closed by an order-in-council of the Alberta government.

In reply to a resolution approved by the Canadian Legion asking the residence be used to accommodate the King and Queen while they are in Edmonton, Premier Aberhart said:

"I am only too willing to cooperate with the citizens of this province to see that everything is done for the comfort of Their Majesties, and if Government House is required I give you my assurance that it will be opened, decorated and put in a condition suitable to the occasion."

TORONTO, Dec. 15 (CP)—Ontario is without a vice-regal residence since early this year when the government presented the Chorley Park residence of lieutenant-governors to the Toronto Hospital for Sick Children.

In government circles today it was stated unofficially there was no possibility the residence, vacant since retirement of Dr. Herbert A. Bruce as lieutenant-governor in March, could be refurnished and made available for the King and Queen next year.

Furnishings were sold at auction this summer.

Quebec Chief Denies Conspiracy

Untrue Says Duplessis Three In Ottawa Having Nightmare

QUEBEC, Dec. 15. — (CP) — Premier Maurice Duplessis of Quebec said last night it is "untrue" and "ridiculous" that he and Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario are conspiring to have Prime Minister Mackenzie King ousted as leader of the Liberal party.

The Union Nationale Premier, in an interview, said:

"It is untrue that there is a conspiracy between Hon. Mitchell Hepburn, premier of Ontario, and myself in connection with the leadership or replacement of Prime Minister Mackenzie King as Federal Liberal leader, and this talk is ridiculous on its very face."

(Labor Minister Rogers and Transport Minister Howe charged Saturday night at Port Arthur, Ont., that in recent weeks the two premiers had conspired in an attempt to force Mr. King's resignation. Addressing a mass meeting, they alleged the Ontario and Quebec premiers evidently wished to set up a government at Ottawa that would be "largely controlled by the provincial governments at Toronto and Quebec"

(Premier Hepburn denied the existence of such an alliance).

"There must be something wrong at Ottawa," the Quebec government leader said when he was asked to comment on the Rogers-Howe allegation. "There are, there, at least three people who are suffering from nightmare." He did not name the persons he meant.

"More Like Disunity"

"It seems at least illogical for men who are preaching the unity of Canada to try, by somewhat unusual talk, and because of their nightmare, to seek to bring about disunity through the grouping of other provinces against Ontario and Quebec."

He added:

"Ever since this Union Nationale Government has been in power (2½ years) I am happy to say, and this in the most hearty, sincere and loyal manner, that promotion of the welfare of both provinces for the benefit of the populations of both provinces has been the sincere wish of both provinces and this is not directed against anyone, but for the benefit of the two provinces.

"We will continue to cooperate, and also we are willing to co-operate with every other province of Canada on a fair and sound basis for the progress of Canada as a whole."

"I have the highest admiration for the very great qualities of heart, of spirit and of mind of my friend, Hon. Mitchell Hepburn," he concluded.

Ecuador Revolt Is Nipped, Election Called

QUITO, Ecuador, Dec. 15.—(AP).—Mounted police patrolled Quito to-day as a tense political situation developed after a gun battle last night between police and Leftist opponents of President Aurelio Mosquera Narvaez.

The president ordered the arrest of a number of Leftist legislators, dissolved the Parliamentary Assembly and called new elections. He promised a manifesto would be issued shortly explaining his actions to the people.

The dispute revolved about the Assembly's promotion of Col. Larrea Alba who assumed the presidency briefly in 1931 in an army revolt, to the rank of General. President Mosquera Narvaez declared the appointment unconstitutional and the Assembly rejected his message 31 to 17.

The President ordered the arrest of the Assembly President, Francisco Arizaga Luque and of Larrea Alba. Secret police pursued them to a refuge with a cavalry regiment, the Yaguachi, and a gun battle followed. (An official announcement said the two were captured but this was disputed in other quarters).

Among the deputies arrested was the Chamber Vice-President, Antonio Jose Borja.

While calm prevailed elsewhere in the nation, Quito stoer keepers closed their shops and citizens kept in seclusion during the fighting.

Poking Fire Shies Off English Boys

LONDON, Dec. 15—(CP).—Prince Poking Fire, snowshoe runner and hurdler from Caughnawaga, Que., had a hard time here keeping his identity from small boys.

He ditched his Indian regalia at Earl's Court where he took part in "Winter Cavalcade," an indoor snow sports meet, and wore a lounge suit and fedora hat on the streets.

He had enough of small boys in New York last year, he said. They followed him around the streets asking how many men he had scalped. He got pretty tired of it.

Poking Fire put on all his regalia for the cavalcade shows, a bonnet with 36 eagle feathers in it, buckskin shirt, necklace of snake bones, turtle shells and bird claws and carried a tomahawk. Most of the regalia belonged to his great grandfather.

Englishmen who expected him to grunt and look severe were surprised that he talked freely and grinned a lot.

Summer Cottages

FORT ERIE, Ont., Dec. 15—(CP).—Fort Erie long will remember New York's Sixth Avenue Elevated which has been closed and sold for scrap. Eight old cars, brought here in 1908 when the famous "El" changed from steam to electric power, are set up on an avenue, used as summer cottages.

There's a Good Reason You're Constipated!

When there's something wrong with you, the first rule is: get at the cause. If you are constipated, don't fiddle around with make-shift remedies. Find out what's giving you the trouble!

Chances are it's simple if you eat only what most people do: meat, bread, potatoes. It's likely you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It's a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a bowel movement.

If that fits you, your ticket is a crisp crunchy breakfast cereal—Kellogg's All-Bran. It contains the "bulk" you need plus the intestinal tonic, vitamin B1.

Eat All-Bran every day, drink plenty of water, and just watch the old world grow brighter! Made by Kellogg in London, Ont.

Radio Traps Them

TORONTO, Dec. 15 — (CP). — Police probationers Ray Kearns and Edward Thow, who have four hours of actual duty to their credit, arrested two suburban New Toronto youths last night on charges of automobile theft. The 16-year-olds, Ray Mills and Austin Sheets, were arrested in a parked car as they listened to the car radio. The officers, attracted by the blaring music, checked license plates of the car and then took the two into custody. The machine allegedly was stolen here Dec. 12.

Require Patrons Remove Whey

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 15.—A resolution that each patron should draw away his own whey was adopted by patrons of the Empire Cheese and Butter Company at their annual meeting held on Wednesday. The problem of disposing of waste water was finally solved by the farmers, who decided that a tile pipe should be laid to carry it away, thus removing the probability of contamination and off-grade cheese. In the opinion of J. A. Murray, District Dairy Instructor, the fault lies in the location of many of the factories which were built years ago on low-lying land for the purpose of being near a water supply. The ground is now becoming saturated and poor drainage is the result. A. G. Thompson, manager of the Campbellford branch of the Bank of Montreal, gave an interesting review of the year's agriculture statistics. A test of 3.1 was disclosed in the financial statement presented to patrons who had supplied the factory with 2,042,235 pounds of milk during the season. This they were told produced 171,315 pounds of cheese and 63,621 pounds of butter fat for which they received an average of 33.17 cents a pound. There was an average of 11.9 pounds of milk per pound of cheese. At an average of 13.46 cents per pound patrons received a total or $23,073.00 for cheese. The factory also turned out 5,480 pounds of whey butter.

Officers were elected as follows: President, Fred Peake; Directors, Messrs. William Hay, Ross Stephens, Frank Lee and E. J. Mitchell. Harry Grills was elected auditor.

Radio Facilities To Aid Reporters

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15 — (AP). —The United States Communications Commission set aside radio facilities yesterday to aid the press in reporting news events.

Issuing new rules for miscellaneous radio services, the Commission said "a class of service has been defined covering a limited radio communication service for the transmission of news items or other related material."

"Of principal interest under this classification is a new group called press relay stations," it said. "These are intended to be licensed to publishers or news associations for use in connection with news dissemination where other communications facilities are not available to meet the needs of the press in handling special events or in the gathering of news matter from remote points.

"Under this licence a reporter could go abroad the hulk of a burning vessel, for instance, relay his story to the relay press unit on the shore which in turn could telephone or telegraph the story to the desk.

Five frequencies above 30,000 kilocycles were set aside for relay press stations. Mobile press units have been used for some time on covering news events, but a special licence had to be obtained in each instance. Under the plan announced to-day the licences will be issued on a permanent basis.

No Tail Lights

ROCHESTER, N.Y., Dec. 15—(AP)—Because there's no law requiring cows to carry tail lights en route to pasture, Charles Chapman, farmer of nearby Ogden, is $200 richer. Chapman won a city court award yesterday in a negligence suit arising from collision of a car driven by Frank Huber with his herd. Huber charged the farmer was negligent in not displaying lights on the herd but his argument failed to sway the jury, which awarded $100 for each cow injured.

France Arming Heaviest Since War

By Charles Foltz
(Associated Press Foreign Staff.)

PARIS, Dec. 15—(AP).—Premier Edouard Daladier's national defence cabinet, warning Italy and Germany that France would fight to protect her empire, presented to parliament today the greatest arms budget since the Great War.

Debate on the budget was expected to provide Daladier's opposition with a new opportunity to attack his policies and to open the way for a new test of his strength in parliament.

A total of nearly 40,000,000,000 francs (about $20,000,000) for the country's armed forces was distributed in various parts of the ordinary and extraordinary budgets.

Finance Minister Paul Reynaud said this sum represented 65 per cent of the estimated income for 1939 or 85 per cent of the actual 1938 government income.

Prepare In All Fields.

Here is where some of the money will go:

1. To the navy, which Navy Minister Cesar Campinchi declared would have 700,000 tons of warships afloat by 1942. At present, Campinchi said, France's navy is "equal" to the combined sea forces of Italy and Germany, although the totalitarian building program will soon place the combined navies ahead.

2. To the air force, which will increase its officers by 1,347 and its noncommissioned officers and men by 18,290 through a measure attached to the budget. This would bring the total air force officers to 3,702, and men, including noncommissioned officers, to 56,000. Much of the air force money will be spent on speeding up French warplane production.

3. To the land army, which gets newer and better guns, additional motorized equipment and improved fortifications.

Much of the money earmarked for the three branches of the service will be spent in backing up France's warning that she would fight to hold her empire.

No Surrender

Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet told members of the chamber of deputies foreign affairs committee Italy must understand "she will never have an inch of any part of French territory no matter what means she uses."

The foreign minister also said all the armed forces would be used for defence of Great Britain in the event of an unprovoked attack.

Bonnet said that he had made

Picketed Factory Goes Up In Flames

NEW YORK, Dec. 15 (AP)—Fire described by firemen as "suspicious" in origin destroyed a three-storey brick plant of the strike-harassed Armour Packing Company in Brooklyn today.

The plant was one of 60 packing concerns picketed since the United States Meat Workers, a (Congress of Industrial Organizations) union, called out 1,000 meat packers Monday in a city-wide strike.

Refusing to estimate the loss, Deputy Fire Chief George McAleer reported the fire to police as "suspicious" after a patrolman told him, he said, that the flames were preceded by an explosion.

Union leaders said more than 1,000 C.I.O. workers were idle at the "big four" companies — Wilson, Armour, Swift and Cudahy — and many smaller plants. Packing house officials said, however, that deliveries were normal.

The strikers are seeking a $4 to $5 a week pay rise, union recognition, a 40-hour week and other concessions.

Report On Convention

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 14.—A report on the Belleville convention was presented by Mrs. Pollock as a feature of the December meeting of the Seymour East Women's Institute held at the home of Mrs. Alex. Milne. Twenty-five members responded to the roll call and contributed to the question box conducted by Mrs. MacMillan.

Following the regular monthly reports Mrs. Hume disclosed to members the prize list for the fall fair next year.

Miss Grace Ingram offered a reading as her contribution to the program which concluded with another lesson on Buymanship by Mrs. Milne.

LOWER LICENSES

A recommendation by the legal committee, if aproved by the city council, will lower transient traders' licenses for residents of this city starting in business to $50, but will keep the fee at $250 for "outsiders" starting up. At present all persons, whether residents of the city or not, are assessed the $250, which is a sort of bond out of which taxes are taken until it has been eaten up. It was the feeling of the committee that the fee worked a hardship on some people who had resided in this city for a number of years. Its intention is to keep "fly by night" merchants from injuring the businesses of legitimate, established shop keepers.

FIGHT DISEASE

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Dec. 15 — (C.P.). — Light selling and unsteady tones in outside markets caused future quotations on the Winnipeg wheat market to sink fractionally lower today. Closing prices found the market 1⅛ to 1¾ lower. December at 60, May at 61⅞ to 62, and July 62⅝ to ⅝ cents.

Highlights of an otherwise dull session was the report of 200,000 bushels in Canadian export business. Argentine wheat shipments this week were estimated at 882,000 bushels against 453,000 last week and 1,062,000 a year ago.

After a steady start on reports of small Argentine shipments, Liverpool eased off when Australian wheat began to show itself freely and prices on the English market closed ¼d higher to ¼d lower.

Dies Announcing Baby

DETROIT, Dec. 15 — (AP). — Mrs. Marjorie Wyne, in a hospital with her first baby, asked visitors why her husband, Leo, 33, had failed to come to see her for two successive nights. Going to the Wyne home, the friends found the doors locked. Police broke in and found Wyne dead, apparently of natural causes. At his desk were cards announcing the baby's birth which he presumably had been addressing when he died.

Island Dentist Has No License But Good Trade

SPOTTED ISLANDS, Labrador, Dec. 15.—(CP).—Labrador's self-made dentist, a big burly man named James Holwell, had an unusually busy season this year, and at the little nursing station on Spotted Islands, near which Jim lives, trade was brisk during the summer and fall.

Calls were numerous, as schooner men fishring along the coast and natives turned up one after the other with swollen jaw and aching gums. With each dental case, Jim was called from his fish stage or boat to perform the extraction. The sufferers, relieved, blessed the dentist, paid the nominal fee of 25 cents to the nurse in charge and went their way.

Nineteen years ago "Dr." Holwell learned his trade. An American dentist spending the summer on the island, with a medical unit, gave him lessons two nights a week, and when he departed he left Jim a set of forceps and a few vials of coccaine. The winter was long and a dentist often was needed by the natives.

Jim began to practice when emergency demanded, and as time passed he grew quite expert as a puller of teeth. Each year he receives a fresh supply of "deadening" from the station, and when winter sets in he is usually the only dentist an an area of 1,000 square miles. He travels many miles by dogteam and many teams pull up at the door of his winter house at Porcupine Bay. There is an almost constant stream of toothache suffering individuals wending their way to him, winter and summer.

In his private life Jim Holwell is a fisherman-trapper. Labrador-born he is married to a local woman, and is the father of seven children. He is 44. He is a veteran of the Great War, proudly wearing his medals at village functions.

Held For Stealing Relative's Diamond

STRATFORD, Ont., Dec. 15—(CP)—Picked up by Stratford police officers after he was said to have attempted to sell a diamond to jewelers, here, George Riley, who gave his address as Brantford, was taken to Clinton last night. Police said he will be charged with theft of a diamond ring from his sister-in-law, Mrs. Thomas J. Riley, Clinton.

Mrs. Riley reported to Clinton police Monday that a diamond ring was missing from her house after her brother-in-law left. Stratford police were furnished with a description and when a man was reported trying to sell a diamond to jewelers here police investigated. Police said a diamond ring was found in Riley's possession.

Successful Bazaars Held In Millbrook

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Dec. 15—The usual ready patronage was accorded the annual bazaar, and service of afternoon tea, which the Ladies' Aid of Grace Presbyterian church held in the new Community Waiting Room, recently built and donated to the village by Mr. F. C. Scott, on Saturday afternoon and early evening, practically all wares being disposed of by six o'clock.

The goods for sale were attractively displayed, and those in charge of the counter of fancy work and aprons were Mrs. H. A. Kerr and Miss. Agnes Johnston. At the Country Store where home baking, vegetables, cream, butter, eggs, etc. were on sale, Mrs. S. E. Eakins and Mrs. E. L. Armstrong were the capable saleslaadies.

Tea Hostesses included Mrs. Harry Ball and Mrs. Mervan Kinsman, each table being centred with a bud vase holding a spray of pink blossom and green fern.

Gay flowered screens hid the mysteries of the 'fish pond', so attractive to the younger element, a numbe rof adults also being included among the 'fishers' who dangled the bait and brought up an interesting-looking parcel. Much credit is due the initiative of Miss Ruth Thorndyke, and Mrs. H. R. Williams, for the arrangement and supplies of this section.

Mrs. R. J. McMahon looked after the making of the tea, and other details, and deserves special mention for her contribution to the apron counter, both in soliciting donations and in making these articles for sale. Mrs. J. R. Thompson, the president, gave a general oversight, approximately forty dollars being relized from the tea and bazaar.

Fancy Work Sold

Over forty dollars was realized from the sale of fancy work and home baking, and the service of afternoon tea, which the Guild of St. Thomas' Anglican church held at the week end, Mrs. L. M. Bonneville kindly giving the use of her home, King Street centre, for the enjoyable event.

The tables for the sale of fancy articles, and of baking were arranged in the sun room, and were most attractive, those in charge being: Mrs. G. F. Harrington, Mrs. D. R. Fowler, Miss A. Kells and Miss Muriel Smith.

Mrs. A. A. Smith poured tea, the table, with lace cloth, service of silver, and with a low bowl of soft greenery on the central reflector, being laid in the dining-room, those assisting including Misses Ada Attwooll, Rose Macnamara, Mrs. L. H. Winslow, and Miss M. L. Collins.

The hostess welcomed the many guests in the living-room, and Mrs. John Dawson acted as cashier.

Crime Wave Spreads To York Township

TORONTO, Dec. 15—(CP). — A crime wave in Toronto spread to York Township last night. Houses in Baby Point and Humewood were broken into, attempts were made at other places, and a Fairbank man was knocked unconscious and robbed.

To curb the increasing house break-ins, Chief Robert Alexander urged citizens to report to police all suspicious-looking characters hanging about residential areas and to see that their homes are locked when vacated.

Gerald Clark was knocked unconscious by two thugs in a vacant field in Fairbank and robbed of $22.

The most serious break-in took place at the residence of Mrs. E. Gamon, where thieves stole two silver fox furs, a diamond ring and a diamond bracelet valued at more than $1,000.

Scotland will have air raid defence.

Price Of Wheat And Bread

The prairie markets conference at Winnipeg is giving the wheat business a rather thorough going over. It hears cases of world trade in which the basis of transaction is millions of bushels, and it hears the experience of the individual farmer, and some of the lesser transactions seem to make the situation clearer than the greater ones because they are more readily understood.

The relationship between the price of wheat and the price of bread was up on the table for examination and then it was that a farmer from Dauphin, Man., explained that in 1932 he delivered wheat to his elevator and was paid 24 cents a bushel for it. In March of 1935 he again delivered wheat and was paid $1.34 per bushel, and yet on both occasions bread was selling in Dauphin for seven cents a loaf. So the farmer had given them something to talk about and explain.

We always think of bread in terms of wheat and often enough wonder why the price of bread not does not come away down the price of wheat does. Possibly we never think of the cost of milling, of charges for transportation, sacking, baking and so on. And we have our bread wrapped for us now and even sliced, and most people have it delivered to their doors. There is quite a procession of events in the life of a loaf of bread after it has ceased to be wheat.

The experts at the Winnipeg conference stated that the baker gets 270 pounds of bread from 196 pounds of flour, and for that reason flour would have to drop about $2.70 per barrel before bread dropped one cent per loaf.

Other testimony was offered to the effect that bakers are not making over 5 per cent. on their bread turnover, and their profits are about one-third of a cent per loaf.

Those figures were advanced by responsible people in the business at the Winnipeg conference and it is not at all likely they would be giving figures which could not be substantiated as they would know well enough if they were wide of the mark there would be those present who would quickly challenge their statements.

Telling The Editors

Some weeks ago the newspaper Popolo d'Italia, the property of Benito Mussolini, printed an article entitled "Dialogue on the Thames," and it was supposed to have been a fictitious conversation between former President Benes of Czechoslovakia and Haile Selassie of Ethiopia, lamenting that their downfall had come because they had relied on democratic states for support.

The feeling is that Mussolini wrote the thing himself. There were reports of it in a number of papers and it was actually not particularly bright.

But the well-organized government of Italy considered it was a dandy and should be widely copied. People and organizations get that way more or less when they have a hand in writing things for the papers. The papers in the Czech country paid no attention to it and Italian diplomats said it was on account of the censors. They must have ordered newspapers not to print it. Otherwise any editor who was worth his salt would have recognized its worth and scissored it out at once.

So the understanding at the moment is that the papers in Czechoslovakia will give space to Mussolini's bit of writing, not because they want to but because they have been advised to do so.

Married 70 Years

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Moir of Campbellford have celebrated their 70th wedding anniversary, and on that account alone they have attained major honors in the matter of such celebrations. Few indeed are spared to make so long a journey together. Mr. Moir is 92 and Mrs. Moir will celebrate her 90th birthday in April.

Mr. Moir landed in Canada 77 years ago and the crossing of the Atlantic took 33 days. His capital was rather limited as he had but $5 in his pocket at the time and his first occupation was making horse shoes at 50 cents per day. It was not long after that he went to the farm. Looking back on it all Mr. Moir admits there was not much money in the country then, but there was an unwritten system of barter. When he yoked up his oxen to take grain to Brighton he would bring back a ton of coal for the blacksmith, but instead of getting cash for the delivery he would be allowed a certain amount in payment for any work he had done at the smithy's shop.

Mr. Moir is of the opinion that people can get along today if they will work. In fact he is rather a serious advocate of work and that may be because he himself started working in his father's blacksmith shop when he was eight years of age. He is inclined to doubt that when young men finish a high school education they can go out and make their way because they all want a white-collar job, and of course Mr. Moir is not the first or only individual to offer that mild impeachment.

Mr. Moir recalls that it was a day's work to cut two cords of wood from standing timber into four-foot lengths for which one would be paid 50 cents and a dinner provided. Naturally one who spent so many years on the land thinks it is the way out for a good many more people. Mr. Moir says plainly if people got back there and did some good hard work they could make a living. When a man is celebrating his 70th wedding anniversary he must be allowed a wide latitude in which to speak of today's problems and also in telling other people what they should do. He has rather earned the right to speak plainly. Mr. Moir refuses to believe people can't get along if they try hard enough, and there might be some wisdom in his views which would do no harm at all to those who are inclined toward the belief that the situation is hopeless and it's no use to keep on trying.

Mr. Gardiner Goes Calling

Hon. James G. Gardiner, Federal Minister of Agriculture, visited the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto. Possibly there was much there to interest him, but he had other things in mind rather than looking at well-bred and well-groomed stock. Premier Hepburn had written suggesting that he should attend the fair and also have a chat with him. That is the background of the most recent declaration regarding the guerilla warfare which has been going on between Mr. Hepburn and Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

Mr. Gardiner in his statement is reserved and very plain. He recites events as they occurred and in doing so knows well enough they are apt to be the subject of attack. For that reason we are inclined to believe he would keep the record rather straight.

Mr. Gardiner met Mr. Hepburn and congratulated him on the winnings of his Clydes at the fair and that seems to be a right enough way for a couple of farmers to start a conversation. They did not go off the deep end at once into political waters, but rather slid off later on from the broad backs of the Clyde horses.

Mr. Gardiner says he told Mr. Hepburn that anything which might be said in the conversation would be reported to Mr. King. We believe police officials do something like that when they are taking a statement from people who come to them for treatment and it seems to have been the right thing to do. Then as might be expected from two Liberals having a conversation they got around to the fact that the Federal government had lost the seat in South Waterloo, and that of course was not regarded favorably at Ottawa. There is a tremendous Liberal majority there now but no political party finds joy or comfort in seeing things start to slip. The slip may not be serious but finding comfort out of even a slight defection is too much like having to extract sunshine from cucumbers.

Mr. Hepburn, according to the Gardiner statement was all for going out in the next election to smash Mr. King even if in doing so he might have to smash the Liberal party. Mr. Gardiner went back even a second time to talk with Mr. Hepburn, but on the invitation of the Ontario premier. On the second visit Mr. Hepburn stated he felt like quitting himself.

When it gets down to a matter of grievances they seem to have stuck their tap root in the fine old soil of patronage. Mr. Hepburn had not been consulted where federal appointments were concerned in Ontario. Apparently he desired to have a hand in the business of putting a bit of political ointment on a man's brow and telling him he was named to some nice office. It would make Mr. Hepburn feel better. Mr. Gardiner appears to have suggested that the way to bring about this dual anointing would be for Mr. Hepburn to discuss such matters with the federal cabinet. He intimated that when he was premier of Saskatchewan it was done that way.

If political patronage is at the bottom of the war between Toronto and Ottawa there are a good many people outside of those in active political life who might rise to suggest that appointment and promotion by merit is the ideal system, and that for the promotion and strengthening of such a plan the scope of the Civil Service system might well be enlarged and made more secure against the raids of ambitious politicians.

Another Crisis In London

Lady Diana Duff Cooper is the wife of the former first lord of the British Admiralty. Mrs. Euan Wallace is the wife of the financial secretary to the treasury in Britain. So there is where the story begins. The ladies were in France and paid a visit to the Duke and Duchess of Windsor, and when they got home admitted they had curtsied to the Duchess in order "to please the Duke."

The Countess of Pembroke is the wife of the Earl of Pembroke, and she in turn is somewhat of an authority on court etiquette. The Lady writes things now and then for the papers and she has been at it again, admitting in print that she scolded the two visitors for having curtsied to the Duchess of Windsor. Each country appears to produce such folk. Some of them write to tell when to eat with a fork and when to use the knife; what a woman should say when she meets her husband's secretary, and the right words to use when getting home at 2.30 in the morning. We take it she was quite annoyed with them and had told them so personally. Likewise she had it printed that Alfred Duff Cooper seemed to be a bit angry at the things she had said.

When the Duchess of Windsor is given royal standing and recognition then the Countess of Pembroke will pop down and do a bit of a curtsey herself, but not before. The gentlemen of the land who are trying to settle things with Germany and Italy and Spain and Tunisia and Palestine and a few other places at the moment will have to sit back and pause until this curtsey affair has been well and thoroughly settled. Or else in their blunt and unreasoning way they may prefer to indulge in a mild snicker and conclude that after all it does not amount to a hill of beans.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The German papers do not need to run comic strips. Their editorials these days are funny enough for anyone.

English musician says jazz is noisy and empty but surely we did not require to have a man come all the way from England to tell us that.

Toronto's parks cost a million more last year than in 1918. It is apparent there are no Ald. Stockers in the Queen City.

TRAGEDY

¶ My Uncle Jed boasts of his health, he says it's finer stuff than wealth, and I believe he's right; he always watches how he feels, takes note of how he likes his meals, and if he sleeps at night.

¶ And Uncle Jed has pills and stuff, in fact he never has enough to guard him from his ills; the ideal gift for Jed I've thought, would be if I went out and bought, a bucket full of pills.

¶ He has them green and red and blue, and says he knows what each will do, he takes them going to bed; if liver's working none too keen, Jed pops in pills all colored green, at dinner time takes red.

¶ When he feels something like an ache, he knows the very pill to take, he's studied them a lot; he diagnoses all his pains, then turns the problem to his brains, to take the pill he ought.

¶ When I saw Uncle Jed last night, he was indeed quite far from right, he didn't lok his best; he had a pain across his head, and he was covered up in bed, with mustard on his chest.

¶ And Jed explained just what went wrong, it didn't take so very long, for talking hurt his head; he took a blue pill by mistake, when he felt something like an ache—it should have been a red.

Col. Drew As Seen By Press

(From the Woodstock Sentinel-Review)

GEORGE DREW ought to paste in a scrapbook the press clippings of all the complimentary things being said about him since his election as leader of the Ontario Conservative party. It is unlikely that he will ever again have such an opportunity. Newspapers which had no views about any of the candidates now feel free to disclose to their readers that the new leader is young, eloquent, outspoken, honorable, sincere, an able critic, well versed in domestic and international affairs, and likely to keep the Hepburn government on its toes. If any Ontario newspaper has neglected that familiar bit about the desirability of a strong Opposition, one is unable at the moment to identify it.

As to the probable showing of the party under Col. Drew, there have appeared a few interesting if cautious predictions. Hamilton Spectator says he will now guide a party that, with a magnificent history, is in a position to contemplate the future with renewed confidence and strength. With the leadership question settled, says Welland Tribune, there will no doubt be a closing of the ranks in the Conservative party, giving them a stronger voice in the deliberations in the Legislature. Kitchener Record expects the party to fare forth as a reconditioned fighting machine that will help to solidify the two-party system, which fits best into our democratic form of government.

Niagara Falls Review thinks Col. Drew has a difficult task ahead, to bring the Conservative party back from its present low estate, but Owen Sound Sun-Times believes that with a man of Col Drew's calibre and record at its head the party has an opportunity to rehabilitate itself and make its influence felt in provincial politics.

Not all the editors are sold on Col. Drew's leadership qualifications. Stratford Beacon-Herald doubts that he possesses "that warm humanity that gets across from platform to audience." His speeches "do not radiate the friendliness that makes followers out of doubters." Peterborough Examiner, though believing him the best of available contestants, says Col. Drew has yet to prove he has the qualities of leadership. "A political leader must possess a degree of magnetism of the sort which inspires confidence; he must be able to work with his colleagues and bring them along with him."

Brantford Expositor is of opinion that the new leader lost no prestige by his independence in the last provincial election. A little skeptical of the Toronto love-feast last week, Timmins Daily Press says: "If Col. Drew took over a united party, there must have been a great change of heart, for even through the last few days there has been plenty of sniping directed at the candidate."

Guelph Mercury, published in his home city, after paying compliments to Col. Drew's personality, adds: "More than all of these things, he has the appreciation, much needed in men in office today, of the great wastage of administration costs in Canadian government. He has drawn to the attention of citizens the tremendous burden of taxation which they are bearing from over-government. The day may come when he will be able to take some action on this most urgent matter."

A WOLF STORY.

(Sault Ste. Marie Star)

AND SO another wolf story blows up!

Game Warden D. E. McMillan, of Oba, took the trouble to look into the yarn sent out from Hornepayne about a wolf attacking a bushman—"jumped for his throat", and the other familiar frills of the wolf story teller — and found it was the old familiar tale of a man with an axe meeting a wolf much to the wolf's sorrow. Mr. McMillan kindly reported the facts to this paper and wound up his letter with endorsing Old Sam Martin's dictum that still stands four square to all the winds that blow—

"Any man that says he's been et by a wolf is a liar."

Why do imaginative folks make up these silly yarns? In this case it looks as if the bushman had no hand in cooking up the story. The "reporter" seems to have deliberately added a good deal of color to a routine bush event.

It doesn't do the North any good to send out stuff that gives people an idea there is any danger in Northern forests. The truth is a baby would be perfectly safe anywhere, probably safer than in any Ontario village. And it should be remembered that a lot of people feel foolish at being held up as wolf heroes. Because it requires no more courage to meet a wolf than to face a rabbit.

TOO MANY OF THEM.

(Toronto Financial Post)

THIS WEEK a study by the International Labor Office revealed that Canada's record of fatal accidents in coal mines is one of the worst in the world.

Between 1927 and 1935, Canada followed behind only Japan and the United States in the number of fatalities per 1,000 man years of risk.

Canada was one of six countries in the world in which the fatal accident rate did not decrease during the period covered.

This week another very serious coal mine accident, fatal to about a score of workers, happened in Canada.

There is little reason for national pride in our record.

TOBACCO TAXES.

(St. Catharines Standard)

SOME PEOPLE have a tendency to drink the country out of debt, and themselves into the grave, but from figures in the Financial Post this week there are a lot of Canadians smoking the country out of the red. The Dominion Government takes $40,000,000 a year in excise and sales tax on tobacco products and it would take the great Lake Shore mine nearly 2½ years to produce that much gold. Nearly 7,000,000,000 cigaretts are marketed in Canada during the year.

• When Our Memory Begins to Slip

(From the New York Times)

ONE of the hardest things to realize is that, as we grow older, we ourselves become historical documents. At 50 or a little beyond we have witnessed half a century of the world's progress or deterioration. Within us is the record of cause and effect in the past and the development of the future if we could only learn to interpret what we have seen. One reason why this is difficult is that we are so completely confused by the complexity of the present in which we are compelled to live. Another is that our memories are so tricky and unreliable.

Every one is familiar with the demonstration in psychology in which the professor arranges a fake murder in the class room. Every student testifies to different details. One remembers the "murderer" as hatless. Another insists that he wore a fedora. One hears only a single shot, others remember two or three. We excuse these variations on the ground of shock or confusion. We think we could have remembered the details correctly if we could have had them in slow motion or have assimilated them in an orderly manner. But we are mistaken even there.

There is another test which any one can make for himself to show that the memory is a prankster at best. Try to reconstruct the most familiar room in the house in which you lived when eight years old, or 10, or even 15. One's powers of observation should be normal at that time. Yet all sorts of unexpected gaps and difficulties will arise unless one happens to be living still in the same home. The furniture, of which we think we recall every line, will readily rearrange itself—that is, it will fall into approximate order. But can one be sure that no piece is missing? What color was the cushion in the big chair? Those small side chairs, now—what type were they? What was the pattern of the wallpaper? What were the subjects of the pictures and how many were there? How high from the floor were the windows Was the floor dark or light and was it covered by a carpet or a rug? Test the accuracy of your memory with a diagram. You may be surprised when you begin to draw it.

• Where Canada Wins Again.

(From the Detroit Free Press)

WINNING the wheat championship of the world at the International Grain and Hay Show at Chicago is nothing new for Western Canadians.

They have accomplished this feat 16 times in the last 19 years.

Canadians have also won the oats championship 11 times.

What is new even for Western Canada is for both the wheat and oats championships to be won at the same show by two brothers working the same farm.

This happened last week, when two young farmers from the Peace River country in Alberta were crowned "Wheat King" and "Oats King" of the world.

The section in which their farm is located is famed for its fertility. Opened to settlement after the Great War, the Peace River country immediately made the headlines with its superior samples of hard spring wheat. Another Peace River farmer has carried off the wheat championships five times.

There was a time when Saskatchewan grew most of the prize-winning wheat in the Prairie Provinces, but in recent years this honor seems definitely to have been transferred to its sister province of Alberta.

Wheat grown in the United States rarely has competed successfully at the Chicago show with the product of Western Canada's more northern and more rigorous climate.

Letters To The Editor

Correspondents Discuss Various Topics

MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—Would it not be a good idea to return our present council without a contest?

There is no contest for the Mayoralty, and Mr. Chas. Shaw of the Board of Education might re-consider his resignation in order to avoid an election, and this would mean a saving to the ratepayers of approximately $1,000.00. That is something to be considered.

A suggestion has been made that East City should have a representative, but they might well wait until next year and besides we do not operate on a ward system. We need co-operation in our city as we do in all human affairs, and as there are no money bylaws or important issues to decide at this time, and also as Alderman Gordon suggested there is a strong possibility of a very small vote being cast, it does seem that an election this year could very well be dispensed with, and more especially when this year's council is composed of as capable a body of men as it would be possible to secure, and who have given faithful service. Next year we are sure of a contest for the Mayoralty and maybe for other reasons we may have a real contest. So why not call it off this year and save the thousand dollars.

Should you care to get the opinions of a cross section of the city, I believe that such a move would be favored by the majority.

Yours very truly,
R. G. KINGAN.

Peterborough, Dec. 14.

TENTH CONCESSION

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—Find your column quite delightful. I get a graphic picture of that hired man, always on his toes, interested in everything and fully self sustaining. Would there were more like him today. He no doubt used his knife and fork; in the right manner "according to his light" and entirely suitable to the occasion. After all the whole structure of our rules of living is founded upon suitability of the environment. Today there is little excuse for ignorance as to correct table manners. However, a large home with plenty of help can naturally use more elaborate methods than a busy farm home where one woman does everything. That is not saying she has to disperse with refinement however.

Looking out of the door this morning I discovered an old door knob lying on the ground and that made me think of your column. The speckled hen has been taking a well earned rest lately, and had I known of the whereabouts of the door knob I might have substituted it for a nest egg, providing the nest egg was fresh.

The house has been full of the delightful odor of plum pudding cooking to uphold the time honored custom of the Christmas festival. And may be wish each one of your staff a bright and Happy Christmas season.

Yours truly,
EMERALD ISLE.

A REAL MENACE.

(North Bay Nugget)

FROM SUDBURY comes reports of a mass wolf invasion of the Hanmer farm region, with the marauders venturing close to the farm houses. Burwash and Cartier districts say wolves are unusually numerous in those localities, while trappers of Manitoulin Island report advance notice of a big movement from the dense forest to inhabited regions.

No person has yet offered an explanation of this turnabout in wolf practices, but the fact that they are being heard or seen in practically all settled regions of the North leads to the belief that the weather and ability of their usual prey to keep well under cover is causing the destructive beasts to seek a livehood by easy methods, but at the risk of their lives.

Thessalon came to the wire with the prize wolf yarn in a report of white wolves being seen in that district. Game Warden Wilfred St. Louis is reported as having spied a pack of nine wolves four greys and five whites, the latter having long and fluffy fur.

Englishman And Frenchman Held Partially Responsible For German Persecution Of Jews

An Englishman and a Frenchman are partially responsible for the persecution of the Jews in Germany today, because they made Germans conscious of their racial purity, Rev. W. J. Gilling, pastor of Trinity College, Toronto, told more than a hundred young people attending the A.Y.P.A. conference at St. John's last night.

Both writers claimed the Teutonic race was Aran and should be purged of Jewish blood. Hitler seized on this literature to inform the German people that the Jews were responsible for most of their misfortune, and to prove the fact that the Germans are a superior people who will some day rule the world, said Mr. Gilling, and he ventured the opinion that this same doctrine is being promulgated, although in milder form throughout Canada and other parts of the Empire by Fascist parties.

Man Sent From High.

"Germans are convinced not only that they are a superior people, but that Hitler is a man sent from on High to right the wrongs of Germany and lead them back to the great power and glory enjoyed during the reign of the Hohenzollerns."

"Hitler's book Mein Kampf is the Bible in every German home. This book was written by Der Fuehrer while he languished in prison following the unsuccessful beer garden putsh. After his release he decreed that every German should have a copy and he enforced this decree when he came into power. This book sets forth clearly the national Socialist doctrine.

"The youth of Germany to-day does not believe that the German armies were conquered by the Allied forces. What he does believe is that Germany did not win the war because the army was stabbed in the back by Jews and Marxists back in Berlin.

"They are agreed that the Treaty of Versailles was the most unfair and severe treaty ever drafted, although it does not compare at all with the treaties which Germany imposed on conquered peoples down through the centuries."

Hitler Has Complex.

"From his early youth Hitler had a persecution complex which gradually evolved into the idea that he was a superior person to the common people and destined to lead Germany to the heights of power.

"National Socialism is undoubtedly his brain-child, but many things combined to bring about the upsurge that resulted in the balance of power swinging to Hitler. Hindenburg sold the German people down the river, the Treaty of Versailles added more fuel and this along with an unprecedented economic crisis, and Hitler's teachings, crystallized to bring about a National Socialist state.

"Hitler has always taught the doctrine of force. He is believed by many foreign correspondents to have set fire to the Reichstag just before the German elections. He urged force and used it in gaining control in Czechoslovakia. He will use it again in Memel, later on in Rumania, and finally in the rich wheat fields on the Ukraine," Mr. Gilling declared.

Religious Persecution.

"The Catholic Hierachy is alarmed over the hold which Hitler has over Catholic youth, and many Catholic priests are in concentration camps at the present time because they dared oppose der Fuehrer. The youth of Germany is not attending church but the older people crowd the churches to the doors."

Mr. Gilling voiced the opinion that Hitler would be unlikely to wage war against the church in Germany because he has the youth of Germany in the palm of his hand, and these are the men and women of tomorrow. He knows that the spirit of national socialism has gripped them and this, coupled with the fact that German youth movement began with a pagan outlook is sufficient to assure Hitler of youth's support.

Leslie Cavalier introduced the vote of thanks not only to Rev. Mr. Gilling but to Mrs. L. Groombridge who sang two songs after the banquet. Delegates from every Anglican church in the Peterborough district attended the banquet and the program was lively and entertaining. Miss Clemena Long, district president, was toastmaster.

Rev. A. R. Holden, district chaplain of Bethany, said Grace and Fred Ford, president of St. John's A.Y.P.A., read an address of welcome. Miss Florence Lemmings gave the toast to the Church, with Rev. T. H. Floyd of St. George's responding. The toast to the Association was made by R. Ramsden of Campbellford, 1st vice-president of the organization. Mrs. O. Laderach of St. George's voiced the reply. N. Davis of Emily A.Y.P.A. led the delegates in extending thanks to St. John's for their hospitality.

President Earl Wood presided and members were unanimous in their decision to offer help this year. A number of interesting points were raised in the debate, "Resolved, that newspapers are a detriment to crime." The affirmative side, which won, was upheld by Mrs. A. C. Newman and Miss Helen Wood and the negative team comprised Messrs. R. C. Ramsden and Don. Russell. The judges were Rev. T. S. Gault, Mrs. Art Tripp and Mrs. Alex. Kennedy. It was arranged to hold a Christmas party at next week's meeting and each member is expected to contribute toward lunch and the program.

Billy Direct And Greyhound Lead The Way As Harness Horse Racing Has Best Year

By Central Press Canadian

GOSHEN, N.Y., Dec. 15.—Fifteen thousand harness horses were trained during 1938 for the races in which 6,000 actually participated for a total of more than $3,000,000 in purses, according to the annual report on the American trotting turf. In addition, the sport hung up eight new world records; drew more fans and laid definite plans to merge all semi-governing bodies into one unit to consolidate gains for succeeding years.

When Billy Direct, at Lexington, Ky., this fall paced a mile in 1.55 he smashed the 33-year-old reign of Dan Patch acknowledged champ of champs since 1905. Greyhound, not to be outdone, roared through to a new world mark of 1.55¼ for trotters. Six other harness horses broke all existing marks for their age and gait putting 1938 'way ahead of its rivals for speed.

Central Control Coming

The merger by Jan. 1 of five parent organizations now dividing the administration of the harness turf is expected to simplify the problems of starting, eligibility certificates, handicapping and classification of horses which have plagued the sport for many years. Under one central head, experiments are to be conducted this winter on handicapping trotters by weight in saddles on their backs thus providing stiffer competition for such stars as Billy Direct and Greyhound.

Yearling sales at all prominent standardbred nurseries gained this fall even though several of them were held in the face of war scares and falling markets. Walnut Hall farm, Donerail, Ky., Hanover Shoe farms, Hanover, Pa., and the Village Farm, Langhorne, Pa., led in high prices for their blue-blooded youngsters, indicating that there is no shortage of money or confidence in the harness sport.

BILLY DIRECT, greatest of pacers in full stride

Eleven tracks comprised the Grand Circuit of 1938, i.e., Toledo, Cleveland, Goshen, N.Y. (historic track); Old Orchard Beach, Me.; Agawam Park, Mass.; Goshen, N.Y. (Good Time park); Springfield, Ill.; Syracuse, N.Y.; Indianapolis, Ind.; Reading, Pa., and Lexington, Ky.

McLin Hanover won the Hambletonian stake, Aug. 10 at Goshen and was recently shipped abroad to Italy. He is expected to be one of the last fast American trotters to be sold to Europe, however, with the new handicapping by weight providing more competition for such stars here.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

Canadian Press sends out a questionnaire to scribes, and this is how we answered it: Best three pro or amateur men athletes in Canada the past year—Bob Pearce, Bummer Stirling and Sammy Luftspring; best three women—Miss Robina Higgins, Noel McDonald and Mrs. F. J. Mulqueen; best achievement—Red Storey's three touchdowns against Winnipeg; three outstanding teams—Edmonton Grads, Toronto Argos and St. Boniface Seals; greatest surprise—Sarnia's grid loss in Peterborough; biggest thrill—Orfuns' win over Sarnia; most important Canuck sports development—uniform puck rules in this county and a better international hockey understanding; probable biggest development for 1939—opening of more export markets for Canadian hockey players. Well, then, you name your choices!

* * * * * * *

Ted Reeve, discussing grid teams for next year, pens this potent line: "Peterborough's plans are not known at present; they have a long way to go." Kinda tough on us, but it's quite true. Our Orfuns are on a three-year plan, which means they must improve considerably next year and have a topnotch team the following one. While they did better than they expected in '38, beating Sarnia in a surprise win—they have a long way to go yet. In fact, they must hang onto the best of their 1938 players and bring in at least six more star gridders. Real stars. Or they'll be the doormat of the senior O.R.F.U. next season. That's a fact.

Dear Old School Days

Bill Walshe of Kingston comes right out an dsays Ted Reeve would like to get some grid stars to attend Queen's next year. Guys like Tony Golab of Sarnia, Sammy Sward of Beaches, Mike Loucks of Orfuns, Mike Meikle of Cobourg, and Joe Begley, the Lindsay husky who played here a year ago and for Cobourg last season. Chuck Peck, Cobourg coach, said he expected Begley and Meikle would enroll at Queen's, while Loucks was reported sitting pretty close to Ted Reeve at a downtown spot before the Dominion football final last Saturday in Toronto! So we wouldn't be too surprised if the Orfuns' dashing backfielder donned the Tricolor next fall.

An out-of-town dispatch tells of Nick Mercurio—he used to rassle pro in Peterborough—as being a gate-man now at Toronto Union Station. He's put on 35 pounds and is getting gray, but looks well. Nick is said to have toured Europe and picked up enough shekels as a "bad man" in the ring to be assured of steaks and chops the rest of his life. Very nice, eh?

And The Petes' Coach

Frank Buckland was named coach of the senior "B" Petes at a good-sized players' meeting in Duffus' last twilight. Close to 20 guys were on hand, with Manager Tommy Miller in the chair. Three nominees, Buckland, Bert McLeod and Lornie Rose. A bit of discussion and then Buckland was voted in—no one, aparently, objecting. The boys seemed to feel that Frank is a hard-working experienced official and would handle the club well this winter. He is a conscientious coach, who eats, sleeps and thinks hockey the year 'round. Has been piloting local junior and intermediate puck squads for four or five years now, and was formerly connected with Eddie Livingstone's junior Lions in Toronto. Buck's health wasn't the best last season and he confined his hockey to acting in an advisory capacity to Manager Pat Hayden of the junior Colts. But he's set now for a busy season with the senior "B" bunch. Congrats to him. It was a good choice.

* * * * * * *

Some of the prospective Petes who will see action against the Trappers in Owen Sound next Tuesday — in a charity exhibition fray — are: Whitey Dann, Earl McNabb, Archie Weir, Don Crowe, Joe McNulty, Red Creighton, Ray Picard, Eddie Starr, Honey Tompkins, Bun Kingdon, Jerry Creighton, Don Coughlin and Shrimp McDougall, along with a couple of others, most likely. Lorne Grey, Johnny Shields, Nicholls, Doug Brennan and possibly another one or two are probabilities, we understand, also. It being about the first time many of the locals will be on ice this year—and the strong Trappers having artificial ice—we'll be surprised if the Petes cop a win so soon.

A District Loop Likely

Senior City Loop hockey session last eve was pretty much of a flop, a slim attendance talking things over. So it looks like a district loop wil lbe lined up from Omemee, forgetting the local angle, and Art Williamson is calling a meeting for eight p.m. this Friday (tomorrow) in the Omemee rink. Those interested are invited. He expects to have delegates from Millbrook, Keene, Lindsay, Omemee, maybe Lakefield, and one or two from Peterborough. H. White and L. Allen may line up a crew from Westclox, and the Southenders are rather interested, we're told. Lots of good boys around town and it'll be too bad if there aren't a couple local teams in this district circuit.

Hither and yawn: Ray Picard, a new player here, was with Lions' juniors last season and St. Mike's before that....Nicholls hails from Hamilton, as does Johnny Shields — who played rugby for Orfuns....And Lorne Grey is from out west, but played hockey in Germany two years ago....Art Williamson, who piloted Omemee softballers in our loop last summer, will manage the Black Hawks this winter....Stan Adamson of C.G.E. shop bowling loop hit 303, 309 and 335 for a lovely 947 the other eve....Bill Morrison is getting ads and prizes from merchants for the Hockey Club program; lucky number prize draw at all home O.H.A. scraps this season....Monarchs may have their home tilts with Colts in Omemee or Lakefield....Peg Hurst played goal for Oshawa GM-men last p.m. and they fought Goodyears to a 3-3 tie....A Winnipeg item says the Florida hockey loop has been sanctioned by the Amer. Minor Pro Hockey Assoc.; how come, pro?....There is ice on the Quaker rink now and the Brock is coming along fair....Havelock has a bye into O.H.A. junior "C" group playoffs with the Belleville-Picton-Trenton-Napanee bunch....Belleville Redmen won last eve in Kingston to assure themselves of a VanHorne playoff berth....Joe Cooper again heads the gals' cage loop ....Big Chief Spit-in-the-Wind says: "Ugh, heap hard winter; hard times coming; no hard cider in cache!" Boston Red Sox Get Galehouse In League Swap

By Gayle Talbot
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 15 — (AP). — Having adopted a uniform ball and admitting the inevitability of night baseball, the big league magnates wind up their annual mid-winter gab-fest today in a joint appearance before Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis.

For the past two days the "Old Jedge" has been in seclusion, but today he will ask the boys to get down to cases and tell him if they actually have accomplished anything.

Early this morning General Manager Eddie Collins of Boston Red Sox announced the first deal of the meeting for the American League, whose members suffer principally at the hands of New York Yankees.

Collins made known he had traded Ben Chapman, veteran outfielder, to Cleveland Indians for Pitcher Dennis Galehouse and Infielder Tom Irwin. The exchange, Collins said, involved no money.

Some Aid On The Mound.

Collins explained the deal was sought to gain some pitching strength for Boston.

"We feel Chapman is much the best of the players involved and certainly our infield is pretty well set. But we needed some additional pitching and Galehouse ought to help us. We are figuring on Irwin only as protection."

Otherwise, the big news of the three-day gathering is the "compromise" on a uniform ball—one with the raised seams of the National League and the thin cover of the American.

This, perhaps, could be viewed as an effort to stem the Yankees' batting power, because the raised seams were found last season to give National League pitchers better control and to lend wider sweep to their curves. Yet demonstrations have proved that the ball travels just as far as the old lively sphere went hit solidly.

Night baseball broke down the final barrier when the American Leaguers granted Cleveland and Philadelphia permission to play seven noctural games each next season. The National League accepted the lights two years ago.

Moody Tops List Over Foxx For Comeback

NEW YORK, Dec. 15—(AP). — Heroine of the outstanding United States sports comeback of 1938 is Helen Wills Moody.

The talented San Francisco tennis player earn the No. 1 bracket in a close race with Jimmie Foxx, clouting first baseman of Boston Red Sox.

Twenty-four of 70 sports critics participating in the eighth annual Associated Press poll cast their first-place ballots for Mrs. Moody and her achievement in recapturing the Wimbledon championship after a three-year lapse.

Twenty-four other first-place votes went to Foxx for his recapture of the American League batting crown for the first time since 1933. But second and third place support swung the decision to Mrs. Moody, who rolled up 113½ points against 97 for Foxx. Points were awarded on a 3-2-1 basis, with each expert naming three comebacks in the order of his choice.

Blushing Violet Farr To Win Or Quit Fighting

POMPTON LAKES, N.J., Dec. 15 —(AP).—The years have not mellowed Thomas George Paal Farr and he still is heard, penurious and tremendously assured. He thinks he will beat Lou Nova, the promising California heavyweight, Friday night. If he doesn't he will quit the ring.

The Welsh heavyweight is as easy to get along with as a wildcat with a toothache these days. Heavy training has not improved his temper. He will, however, talk your arm off at the drop of a sparring partner.

"If I am badly beaten I will quit," he said yesterday. "I will know I have come as far as I can in the ring. I have a little money, not much by some standards, but man when I think of the days I didn't have a bob to my name it's like millions.

"But I do not expect to be beaten. I am entirely confident I can win."

Tommy is in wonderful shape. He is down to 203 pounds and will go in at 204 against Nova.

"I am in good enough shape to beat Mr. Nova or anyone else," said Farr, the blushing violet. "If Gunnar Barlund can knock him down I can knock him out."

Ramblers Defeat Pittsburgh Hornets

It's enough to bring tears to the eyes of the most phlegmatic coach the way Philadelphia Ramblers have been treating the opposition in the International - American Hockey League. Even when the teams hold the Ramblers from customary terrific scoring outbursts they still don't seem to be able to take the measure of the Philadelphia outfit.

Ramblers latest victory came last night when they topped Pittsburgh Hornets 1-0, while Cleveland Barons were winning by the same score over New Haven Eagles.

Victory for Ramblers put them two points ahead of Providence Reds for the lead in the league's eastern division. Barons, in winning, held to their third place spot in the western section.

Lloyd Roubell gave Ramblers victory with a tally from a scramble in the second period but it was great goaling of Bert Gardiner that kept Hornets off the score sheet. The Cleveland marker was scored by Phil Hergesheimer in the last period.

Scribe Fans Out On Huge Bonus

The Hot Stove League, which runs all winter, produces some odd tales of the diamond, and the following one—appearing in the St. Louis Sporting News—is as good as any:

Hy Turkin of the New York Daily News learned the other day that Outfielder Joe Medwick of the St. Louis Cardinals was not for sale "at any price"—and at the same time, the news brought Hy the realization that he would have an extra $10,000 in pocket money for Christmas shopping.

A few months ago General Manager Larry MacPhail of the Brooklyn Dodgers told reporters he had been rebuffed in an effort to buy Medwick for $200,000 cash. When eyebrows were lifted in polite surprise, MacPhail challenged Turkin: "If you can buy Medwick for me at $200,000, I will personally give you $10,000." Turkin wrote Breadon, but received the reply that "the one thing the Cardinals stood out for last year was hitting strength and we cannot weaken our one strong point and expect to stay in the '39 race."

Fortunately, Turkin had not gone beyond window-shopping in anticipation of a possible $10,000 windfall.

Britain is scrapping old prisons.

Aces On Offence

Art Ross has his Boston Bruins on the rampage again in the National League, and two of his best rampagers have been Dit Clapper, TOP, and Bill Cowley, BOTTOM. Rough and ready Dit, along with Ebbie Goodfellow, of Detroit Red Wings, was leading the league's defence men in scoring when the last official statistics were issued. Both had scored five goals. Cowley, play-making centre on the line with Charlie Sands and Ray Getliffe, has accumulated the most assists in the loop... and assists on Boston goals have been very, very scarce this year.

Chess By Mail A Long Game

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Dec. 15 — (AP).—All those gags about how long it takes to play a game of chess are too conservative. There's a match under way today that probably will not be over until late in 1942.

It's a correspondence tournament in which a United States team and one in England are battling by mail. Every move takes about a month for an exchange of letters—not counting time it may take the players to make up their minds.

Fifteen players on the United States team, captained by Arthur Lind of Cheyenne, Wyo., are scattered over 11 states. Each has an English opponent with whom he is carrying on his match by mail. The longest trip each "move" must make is between Seattle, Wash., and Lancaster, England.

Two games are to be played and there's an average of 30 moves per game. At a month per move that's 60 months.

Simon Schinneer, a railroad station agent at nearby Williamsville, is the Illinois' entrant. He said today the rival captains got together on arrangements and lined up their teams.

Radio broadcasts in Esperanto are being given in South America.

VARSITY TEAM DEFEATS TROJANS IN EXHIBITION GAME 8 TO 3

Scoring Opened By Visitors, Blues Hit Back

TORONTO, Dec. 15. — University of Southern California Trojans threw a scare into Ace Bailey's high-flying Varsity puckchasers at Varsity Arena last night, but it was only a scare, for the Blues came through with an 8-3 win in a rugged pre-season exhibition test.

The tall and hefty U.S.C. team went to work early in the game, and had the Toronto team trailing by one goal after three minutes of play. However, a penalty to Richardson gave the Blues their chance and they poured in three goals within thirty seconds just to make sure. The locals went on another spree a little later in the period, and Boddington and L'Heureux counted in quick succession to give Toronto a four-goal lead at the first rest period.

It was the first defeat of the present tour for the Trojans, who played in Cleveland on Tuesday night, and will meet Queens at Kingston to-night.

Beverly North and Al Fitzgerald, two of the largest and toughest defencemen ever seen here in college uniform, were the pick of the U. S.C. team, while Tom Callon, Bill L'Heureux, and Bob Copp played starry roles in the Blue cause.

TO PLAY IN FRANCE

PARIS—(CP)—The French Rugby League announces a representative New Zealand team will tour France next year.

Budge Voted Best—Henry, Johnny Follow

Three figures who attained international prominence in the world of sport, were voted the outstanding athletes in United States for 1938 in a poll conducted by the Associated Press. Top position went to Don Budge, central figure, ABOVE, who swept the world's tennis courts clear of opposition before turning pro in the fall. He won the French, British, Australian and American singles crowns, something no one else had ever done. Second place was captured by Hammering Henry Armstrong, LEFT inset, sensational Negro fighter, who, after winning the world's featherweight title near the end of 1937, added the welter and lightweight crowns to his collection to become the only fighter ever to hold three titles at the same time. He later renounced his rights to the featherweight honors. Johnny Vander Meer, RIGHT, inset, rookie southpaw with Cincinnati Reds in the National League, took third place in the poll on the strength of the two successive no-hit, no-run games he pitched early in the season.

Pop Lester Thinks The Patricks Have "Arrived"

By Alan Randal
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 15 — (CP). — Lester Patrick broke down today and, after considerable prodding, confessed to feeling the Patricks had at last "arrived" in the National Hockey league, now that Pop Lester bosses New York Rangers and sons Lynn and Murray play for him.

Lester, of course, would be less than human if he felt no swelling of paternal pride. But speaking strictly as chief of the Blueshirts' general staff, Patrick felt his boys had done well indeed, and under difficulties not encountered by other rookies.

"In general business a man gives his son a job and nobody says anything," Lester explained. "That seems to be what fathers are fore. But not in hockey.

"The few fans who couldn't realize these boys were good athletes long before they saw the N.H.L. found it hard at first to reconcile themselves to a Patrick playing for a Patrick. There seemed to be so many other hockey prospects around."

Actually, Lester pointed out, there was a dearth of good new talent in the fall of 1934 when Lynn, a forward, jumped to the Rangers from Montreal's amateur ranks. But that made it no easier for him.

Tough Sledding

"To those fans who believed Lynn was stealing somebody's job, his errors stood out more than those of his team-mates," said boss Patrick. "Eventually, though, it became evident that Lynn was a real hockey man."

"Muzz" had it easier when he became a regular Ranger defenceman this season. After three years' apprenticeship in the Patrick farm system his attitude was that of a professional. And by this time it was evident that nobody, much less a Patrick, got a berth with the Broadway Blues without earning it.

The Patricks only play hockey together—they don't talk it. The boss doesn't live with his sons and, as Lester made clear, shop talk is not the thing for visitors.

"Hockey — shop talk — has been taboo at our place for years," he said. "Of course, the boys occasionally bring up some point but for the most part it is during open forum with the team where suggestions are welcome from all."

Lynn shows more tendency to offer constructive suggestions than Muzz, sometimes flashing a streak of the acumen that stamped Lester and his brother Frank as hockey masters, even during their playing days.

There is this difference between the Patrick brothers now in the scoring summaries and the father and uncle who scored goals years ago. Muzz and Lynn play together. But Frank and Lester, aside from their single season with Renfrew Millionaires, were opponents, tearing at each other's throat.

Players Go At It Hammer and Tongs In Miami Loop

Latest fad on the sport scene across the line is hockey in Miami. Winter tourists, taking refuge from the wintry blasts of these northern regions, can now witness the old winter game in tropical surroundings . . . and the boys lay it on down there just as readily. The season opened just a few days ago and here's a goal-mouth scene from the game between Miami Clippers and Miami Beach, two of the four teams in the league that operates three nights a week from now till on into April . . . providing all goes well. The teams, of course, are composed of Canadian players and many figures once prominent in pro puck circles have places in the new organization. Buzz Cockburn, goalie for the Clippers, is the young man keeping out the puck and assorted opponents in this picture. Notice the gaudy uniforms the puck-chasers are decked out in.

G-Men Shake Goodyears' Record In 3-3 Overtime Tangle

OSHAWA, Ont., Dec. 15—(CP).—The strutty Toronto Goodyears can boast no more of an unbroken string of victories dating from the start of the Ontario Hockey Association senior "A" season. The end came last night in a 3-3 overtime tilt with Oshawa G-Men and the men of Manager Moose Ecclestone were hard-pressed to sidestep a loss after five straight wins.

Had it not been for the veteran Frankie O'Brien, who hasn't played much for Goodyears this season, the tilt might have been a home-town triumph. O'Brien, on the sidelines with an injured chest, scored the first two Toronto goals. Hank Goldup, high up in the league scoring records, scored the other in the third period to knot the count.

Len Chisholm snared the opening home counter in the opening period. Ray Covert and Doc Rowden made up the total in the second frame.

Jack (Regina) Tisdale of Goodyears suffered a broken nose in the second period.

LONDON—(CP).—Mrs. A. McDougall of London won the women's amateur billiards championship for the second successive year, defeating Miss G. M. Saunders 674 points to 563 in the final.

Ned Vitarelli Home On Visit

Ned Vitarelli, star forward of Baltimore Orioles in the U.S. eastern amateur hockey league, has returned home for a visit. The scrappy little puckist, who shone for the Petes in O.H.A. senior "B" company last winter, went to Baltimore the past fall with Coach Pick Hines and Bill Calladine—also of the 1938 Petes—and has been playing fine hockey to date. An injury to his face a few nights ago put him out of the game and he will remain in Peterborough till after Christmas before rejoining the Orioles. Calladine will be home this weekend for a few days visit.

Vitarelli, who was leading his league in scoring barely two weeks ago, says Calladine has finally got going—after a leg injury—and is in the thick of the race now for scoring honors. And he adds that Pick Hines is a popular coach with fans and players in Baltimore, and has the team playing excellent hockey and with a real spirit of harmony. Fans are being turned away practically every home game for the Orioles.

"It is a good rink with an extra large ice surface," Ned told The Examiner yesterday, "and has a bowling alley, recreation room and a tavern right in the building. The players are not allowed to gamble with dice or cards, but may take a glass of beer after a game." He stated that play in this league was quite rough with few penalties meted out for slashing, boarding or fighting. The team travels to New York by train—and stays over for the pro game at night—but goes to Atlantic City and Hershey by bus. Crowds at the amateur games in Madison Square Garden often reach 14,000 on a Sunday afternoon. Calladine and Vitarelli have an apartment together, and all the team spends much time together, when not playing or practising.

Remember When—

Professional hockey made its New York debut 12 years ago tonight with more than 19,000 popeyed Gothamites in attendance. Montreal Canadiens one of the National Hockey League's "originals," made the New York crowd gasp with their speed in defeating the Americans 3-1.

Frank Buckland Is Petes' Coach

Frank Buckland was appointed coach of the Petes in the O.H.A. senior "B" group which also includes Trenton Fliers and Belleville Redmen for the 1939 hockey season. The appointment came last night at a players' meeting in Duffus' nearly 20 prospective puckists turning out for the occasion. Lornie Rose and Bert McLeod were mentioned also as being available for the job, but there were no dissenting voices when Buckland was voted in as coach. Manager Tommy Miller of the Petes was chairman.

Aside from the appointment as coach, there was no business done at this session, though players to go to Owen Sound for the exhibition game with the Trappers next Tuesday were named. These included: Whitey Dann, Earl McNabb, Joe McNuity, Don Crowe, Archie Weir, Shrimp McDougall, Red Creighton, Honey Tompkins, Eddie Starr, Bun Kingdon, Jerry Creighton, Don Coughlin and possibly a few others. The team will get all expenses on this trip.

75 Persons Cheat Death As Crack Train Detrailed

Seventy-five persons miraculously escaped death and injuries when ten cars of the Baltimore and Ohio's crack train, the Fort Pitt Limited plunged from the rails east of Defiance, Ohio, throwing 75 sleeping passengers from their births. Several of the coaches turned on their sides and east and west tracks were torn up for several hundred yards. The Limited, an all-pullman train, was powered by two locomotives. It was believed the tender of the second engine was derailed first and turned crosswise of the tracks, derailing ten cars. Three women passengers were treated for bruises and lacerations at the Defiance hospital.

How A Nickel Bloomed In Kew Gardens

(By A Staff Reporter)

KEENE, Dec 15.—"Farmers have most to do with the beautification of the province. Next the people of the towns and villages, and finally the cities," said John Clark of the horticultural societies branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, to an audience of more than one hundred persons at Keene last night, in an address on home beautification, arranged as a special public feature of the short course in agriculture and home economics.

"All the blots, blurs and blemishes of the landscape have been manmade, and by the same agency they should be removed," Mr. Clark said, and presently picked up the main theme of his address which was illustrated with pictures in color of gardens and flowers in the British Isles and at home in Ontario all the way from Cochrane to Brockville.

Frank C. Paterson introduced Mr. Clark who received at the conclusion of his talk personal thanks from quite a number of the men and women in the audience.

Kitchener and Brantford

Roses tumbling over the thatched cottage of an English countryman, and the exact and exquisite formalism of the gardens on the estate of the Duke of Sutherland brought little exclamations of delight, but after all such refinements are expected of the Old Country. Perhaps, the most surprising pictures were those taken of public horticultural projects in Kitchener and in the Preston-Galt district. They left the impression that Central Ontario is being outpaced in civic beautification by their friends in the western section of the province.

Mr. Clark's address was punctuated with interesting bits if philosophy and opinion and fact that carried an additional effect of mild surprise.

"England has done more gardening and the growing of flowers than possibly any other country," Mr. Clark stated.

The weather, he continued, was on the side of the gardener and flower lover, and some of the blooms he mentioned were noticed in England and northern Ireland during the first week of January. By suggestions rather than by direct assertion, Mr. Clark indicated some of the things farmers could do to improve the beauty of their own premises, and thereby enhance their attractiveness and value. He stressed the value of trees, their commercial values and finally their place in the background of the countryside where they were indispensable.

Where Is The Gain?

Mr. Clark said that 12,000,000 evergreen trees were distributed and planted last year but in one month 5,000,000 were cut down for the brief period of Christmas. He expressed the opinion that trees cut from the woods were not essential to the spirit of Christmas in the home, and that children would not seriously miss them.

"The most important thing growing on the face of this earth is a tree," Mr. Clark declared, and enumerated some of its uses, rubber, edible fruits and nuts of many varieties, paper, rayon cloth, building materials and so on. "From the day a baby is born and placed in the cradle until the day he dies as a man and is placed in coffin, he is never out of touch with wood. To the young boys who are growing up may I say to you especially, never minimize the value of a tree. You can fell one in half an hour, but it might take nature fifty years to make one."

Five Cents In Kew Gardens

One of a group of pictures of Kew garden in London showed an expanse of lawn with trees beyond, and in the foreground a big floral urn set in broad circle of brilliant bloom.

"Beautiful isn't it!" Mr. Clark said. "Would it surprise you to know that the bed of Sweet William was grown from a package of seed that cost five cents? There is nothing to prevent any person in this audience from having a mass of Sweet William just as colorful as that one in Kew Gardens."

Incidentally Mr. Clark said he learned that there had never been a gardener imprisoned in the Hamilton jail, and rarely if ever had there been at Kingston a prisoner who had been a gardener. In fact it was something of a problem for the wardens of those institutions to find inmates who had sympathy or ability for gardening.

Another picture showed a child of two or three years with his nose in a tulip nearly as tall as himself, and his hand on the stem as if about to break it off.

"Never chastise a child for picking a flower," was Mr. Clark's advice. "Let him have it even if it is the last one in the garden. I should let him have it if it were the last orchid. Love of flowers is a natural disposition of children and should be encouraged."

Never plant peonies deep if you want them to flourish. The crown should be about level with the surface of the ground.

Rural Schools Drab

One of the drabest, most dismal things on the landscape is far too often the rural school, was another of Mr. Clark's aphorisms, and in contrast he showed the picture of a village school grounds in Ontario that was almost a model of beauty. The work was done by the children under the guidance of their teacher of agriculture, and was an example of what could be accomplished.

"If I had to make a choice and could have only one flower, it would be the Iris, the poor man's orchid."

"If the rose is the universal flower, I think the pansy should be the second choice."

"Imagine all the leaves of the trees. Yet, there are no two leaves alike. Nature does not make two things from the same mould. She throws the mould away after the first one"

"There are 200,000 trees in the city of Toronto; and 65,000 tulips in the flower beds of Queen's Park in front of the Legislative buildings. But, don't worry about the cost of those tulips. That part of the park is owned by Toronto who paid for the tulips."

Huntingdon Pack Kills 26 Sheep, Farmer Gets One In Trap

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Dec. 15.—Claimed to be from one of the pack of wolves that has been harassing sheep in the Township of Huntingdon, a pelt, light brown in color, flecked with grey, was taken into the office of the county treasurer on Wednesday by Samuel Palmateer residing in the municipality.

Enraged at the depredations of the pack, that has been responsible for the los sof 26 of his sheep. Palmateer set traps for the marauders one night and was rewarded with his catch. The pelt was over five feet in length and had a fine grayish brush.

The wolves apparently were not suffering from hunger. Palmateer stated, for after killing the sheep and gorging themselves they never returned for a second meal. The wolf caught in the trap was howling like a dog and growled fiercely as he approached to kill it.

Bonarlaw Friends Stage Party For McAdam Newlyweds

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BONARLAW, Dec. 15.—On Monday night a large number of friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Burkitt to welcome their daughter Gladys and her husband, Mr. Harry McAdam, who were married on December 3. The spacious home was packed to the doors.

At ten o'clock order was called and an address was read by Miss Jerine Thompson. Mr. McAdam spoke a few words of appreciation and invited all to visit them. Mrs. McAdam also thanked her friends for the beautiful gifts. Messrs. W. S. Stiles and Andrew Thompson also made short speeches. Several duets were given by Miss E. Gibson, Mrs. Ralph Heath and Garland Irwin.

Lunch was served at 11.30 p.m. and the remainder of the evening was spent in cards and dancing with music by Clark Haig and Wallace McInroy, with Stanley McInroy as floor manager.

The large table in the drawing room was heavily laden with useful and beautiful gifts. The party ended by singing, "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows."

Raps Londoners For Standeasies

LONDON, Dec. 15—(CP).—Lord Dickinson, presiding at a national Liberal Club luncheon, declared Londoners were not the sort of people to improve themselves. "They seem to me to suffer from a kind of perpetual pernicious anaemia," he said.

A guest at the lunch was Sir Charles Brassey who spoke on London and its traffic problems. Lord Dickinson said there was considerable risk that the monumental traffic report of Sir Charles would remain a monument.

"Londoners will never concern themselves about their own business unless there is a catastrophe." His Lordship went on, "and I am rather inclined to regret that Mr. Chamberlain interfered last month, because otherwise Hitler himself might have done what Sir Charles would like to see—raze a great proportion of London to the ground and give the engineers a chance of restoring the city."

Haven Erected For Acadians Now Deserted

NEWCASTLE, N.B., Dec. 15.—(CP)—Charles DesChamps de Boishebert, laughing French aristocrat who was the Robin Hood of New Brunswick, is almost forgotten and the island where he established a refuge for Acadians in the tragic days of their expulsion is deserted.

From 1756 to 1759 Boishebert led about 3,500 refugees to the Miramichi River haven. The island was named after him but in time the name became contracted to Beaubear's Island. Now, where the Acadians' protector built a town, no sign of a residence can be seen. The lonely, beautiful, pine-wooded island belongs to the past.

In Robin Hood manner the seemingly ubiquitous Boishebert stole from the British and gave the plunder to destitute Acadians. He would turn up at one place to attack an enemy force and then swoop into an Acadian village to lead the inhabitants to sanctuary before they could be banished from the land they had pioneered.

Lines of tired men, women and children were guided and encouraged by their gallant leader as they straggled through unfriendly woods to the island near here. He was more than a hero to the fleeing people.

Colony's Fate A Mystery.

What happened to Boishebert's colony is a mystery. One theory is that Wolfe's expedition destroyed the settlement. At any rate it had disappeared when James Fraser established himself in business there in 1790. His family held the island until 1838, when Joseph Russell, a shipbuilder, bought it.

Since then it has changed hands many times. The settlement became a busy place. It had a shipyard, schoolhouse, workmen's cottages and a large stone mansion. A road ran straight across the island, and horse races were held frequently on the stretch.

J. Leonard O'Brien now owns all the deserted island excepting Russell's burial place. The latter's descendants have a deed to this plot. The deed includes no provision for right of way, and legally the descendants cannot visit the grave without trespassing.

Russell, a Mormon, was one of the first members of that sect. He accompanied Joseph Smith and Brigham Young on the original trek to Utah. Years later Russell returned to New Brunswick to die in his native province. At his own request he was buried on Beaubear's island with his dog and gun.

Wrecked Ship Brought Leprosy

The grave is enclosed by thick stone walls with one iron-barred window. The roof has disappeared and a huge tree has fallen across the walls. A broken piece of the trunk lies on the grave. Time has effaced most of the headstone inscription but still legible is the name "Joseph Russel, L.D.S." (Latter Day Saint).

The island is separated from Wilson's Point by a narrow channel known as "The Tickle." Old graves at Wilson's Point include that of William Davidson, first English-speaking settler on the Miramichi.

One of the strangest ferry boats of all time once plied from Wilson's Point to Newcastle and Chatham. Its paddle wheels were turned by two horses trotting on a turntable on deck.

It is believed leprosy first came to New Brunswick at the time of Boishebert's colony. A vessel bringing food and clothing to the camp was wrecked on the south shore of Miramichi Bay. Men from the colony salvaged part of the supplies, and leprosy broke out soon afterward.

Panic followed. The afflicted, herded together like animals, were held under guard in one ramshackle building. A log stockade encircled the structure. Food on the ends of long poles was pushed through the stockade to the lepers.

Later they were moved to Sheldrake Island, 10 miles downriver, and still later they were taken to the present quarters at Tracadie.

Middle Ages Said Not So Cruel

NEW YORK, Dec. 15—(CP).—The darkest middle ages would be slandered by comparison with present-day dictatorships, Dr. Rustem Vambery, elderly Hungarian scholar, said on return here from Europe for a lecture tour after 30 years' absence. "The middle ages were not so cruel as are the dictators. The dictators have gone farther back to the stone age. The only language they understand is the mailed first," declared the noted criminologist who formerly lectured at Cambridge and Oxford Universities.

Outstanding among Hungary's liberals, Dr. Vambery in the past was responsible for many legal and judicial reforms. He is a noted historian and famous for his wit.

Museum Pays Honor To "Divine" Sarah

PARIS, Dec. 15—(CP).—A Sarah Bernhardt museum was inaugurated on the anniversary of her birth, Oct. 23, by Mlle. Jeanne Derys, in the apartment once occupied by the actress, near the Boulogne woods.

More than 1,300 objects from faded bouquets of violets which she wore on nights of triumph to the costumes in which she appeared in "La Dame aux Camelias" and "L'Aiglon"; fifteen hundred interesting photographs and a complete collection of posters and announcements, a detailed picture of her life—are housed in the museum.

Though it is known that Sarah Bernhardt was born Oct. 23, no one is quite sure whether it was in 1844 (as she insisted), or four years earlier as there is some evidence to believe. She died March 26, 1923.

MORE ABOUT—

France Arming

France's position clear to the German foreign minister, Joachim Von Ribbentrop, during the latter's visit to Paris Dec. 6 to 8, and that he had won German assurances that the Nazis were "not interested" in the Mediterranean.

Srategic points of the empire, including Tunisia and Corsica, will get a lion's share of the appropriations to strengthen naval bases, improve air fields and increase the army's strength.

France also has warned Germany in answer to Chancellor Hitler's desire for colonial expansion. No serious French observers believe anything will stop Hitler from taking Memel or Danzig if he wants them, but all are worried about the Ukraine.

Deputies who questioned Bonnet in the foreign affairs committee yesterday said he told them "France will fulfill all her treaty engagements with Russia and Poland."

Some deputies pointed out, however, that these "engagements" left France's hands free should Germany simply stir up the Ukraine to revolt and provide backing with arms and munitions. As long as German troops do not actually invade Russia, they said, France is legally free.

Mrs. Gable Surprised At Divorce Angle

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 15 (AP) — Clark Gable and his middle-aged wife have been separated three years, but she is surprised she says, that he is thinking of asking her for a divorce.

After the film star had indicated in a public statement that just about everything was arranged for the legal dissolution of his marriage, Mrs. Maria Gable went to see her attorney and announced:—

"It came to me as a complete surprise. I knew nothing about it until I read it in the papers. I have not talked to Mr. Gable and know nothing about his intentions."

Gable, known to be romantically inclined toward blond Carole Lombard, has asked a Los Angeles court to declare valid the property pact by which he paid his wife $286,000 since their parting in 1935.

The case is set for trial Dec. 21, with a ruling unlikely before Jan. 1, after which a divorce suit could be filed.

Since California law provides a year's wait between the interluctory and final divorce decree Gable and Miss Lombard would be unable to fulfill before 1940 their friends' prediction of marriage.

The 48-year-old Mrs. Gable recently said in a magazine article that she would give her husband his freedom "any time he wanted it."

Must Spend $30,000 In 90 Days

Herman Grieco, middle-aged cobbler, of Memphis, Tenn., who claims "I never wasted a nickel in my life," is faced with the problem of spending $30,000 inheritance in 90 days. The inheritance is in Italy and Italian exchange restrictions prohibit his taking the money out of the country. He can obtain a passport good for only 90 days. Shown with Mr. Grieco is his wife who will aid him in spending the money.

Beer For Fair Band Stirs Furore Among Lindsay Directors

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, Dec. 15—A consignment of beer, purchased by a Central Fair director for a visiting band at this year's Fair, was the subject of a heated discussion at a meeting of the Fair Board on Tuesday. The said director, it is understood, had no authority to make the purchase. A motion was introduced that the board pay the account and a letter of censure forwarded to the director for taking this responsibility upon himself. An amendment to the effect that the directors pay the account personally was introduced, and it was vigorously opposed. James Casey, of Valentia, ar ardent temperance advccate declared: "I won't spend any of my money to pay for booze. What would the people of Mariposa think if they heard that Casey was spending money in this manner? I cleaned up Mariposa forty years ago, and I won't pay for any booze. Why should this Board pay any director's debts." After expressing himself in this manner, Mr. Casey left the meeting. The matter was disposed of when one of the directors took up a collection among those present.

Newton Smale, chairman of the finance committee, reported a satisfactory year. The board, he announced, will be able to reduce its bonded indebtedness by a considerable amount.

The death occurred at Bobcaygeon Wednesday morning of George W. Taylor, notary public, and for many years clerk of the township of Verulam. He was in his seventieth year. Before his death deceased was clerk of the division court, secretary of Bobcaygeon Cheese Co., the rural telephone company and the Verulam Cemetery Company He taught the Bible class in Bobcaygeon United church for thirty-five years. He is survived by one brother and one sister.

Cobourg Road School Ransacked By Thieves

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Dec. 15 — On two occasions unknown persons broke into the Cobourg Road school and did considerable damage in the building. The first occasion was on Hallowe'en night, when books just purchased, and the pupils' note books and scribblers, were scattered about the room in an unsightly manner. Some thought this a Hallowe'en prank but when the school was broken into again during the past week, things look more serious.

On the last occasion they entered the school through the window as the door was locked. The teacher's desk, which was also locked, was pried open with a pair of scissors. The scissors were broken, the fire lit, blinds pulled down and everything left untidy.

Thieves, too, are active in the neighborhood as during the past week a Cobourg Road farmer lost a large flock of poultry.

MOVE IS MADE TO LICENSE GARAGES AND AUTO REPAIR SHOPS

Fair Directors To Consider Regional Show

The Department of Agriculture had received a number of complaints regarding the midway at the last Exhibition here, John A. Carroll, superintendent of agricultural societies for Ontario told the directors of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition Wednesday afternoon when he met them in the office of the local agricultural representative. Three were complaints, he said, in regard to the manner in which some of the games operated.

"There was also a girl show that wasn't too good," the superintendent said.

"It wasn't too bad, either," said one of the directors as a ripple of laughter ran through the room.

Mr. Carroll urged the directors to see that the regulations in regard to midways be lived up to and received the assurance of members of the board that they would willingly cooperate with the department to that end. He suggested that a committee of the directors be appointed to make sure that the departmental rules were observed.

Let People Watch Judging

Another suggestion made by the superintendent was that the educational side of the exhibition should be enhanced by encouraging and making it possible for as many people as possible to watch the judging of the livestock. He did not think it was fair to the exhibitors to have the judging of some of the classes done in the infield of the race track where it could not be properly seen. Cattlemen among the directors agreed with Mr. Carroll and as a result of the point being raised it is probable that temporary bleachers will be erected near the cattle and horse barns for next year's fair and the live-stock judging will be done there so that interested visitors can watch the proceedings in comfort.

Mr. Carroll in his address brought up the possibility of Peterborough being made a regional exhibition with entries confined to a named district. This he believed would be a step that would encourage local farmers to enter their stock.

Want Well Balanced Fair

The Department, he said, was not opposed to midways or the entertainment side of fall fairs. All it wanted was to make sure that the exhibitions were well balanced with proper emphasis upon the agricultural end.

Mr. Carroll concluded his address by telling of the visit he made last fall to a number of fairs in northern states of the union and comparing these exhibitions with our own fairs on this side. The outstanding feature of the American exhibitions, he said, was the important part given to junior farmers' work.

President Tom Brown was in the chair for the meeting and a vote of thanks to the speaker was moved by Mr. Brown and seconded by D. B. Faulkner.

Costa Rica entertained nearly 9,000 tourists and vacationists in the last year.

Tannery Worker At Omemee Is Badly Hurt

Samuel Smockum, 40-year-old employee of the North American Leather Company at Omemee was seriously injured in a peculair accident early this week. He is in Nicholls Hospital and his condition today was reported as fair.

The man was at his usual task in the tannery when his clothing became entangled in the handle of a revolving drum which is used for treating leather. He was carried upwards with the machine and jammed into a narrow space between the shafting and the drum itself. Fortunately the foreman, William Burgomaster, noticed the accident and immediately threw the switch cutting off the power.

Smockum was released and found to have a fractured pelvis, fractured ribs and numerous cuts. He was treated at Omeme by Dr. G. H. Montgomery, then taken to the hospital in Peterborough.

The accident mars a record which the tannery has enjoyed for several years, as this mishap is said to be the first major accident to happen in the factory.

Second Offender Is Given Six Months

John Cameron, transient, got out of jail on Thursday but he will not be able to do so tomorrow morning or again for the next six weeks.

Cameron after serving a seven day sentence for illegal consumption and regaining his liberty Wednesday ran into some more liquid refreshment and as a consequence was arrested on George street Wednesday night by Constable John Naples.

He pleaded guilty before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., to having been drunk and admitted a previous conviction a week ago so that he was treated as a second offender.

"This is no case for the minimum penalty," said Chief Newhall. "We had half a dozen complaints in a short time last night about this man begging and insulting people on the street."

Cameron was fined $50 and $4.50 costs with the alternative of six weeks in jail. He will take the imprisonment.

Man Charged With Theft Of Groceries

Stanley Clark was charged before Magistrate Langley in police court this morning with stealing a quantity of groceries from George Monahan of Oak Lake, Methuen township, on the night of Saturday, December 3, and pleaded not guilty.

Monahan stated that on the day in question he and his wife had bought some $20 worth of groceries and some rubbers for the children and had left them in two cartons in their car which was parked at the rear of the Duffus garage.

They were away from the place for half an hour, and as they came back they saw two men, one of whom was walking and wheeling a bicycle and the two had two cartons of groceries. The man with the wheel Monahan said was Clark. Monahan inspected his car and found the groceries were gone, and then he and his brother had set out in the car in pursuit of the men they had seen. They overtook them on King street near the Montreal House, and Monahan had claimed the groceries. Clark said that he had been hired to deliver the groceries, but finally handed them over. The carton the other man had was also given to Monahan, and Clark and his companion disappeared. Later Monahan said that he had seen Clark at the police station.

Leo. Monahan, who was with his brother at the time, corroborated his evidence, and the wives of the two men also gave similar testimony.

Chief Newhall swore that at the police station Clark had claimed that he did not know the man who was with him and had never seen him before, and Detective Sergeant Meagher testified that on the following day Clark admitted having been with Leo Tobin on the night before.

Court then adjourned for luncheon.

Youth Is Acquitted Of Theft Of Tire

Harold Coons of Smith township was found not guilty by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court today of having stolen a truck tire and tube from Elmer Worr, also of Smith township, on or about the 29th of October.

Magistrate Langley said that there was too much doubt in the case to warrant a conviction although the Crown, he said had come close to one.

Coons was defended by W. J. Arthur Fair.

The evidence of Elmer Worr was to the effect that on his way home from Young's Point he had lost his spare truck tire and two parts of his rack off his truck and later he had found the racks thrown over a fence. Some time after he had a conversation with Coons and the latter said he had found a tire of the same kind as Worr had lost and that he had disposed of it. Coons offered to pay him for the tire, Worr claimed, but only offered $15 and witness did not think that was enough.

To Mr. Fair, Worr said that he did not know that the tire found by Coons was the one he had lost. He valued his lost tire at $35.

Walter Magee who said that he sold the truck to Worr estimated the value of the tire at between $20 and $30.

Kenneth Reid, garage proprietor, Lakefield, testifie dto Coons bringing to his place a tire of the kind lost by Worr and of allowing Coons $12.75 on a bill the accused owed in exchange for the tire which the witness afterward sold to Thomas Hughes.

After Mr. Fair had made an unsuccessful motion for dismissal, Coons testified. He said he had found a tire and the racks and had taken the tire home and kept it a week. He said that he told members of his family and other people about it and had watched the Examiner to see if any lost tires were advertised. When no advertisement appeared then he had taken the tire to Reid's garage and had been allowed $12.75 for it on a bill he owed.

Cost of installing lights and posts along the rip rap around Little Lake would be in the neighborhood of $1,800, the Utilities Commission will advise the City Council. Such lighting would include a pole every 200 feet. The information was not asked by the council, but the commission is passing the word along "just one jump ahead of them," it was said.

Flooding of the basement of the Elite Grill recently by a burst water main last month, cost the Utilities Commission $65, it was announced at the Commission meeting yesterday. Ross Dobbin, general manager, said he had settled with Louis Yeotes, proprietor, for that amount, securing a release. The Commission had earlier advised Mr. Yeotes they would take the matter up with their solicitor.

PROBE CAUSE OF FIRE

Inspector D. A. Saville of the Ontario Fire Marshal's department, is continuing his inquiry into the causes of the fire that broke out Monday evening in Pattenick's store on George street. He arrived in Peterborough the following morning, has been working on the case since that time. He would give no statement for publication.

LESS GAS SOLD.

Gas sold this year by the Utilities Commission is down some 1,600,000 cubic feet from last year's total, and is 309,000 cubic feet less last month than in the same month in 1937, it was reported at Wednesday's meeting. Part of the decrease was laid to the closing of the Auburn Mill. Some 25 families have ceased to burn gas since the plant closed, it was reported.

DENIES OWNERSHIP

Miss Clara B. Dobbin, teacher at King George school notified the Examiner today that a car damaged by another while parked near the Post Office this week and reported to be her property, in the story was incorrect. The car was sold by Miss Dobbin last June and police who investigated the accident found Miss Dobbin's name still on the license record. Evidently the transfer although properly made was never marked on the records at the police station.

STORY MISSED

A resident of Haliburton who was in the city today related that a dandy news story which broke in Haliburton last summer was never written. He said in a sparsely settled section, a powder house well stocked with explosives was smashed when a car out of control smashed into it. There was an 18-year-old girl at the wheel and one corner of the structure was demolished. Sticks of dynamite were scattered but none exploded. The strange part of it is that this happened the day following the Dodge tragedy at Little Current.

TO INSTAL FLOOD FLIGHTS.

Night skating will be enjoyed this winter at Jackson Park's new rink, being erected now through the efforts of the Park Commission and the Winter Sports Committee. On Wednesday the Utilities Commission decided to instal four floodlights with 1,500 watt lamps on wooden poles on the east side of the artificial lake. Cost of the work will be about $250. "We would suggest that if we make this installation the Park authorities should put a watchman or caretaker to turn on the lights when needed and turn them off, and also prevent breakage of the lamps which cost $5 each," the Commission declared.

Egg Yolks Of Any Color Desired By Buyer May Soon Be Purchased In Local Stores

How would you feel if you ordered fried eggs for breakfast and the eggs were to wink balefully at you with green yolks.

This is quite possible and the experiment has been successfully carried out by Norman Henry of this city. The result is obtained by careful feeding of hens with special feeds, but the eggs have not been put to any use, they are strictly experimental eggs.

Not only can eggs with a green yolk be obtained but the yolk can be made almost any color. A true patriot may be able to have an order of eggs on July 1st in the patriotic shades of red, white and blue. The sons of Erin could request the green yolked variety for St. Patrick's Day, and an Orangeman who likes eggs for breakfast could certainly get some hen fruit with orange yolks.

There is a strong feeling among the people who saw the green and orange yolked eggs in the Examiner window that this colored egg business has a doubtful future because of its effect on people's nerves. They feel too that the influence it would exert on the community might be distressing.

This influence was exerted rather unintentionally in an American restaurant recently when a customer brought some of the green yolked eggs into his favorite restaurant and had them cooked for breakfast. Another man sat down beside him at the counter as the order of green scrambled eggs were brought from the kitchen. The man looked idly towards the eggs, then started. Next he put his hand over his head and suddenly peeped through his fingers, turning paler and paler the while. Finally with a last look at the meal, he got up and made for the door, shaking his head sadly and remarking as he went, "So help me, I'll never mix drinks again."

Power Of Bulbs Of George Street Lights Been Increased From 300 Watts To 1,000

Are downtown merchants and citizens in general favorably impressed by the increased power of the street lights on George street? Do they think the powerful lighting detracts from the attractiveness of store windows? Or do they not realize that the power of those lights has been greatly increased?

Those are the questions that were puzzling members of the utilities commission Wednesday. The commission recently jumped the size of bulbs from 300 watts to 1,000 watts on George street. Some claimed the result was too dazzling, that they spoiled the effect of brilliant shop windows. One member said that people he had spoken to had not noticed the difference until it was drawn to their attention. In any event, commissioners are wondering whether the increased brilliancy is worth the cost. The 1,000-watt bulbs will each cost $5 more a year to burn than the former 300-watt ones. They did not decide what to do

Santa Will Visit Millbrook This Saturday

Judgment Given In Tax Case

Judgment for the city in its action against E. F. Sheehy and the Toronto Savings and Loan Co. for payment of taxes due in the years 1935-6-7 on the office at the corner of Hunter and George streets occupied by Mr. Sheehy was given Wednesday afternoon by Judge Smoke with costs in favor of the plaintiff municipality.

The amounts of the judgment were for $480.65 against both defendants and $140.93 against Mr Sheehy himself. Judge Smoke also declared that the Toronto Savings and Loan Company was entitled to relief against Mr. Sheehy for any part of the amount of the judgment and also the cost of their defense to the action.

In written judgment His Honor found from the evidence that there was no duplication of payment of the sums of $85.59 and $95.08 by Mr. Sheehy as contended by him in this case, and also in his earlier discussions with committees of the council. It is recalled that Mr. Sheehy told the council he was willing to pay his tax arrears if he were given credit for the double payment of both these sums, which he declared he had made One of his statements was to the effect that he objected to "being stung twice."

Judge Smoke also found on another point raised in the trial that on December 23, 1935, there was owing by Mr. Sheehy the sum of $111.23 with respect to taxes for 1933, and that the amount was properly credited against taxes owing by him for that year.

W. F. Huycke, K.C., City Solicitor, conducted the case for the city.

City Solicitor Instructed To Prepare Bylaw

Indication that the city intends to have control over garages and repair shops in Peterborough was given at the finance committee meeting Wednesday night, when the city solicitor was instructed to prepare a bylaw calling for licensing of all garages, repair shops, and shops where auto accessories are sold.

The proposed bylaw, which will have to come before the council for approval, was introduced by Ald. G. N. Gordon and passed without a dissenting voice. Ald. Gordon said that, though a fee of $5 will be attached to the license, its purpose is not to raise money, but to give the council full control over such places of business. At the present time, he said, such shops are at liberty to start up anywhere in the city without regard to private property. In future none will be given licenses except in sections of the city deemed suitable for their business. Each owner will have to procure a license from the city council, and the council will have power to cancel the licenses it issues.

Ald. Gordon told the committee he had been in touch with Hon. P. W. Dewan, Provincial Minister of Agriculture, in regard to a loan to aid cities desirous of increasing marketing facilities. He had no comment from Mr. Dewan as yet other than acknowledgment of his letter. He told the committee that under the Dominion Marketing Act the Federal Government will advance a proportion of the cost of refrigeration and air conditioning installation. Such provision prevents dumping of goods left over at the end of a day's sale, tends to keep steady the price of produce.

The Ontario Government has no provision in regard to market costs and Mr. Gordon was suggesting to Mr. Dewan that some means should be available by which a municipality such as Peterborough could borrow, at a low interest rate and over a long period of years, money on debentures for the purpose of increasing marketing facilities in a municipality.

Royal Visit To Canada In 1939 Recalls Famous Tour Of India

Next summer King George VI and Queen Elizabeth will come to their people of Canada, the visit making history as the first occasion a British monarch and his consort have crossed the seas to greet their subjects in a self-governing Dominion of the "free association of the members of the British Commonwealth of Nations."

In the 900-year story of the British dynasty since William the Conqueror, probably the nearest thing to a precedent for their Majesties' 1939 tour of Canada is the memorable journey of the King's illustrious father George V and Queen Mary—now the Queen Mother—to India in December, 1911. There at the Durbar, they were crowned again Emperor and Empress of India, following their coronation in London, June, 22, 1911.

It was before India received her present charter of self-government and no reigning King of England had ever visited that vast eastern Empire. King George and Queen Mary sailed on the Medina, a liner manned for the time with naval ratings, in honor of "The Sailor King," The Canadian Press recalls.

Every detail of the visit was accompanied with that gorgeous splendor to which both the climate of India and the temperament of its people are so amply adapted. The Imperial Camp for the Durbar covered an area of 25 square miles. The troops on parade numbered 20,000 and outside the ampitheatre a mound was constructed to accommodate 50,000 natives.

Announced Reforms

George V at that time announced reforms in India by the British government of the time that caused displeasure to some of the more conservative minds in India government—Lord Curzon, for instance, a previous Viceroy. The capital was transferred from Calcutta to Delhi, a governorship was created for Bengal presidency. These were but two of the important changes.

Sedition was raising its head in India in 1911 at the time of their Majesties' visit. A year later there was an attempt to assassinate the Viceroy, Lord Hardinge.

The historians agree the presence of the King and Queen at the Durbar helped to defeat hopes of some European nations that British authority in the East would be imperilled if Britain entered a European war. The resonant answer came in August, 1914, and the four succeeding years, when India astonished the world with its display of militant loyalty.

George V journeyed to Northern Ireland in 1922 and to Scotland many times but the trip to India in 1911 remained his only visit as sovereign to more distant parts of the Empire. But his inspections of the trenches of Flanders in war-time brought him in contact with the troops from the overseas Dominions. Of even broader token, in a popular way, were his periodical radio broadcasts to the Empire, with the personal touch of greeting simultaneously and alike to the duke in his castle and the lonely settler on the fringe of the Arctic.

Touching the hearts of his people in what was probably the widest appeal of all his messages was the last Christmas greeting (1935) of the King: "It is good to think that our own family of people is at peace with itself and united in one desire to be at peace with other nations—a friend of all and enemy of none ..." His Majesty voiced his "truest Christmas wishes and those of my wife (Queen Mary), my children and my grand-children who are with me today," for similar family gatherings in the uttermost parts of the Empire. The King died Jan. 20, 1936.

Edwardian Travels

The present King's grandfather, Edward VII, who reigned from 1901 to 1910, did much travelling around Europe and earned the title of Edward the Peacemaker. His success "as a promoter of international friendliness and the advantage of so efficient a type of kingship attracted universal attention," says one writer of the period. It is also remarked: "The royal hand was to be seen in the progress of foreign affairs in a manner somewhat new to old-fashioned politicians."

Edward VII confined his overseas journeys to other nations of Europe. He paid no visits to the British Dominions. When Prince of Wales, however, he was in Canada in 1860 as "Lord Renfrew." He spent 17 weeks in India in 1875. His son, then Duke of York (afterwards George V) with the Duchess (later Queen Mary) was given the duty of inaugurating the Commonwealth of Australia in 1901. The Duke and Duchess visited Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and Canada during that tour.

Edward VIII (now Duke of Windsor) during his brief reign from Jan. 20 to Dec. 10, 1936, like his grandfather, the last previous King Edward limited his travels to the European continent. To Canadians the most important of those European visits was on the occasion of the Vimy Ridge Memorial unveiling July 26, 1936.

But when Prince of Wales his tours of the Dominion brought him the title of "ambassador and salesman of the Empire." He was, perhaps, the most popular man in the world when he ascended the throne.

Made Many Tours

Less than a year after the Armistice in 1918 Edward as Prince of Wales began a round of travels that took him within 10 years all over the Empire and to many foreign countries. In 1919 he made his tour of Canada and paid a brief visit to the United States. Next year he went to New Zealand and Australia. In 1921 he travelled to India and Japan. Subsequently he visited South Africa, South America and East Africa, also Canada and the United States again, having become a landed proprietor in Canada with his EP ranch near Calgary.

The present King, while a sailor prince, was in Canada in 1913 with a party of young officers from the cruiser Cumberland. Before and during the War he visited many British Empire ports in the course of his naval career.

Married in 1923, the King and Queen, then Duke and Duchess of York, paid a visit to Northern Ireland and later journeyed to East Africa and the Soudan, spending Christmas with the Governor of Kenya at Nairobi.

Around World On Cruiser

In January, 1927 ,they went round the world in the battle cruiser Renown, visiting Australia, New Zealand, Jamaica and the Fiji Islands. One of the Duke's duties on that occasion was the opening of the new Australian parliament buildings at Canberra. Twenty-six years previously his father, George V had opened the first Australian federal parliament at Melbourne.

It is recalled that Queen Victoria, who reigned from 1837 to 1901, while no overseas traveller herself, was very much in favor of her heirs and heirs-apparent touring the Dominions to meet all classes of her subjects in their home countries. One of her last acts before her death Jan. 22, 1901, was to officially approve of the itinerary of the Duke and Duches sof York (later King George and Queen Mary) on their round-the-Empire trip of that year.

Houde Again Elected In Montreal

Gone With The Wind To Be Longest Film

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Dec. 15.—(CP)—Choice for the role of Scarlett O'Hara in the movie version of Margaret Mitchell's "Gone With The Wind," had narrowed down to five or six stars, including Katherine Hepburn, Producer David O. Selznick said here.

Selznick, who came to Bermuda to see the world premiere of "The Young In Heart," will finish the script of "Gone With the Wind" before he returns to the United States. He expects to be back in Hollywood Dec. 1 and filming of the picture will begin early in January.

Two of his ace script writers, Mrs. Barbara Keon and John Swerling, have joined him at Southampton to complete the sequences for the film.

The screen version of Miss Mitchell's best seller was destined to make the biggest stir filmdom had seen in many a day, Selznick said. It would be in color and would run for more than three hours—twice the length of the average full feature film and longest yet produced. Its 17,000-foot run will top by about 2,000 feet "The Great Zeigfield."

One of the immediate results of the Nazi victory in the Memel elections (a victory seen as a prelude to the return of that territory to Germany), President Antanus Smetona, ABOVE, of Lithuania, issued a special decree "for protection of the state" at Kaunas.

Last Of Lake Fleet Head For Berths

TORONTO, Dec. 15—(CP).—Last stragglers of the 600-strong fleet of Great Lakes vessels are headed to-day for the last tie-up of 1938, closing out a season of brisk business and extraordinarily good weather that held until the end.

In another day or two scorcely a vessel will be operating, even on short runs. Summer insurance rates ended December 1, and four days ago the last vessels leaving port were insured. Only unusually mild and calm weather brought a few vessels out on short runs on the Lower Lakes.

Navigation on the Welland Canal closed Saturday after establishing an all-time high record for traffic, largely the result of heavy grain shipments from the lakehead ports of Fort William and Port Arthur. Freight traffic on the canal amounted to 12,449,543 tons, compared with the 1937 total of 11,747,950.

Sault Ste. Marie and St. Lawrence canals also reported exceptional, though not record, late-season traffic. Bay port elevators are jammed with wheat as they have not been in several seasons. Ore and soft coal shipments helped to make the season-end shipping heavy.

E. R. Shirley Plans To Seek Re-election To Utilities; Progress 12 Years Reviewed

Hydro Commissioner E. R. Shirley, B A , B.Sc , will stand for re-election on New Year's Day he announced today. Mr. Shirley's three-year term of office and his twelfth consecutive year of service, ends this year.

An electrical engineer at the Canadian General Electric plant here for more than twenty years, he has had a wide experience in his profession. He was assistant superintendent for the British Canadian Power company at Cobalt at one time; then he was an electrical engineer for the Canadian Exploration company; later he was superintendent of the Lawrentian Power company in Quebec. He has brought to the Peterborough Utilities Commission a thorough knowledge of his field, and is considered to be a valuable man.

The following account of Public Utilities commission in Peterborough during the past twelve years, which time Mr. Shirley has been in office, was prepared by him and shows the thorough knowledge he has of the workings of the commission.

Peterborough Public Utilities 1926 to 1938

The past twelve year period has been one of prosperity for Peterborough's public utilities and has been a source of great satisfaction to the members of the Utilities Commission.

During this same period the world has passed through one of the worst economic depressions of modern times.

Electric Department

The electric department has shown a phenomenal growth as evidenced by the capacity of the Aylmer street substation.

In 1926 this station had a transformer capacity of 4500 K.V.A. In 1938 the transformer capacity of the station has been increased to 12,000 K.V.A. or nearly three times as great.

This has brought us close to the limit of possible expansion for the Aylmer street substation. The problem of further substation facilities must therefore be given serious consideration in the very near future.

A second 44,000 volt incoming line was completed from Auburn to Aylmer street substation over a different route from the previous existing line. This assures duplicate incoming primary service over two different routes and is a very valuable addition to the electric system.

The secondary distribution system is being gradually rebuilt in the most modern manner. The work is being carried out as finances and conditions permit.

From 1926 to 1938 some 29 miles of lines have been rebuilt.

The street lighting system has been almost entirely reconstructed. The old magnetite arc lamps and the 60 watt incandescent lamps have been replaced by high candle power incandescent units with special reflectors and diffusers.

A capacitor was installed in Aylmer street substation for power factor correction and has been the means of saving many thousands of dollars annually by preventing power factor penalty.

Free installation of water heaters was commenced in 1933. The number installed as to October 1938 was 1470.

Free range installation was commenced in 1936 and the number installed at October 31, 1938 was 248.

In 1936 the domestic service charge was abolished and in 1937 a reduction made in the domestic first rate. The elimination of the service charge and the reduction in the first rate resulted in a saving of approximately $17,700.00 to domestic consumers over the two years 1936 and 1937.

The average K.W. hours per domestic customer per month was 66 in 1926 and 170 in 1937.

The net cost per K.W. hour for domestic customers was 2.2 cents in 1926 and 1.2 cents in 1937.

A considerable amount of rural construction has been carried on for the H.E.P.C. in the rural districts surrounding Peterborough This has resulted in a large amount of extra employment and extra revenue for the electric system.

From January 1931 to October 31, 1938 the total labor sold the H.E.P.C. for rural work amounted to $66,962.56. For the first ten months of 1938 the total labor sold the H.E.P.C. for rural work reached $19,678.82.

The Utilities Commission collected 10 per cent. plus 6¼ per cent. on above total as profit.

Power interruptions have been limited, almost entirely to failure of incoming primary power which, of course is beyond the control of the Utilities Commission.

For the period from 1928 to November 1938 there were 21 interruptions. The total duration amounted to three hours 4½ minutes.

No debentures have been issued since 1927.

Waterworks Department

Plant and equipment are in excellent condition and giving splendid service.

A duplicate discharge pipe was added at the pumping plant from the duplicate pressure mains outside the building right to the pressure pumps. This gives a complete duplicate pressure system and assures continuity of service under almost any conceivable condition.

The large vertical pump in the pumping plant which had caused a lot of trouble and was about worn out, was replaced by a modern water wheel driven unit delivering 4½ million gallons per day as against the former three million gallons.

This pump did exceptional service during the dry, hot summer of two years ago when it was called upon to perform almost continuously.

The large force main around the west end of the city was completed to Lansdowne street and Monaghan road.

A large number of dead ends have been cleaned up and one third of the water services relaid.

A park has been developed at the filtration plant with illuminated fountain and wild life sanctuary.

No debentures have been issued since 1924. All expenditures since then have been paid out of revenue.

Fire protection charges to the city have been reduced from $32,127.66 per year in 1929 to $20,000 per year in 1936 and subsequent years.

Domestic water rates have been reduced approximately 5 per cent and the third meter rate from 6 to 5½ cents per 100 cubic feet.

In 1932 all frontage rates amounting to $2,000,000 per year, were cancelled and rates reduced by cancelling the second meter rate.

In 1937 the charge for building purposes of $1.00 per room for all new houses was abolished. The vacancy charge for buildings and vacant lots was also cancelled.

200 gallons or one ton of water is supplied the consumer for approximately two cents.

This was taken over by the Utilities Commission June 1, 1929.

The gas plant and system are in splendid shape and have been operating very efficiently.

An iron fireman was added for automatic stoking of the gas generator. This has resulted in very considerable economy and has helped in abating the smoke nuisance.

The system has been improved by the cleaning up of dead ends, relaying of old services and the addition of valves to the distribution system.

Original rates were: service charge 45 cents per month and consumption charge $1.65 per 1000 cubic feet.

These have been reduced to service charge 45 cents and consumption charge:

$1.45 per 1000 cu. ft. for first 10,000 cu. ft.

$1.35 per 1000 cu. ft. for next 50,000 cu. ft.

$1.00 per 1000 cu. ft. for all over 16,000 cu. ft. per month.

The original purchase price was $335,000.00. Serial debentures were issued for thirty years.

Interest and principal for 1938 amounts to $21,100.00.

The salient points in connection with the gas department 1929 to the end of 1937 are as follows:

$24,526.32 spent on plant distribution system debentures reduced by $59,000.00; depreciation fund of $82,533.00 set aside of which $35,000.00 is in marketable securities; rates reduced.

Tunis Police Protect Italian Consulate

A squadron of police protects the Italian consulate in Tunis, as thousands demonstrated to show their loyalty to France. The demonstrations took place following the agitation in Rome for the acquisition of Corsica, Tunis, Savoy and Nice, as Italian property. At present all are French possessions.

Crippling Rheumatism

Rheumatism leaves in its train distorted joints, crooked limbs, crippled hands, and the intense pain is almost unendurable.

In the beginning rheumatism is often due to dyspepsia or indigestion, for if the digestive organs did their duty there would not be any poisonous uric acid in the blood to sow the seeds of rheumatism.

Burdock Blood Bitters invigorates the system, and helps to eradicate the uric acid from the blood which is the cause of the inflammation and pain.

Give B.B.B. a chance to help you rid your system of rheumatism.

BY OREN ARNOLD

CHAPTER 26

IF YOU WALK atop the long Galveston sea wall from the Crystal palace and the roller coasters and the Hotel Galvez, out around the graceful curve at the end of the island, you will come eventually to one of the largest hospitals in the world. It is John Sealy hospital, named for a philanthropist, famed for distinguished service and for being a valuable adjunct to the Texas university medical school, in the adjoining blocks.

Down one of the hospital's white tile corridors now was an air of some excitement, caused by a knot of people who clung near the entrance to one suit. Mr. and Mrs. Diehl were there, three newspaper men, a photographer and a beach life guard, now in street dress. Sara Sue Davis and Bob Towne saw this group when they turned into the corridor, but their first hurdle was an efficient looking floor nurse, who blocked their way.

"Whom did you wish to see?" the nurse asked.

"Dr. Holgate," said Bob.

"Sorry. No admission. He is unconsicious anyway."

"But I must go to him!" Sara Sue pleaded.

"You can do no good now. May I ask who you are?"

"I am Mrs. Sara S— We are relatives. I-I'm his sister!"

Bob turned then to look at Sara Sue. He had never heard her lie before, even a white lie. He wondered again at her intense interest here. But he gamely echoed, "Relatives," supporting her.

"Well—" the nurse weighed that. "I suppose you are entitled to stay, at least. But you can come now only to the sitting room. He has a suite, you know. Under no condition can you go into the bedroom unless accompanied by Dr. McGill, who is in charge. He is with the patient now. Also two nurses. And be absolutely quiet, please."

The light in the sitting room was dim. A nurse closed the bedroom door when they stepped in, and then snapped on another light.

"Oh!" said Sara Sue, taken aback.

"H-hello, Peaches," Bob greeted Miss Pomeroy. She was sitting in a wicker rocking chair, face pale, staring up at the newcomers. She did not speak at first.

"H-how is he?" queried Sara Sue, scarcely above a whisper.

"He may be dying."

They all looked at the bedroom door.

"Better sit down, Sara Sue," Bob urged. "We'll see Dr. McGill after a bit, I imagine."

"He doesn't know any more. I just asked him," Peaches declared. "It will be a long time, several hours, before he will know. . . . Why did you come? I mean—"

It seemed to dawn on all three of them at once that their positions were somewhat strange, that no one of them really belonged there, keeping potential death watch beside a new Rice professor.

Here was Geraldine Pomeroy, and Bob Towne, the Rice man she was supposed to be engaged to in months past. And here was the widow Davis—she who had appeared like a romantic bombshell near the Rice campus this fall, upsetting Geraldine's plans, distrubing everybody for good or bad. Bob had openly and often avowed his love this fall not for Peaches, but for Sara Sue. Peaches had gone out of her way one night to insult Sara Sue. And Sara Sue had, secretly, been coaching Dr. Thornton Holgate, in wooing Peaches!

Only Sara Sue knew all of this, of course. She glanced now at her enemy, and Peaches looked away.

"Well—" Bob tried lamely to talk. But the situation was rather strained. It always is in a hospital emergency ward, for that matter. And here he was with an ex-sweetheart and a new girl he loved. He pressed his lips tightly together.

"It is not a moment to—think of personalities," Sara Sue announced, sensibly. "I would like—Bob and I would like—to know what happened. We read an extra edition of a Houston paper, hurriedly. That's all we know. Would you—?" She looked at Peaches.

"He saved the little girl first," Peaches began, not looking directly at either of them, but at the wall. Her face seemed to wear a pout. "I mean, he kept her from drifting away and drowing. Then the mother jumped on him. She was about to drown herself, trying to save the child. Thornton had to fight both of them then.

"He was marvelous. I thought he was running away, at first. I even yelled 'Coward' at him. But he was doing a wise thing. He ran out on the pier and dived in, where he would be closer to the child. I think he is wonderful."

"Then what?" Bob probed.

"Well, of course some more people saw it. I was crying, and shrieking around, I guess. Somebody—two men—put out in a rowboat. I guess it was a sort of lifeboat there where they rent the floaters. But the waves were awfully rough, and these men weren't good at it.

"They got the child, then the woman. While they were lifting the woman into the boat, a wave knocked Thornton against the oar lock. It hit his head, and knocked him unconscious.

"They almost never got him out, then. Of course he was almost drowned. More people had come. A first aid squad was nearby and an ambulance came, and—well, we all came here. I made them give him the best suite in the hospital. There were some others in our party. But they have gone home."

They sat silent for quite a while then. Presently Dr. McGill came out of the sick room, looking over his glasses at Bob and Sara Sue.

"Um. You may as well all go and get some rest," he suggested, brusquely. "It is past midnight. We can notify you of any important change. He is desperately ill, but we are doing everything possible."

A nurse had heard him, and she spoke now. "This is the patient's sister, Dr. McGill. Miss—I did not get your name, please?"

"Davis, Mrs. Davis, said Sara Sue, blushing. "And this is Mr. Towne."

"Well, you may stay here if you'd rather," the doctor ruled. "But there is no reason to disturb him. He would not recognize you, probably, for some time yet. The suite, of course, is designed for relatives, so you can have cots brought here if you like. But do nothing to distrub the hospital routine."

With that he was gone. Sara Sue bit her lip, trying to think. Bob and Peaches looked at her.

"Sister!" said Peaches. Then, contemptuously, "Why did you lie to get in? What is Thornton Holgate to you?"

"Listen, Peaches," Bob broke in, "You can't sit here and—"

"It's all right, Bob!" Sara Sue put out a hand to restain him. She looked pleadingly at him now.

"It's true. I did lie. But the reasons for doing so were my own! I see no reason to have a scene here."

Peaches Pomeroy had, of course, been under a nervous strain. She herself had been up late the previous night, dancing, drinking. She had been swimming, which is fatiguing to one not in best physical condition. Then she had witnessed a near tragedy, had been through the excitement of the rescue and the subsequent efforts to save Thornton's life. Strain always made her not only weary, but irritable as well. And then—to cap it off—here came the two people who had hurt her pride most.

"What reasons?" she demanded now. "Reasons! You probably have a reason for everything you do. Or think you have. Have you been lying about all the other things, too, Mrs. Counsel in Romance?" Peaches' voice could sting, when she wanted it to. "You've been ever since school opened! You're not even a student, you're nobody socially, you haven't got—"

"Peaches! Stop it!" Bob Towne literally growled it at her, glancing at the sickroom door. "This is no way to act! You don't know what you're saying. And this is no place. You're acting like a cat when you don't know anything abou—"

"BOB! No!" Sara Sue shook him. "No more talk, please. Come on!"

She led him out, thence back down the corridor. And she was sobbing into her tiny handkerchief, feeling very miserable indeed.

DOROTHY DIX

If Husbands And Wives Were More Frank In Their Discussions Of Conduct Toward Each Other There Would Be Fewer Trips To Reno And Like Places

WE TRY to dignify and justify divorce by pretending that it is a great tragedy brought about by some unforgivable wrong that a husband or wife has done to the other.

But this is an alibi we concoct to save our faces. In reality we all know that where there is one divorce for infidelity or brutality or any other major sins, there are a hundred for peevishness, grumpiness, selfishness, boredom, the craving for adventure, or just because a husband or wife loses his or her taste for the party of the other part.

Divorce is bad enough, Heaven knows, but I often wonder if it is not less painful and less demoralizing than those marriages in which a disgruntled husband and wife drag along through the year the chain that binds them together, while they quarrel and argue and antagonize each other and fill each other's lives with bitterness and strife. Divorce is the surgeon's knife that cuts away a gangrened limb. Sometimes the patient recovers from the operation and has years of happy life. Sometimes he dies. But in either case he escapes the long, drawn-out torture of those who make marriage an earthly purgatory for each other.

Now if these fighting couples were villains; if they found a sadistic pleasure in making each other miserable, there might be some logic in their conduct. But such is not the case. Nearly always they are good, kind, conscientious men and women, anxious to do their duty and oftener than not they still love the husbands and wives they so mistreat.

This raises the question: Why do they do it? I think the answer is: Because they don't know that they do it. Apparently husbands and wives never get a close-up of themselves after marriage. In the days of courtship they have lovely visions of themselves as perfect husbands and wives, but after marriage they never check up on their performances to see whether they have delivered the goods or not.

They don't make the effort to get along with their matrimonial partners that they do with their business partners. They don't think it worthwhile to waste any tact, or even politeness in dealing with a mere husband or wife. They don't even try to find out if there is something about them that irritates their mates and that keeps them at cross purposes, and that makes every word a fighting word so that neither one can say "it's a pleasant day" without starting something.

It is in this ignorance of themselves that the daily spat, which makes so many homes a perpetual battleground instead of a place of peace and love, originates. For not many men, with malice aforethought, make their wives unhappy. Nor do many wives deliberately alienate their husbands' affections from them. For most married people who make each other miserable one might well say, as Jesus did of two other sinners: "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do."

• • • • • •

Perhaps the cure for this appalling situation in which the punishment is always so much greater than the crime is just a little frankness between husbands and wives. Perhaps if the husband could tell the wife just what it was about her that was disillusioning him and driving him to other women, she would mend her ways. Perhaps if the wife could tell the husband what he did that got on her nerves and made her think longingly of Reno, he would refrain from doing it.

But the husband does not dare to tell his wife that the reason he has ceased kissing her is because he has no appetite for cold cream. That the reason he puts on his hat and steps out after dinner is because she never reads anything, or has anything to talk about except the price of butchers' meat and the baby's formula. That he is so fed up with being nagged about what he shall eat, and putting on his overshoes, and being reminded to watch out for automobiles, that he is coming to hate her as a tyrant instead of loving her as a wife.

Nor can a wife tell her husband that the reason she has got cranky and hard to live with is because she is starving for love and flattery and he takes her for granted. That the reason she is snappy at breakfast is because it irritates her to hear him sing in his bath. That the way he eats an egg nearly drives her to murder.

If only husbands and wives could tell each other frankly what they want and don't get from each other, it would do a lot to promote happy marriages. But such is the weakness of human nature that the one person from whom no man or woman will take criticism is his or her wife or husband.

For Friday, December 16.

A day of great opportunity and progress is forecast from the prevailing planetary influences. There should be fine openings for the attainment of high ambitions, made possible by the friendly and liberal co-operation of those of prestige and important place or authority. It is a time for planning major objectives with assurance and determination.

Those whose birthday it is are on the brink of a year of important opportunity for advancement, enhanced prestige, popularity and the attainment of high goals and ambitions. Personal contacts and preferment of those in place and power may be counted upon for reaching such objectives.

A child born on this day may be capable, versatile, and ambitious. It is likely to reach high place and prosperity through its personal worth and dignified and dependable character. It may be lovable, charitable and may figure in public esteem.

GOODNIGHT STORY

By MAX TRELL

You have no idea how hard Alphonse, the goldfish, tried to make friends with everybody. He lived in a little square aquarium which stood on a table near the window of the children's room.

Whenever he saw the children come into the room, he'd swim up to the front glass of his home and, nodding cheerfully, say: "Good-morning! Pleasant morning, isn't it? Wouldn't you like to drop in and have a visit?"

But the children didn't seem to understand what he was saying. They'd exclaim: "Look! Alphonse is opening and shutting his mouth. He must be hungry."

So they'd drop a little food on top of the water for Alphonse to eat. Then he'd sigh. "They don't want to have a visit with me. Well, I might just as well eat this food."

He tried to make friends.

Mrs. Cat Comes In.

One fine day though, he got some company he didn't like. He was gazing out of his front window as usual when all at once he saw Mrs. Cat come into the playroom.

He swam up and down joyfully.

"Good morning! How are you? Isn't it lovely to-day? Won't you drop in for a visit with me?"

Mrs. Cat didn't really understand what Alphonse was saying any more than the children did. But the more she looked at him, the better she liked him. She stroked her whiskers. Finally she sprang to the table. She put her paw in the water.

Shake Hands With Claws.

At first Alphonse thought she was trying to shake hands with him. That seemed very friendly of her, and he was pleased. But suddenly, as he swam near, the paw came slashing at him. And the sharp claws were out!

"Oh!—I don't like you! I don't like you!" he cried. He swam with all his might to the bottom and hid as much as he could in the thick of the plants.

Fortunately, the children came in at that instant. Mrs. Cat sprang down at once and hurried out of the room.

Alphonse felt much relieved. Perhaps it wasn't so wise to have company after all. Perhaps he was much better off being lonely. At any rate, he certainly didn't want any folks like Mrs. Cat dropping in.

Riel Survivor Dies Overseas

IPSWICH, Eng., Dec. 15—(CP)—Charles Frank Gayfer, 82, last survivor in England of the Riel Rebellion of 1885, has died here. He had been drawing a disability pension of 55 cents a day from the Canadian government for sunstroke suffered in the Qu'Appelle Valley in the summer of 1885 while serving as a private with the Manitoba Grenadiers.

Born in England, Gayfer went to Canada as a youth returning to his homeland just before the outbreak of the Great War.

This leaves but one veteran of this campaign on the books of the Canadian government pensions bureau here. He is Trooper Valentine Bruce of Boulton's Mounted Brigade. Bruce now lives in Newcastle, Natal, and draws a pension for gunshot wound suffered in a skirmish at Fish Creek in April, 1885.

Better than the old-fashioned mustard plaster, Musterole has been used by millions for 30 years. Recommended by many doctors and nurses. Made in Canada, in three strengths: Regular, Children's (mild), and Extra Strong. All druggists, 40¢ each.

Comedy-Drama Presented By High School

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 15.—Only those who were fortunate enough to procure their tickets well in advance were able to see the opening performance of "Hands Up" a three-act comedy drama presented as the feature attraction at the annual High School Commencement. The students came through in their traditional manner presenting a program of high class entertainment which citizens of this town have long ago come to realize was the outstanding event of the year so far as entertainment was concerned. Nor can praise be confined to this realm alone for many years citizens have realized that Campbellford High School is a widely known secondary school. Known principally because of the enviable record it has achieved in academic work and rating with the best schools in the entire province.

Long presented shields and trophies to the students whose high academic standing won recognition for them at the June promotion examinations and he added his personal congratulations to both the students and members of the teaching staff. Claim Canadian Bakers Making Only 5 p.c. Profit On Turnover

WINNIPEG, Dec. 15 — (CP). — Bakers in Canada are not making more than five per cent profit on their turnover, or about one-third-of-a-cent a loaf, G. A. Morris, vice-president of Ogilvie Flour Mills Company, Montreal, said today before the prairie markets conference.

Mr. Morris replied to criticism voiced yesterday in the conference against an apparent discrepancy between Canadian and European bread prices.

While bread for example might be selling for 6½ cents a loaf in Germany where wheat was $2.28 a bushel, Mr. Morris emphasized that one required similar conditions before making a comparison. One had to know not only the formula used but the price actually being paid for flour by the bakers.

In several countries, governments were not passing on to the baker the whole price being paid to the farmer. This was the case in Canada, where the market price was less than that guaranteed to the farmer.

Some Facts Needed

To make a comparison it was necessary to know, too, what were the wages and taxes paid, whether the bread was sliced and wrapped, whether delivered.

Since the baker got 270 pounds of bread from 196 pounds of flour, generally speaking, flour had to drop to $2.70 a barrel if bread was to drop one cent a loaf.

"Our bread in Canada is, in my opinion, the best quality in the world," he said. "The same quality cannot be produced in Germany for 6½ cents a loaf (one pound) with $2.28 wheat. Nor could it be made in the United Kingdom for four cents even if the flour was given away."

In Winnipeg, the best quality one-pound loaf, wrapped, sliced and delivered, costs eight cents. Unwrapped, the same loaf sold at seven cents. A second quality, sold in stores only, sold at seven cents wrapped and sliced, or two for 13 cents. Unwrapped, this sold in stores for six cents, or two for 11 cents.

In some cases, bread was sold here for five cents and in one case for four cents.

Laughing At Italy

LONDON, Dec. 15.—(CP-Havas)—A group of British students today staged a burlesque of Italian demands for French territory by marching through Gordon Square in Bloomsbury behind a big banner proclaiming "We Want America!"

A large crowd was attracted by the students who chanted in unison and rang cow bells to arouse attention.

Married Woman Wins Teaching "Hold-Out"

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Dec. 15.—(AP).—Mrs. Susan Edwards, who refused during a four-month "hold out" contest to exercise her women's prerogative to change her mind, was the winner to-day over the Brownsville School Board.

Mrs. Edwards was married before the opening of the present term in September. The Board advised her it did not want to employ married women teachers but she refused to resign.

While the Board named substitutes to eteach her classes, Mrs. Edwards sat in a tiny "office" in the junior high school and read. Since she reported daily, fulfilling her contract, the Board was powerless under the State's Teacher Tenure Law to dismiss her.

Yesterday the Board gave up and announced Mrs. Edwards would be returned to her classes after the Christmas vacation.

Havelock Commencement Proves One Of Season's Highlights

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Dec. 15. — Before an appreciative audience of parents and friends, the students of Havelock High School held their annual commencement exercises last evening in the Town Hall auditorium. Scholastic and athletic prizes won during the year were presented as a part of the interesting program, which was supervised by the teaching staff, Principal R. W. Goheen, B.A., and assistants, Miss G. B. Thomson, B.A., D. C. Drinkwalter, B.A., and H. C. Renaud.

Instrumental numbers were provided during the evening by Randall Ellis, violin, and Kenenth Buchanan, guitar.

An amusing comedy entitled "Aunt Sophronia at College," directed by Principal R. W. Goheen, climaxed the night's entertainment, which included songs by the High School choir under the direction of H. C. Renaud, with accompaniment by Mrs. G. Wright; pyramid building, tumbling, and instrumental music by the students.

Graduation diplomas were presented by Principal Goheen to the following students: Junior graduation, Eileen Brisbin, Ruby Johnson, Beulah Leng, Doris Menzies, and James Watson; Senior graduation, Howard Harnden, Debra Longmuir, Marie McQuigge, and Lois Scott.

Howard Harnden gave the valedictory address, having obtained the highest aggregate of marks on graduation.

Awards Presented.

The Dr. J. D. Holdcroft Proficiency Shield annually awarded to the student completing the Junior matriculation course with the highest standing, was captured by Eileen Brisbin. Proficiency awards were also made to Claude Watson Grade X., and to Hildred Akins, in Grade 1x, first in their respective classes.

Field day awards were presented by H. W. Roche, vice-chairman of the High School Board. Marjorie Jamieson received the A. Leeson & Son Trophy for the senior girls' championship, while Warden Griffith got the Hubbel Hardware Company Trophy for the senior boys.

Junior athletic championship cups were presented to Laura Menzies and Merle Clarke.

Characters in the play, "Aaunt Sophronia at College," were taken as follows: Marian Clark by Eileen Brisbin; Hazel Greene by Betty Mathison; Eleanor DeLancey by Betty McLauchlin; Lucy Bonner by Jean Rogers; and Alice Miner by Lois Thompson, all co-eds at Blankton College; Walter Bronson (Aunt Sophronia) by Merle Clark; Percy Longman (Uncle Ebenezer) by John Clark; Fred Landers (Uncle Jerry) by Graydon Harris; Ned Hollister (Uncle Hiram) by Wallace Buchanan; Miss Sophronia Louise Fletcher, the real aunt, by Ruby Johnson; Professor Brownley, Principal of Blankton College, by James Watson; and Bridget O'Reilly by Anne McNeely.

The plot revolved around the fact that just when a "spread" had been all planned the co-eds of Blankton College were all advised that they must not thereafter entertain their boy friends in the college. The boys devised a plan to stage the party on schedule time, and came dressed as the uncles and aunts of the girls. The appearance of the real Aunt Sophronia caused complications, which she eventually managed to smooth out satisfactorily for the younger generation. All parts were well portrayed, providing many laughs for the audience.

A fine exhibition of tumbling and pyramid building was given by both the boys and girls, the latter perhaps proving more effective on the stage with their smart black and white uniforms. The girls were coached by Miss Thomson and the boys by Mr. Drinkwalter. Members of the gymnastic teams were:

Girls— Betty Mathison, Lois Thompson, Jean Rogers, Helen McMullen, Marion Forsythe, Leota Brisbin, Dora Ketchen, and Doris Thoms; Boys—Carl Pollock, Bill Cartwright, Glen Price, Harry Gordon, Ken Chaplin, Elmer Jamieson, R. Dafoe, Ted Yeo, Wallace Buchanan, J. Drew, Ken Buchanan, and Randall Ellis. Two clowns, Douglas Hill and Guy Weese added a touch of comedy to this portion of the program.

Pick White Pine Seeds For Hitler

BOSTON, Dec. 15.—(CP).—Civilian Conservation Corps boys in Massachusetts climbed to the treetops in Massachusetts and picked 324,486 white pine seeds for Hitler.

Hitler will get his consignment through a Dr. Schenck at Hasse, Darmstadt, who asked for them, as soon as the necessary clearance papers can be obtained from the German consulate in Boston. All that Hitler wants is pure seed, minus blister rust and parasites. He will pay the import duty on them.

The boys also picked 16,234,981 seeds for the Massachusetts Department of Conservation.

"It's a hard world for the white pine in Massachusetts," said Frank J. Sargent, a state forester. "Birds and rabbits pick the seed as it sprouts; white grubs and wire worms attack its young roots, and winter killing is not infrequent."

Mr. Harry Northrop presided at the brief business meeting, which was followed by a delightful Christmas program consisting of "Christmas Airs," sung by five girls; piano solos by Marion Downer, Agnes Maycock and Doris Strickland; a violin solo by Catherine Corkery, accompanied by Francis Wells, and an interesting talk entitled "How Music is Taught to the Blind," by Norma Hughes. Refreshments were served at the close.

A handicraft lesson was given by Mrs. W. L. Hardwicke to the young business women of the Y.W.C.A. '38 Club on Wednesday evening, when many pretty and fascinating Christmas gifts were suggested to the girls. A guitar solo was played by Miss Jean McIlwain. The meeting was conducted by the president, Miss Mary Wallace. Miss Leta Brownscombe, garbed as a jolly Santa Claus, laid gifts which each girl had brought on a decorated Christmas tree. At Christmas these presents will be distributed among the children who attend Y.W.C.A. classes. The January fourth meeting will take the form of a sports night.

Young People Have White Gift Service

A white gift service was held by the Young People's Union of George Street United Church at their closing meeting, which was opened with the call to worship by Miss L. McDougall. Prayer was led by Lloyd Richards and the Scripture read by Miss Norma Rennie.

We Noticed

The crisp, clear air and sparkling sunshine of Wednesday was truly holiday weather, and shops were crowded with folks hurrying to complete Christmas lists. Presuming that you are just about ready to start the fascinating task of tying up your purchases, here's a suggestion or two.

❖ ❖ ❖

....Try wrapping gifts in plain white crepe paper and tie them up with the very wide cellophane ribbon—make the bow very full and then slash it into a fringe with the scissors—it makes a lovely big pom pom atop your package. Some very smart packages may be made by wrapping your gift first with plain green or red paper, then folding a broad band of patterned paper about the centre and fastening it with gold or silver stars.

❖ ❖ ❖

....We've seen some packages so much like their donors that there was scarcely any need for a name on the card inside. Try it ....it's fun!

Flemming—Carr

The marriage of Betthe Mae Carr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Carr of Brechin, to Mansell Flemming, sixth son of Mrs. Thomas Flemming and the late Mr. Flemming of Brechin, formerly of Dartmore, was solemnized at a quiet ceremony performed in the Presbyterian manse in Orillia on Saturday afternoon at four o'clock, December 10.

The bride wore a wedding gown of white duchess satin made on long princess lines with high collar and a row of white pearls from the back of her collar to her waistline. She wore silver sandals and silver rose buds in her hair.

Mrs. Ross Flemming of Orillia, sister-in-law of the groom, attended the bride, wearing a gown of brown satin with beige accessories. Mr. Wilfred Flemming of sebright, brother of the groom, acted as best man.

After a short honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Flemming will live in Udney.

Blezard—Finlay

A pretty wedding ceremony was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Finlay, R. R. No. 5 Cobourg, on December 1, when their daughter, Annie Margaret, became the bride of Mr. Ross Clarence Blezard, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Blezard of Baltimore, R. R. No. 2. Rev. W. E. S. Smith of Grafton officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in blue, and carried a sheaf of large pink chrysanthemums and baby's breath. She was attended by Miss Gertrude Blezard, Reg. N., of Port Hope, who wore navy sheer with pink trimming, and carried single pink chrysanthemums. The groom was attended by Mr. George Ellsworth of Millbrook.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where the bride's mother received in a gown of black crepe with corsage of mauve flowers. The mother of the groom wore a black gown with velvet trimming, and corsage of white roses.

For travelling the bride wore a green wool suit with green accessories, and a brown coat. On their return from a brief wedding trip they will live just east of Cobourg.

THE FRENCH INFLUENCE

By PRUNELLA WOOD

We're going sissy on and around the beach at southern resorts, and it's all Jacques Heim's fault, it seems. This Paris designer mixed ruffles and sand last summer, and reports lace as one of the smartest trims seen at Cannes this winter.

His two-piece blue linen play suit, sketched today, is edged with Irish crochet! The separate, wrap-around skirt is box-pleated the width of the flap pockets, and is banded around the waist for a neat-fitting midriff. The blouse is cut all in one with shorts, pleated fore and aft.

Blue Bouquet For Bridal Luck

"Something blue" has long been considered lucky for the bride, though one is unacquainted with the origin of the superstition. She is going further nowadays, however, than merely introducing a little suggestion of blue quite unobtrusively. She is choosing a blue bouquet. How is she always to find blue flowers in season? Art is to come to her aid. Small flat eucharistic lilies not unlike narcissi, are to be colored blue by a secret process—neither painting nor dyeing. These are to be arranged in a "falling" bouquet and will tone with the ice-blue satin of the bridal gown, train and veil.

George Street W.M.S. Elects Officers

The Christmas meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of George Street United Church was held in the board room with a large attendance of members. The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. A. I. Brown, who called the members' attention to the importance of the conference that is now being held in Madras, India, and urged them to remember it in prayer and thought.

Reporting for the Sick and Visiting committee, Mrs. J. W. Hales stated that 147 calls were made during November and December, and Mrs. H. Girven's report for the Strangers' committee showed that 66 calls had been made.

The Bible lesson was read by Mrs. W. H. Cunningham, and Mrs. W. H. Morton and Mrs. M. C. Parr led in prayer. For the nominating committee, Mrs. J. Fairbrother presented the following slate of officers for 1939, and on motion of Mrs. J. W. Kelly and Mrs. W. J. Routley, the report was adopted in full, and is as follows:

Hon. Pres., Mrs. E. W. Coons; past pres., Mrs. W. Morton; pres., Mrs. A. I. Brown; 1st vice-pres., Mrs. A. F. Lane; 2nd vice-pres., Mrs. H. G. Walker; 3rd vice-pres., Mrs. Roy Parnell; rec. sec., Mrs. J. Fairbrother; corres. sec., Mrs. E. E. Harvey; treas., Mrs. J. A. Spencer; Christian Stewardship and Finance, Mrs. E. G. Wellwood; Community Friendship, Mrs. Herb Girven; Sick and Visiting, Mrs. J. W. Hales; Literature, Mrs. W. Morton; supply secretaries, Mrs. F. Mather, Mrs. W. H. Cunningham; press, Miss E. Might; Temperance and Christian Citizenship, Mrs. George Helson; Missionary Monthly, Mrs. H. S. Powers, Mrs. J. Douglas; pianists, Mrs. W. P. Purdy and Mrs. M. C. Parr; associate helpers, Mrs. Hatherley; Mission Circle, Mrs. H. Dulmage, Mrs. W. McMillan; C.G.I.T. Affiliated Group, Mrs. Leo Copp; Mission Band, Mrs. J. M. Beatty, Mrs. Lloyd Ash; Baby Band, Mrs. Ross Davidson and Miss Margaret Fairbrother.

A prayer of consecration for the officers was led by Rev. M. C. Parr, who also gave a Christmas message based on the story of the Christ Child. A nicely rendered chorus by the Mission Band was given under the direction of Mrs. Parr, and accompanied at the piano by Miss Mary Lillow. The meeting was closed with the Benediction.

Do You Know?

It is a good plan to save the threads which are drawn from new linen when it is being hemmed? They can later be used to darn the linen when age and weakness attack it.

❖ ❖ ❖

When covering a work table or kitchen cabinet with oilcloth try putting on with paste in place of tacking. It will be so firm that it will wear five times as long as the usual way.

❖ ❖ ❖

When brass or copper saucepans or the letter-box become badly tarnished they may be easily cleaned by applying a paste of one part flour, one part salt, three parts vinegar? If a higher polish is desired, a regular brass polish may be used, but the former paste is economical and effective.

To Relieve Bad Cough Quickly, Mix This at Home

Does the Work in a Hurry. Saves Money. Easily Mixed.

Here's an old home remedy your mother used, and, for real results, it is still a very dependable thing for distressing coughs. Try it once, and you'll swear by it.

It's no trouble at all. Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments until dissolved. No cooking is needed—a child could do it.

Now put 2½ ounces of Pinex into a 16 oz. bottle, and add your syrup. This gives you 16 ounces of really superior cough remedy—more than you could buy for four times the money. It keeps perfectly, tastes fine, and lasts a family a long time.

This splendid home mixture has a three-fold action. You can feel it take hold at once. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. This explains why it gives such prompt, pleasing results.

Pinex is a compound containing Norway Pine, in concentrated form, well known for its prompt action on throat membranes. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

WOMEN'S WORK AND INTERESTS

Purchasing and Preparing Of Fowl for Christmas

(By MARY MOORE)

Next week Christmas dinner menus Christmas holiday snacks will be featured, for the predominating question running through most of my mail these days is "What will I serve for Christmas meals—and how will I serve it?"

I want to answer you too but I have promised methods of dressing, stuffing and roasting turkeys, duck and geese and so many of you have asked for these fowl prepartion details I have to do my duty.

To buy a turkey—Look for broad full breast and pliable smooth black legs when purchasing. The neck should be short, and spurs should be soft and loose. A hen turkey weighing 10 to 12 lbs. is best.

To buy a goose—Buy a goose with a yellow bill as one with a red bill is old. A firm, thick breast, and soft fat yellow feet are signs of a well fed young goose. Geese that are old can be unbelievably tough so use care in selecting yours.

To buy a duck—Note that the breastbone is soft and almost transparent and when tried the under bill will break easily. The windpipe will break if pressed between the fingers, in a young duck.

If it is humanly possible have your butcher or your egg lady dress the bird. This job is just one too much for any household that doesn't boast at least two cooks. No matter how well I organize our Christmas dinner preparations it always seems to me that everybody else is safely tucked away in bed Christmas eve and I am still pulling away at the pin feathers of our turkey (besides—I am whispering—a few pin feathers more or less left in his skin never show when he has come through the roasting process.)

Okay then, he's dressed, that was easy. Now for the stuffing, and I have a slight variation for you.

Have I mentionel Sweet Basil on the page lately? It's a new spice for me. It is so mild and sweet I know you will be readily converted.

Emem's Stuffing for Turkey

The crumbs from 1 stale loaf of bread, ½ inch cubes from 1 fresh loaf of bread without crusts, (use two whole loaves in all for a 14-lb. bird), 2½ teaspoons salt, 1 tablespoon sage, 3 tablespoons sweet basil (crushed leaves), 1 cup very finely chopped celery, ½ teaspoon black pepper, ¾ cup to 1 cup butter, ½ cup grated onion, 2 tablespoons chopped parsley, 2 eggs well beaten. Melt the butter in frying pan and very gently saute the onion and celery in it until they are transparent, then add the parsley and stale crumbs and move about in the pan until the crumbs soak up the butter.

Now put this and all remaining ingredients in a large bowl and mix well. The egg should be added last after it has been beaten for about 5 minutes, yolks and whites separately. Do not be afraid of the large amount of basil used, it is mild and a general favorite. Use stuffing to stuff neck too.

Many housewives know how to sew up and truss a turkey but you novices should know that you use your largest coarest darning needle and strong string and sew the skin together using an over and over stitch.

For those of you who have no covered roaster a nice idea which eliminates basting is to soak a piece of double cheese cloth in salad or cooking oil, and spread this over the bird, tucking the edges inside the pan. This bastes and protects bird from burning from top.

Allow 25 minutes to the pound for birds over 15 lbs. Allow 15 minutes to the pound for birds under this. A little extra time will not hurt, but does make the bird too tender to carve easily.

Giblet Gravy

When turkey is done remove it to hot platter. Strain drippings in pan into sauce pan, add 6 tablespoons flour and stirr until flour is blended, then add 3 cups liquor from boiling giblets until tender and stir until it thickens. Chop giblets as finely as possible on board, and add and stir until all is hot. Add salt and pepper to taste. If gravy lumps because there was too much liquid in the drippings and not enough fat, strain it before adding the chopped giblets.

Stuffing for Duck or Goose

Four cups stale bread crumbs, ½ cup minced fat salt pork, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley, 2 teaspoons grated lemond rind, 1 teaspoon powdered sweet herbs (marjoram, thyme, sage, sweet basil, etc.) grating of nutmeg, ½ cup grated sour apple, ½ cup chopped peanuts. Saute the apple, lemond rind and parsley in the salt pork for 2 minutes, then add ½ the crumbs and gently saute them, then add all ingredients in one bowl and mix together well.

The above stuffing containing peanuts will give you timid ones some pause, but take a tip from the voice of experience and try it.

Roast Duck

Allow 12 to 15 minutes to the pound for young duck. They should be set on a rack in a roasting pan (duck and goose can be made less fat if the skin is given a good washing in soda water, 1 tablespoon baking soda to each quart of lukewarm water—before stuffing). If no trivet is used in pan pour liquid which forms in pan off and use hot water for basting during greater cooking period.

Roast Goose

Prepare and cook like roast duck allowing 18 to 25 minutes to the pound according to the age of goose. A mature bird will be tenderer if it is steamed 1 or 2 hours before roasting. Goose and duck are delicious if orange juice is used for basting during the last hour.

Apple sauce, using cider in which to boil the apple, is delicious to serve with both duck and goose.

Watch for menus for Christmas meals next week.

Home and School Association News

KING GEORGE SCHOOL.

Current events were discussed at the Tuesday meeting of the King George Home and School Association, at which the president, Mrs. M. J. Swanston, presided.

Interesting moving pictures portraying Edgar Guest's poems in story form were shown by the Central Finance Corporation, and proceeds are to be used for Christmas cheer.

The attendance banner was won by Miss Moore's room, with nine mothers present. "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing" was sung by the members with Mrs. W. Thompson at the piano, and the meeting closed with the National Anthem.

CONFEDERATION SCHOOL.

Mrs. T. Monk presided at the December meeting of the Confederation Home and School Association, which was opened with the Lord's Prayer.

A splendid financial report was given by the treasurer, Mrs. A. Millard, and reports were given from the various conveners.

Mrs. W. A. Naish was convener of an evening of games that was recently held in the school, and was assisted by Mrs. A. Millard, Mrs. L. Monk and Mrs. F. Hopkins. The deep appreciation of the Association members for the way in which this evening was handled, resulting in a fine success both socially and financially, was expressed to Mrs. Naish and her committee.

The school principal, Mrs. H. V. Jackson, announced the school concert which the children are giving in Knox Church Lecture Hall on Thursday, December 15, commencing at seven-thirty.

Under the convenership of Mrs. J. Milby, the Association is providing oranges and candy to the children on the closing day. The attendance banner was won by Miss O. Johnston's room, and the meeting closed with the National Anthem.

Mrs. Thos. Barrie Is Hostess To The W.C.T.U.

The spirit of Christmas was paramount in the W.C.T.U. meeting, held Wednesday afternoon, at the lovely home of Mrs. Thomas Barrie, at 757 Water street.

A large gathering of the representative women of Peterborough, whose interest is drawn toward temperance, were present to enjoy the inspiring Christian program.

Mrs. Barrie received and welcomed the ladies, and Mrs. Harold Rehill, the president, graciously presided over the meeting, which opened with the singing of the hymn "It Came Upon the Midnight Clear." The accompanying scripture lesson read by Mrs. J. A. Spencer, was chosen from St. Luke's gospel, and Mrs. J. H. Rowe offered earnest prayer, with all joining in the Lord's prayer.

A delightful group of piano solos by Norman Hurle was enjoyed and heartily encored as were the temperance readings contributed by Joyce Bridcott, the Peterborough County W.C.T.U. gold medalist in oratory. "Christmas in India" as told by Mrs. C. M. Scott, the guest speaker, brought a vivid picture of our best-loved festival as held in that far-off country. Mrs. Scott supplemented her story by pictures and interesting samples of writing paper and made her hearers realize that among the Christians at least Christmas has become a real day of rejoicing there as it is here.

There, too, it is chiefly observed by the young people who gather to decorate for the celebration. The decorations may either be bought for this occasion or made, as they are here. Many interesting details were given of the holiday as observed in India and were thoroughly enjoyed as Mrs. Scott's message contained much personal experience and bore the impress of first-hand knowledge.

Mrs. N. Whittington in her beautiful Christmas solo "Night of Nights" brought the story of the great gift afresh to an appreciative audience. Interspersing the other numbers Christmas carols were sung with Mrs. E. W. Glover, as accompanist throughout the afternoon.

Vote of Thanks Tendered

Voiced by the president, the thanks and appreciation of the local W.C.T.U. was tendered the hostess, Mrs. Barrie for kindly hospitality, to the program committee for the fine entertainment provided and to each one who had a share in program to which Mrs. Barrie responded.

Fees and donations were received and concluded another happy Christmas meeting of the W.C.T.U. Mrs. S. Wildman; Sec., Mrs. J. W. C. Elliott and Mrs. S. Wildman.

Tea was served by Mrs. C. E. Kennedy and members of her committee, and a social hour followed.

Gay Wrappings Enhance Charm of Gifts

Because of the wealth of beautiful paper, tags, seals and ribbons provided for wrapping Christmas gifts, it is possible to dress your gifts in so attractive a manner that those who may receive them will hesitate to destroy their beauty even to reveal the hidden treasure within.

There are some gorgeous cellophane papers in clear bright colors—wrap your package in these and tie with gold or silver ribbon. Tie little silver bells in the bow of a package that is wrapped in silver paper.

Use the cunning paper printed in quaint designs of animals or toys to wrap the children's gifts. They will have almost as much fun afterward looking at the pictures as they have with the gift concealed.

If You Are Run Down Or Depressed, You Need
Haliborange
Vitamins A, C and D
IF you catch cold easily and have a tendency to get run down and depressed during the winter, you need Haliborange. Haliborange is rich in the three essential vitamins A, C and D, which you need to restore your vitality and build resistance to winter ailments. It is made of Halibut Liver Oil and the juice of fresh oranges, treated by the Allenbury process. No fishy taste or odour. Its orange flavour is delicious. Cod Liver Oil is good and Halibut Liver Oil is better, but the combination of Halibut Liver Oil (vitamins A and D) and Orange Juice (vitamin C) in Haliborange is best of all.
Try Haliborange Free
Buy a 5-oz. bottle of Haliborange with the free sample attached. Try the sample for tasting. Then, if you are not absolutely satisfied with its taste, return the 5-oz. bottle to your druggist and he will refund the full purchase price of 75c. The 5-oz. bottle contains about two weeks' treatment.

would have acted wisely if it had called Parliament at that time? I do not believe there is one here who would say that.

The China Situation.

"A year before we were criticized for not calling parliament when the Brussels conference was studying the situation in China." The facts subsequently disclosed indicated, the Prime Minister said, how carefully the government was required to act.

"The present administration, if it appears to be acting with a greater show of caution than some would like, it is doing that because all its actions must be based upon what is best for the welfare of all citizens in every walk of life and in the interests of Canada as a whole."

Like the Trades and Labor Congress, the Federated Catholic workers opposed the move to have immigration bars lowered to receive Jewish refugees.

In addition to general objection to immigration while unemployment continues, the Catholic workers declared Jewish immigrants were unwelcome because they could not be assimilated into agriculture or industry.

Mr. Mackenzie King told the delegation he and his Ministers would give careful consideration to all recommendations.

Justice Minister Lapointe and Labor Minister Rogers spoke briefly to the Catholic workers. Mr. Rogers told them the efforts to call a tripartite meeting of the textile industry, workers and the government, as recommended by the federation last year, had not yet been successful.

No Immigrants.

In a 15-point program, the Federation asked the government to put unemployment insurance on a national and contributory basis, close the door to immigration and "prevent the Communist party in Canada from enjoying a legal status."

The program also suggested the government take steps to prevent Canada from participating in "any outside war," enforcement of the Sunday Observance Act, and a government study of the pulp and paper and textile industries, and asked that old age pensions be paid starting at the age of 65 instead of 70.

The Trades and Labor Congress brief was a recommendation against any lowering of immigration barriers so long as unemployment and agricultural depression exists.

R. J. Tallon, secretary-treasurer of the Trades and Labor Congress, presented that body's brief in the absence because of illness of President P. M. Draper. W. L. Best, secretary of the Railway body, spoke for the Brotherhoods.

Doe Leaps Rock Gap Buck Falls, Dies Wolf Pack At Heels

Latchford, Ont., Dec. 15 (CP)

HIGHWAY WORKERS today found evidence of a northland tragedy in the broken body of a buck deer. The animal lay at the bottom of a 50-foot deep rock cut, where it had apparently fallen as it made an unsuccessful effort to jump the gap and escape a pack of wolves.

The trail of another deer, apparent its mate, picked up on the other side of the cut and led off into the woods.

Latchford is 18 miles southwest of Cobalt.

King Drops Feud With Hepburn

OTTAWA, Dec. 15 — (C.P.). — The Federal Government to-day concentrated on preparations for the coming session of Parliament and interviews with labor organizations after a spectacular three-day political skirmish with Premier Hepburn of Ontario.

The Trades and Labor Congress of Canada and the Railway Transportation Brotherhoods were scheduled to present their annual legislative programs to the Cabinet this morning. In the afternoon the Cabinet will meet again to consider Government business. There is a possibility some appointments to diplomatic and judicial vacancies may be announced.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King met newspapermen for a few minutes following yesterday's Cabinet Council, and said as far as he was concerned he will have no further comment on the dispute with Mr. Hepburn until he consults his supporters in the House of Commons and the Senate soon after Parliament meets.

It was assumed the Federal Government considered the incident temporarily closed. The controversy between the administration here and Mr. Hepburn erupted last Saturday when Labor Minister Rogers and Transport Minister Howe charged in speeches at Port Arthur that the Ontario Premier and Premier Duplessis of Quebec had formed an alliance to depost Mr. Mackenzie King.

The Rambling REPORTERS

FACE SLAPPED.

Men who earn their living by street photography have their embarassing moments. The custom is to snap the picture of a passerby, then hand the prospective customer a card advising that the picture has been taken. Two young fellows at present working Peterborough pointed a camera at a woman near the Capitol Theatre Wednesday night and the woman screamed — she thought it was a gun. The man related afterwards that recently in a small Ontario town, a woman turned and slapped his face as he handed her a card. She later returned, apologized and purchased a photo. The man also said Peterborough is different from many cities in that no license fee is charged. Montreal assesses the itinerant cameraman $108 before he can do business.—McG.

The committee recalled that a delegation had taken the same steps previously and had been informed that some action would be

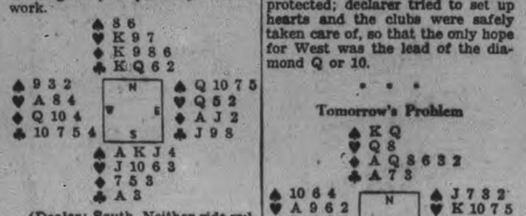
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER
By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

DON'T BE PIG-HEADED

PIG-HEADEDNESS PROBABLY shows itself more in the defense against no trump contracts than in any other phase of bridge. Many a pair, once having led a certain long suit, can not make themselves switch their tactics until the suit is all gone. Careful observation of developments can reveal, every once in a while, the advisability of a shift when it has become apparent that the original plan probably will not work.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable)

After an opening spade bid on this deal by South, North went to 2-Clubs, South to 2-No Trump and North to 3-No Trump.

West started the defense by leading the club 4, which South won with the A. He then attempted to set up his hearts by leading the 3 to the 9. East took this trick with his Q and returned a club to North's Q. Declarer then played the heart K to West's A.

West then made the mistake of continuing his clubs and the declarer had no difficulty in making his game with three spades, three clubs, two hearts and one diamond.

A switch by West to a diamond at the fifth trick would have meant defeat for declarer. The opening bid had been a spade, so that suit was protected; declarer tried to set up hearts and the clubs were safely taken care of, so that the only hope for West was the lead of the diamond Q or 10.

France Delighted By Stand Of Chamberlain

PARIS, Dec. 15—(CP)—French sources said to-day that Prime Minister Chamberlain's speech before foreign correspondents in London had greatly strengthened Premier Daladier's hand against Italy.

The Prime Minister's speech showed, these sources declared, that despite the lack of legal obligations Great Britain would back France to the limit if the latter were attacked by Italy in the Mediterranean.

(Mr. Chamberlain told the correspondents Great Britain's "relations with France are so close as that they go far beyond mere legal obligations since they are founded on an identity of interest.")

Like the Italians, who have never communicated their demands for Tunisia in official form, the French continued to rely mainly on speeches and demonstrations to show how they felt about Italian agitation for French African territories.

The French press greeted with satisfaction Prime Minister Chamberlain's reference to France.

Representative comment follows:

Le Petit Parisien (Independent): "He destroyed at one blow the tendencious comments which certain papers in Germany and Italy have made on this subject."

Le Journal (Independent): "France must be particularly pleased with the loyal, unambiguous, unequivocal words voiced by the Leader of the British Government."

Le Jour (Rightist): "We have the right to see in this a statement that the Paris-London axis is worth more than the Rome-Berlin axis."

RED CROSS SUPPLIES BOOKS

Sales Of Toy Armaments Takes Slump

The sale of toy armaments this year has taken a great slump. Mechanical toys continue to be the favorite among boys with electric trains leading the parade and dolls still remain the best sellers among the girls' toys. However, airplanes are giving these two a close race among both girls and boys.

Christmas Stockings To Contain Amazing Variety Of Toys

According to a pre-Christmas survey, Santa Claus will have a boom year this season. Not that he hasn't been busy in other years, but the bewildering variety of new toys and novelties on display in departmental stores across the continent indicates that children will find more than they anticipate in their stockings on Christmas morning.

Mechanical toys will continue to be the favorite among boys, with the electric train leading the parade. The great "iron horse" never fails to spellbind the youngsters, and manufacturers have kept their eyes on the real trains when turning out the latest toy models. The 1938 toy trains are the last word in streamlined construction and are equipped with such gadgets as lights, bells, whistles, reverse and forward action, and automatic coupling and uncoupling. A toy that will make any boy pinch himself to see whether or not he is awake.

Mechanical Imitations

Practically every conceivable mechanical device on the adult market is imitated in toyland. There are large one-passenger dump trucks that embody the air-hydraulic principles for operating the dumper, sleek buses that are the exact replicas of the monstrous overland machines, fire trucks three feet in length, equipped with hose towers raised and lowered by air pressure and carrying tanks of water which is shot through the hose by compressed air, rubber-tired and caterpillar-tread farm tractors for the farmer's son, and cement mixers. Of these, the dump truck is by far the most popular among boys.

Toys of an educational and constructive nature are coming to the foreground since the advent of vocational training in schools. Building blocks for very young, soap sculpture outfits, Meccano sets from which can be constructed everything from merry-go-rounds to formidable steel trestle bridges, the old stand-by — constructional miniature hard rubber interlocking building bricks, will all find favor with the young builders of today, many of whom are destined to be the construction engineers of tomorrow.

Aviation Well Repreesnted

In the aviation toy industry the boys, who were once entirely predominate, must now make room for the fair sex. Since the feats of women aviators have been publicized, girls have become vitally interested in flying and are whispering into Santa's ear the wish that they would like to find a model airplane kit in their stocking. The numerous flying models are of two varieties—the rubber band propelled type and the gasoline models. These latter types have reached such a high state of perfection that they are able to keep in the air for three or four minutes and come down to a perfect three-point landing. The motor is so tiny that an eyedropper is used to fill its tank with fuel. Looking ahead, it is not difficult to conceive that out of these ranks of young girl model plane enthusiasts will come our future Amelia Earharts.

Dolls Still Best Sellers

But dolls still remain the best sellers among girl's toys and the variety of dolls is legion. The new rage sweeping the land of make-believe is the drinking doll, which has shoved the once-popular mama-doll almost into oblivion. The moving pictures and radio have a great influence on the doll world, and this year we find a new galaxy of "stars" being avidly admired by big-eyed fans of toyland. Whereas the Shirley Temple doll was once the idol of millions of children in Canada and the United States, her charm has waned and the stellar role this season has been taken by one of Walt Disney's animated cartoon characters—Dopey—the bashful dwarf of "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs." Though Snow White herself is represented in dolldom, she has been virtually forced backstage by the children crowding around "Dopey's" counters.

From present appearances, Charlie McCarthy, too, is on the skids and Donald Duck has stolen the show from Mickey Mouse. Such change of popularity among doll stars, explains a toy expert, is probably an indication that children's tastes are turning to extremes—from the divine personalities to the ridiculous. The cartoons have been entirely responsible for this transition, he said, and should other human traits be brought to the fore in movie and comic characters, further change of temperament will be noticed among doll fans.

From numerous saleslades, it was learned that when mothers shop for dolls without their children, they invariably buy the largest doll in stock, though if their small daughter had been given their choice, they would have picked medium-sized dolls. The Negro doll is shunned by many mothers because their children are frightened by it. Of dolls dressed in various national costumes the French doll appeals most to girls. Since the recent European muddle, many parents would not buy dolls made in Germany. Asked how they could differentiate between the German and Anglo-Saxon dolls, a clerk said, "The faces of German dolls are adult in appearance while the Canadian and English dolls are baby-faced." Ninety per cent. of the dolls sold in the dominion, however, are made in Canada.

Boys Like Dolls

Many boys up to the age of five years are fond of dolls, but they would have nothing to do with the fancy China kind, being satisfied with the old-fashioned rag doll which they could bash around to their heart's content without any serious effects. Teddy bears are also favored by the boys, and this year has produced a new array of them in bright scarlet and pink fur. The Australian Kola bear bids fair to outshine the old teddy in popularity. In the toy dog sections, the "Scotty" holds the rein of monarchy, showing wherein lie children's tastes in real dogdom.

Shun Toy Armaments

The last war scare has materially affected the toy armament sales, a toy shop executive claimed. Peace-loving parents do not wish their children to become military minded and thus avoid buying toy soldiers, cannons and machine guns. But nevertheless the counters are cluttered with battalions of toy soldiers, batteries of artillery, brigades of machine guns, and corps of speedy tanks. According to clerks the purchasers of these are chiefly war veterans who have been in personal contact with the real thing. It was generally found that if a father had been a gunner in the army he would buy his son a toy cannon. A cavalry man would purchase a troop of mounted soldiers, and an infantryman a platoon of foot soldiers.

Movie G-men, cowboys, mounted police and trans-planetary rocket flyers have popularized the "Tommy" gun, the automatic revolver, the death-ray gun, and cowboy and "mountie" outfits. Cowboy kits, however, are the ones most looked forward to by boy and girl adventurers, the majority of whom would give anything to be riding high in Buck Jones and Gene Autrey outfits—gun belts and all.

Drums Have Lure

The vibrant beat of drums never loses its lure for both young and old. This is being exemplified in toyland where the drum is the most sought after instrument among musical toys. Two new organs have put in an appearance this year, one which will play three tunes by merely turning the handle, and the other equipped with changeable rolls and operates in much the same manner as an Italian organ grinder's instrument.

With the exception of dolls, practically all toys sold in Canada are imported from England, the United States, Czechoslovakia, France Italy and Germany. While they are made in factories in the first five countries, in Germany the making of toys is a home industry. Various parts are made in their own homes by craftsmen who specialize in producing only a single part for a certain toy. The parts are then sent to a central assembly plant where they are put together into a finished toy.

How long do toys last? Most of the toys are discarded after a few months' use, said the manager of one large toy department. But dolls are sometimes kept for years and are handed down by girls who grow to motherhood to their own children. He knows of one case where a doll has survived ten generations and is still "alive."

Had Sore, Stiff Joints And Backache; Praises Syntona

Says Rheumatism Was So Bad He Had to Use Crutches. Condition Came With Stomach Disorders and Constipation.

MR. THOMAS CLANFIELD.

When the stomach is out of order and food fails to digest, but ferments in the stomach, causing a full, bloated sensation; when the back and joints ache and the kidneys do not function properly; when the bowels are constipated and you have headaches, dizzy spells and nerves are on edge, take a treatment of Syntona herbal compound and the chances are that you, too, will find that your suffering can be relieved without the aid of harsh drugs or depressors. Here, for example, is the remarkable experience of Mr. Thomas Clanfield, 227 Catharine Street North, Hamilton, as reported recently:

"Ever since I came to Canada from England, I was troubled off and on with rheumatism, but in recent years my condition got gradually worse until I couldn't get around without crutches. The pains and stiffness went all through my limbs, joints and back. During this time, I was also troubled with stomach disorders and constipation.

"I could tell right from the start that Syntona was helping my stomach and bowels, and I said, 'If this medicine relieves my rheumatism, I will surely recommend it.' Now I have come back to tell you that as I continued with the treatment, the pains and stiffness got better and I can get around remarkably well for my age. Any person who knows me can see the improvement and I think it is just great to find a medicine that helps me like this and yet contains no harmful drugs."

Every sufferer is cordially invited to call at Elliott's Drug Store, Peterborough, and learn all about this grand medicine, that is helping so many people.

Hepburn To Tour Australia For Two Months After Health, Knowledge

Trip In New Year Will Delay House Session While Premier Sees If Sister Nation Has System That Can Cure Canadian Ills

TORONTO, Dec. 16 (CP).—Premier Mitchell Hepburn will leave shortly after the New Year on a voyage to Australia and the opening of the Ontario Legislature, usually about the middle of February, will be set back until around March 1, it was announced here last night.

Health and knowledge are purposes of Mr. Hepburn's planned two months' trip. He will be accompanied by Hon. Colin Campbell, Ontario Works Minister; Chester Walters, deputy treasurer, and by Private Secretary Roy Elmhirst.

In an Empire Club address here yesterday, Mr. Hepburn lauded Australia's action in the refunding of her debt at lower interest charges. Now he will go there to study at first hand administration of the Commonwealth Bank of Australia, social legislation and general economic conditions.

Australia's remedial measures may or may not have cured her economic problems, said Mr. Hepburn. Reports conflicted but he was going over to find out.

The Insurance Decision.

The Premier plans to give to the Legislature a report on his Australian trip. The delay in summoning the House will, he expects, enable Ontario to know if the Federal Government will go ahead with its unemployment insurance proposals. If it does not, then Ontario may proceed to establish a form of unemployment insurance of her own.

Mr. Hepburn was attended by a physician yesterday at Queen's Park shortly after he returned from the Empire Club. The doctor ordered him to bed immediately and prescribed a rest. The long rest will come on the sea voyage.

The Premier will meet his Cabinet today — probably the final meeting before he goes to his farm in Yarmouth Township, near St. Thomas. There he will spend Christmas. He plans sailing across the Pacific right after the New Year.

On Her Feet Now

The commonwealth of Australia, where Mitchell Hepburn, Premier of Ontario, intends to go early in 1939 to study economic conditions, achieved what is described as a remarkable comeback from the depression through stringent economy.

Store Manager Is Arrested On Arson Count

Following a two-day investigation by Inspector D. H. Saville of the Ontario Fire Marshall's Department, assisted by Fire Chief George Gimblett and Detective Sergeant W. E. Meagher of the city police force, a warrant was issued Thursday afternoon for the arrest of Robert Nathan Herman, manager of Pattenick's store here on a charge of arson in connection with Monday evening's fire, and Herman was apprehended about 4 o'clock by Detective Sergeant Meagher and Officer Wm. Piercey at his home on London street.

He was arraigned a few minutes later before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., and asked to elect.

"I think the prosecution should state its case so that I might know what defence to prepare," said Herman.

"Are you trying to tell me how to run the court?" asked Magistrate Langley. "The question I asked you is the question the law requires me to ask you at this stage of the proceedings."

His Worship then proceeded to explain to the accused the choice he had of being tried by the magistrate or by judge and jury or of not electing at all in which case the proceedings in police court would be regarded as a preliminary hearing.

Wants Summary Trial

"Now that it has been made clearer," Herman said, "I might as well be tried by the magistrate. I want trial as soon as possible."

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry said that a remand for a few days would be necessary.

"I cannot afford to pay a lawyer," said the accused when the Magistrate said something about Herman securing legal advice.

"That does not call for a laugh," said the accused to Chief Newhall. "You are not standing in my shoes."

Herman who was not asked to plead, was remanded until Tuesday and bail was fixed at $3,000 after the court had been informed that the total loss from Monday's fire was in the neighborhood of $12,000.

Train Wrecks Car Six Inside Unhurt

TORONTO, Dec. 16—(CP).—Six Persons escaped injury when an automobile in which they were riding was struck by a railway locomotive at a north-end crossing here today, Robert E. Beauer of Niagara Falls, N.Y., driver of the car was taken into custody on a charge of reckless driving.

Police said Bauer's machine, proceeding southward, crashed through lowered crossing gates and was struck by a Canadian Pacific Railway engine on the left rear side. After the impact, the car continued its course and crashed through the south crossing gates before overturning into a ditch. The car was wrecked.

Arthur Townsend, also of Niagara Falls, N.Y., and Miss Ann Christie, Toronto, were among the five passengers who emerged from the wreckage without injury.

Combination Of 13's End In Death Of Young Car Thief

Lansing, Mich., Dec. 16 (CP) RALPH WILLIAMS, 19, of Detroit, did not live to learn that 13 was unlucky for him. Williams died from injuries suffered Dec. 13 in a stolen car in which he was racing through city streets at 96 miles an hour. Two police cars were pursuing him when he lost control of the automobile and it hit a pole.

The licence plates on the car were 13-G. Williams pockets yielded 13 cents. The car had received a complete checkup at a garage at 1313 Fifth Avenue, New York when its mileage was 13,000 miles.

Car-Impounding Law To Stir Court Battle

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 16 (CP)—Intimation that the Ontario attorney general's department is preparing for a battle to uphold its automobile impounding law came today with commencement of an action for the attorney general to have the law tested before the Supreme Court, rather than division court.

Notice was served today on A. B. Siskind, London lawyer who is trying to upset the law, that an attempt will be made on Dec. 20, to have the matter moved into the higher court.

Harvey McDonald, whose truck was seized, brought an action through Mr. Siskind, in Ninth Division Court, against Chief Constable W. H. Down and the city of London. Because the impounding law was to be attacked, notice was also served on the attorney general and the federal minister of justice.

County Judge Wearing set Dec. 22 for a special sitting of division court to hear the action.

Now the attorney general has indicated his representatives will ask for a Supreme Court judge as Osgoode Hall on Dec. 20 to order the county judge to at once send the papers in the matter to Osgoode Hall, and stop all proceedings in the division court until a further order has been made by a Supreme court judge.

In an affidavit, Ira Humphries, K.C., deputy attorney general declares "important constitutional questions are raised by the action.

Franco Gives Alfonso Rights Back

Seen Step To Placing Infante Son Juan On Father's Throne

HENDAYE, France, Dec. 16—(AP)—Decision of General Franco to restore all civil rights and properties to former King Alfonso sharply divided Spanish insurgent opinion to-day on the imminence of a return to the monarchy.

The decree giving Alfonso "all rights that correspond to him as a citizen of Spain" was read by Franco to the insurgent council of ministers at Burgos, and they adopted it yesterday.

One group of insurgents at this border zone said it was the first step toward restoring the Bourbon monarchy in Spain, backed by Franco. (Spanish circles in Rome, where Alfonson is living, doubted he would return soon to Spain as a result of the decree.)

Another group, however, said Franco took only a temporary step to still growing fears among Carlists, a separate monarchical group, and followers of Alfonso that the insurgent regime had no intention of putting a king back on the throne.

Widespread credence was given here to reports published yesterday from Morocco that Franco had sent a mission to Rome to discuss the monarchy question with the Infante Don Juan, Alfonso's youngest son.

Alfonso left the throne April 14, 1931, during a bloodless revolt which brought about the Spanish republic (now represented by the Barcelona - Valencia government against which the insurgents are warring).

Prefers Son To Father?

It was reported a year ago that Franco might agree to Prince Juan, rather than Alfonso, for a king of insurgent held territory. Alfonso is 52; Juan 25.

Most Bourbon and Carlist monarchist leaders were said to have agreed early in the war that Juan would be acceptable. The blue-shirted falangists, an important element of the insurgent political set-up, long have been non-committal, however.

The Moroccan reports, carried by border newspapers, said the Rome mission was led by Pilar Primo de Rivera, a daughter of the one-time dictator, and included the insurgent propaganda chief, Dionisio Ridruejo, and the writer Eugene Montes.

The report declared the delegation was composed almost exclusively of falangists and would offer Don Juan the throne provided he backed up the totalitarian "vertical syndicalism" program of the falangist party.

Send Sterling For Trip And We'll Free Jews Is Germany's Reported Offer To Nations

LONDON, Dec. 16 (AP)—The inter-governmental refugee committee today considered Germany's terms for getting Jews out of Germany after Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank, had outlined them at a closed meeting.

It was understood director George Rublee told Dr. Schacht the committee could not hope to finance large-scale emigration unless Germany allowed the Jews to take some of their money and possessions with them.

Mr. Rublee declined to say whether this stipulation was accepted by Dr. Schacht, who met him and Montagu Norman, head of the Bank of England, at the treasury late last night. Several other members of the inter-governmental committee attended the meeting.

It was believed the Reichsbank president told the committee representatives that Chancellor Hitler was prepared to let German Jews emigrate provided Great Britain and other nations would send sterling to Germany for their transportation.

Ex-Convict, Drug President Suicides As Police Arrive

Treasurer, Canadian Agent Of New York Firm In Fraud Tangle, Revealed As Brothers

NEW YORK, Dec. 16 (AP).—F. Donald Coster, president of McKesson and Robbins, Inc., whose real identity was disclosed as Philip Musica, an ex-convict who became head of the multi-million dollar corporation, shot and killed himself today at his home in Fairfield, Conn.

The Department of Justice in Washington, which received first information on the occurrence over its private telegraph wires, first said Coster was "seriously wounded." A Fairfield officer later said the wound was fatal.

News that Coster-Musica had taken his own life came shortly after the United States Attorney's office here had ordered his re-arrest and that of George E. Dietrich, assistant treasurer, and George Vernard, Canadian agent, for the firm, on charges of violating the Securities Act of 1934.

Back in 1913 when the Musica family were involved in the collapse of their United States Hair Company, Philip's father, Antonio, tried to end his life.

A Dizzy Week.

Coster-Musica's suicide climaxed a week of dizzy developments, starting when it was discovered that the crude drugs department of McKesson and Robbins, under his direct supervision, had apparently built up fictitious assets of $18,000,000.

The man who lived down a criminal past of 25 years ago to become head of the great drug firm turned a pistol on himself as Chief of Police Arthur Bennett was arriving at the Coster's big country home to take him into custody.

"As nearly as I can learn he put a revolver to his head and pulled the trigger," Bennett said.

Developments today showed that Vernard was Musica's younger brother, Arthur, and Federal authorities held it likely that Dietrich was a second brother who dropped from sight after the crash of the Musica finances years ago. They also were checking the possibility that Mrs. Coster might also have had another name in her younger years. The Costers were childless.

Hunt 4th Brother

Gregory F. Noonan, acting U.S. attorney, disclosed today there was a fourth brother, Robert, who will be arrested in the case. Robert, an employee of McKesson and Robbins, was on his way to New York from New Haven.

Coster-Musica had lived in Fairfield for about 10 years, but had taken little part in the town's community affairs. His life, fellow residents said, centred chiefly on his 123-foot yacht, Carolita.

To the people who knew Coster-Musica in New York and in Fairfield he was a man of impeccable reputation, a rather good-looking immaculately groomed man of middle age with white hair and white mustache.

After the collapse of his fortunes 25 years ago and his trouble with the police, he vanished from sight, although a witness at Attorney General John J. Bennett, Jr.'s investigation today testified he knew him in Great War days as "William Johnson," an investigator for the attorney general's office specializing in espionage activities.

Fully dressed, Coster went into the bathroom at his home, pressed a pistol to his right ear, and pulled the trigger, according to reports of the shooting.

Samuel Reich, an attorney, rushed from the home as soon as he had heard what had happened, put his hand to his head, pointing with a finger as though it were a pistol, and shouted: "He shot himself! He shot himself!"

"I arrived here about noon in company with about 10 other men connected with the United States marshall's office in New Haven," Reich said, "We had come here to

Prisoners Beat Newsmen Up In Liquor Fraud

HALIFAX, Dec. 16. —(CP)— A newspaper photographer and a reporter were knocked down by one of a group of nine Cape Breton residents facing conspiracy charges as the photographer attempted to take pictures of their arrival at Halifax today.

Allan Fraser, Halifax Herald cameraman, was attacked as he "shot" a picture of them entering police cars at the railway station. One of the men lunged at him, and kicked him in the shins. His trousers torn and displaying a cut knee, Fraser fell to the street.

Gerald J. Gillespie, a Herald reporter, came to Fraser's aid but was knocked down before Royal Canadian Mounted Police Officers grabbed the alleged conspirator and hustled the man into an automobile.

Police said the man who attacked Fraser was Louis Goldman of Glace Bay.

The nine, arrested in Cape Breton yesterday, were brought here for preliminary hearing. As they emerged from the train, they huddled together and shielded their faces.

After the incident, the men were taken to police headquarters, fingerprinted and then escorted to Magistrate B. W. Russell's court for hearing.

As they came out of the city police station, another photographer "shot" Goldman, who grinned: "I guess you got me this time," he said.

R.C.M.P. officers in Halifax, Lunenburg and Cape Breton counties arrested 20 out of 24 men sought on charges of conspiring to defraud the federal government of $4,000,000 by illegal importation and transportation of liquor. It was the third such group to face conspiracy charges in the last few weeks and followed weeks of investigation by police.

Ontario Federal Liberals Get Urgent Call To Session In Ottawa

Senators And Defeated Candidates Included In Monday Rally, Presumably To Discuss The Hepburn-King Feud

OTTAWA, Dec. 16 (CP). — A caucus of Ontario Liberal members of parliament, Ontario Liberal senators and defeated Liberal candidates in the last general election has been called to meet in Ottawa Monday, presumably to discuss the break between the Dominion Government headed by Prime Minister Mackenzie King and the Ontario Government of Premier Hepburn.

The telegram calling the caucus was signed by W. A. Fraser (Lib., Northumberland), Whip of the Ontario Federal Liberal members, and the four Ontario members of the Mackenzie King government, Postmaster - General Elliott, Trade Minister Euler, Labor Minister Rogers and Transport Minister Howe.

Announcement of the telegram was made today from the National Liberal Federation. The Liberal candidates invited are the Ontario candidates who were unsuccessful in the last Federal election.

St. Catharines Tot 5 Dies Of Scarlet Fever

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Dec. 16 —(CP).—Mary Lou Steel, five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Steel, Niagara--on-the-Lake, died in general hospital last night of scarlet fever. It was the first death of the scarlet fever epidemic which has gripped Niagara-on-the-Lake for the past two weeks. The girl had been ill since Monday.

The disease has spread to children in seven families, Dr. J. F. Rigg, medical health officer, said today.

There are only about eight children with scarlet fever at Niagara-on-the-Lake. The public school has been closed and the high school will close tonight. Public meetings at which children might have attended have been banned.

This includes all church Christmas entertainments except those which may be held out of doors.

New British Bill To End "Sale" Of Children

By J. F. SANDERSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

LONDON, Dec. 16—(CP Cable).—Florence Horsbrugh's bill to strengthen and overhaul Britain's child adoption laws was given a unanimous second reading by the House of Commons today after the Scottish woman M.P. had declared the present law is so lax that a practice has grown up amounting practically to the sale of children.

"I have in my hand something I can only call no less than a price list of children, giving descriptions and prices up to as much as £500 to £600 ($2,335 to $2,800)" she declared.

Miss Horsbrugh referred to "adoption brokers" and urged that adoption should be limited to societies registered with the government and under strict control.

She said she believed some children for whom homes could not be arranged at suitable prices were shipped abroad or placed in undesirable homes. A clause in her bill would prevent children being sent abroad for adoption by foreign nationals.

Viscountess Astor enlivened the debate with the remark that "I am very sorry that the United States cannot be included in the British Empire."

German King to Blame.

Her meaning was that she wanted the United States exempted from the clause which would forbid adoption of British children by foreign nations.

George Mathers, Labor, quickly took her up.

"The noble lady has to blame George III for that," he said.

Lady Astor looked him over and snapped back, "We always seem to get back to the Germans when we get into trouble, don't we?"

(George III, of the House of Hanover, was king when the American colonies won their independence.)

Lady Astor contended child adoption started in the United States and that "they watch events even more carefully than we do here." She said she knew some Americans who had "splendid homes" to offer British children.

Record Bomber Down In Hills

DERBY, Western Australia, Dec. 16—(CP-Havas)—One of the three Royal Air Force bombers which established a worl long distance record last month was damaged today in a forced landing in the mountainous bay district 100 miles from here.

An Australian plane sighted the disabled craft in a hilly district where it was impossible to make a landing to aid the fliers. The pilot of the Australian ship said the crew members were safe and had been sighted near the big bomber. A supply of food and blankets were dropped near the disabled craft by the Australian plane.

The bomber is one of the ships that flew non-stop from Ismailia, Egypt, to Port Darwin to better the old record established in last year's flight by Soviet airmen across the top of the world from Moscow to California.

U.S. Hints Retaliation, If Property Endangered In Germany

Drunk Asks Arrest To Save Himself From Suicide Tricks

Ann Arbor, Mich., Dec. 16 (CP) WILLIAM POTTS, 30, asked police here to arrest him to stop him from committing suicide. "Every time I get drunk I try to kill myself," Potts told police. "I wish you would lock me up so I can't try again."

Potts said this week he got drunk, put a rubber tubing from the car exhaust into the interior of the car and then started the motor. He woke, he said, when he knocked the car door open as he slumped forward. Potts said it was his third attempt at suicide.

Eggs Vanish Fast

STRATFORD, Ont., Dec. 16 — (C. P.). — Officials of the Stratford and Perth County Poultry Association Show say they haven't been able to estimate the number of eggs laid by chickens in the show cages this year. Someone has been taking the eggs out of the cages as soon as they are laid.

Church Food Stolen

TORONTO, Dec. 16 — (CP). — Thieves broke a window in Corpus Christi Roman Catholic church in the eastern section of the city early today and stole several hampers containing food and clothing for the poor. Nothing else was disturbed.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16—(AP).—Diplomatic tension between the United States and Germany mounted today with hints that retaliatory measures might be invoked if American property rights in the Reich are jeopardized further by anti-Jewish and other confiscatory decrees.

This possibility came to light as the United States renewed its seven-months-old quest for adequate, written assurance from Germany that American citizen will not be discriminated against because of their race or creed. The request was so drawn as to cover the rights of both Catholics and Jews.

Sumner Welles, acting secretary of state, in making public the latest note delivered this week in Berlin, refused to rule out the question of retaliation, which might arise both in the Jewish connection and in the Austrian debt situation, another point of difference between the two countries.

The United Staes has sought since April to obtain Germany's assurance that it would assume Austrian debts to the United States and its citizens. Assurances that American citizens in Germany would not be discriminated against because of race or creed have been sought.

Crimean War Gun Bags $20 Buck

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 15.—(CP).—An ancient rifle, reputed to have been issued to soldiers at the time of the Crimean war, has been seized by provincial police as the weapon with which Roy McDonald, West Williams farmer, shot a buck deer.

When he came before County Magistrate Hawkshaw to-day to be fined $20 and costs for shooting the deer, McDonald said he didn't use the old rifle, but another one. However, Provincial Constable L. L. Shipley has seized the old gun.

When Constable Shipley and Chief Constable George Tanton of Strathroy visited McDonald's home, they had no trouble discovering a deer had been killed. A savory odor led them straight to a piece of venison cooking on the kitchen stove.

McDonald told Magistrate Hawkshaw he shot the deer because he needed meat. He said he had six small children to care for. The deer was on his land, but that did not save him from a court penalty.

Rescuers Fight Gale To Save 18 Marooned

JUNEAU, Alaska, Dec. 16—(AP)—Rescue parties, fighting wintry gales and raging seas, raced against time to-day to reach 18 survivors of the stranded Patterson, marooned on the beach near Cape Fairweather.

The shipwrecked sailors sent word to the coast guard cutter Haida, standing by the wreckage of their craft, last night by means of an improvised flashlight signal system that all were weak from exposure and sore feet and that they had enough food to last two more days.

Two of their members are sick, they reported. Two others of the crew perished when the veteran Alaskan whaling ship went aground early Monday morning.

Pilot Sheldon Simmons, who attempted to fly three guides to the spot yesterday to aid the party, was forced back to Juneau by a heavy sleet storm.

The guides were taken aboard the coast guard patrol boat Morris, a shallow craft vessel, which Captain Sam Sandvik, veteran halibuter, said he believed he could pilot to within seven miles of the wreck scene.

If the Morris is able to find a landing spot a rescue party, led by the guides, will go overland to where the party is camped and bring the sailors back to the boat.

Jews Told To Swap, Land, Buildings For Italian Bonds At 4 Per Cent.

ROME, Dec. 16 — (AP). — The Italian cabinet today ordered Jews to exchange all their land and buildings exceeding a fixed value for bonds bearing four per cent interest.

The order carried out provisions of decrees adopted Nov. 10 forbidding Jews to own land with a taxable income exceeding 5,000 lire ($260) a year and buildings the taxable income of which exceeds 20,000 lire ($1,040).

A government corporation will be created to take over Jewish property and operate it pending re-sale as conditions permit. The corporation will issue bonds which Jews will be compelled to accept in payment for their property on the basis of its assessed valuation.

The corporation also will take over the management of Jewish owned firms employing more than 100 persons, issuing its bonds in payment. Last month's decrees forbade Jews to own businesses exceeding this size.

CALGARY, Dec. 16—(CP)—United States radio tube manufacturers have made no attempt to "misrepresent" or mark their products "fraudulently" as to type, Don Kepler, Calgary serviceman, said at the Alberta government radio tube inquiry here yesterday.

Cougar Ends Mule's 40 Years Gold Packing; 'Toted Million And Half' Says Desert Midas

DEATH VALLEY, Calif., Dec. 16 (AP)—Death Valley Scotty is sorrowfully alone in the quietude of the desert rocks today. He has lost his closest companion, his favorite old pack mule Slim. Slim, 40 years old, was victim of a mountain lion.

"She's packed a million and a half in plunder," Scotty used to say. "Guess no other mule has done anything like that. I rode 28,000 miles on her through the rocks."

Today the famous 62-year-old desert midas was out alone with Betty, the last of his old string mules. Betty for 15 years carried his ammunition and medical supplies on pack journeys through the desolate reaches of Death Valley and its forbidding ranges where Scotty is reputed to have mined millions of dollars worth of gold. She is 38.

A few days ago Scotty heard a rather weak braying. He had emerged from his hideaway shack to feed Slim and Betty, his morning custom. Betty alone answered his call.

He found Slim down, with a torn right hind leg. A mountain lion had attacked her. Then he went to the castle he built in the valley, five miles away, and met his partner, Albert Johnson who ended the animal's life with a rifle bullet.

Widow 76 Left Lying In Street, Hit-Run Victim For Second Time Within Past Year

TORONTO, Dec. 16 (CP)—City and suburban police today sought the driver of an automobile who did not stop after striking Mrs. Charles Jones, 76, Toronto. Mrs. Jones, a widow and nearly blind, was found yesterday lying on Yonge street, at Richvale, suburban Toronto.

She suffered a broken arm and hip. Earlier this year she was struck in Toronto by a car that did not stop and was confined to hospital for several weeks suffering shock.

Mrs. Jones, former resident of Richvale district, has lived in Toronto several years and was on her way to visit friends when injured. Police said the woman hitch-hiked here and had walked only 200 feet when struck. She was taken to a Toronto hospital. A son, Thomas Collier, lives at Durham.

Police said they did not believe the woman was struck violently. There were no tears in her clothing and no skid marks on the pavement.

French Papers Demand Red Party Go

PARIS, Dec. 16 — (C.P.).—Right-Wing Parties on which Premier Daladier depends for the life of his Government issued a demand through their newspapers to-day for dissolution of the French Communist Party.

A total of 430 Paris and provincial papers, ranging from mildly Conservative to the Extreme Right, were said to have joined in the "appeal to Parliament and the Government."

The move came as Daladier was seeking to put France's 66,121,000,000 ($1,732,370,200) budget through the Chamber of Deputies ahead of more controversial issues which might endanger shaky majority.

He succeeded last night in getting chairmen of Chamber party groups to limit the budget debate to 66 hours, about one hour of discussion for each $26,248,000 of expenditures, so the deputies could complete their action on December 23.

Some newspapers demanding the Communist dissolution represented parties which long have been at each other's throats. In Paris they included Le Figaro, Le Journal, and Le Jour, all three influential newspapers with a nation-wide circulation.

The appeal flayed the Communist Party as one which "seeks both civil and foreign war and which is only an agent of the Soviet Union," and accused the Communists of sabotaging France's national defence, of fomenting strikes, and "of arousing French workmen against foreign states."

British Ship Asks Aid On China Sea

LONDON, Dec. 16 — (A.P.). — Lloyd's agent at Nagasaki, Japan, cabled to-day that the British motor vessel Ridley, reported earlier to be in distress in the China Sea, was still without assistance. The Japanese Cheribon Maru was standing by.

An SOS said the Ridley had struck a projectile and that there was water in four tanks.

The location given at that time placed the vessel near the southernmost islands of the Japanese group and north of Formosa Island.

The Ridley, a vegetable oil carrier of 3,801 net tons, operated between New York and Yokohama. She normally carried a crew of 38 or 40.

A recent speaking pose of Dr Ernst Neumann, who is styled as the "fuehrer" of the Memel Nazis. Dr. Neumann and his legions scored an overwhelming victory at the polls during the recent Memel elections to the Diet. take Coster into custody for the purpose of raising his bond before the commissioner in New Haven.

Hysteria Reigns

"As we stood at the door we heard a shot from upstairs. The household was in turmoil. I have seldom seen such hysteria or heard such weeping as was set up immediately.

"Marshall Bernard Fitch ran upstairs and found the body of Coster in the bathroom, a bullet through his head.

"Mrs. Coster was panic-stricken and hysterical almost beyond control. With us was Dietrich. When he heard the shot he suddenly became a broken man. He wept pitifully and carried on when he learned that what he had feared actually had happened.

"Mrs. Coster kept repeating: 'He told me he wouldn't do this. He swore he wouldn't.'

"Dietrich denied to us that he was Coster's brother, and frankly, I don't believe he was.

Coster, as he shot himself, had his left hand in his pocket. He stood in front of a mirror. As he fired—with a 38 calibre police pistol—he toppled backward and fell halfway into the bathtub.

Two days ago the firm's treasurer, Julian F. Thompson, whose suspicions had led him to investigate privately the financial affairs of the crude drugs department, said he was "simply staggered and astounded," but still he could see no motive for the shortage.

In 1928, he recalled, Coster had manipulated the merger of the old McKesson and Robbins firm with 17 other wholesale drug houses in the United States.

A Great Organizer.

He had been the Corporation's dominating force. He was persuasive, a man of the world, a great financier, executive and organizer. In 1929, Thompson further recalled, the firm had done a sales business of $140,000,000.

But in all the years since he attained his new high standing in the financial world, Coster-Musica thought he had carefully hidden his past away.

He had declined to pose for photographs for trade publications and had led a fairly secluded life for a big business executive. And, strangely, he had not attended McKesson and Robbins meetings. If the other officers of the corporation remarked that, they said nothing—for to them he was a man beyond reproach.

So it was news to most of them when Thompson revealed a little of what he had discovered — that there was a possibility the five Canadian warehouses where crude drug supplies supposedly were stored, did not exist; and that W. W. Smith and Co., English agent for the firm, had been receiving $150,000 a year in commissions for sales which apparently were never made.

Most of the papers relating to the crude drugs department were in the hands of Coster-Musica or Dietrich, and unavailable to Thompson. And while cheques were paid to the Smith concern from the corporation's general fund, the cancelled cheques always went to Dietrich and not to Thompson.

Other Fingerprints

Irving Kaufman, assistant United States attorney, also announced he had telephoned the United States Department of Justice at Washington to get a copy of the fingerprints of George Dietrich, assistant treasurer of the drug concern.

Dietrich and Vernard were indicted with Coster for violation of the Securities Act of 1934. Vernard, agent for the company in Canada, was arrested in Montreal early this week.

Kaufman said he wished to determine if Dietrich also was a brother of the financial wizard whose fingerprints, dug from a file of 25 years ago, revealed him not as a Heidleberg graduate but as a former immigrant boy from Italy—Philip Musica, ex-convict and swindler.

Coster, or Musica, became head of McKesson and Robbins firm in 1926, made the business eminently successful and was coasting along in splendor and brilliance until his treasurer's suspicion that all was not well in the crude drugs department started a quiet investigation which brought the first into federal court a week ago with a petition for reorganization.

With listed assets of $87,000,000 it became increasingly evident through state and federal inquiries in the past week that at least $18,000,000 of these assets were unaccounted for or perhaps nonexistent. But it was not until Inspector John Donovan reached the files of an old side-street police station that Coster's real identity came to light.

A Brilliant Past

Coster's past was brilliant, but the new career he had chosen for himself as a respectable corporation head, widely known in Wall Street, was even more brilliant.

In "Who's Who In America" he gave himself American birth, in Washington, D.C., new parents, and the Heidelberg degrees of Doctor of Philosophy and Doctor of Mericine. There was no hint that he was the son of a Neapolitan barber, who emigrated to the east side of New York.

There was no suggestion in the white-haired dignified man of quiet manner and apparent cultural attainments that his name one was anathema to the very bankers or their sire with whom he associated at the New York Bankers Club. Musica, or Coster, had even made himself younger by seven years.

As the federal government, the New York state government and the attorney general's office in Quebec where the company supposedly had crude drug warehouses, proceeded with their investigations, there were mounting conjectures as to what Coster had done in the years just prior to 1926 when his gracious manner and beaming personality persuaded Connecticut bankers to back him with $1,000,000 to take over the McKesson firm.

That is, between 1920 when a charge of subordination of perjury growing out of a notorious murder case investigation was dismissed against him and the time when he emerged as the ultra-respectable head of Girard and Company, a Mount Vernon, N.Y. drug manufacturing concern.

The Man He Was

Stripped of his garb as a Wall Street financier of impeccable past Coster stood revealed today as the man who was:

Convicted of grand larceny 25 years ago in the collapse of the $1,000,000 United States Hair Company;

Convicted in Federal Court of Customs duty fraud, in 1909, fined $5,000, sentenced to a year in prison, then pardoned by President Taft after serving six months;

Arrested in 1920 on a charge of perjury, growing out of a notorious murder case investigation, released on bail, later discharged.

With these revelations to guide them, investigators moved ahead today in their attempts to discover what happened to $18,000,000 of McKesson and Robbins assets in Canada and the United States which their search has thus far failed to disclose.

As authorities conducted four investigations—one of them in Quebec where some of the company's crude drug assets were supposed to exist—Brien McMahon, assistant United States attorney, announced in Washington that the Justice Department was investigating leads indicating that Coster "had engaged in shipping arms and munitions to belligerent countries in cases labelled 'milk of magnesia'."

The mystery of Musica's "transition" period — two years when he dropped from sight then reappeared as "F. Donald Coster," in the drug business at Mount Vernon, N.Y.—it was hoped might be cleared today at a hearing called by the Assistant State Attorney General, Ambrose McCall.

One opinion that the "principal motive for filing of false statements" in behalf of the firm was "the mulcting of the company by certain persons of about $150,000 annually as commissions on sales which were never made" came from Robert Kline, assistant general counsel for the Securities Exchange Commission.

Failure of the United States Hair Company was a great scandal in 1913.

Philip Musica—now revealed as Coster—then 36, was highly respected as the son of a man who had been dealing with the city's top bankers for 30 years.

Musica Ducks Out

Suddenly, he was accused of negotiating $300,000 to $500,000 in fraudulent bills of lading and worthless drafts.

Investigators who sought 700 cases of human hair supposedly imported by Musica found nothing but "rubbish" hair, and lead to add weight to the packing cases.

Detectives learned Musica and his family has fled, headed for Honduras. They learned likewise that banks both in this country and in foreign countries had been duped by fraudulent invoices of what was generally estimated at more than $1,000,000.

At New Orleans the detectives found the Musicas on board ship. Returned to New York, they were indicted. Philip insisted he alone was to blame. He pleaded guilty to a charge of grand larceny and was given a suspended sentence.

Philip Musica was born in 1877 in Naples, son of Antonio, a barber, whose people were of peasant stock.

Birth Certificates

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16 (AP)—District of Columbia health department records added another angle today to the puzzling McKesson-Robbins case—disclosing that birth certificates bearing the names of F. Donald Coster and George Dietrich were filed simultaneously on Aug. 7, 1935.

Coster and Dietrich, president and assistant vice president of the company, respectively, are charged in New York with business irregularities involving millions of dollars.

Both certificates were clocked at 11:50 a.m., Aug. 7, 1935. The Dietrich certificate, two pages away from Coster's in the ledger, gave his name as George Edmund Dietrich and listed his birth, on Feb. 22, 1894, at 18 D Street, Washington, D.C. The father was listed as George Dietrich, a 49-year-old clerk of New York City then living at the D street address. The mother was shown as Alice D. Miller, 35, formerly of Boston, Mass.

The midwife on both certificates, Adele Vinard, signed the documents the day before they were filed. Her address was given as New York City.

Coster's certificate gave his full name as Frank Donald Coster and his birth took place May 12, 1884, at 125 A Street. This is the present site of the United States Supreme Court building.

His father was listed as Anthony Coster, 39, and his mother as Marie Girard, 25. Both parents were from Baltimore, according to the record, and the father's occupation was said to be a chemist.

Flemish Change Spelling Of Ypres

BRUSSELS, Dec. 16 — (CP-Havas). — The Flemish spelling of Ypres (Wippers to you, soldier), battle-scarred village where thousands of Canadian soldiers saw action in the Great War, has been altered from Yperen to Ieper in government - ordered orthographic changes.

Several other similar changes have been made, but the Flemish equivalents of most of the Belgian towns associated with Canadian was history remain the same. Thus, Mons in the French is still Bergen in the Flemish, Bruges is still Brugge, Anvers (Antwerp) is Antwerpen, Gand (Ghent) is Gent.

The name of hundreds of other Belgian towns and villages will be changed, for a commission is giving each one a French or a Flemish name, according to which language is predominant and in many cases is revising spellings.

Havelock Lines Up For Hot Contest

HAVELOCK, Dec. 16.—(Special.)—Havelock village, historic scene of many bitterly contested municipal elections threatens to steal the spotlight of the county again this year in the same production.

Already the members of the 1938 Council have come forward and announced their candidature for another term and several other names have been bandied back and forth on the lips of the village veterans.

Reeve Seeney, who headed the council this year and may be properly considered a candidate for the wardenship if elected in '39 has said he will be a candidate. James Squires, James Wild, D. A. Forde, and Everett Chiles, 1938 councillors, are all content to let their names go before the electors once more.

The name of E. J. Leeson, former reeve, has been mentioned several times as a possible starter in the 1939 race, while Richard Sanderson, another ex-reeve, has been mooted as a candidate. Fred Pollock's name has also been whispered around as a prospective councillor, and the interest in the village is growing with each passing day.

George Neals Of Bethany Chosen New Head Durham Ploughmen

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Dec. 16.—The Durham County Branch of the Ploughmen's asociation of Ontario met in annual session in the new community waiting room on Tuesday, at 8 p.m., with a large attendance, practically every township being represented, and the retiring president, Clarence Allen of Newcastle, occupying the chair.

The financial statement showed a fair balance on hand, and the election of officers resulted in the following slate for 1939: President, George Neals of eBthany; vice-presidents, Garnet Rickard of Newcastle and J. Whittington, Millbrook; secretary-treasurer, V. R. Hunter of Cavan; district directors: Millbrook; (Cavan): L. H. Winslow, R. McCamus; South Monaghan: W. C. Dawson. Gerald Anderson Baillieboro; Manvers: Edgar Beer and J. Cummisky, Bethany; Hope: Stanley Gray, Lloyd Dunbar, Port Hope; Cartwright: Carl Wright, Nestleton, Joseph Porter, Blackstock; Darlington: Jack Baker, Hampton, George Annis, Bowmanville; Clarke: Clarence Allen, Newcastle, John Rickard, Bowmanville.

Match Set for Manvers.

The new executive then discussed the ploughing match for next year; a successful one attended by a number of provincial champions having been held last fall at Hampton, and it was decided to hold the 1939 event in Manvers, as near to Bethany as possible.

Delegates to the Ontario Ploughmen's convention, to be held in Toronto the first week in February, were chosen including Clarence Allen, V. R. Hunter, L. H. Winslow, George Annis and Jack Baker. The delegation to address the counties' council at its January session on behalf of the Durham county association is L. H. Winslow, G. Annis, E. A. Summers, C. Allen, George McLeod, J. Cummiskey, and I. W. Larmer.

Before dispersing much appreciation of Mr. F. C. Scott's generosity in building the new waiting room, equipping it fully including lighting and heating, and giving use of same free of chare, was expressed, and the free of charge was expressed, and the to the donor. Any organization of repute may have the use of the waiting room by making request to Mr. Scott.

The Nail's Move

KINGSTON, Ont., Dec. 15 (CP).—Although Gerald Hunt, 13, of Bloomfield, has been in the hospital here for more than a month no success has been achieved by doctors trying to remove a nail lodged in his lung .

The boy is being kept under strict observation. The nail, lodged in the lung near the heart, has not reached a position where it can be removed with safety. Doctors said they were keeping a constant x-ray watch on the lad in the hopes that the nail would shift position.

Pupils Present Comedy-Drama

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 16. — A swift moving comedy drama with an old story in a new setting took the audience completely by surprise and won spontaneous applause at the Thursday night performance of "Hands Up," a three-act play presented by members of the High School. Although there probably wasn't a Massey or a Barrymore in the group, each one was well cast for his part, and did it well.

Students were given warm praise for their chorus work which formed a small but important part of the program. It was the first time in the school's history that four-part choruses were ever sung unaccompanied, and proved that this realm of education was by not means being neglected.

Chairman of the Board of Education, F. C. Bonnycastle extended hearty congratulations to Principal E. H. Greig and his staff not only for the fine program, but also for the high academic standing attained in the schodl.

The chorus of First Form girls gave two numbers, "Aloha Oe" and Brahms' "Lullaby." The numbers offered by the mixed chorus were "Ezekiel Saw the Wheel," "Nathan Fit the Battle," and "The More We Are Together." Those taking part in the mixed chorus were Misses June Burgiss, K. Maybee, L. Forestell, M. Rowe, H. Barnum, H. Nicholson, B. Walsh, Messrs. J. Kelly, J. Farrell, N. McKenty, J. Bell, R. Richardson, G. Nelson, W. Greenshield, E. Lee.

Incidental music during the program was provided by St. Mary's Orchestra.

Empire To Endure Chamberlain Thinks

LONDON, Dec. 16—(CP Cable). —The British government has complete faith in the ability of the Empire to cling together despite crisis and adversity, Prime Minister Chamberlain told the House of Commons to-day.

The Prime Minister was questioned by Arthur Henderson, Labor, about Dominions Secretary Malcolm MacDonald's speech to the Constitutional Club Tuesday on the future of the Empire.

Mr. Chamberlain said the speech reflected the Dominions secretary's faith in the survival of the Empire and "His Majesty's government certainly full share that faith."

Mr. Henderson suggested the duties of the Dominion Secretary should be confined to practical administrative problems and should not include discussion of highly hypothetical questions. The Prime Minister replied Mr. MacDonald's was a "very brilliant, statesmanlike speech." His statement was greeted by applause from the Conservative benches.

The incident closed in a burst of Opposition laughter when Geoffrey Mander, Liberal, said many people were convinced the Empire could not possibly survive the present government.

LONDON, Dec. 16—(AP). — The Evening News said today all Ermang and Austrian women working as domestic servants in Great Britain had been ordered by Berlin to return to Germany by next spring.

About 15,000 to 20,000 women and girls are affected. More than 12,000 of them are registered in the south of England. However, in Berlin a foreign spokesman disclaimed knowledge of any plan to order German domestic servants to return from England.

Bazaar Fine Success.

Greeted by a large attendance, the annual Christmas bazaar sponsored yesterday afternoon in the basement of St. John's Anglican Church by the members of the Parish Guild, proved a decided success. Proceeds of the event amounted to approximately $35.

Prettily decorated with red and green streamers, a large Christmas tree with gaily colored lights, and other appropriate ornaments, the basement presented quite an attractive appearance to the many guests, who were welcomed at the door by a reception committee composed of the president, Mrs. H. W. Roche, Rev. and Mrs. R. E. Lemon.

The goods for sale were attractively displayed and those in charge of the different booths were: Fancy work, Mrs. James Cook and Mrs. R. F. Covert; home-baking, Mrs. Robt. Jones and Mrs. Wm. Fraser; novelty table, Mrs. Herbert Davies.

Afternoon tea was also served, the five tables being in charge of Mrs. D. J. Holdcroft, Mrs. F. Thompson, Mrs. Wm. Woodbeck, Mrs. Wm. Drew and Miss Bessie Thompson, assisted by Mrs. D. Hutchinson, Mrs. E. J. Leeson and Mrs. F. Watson.

When There Is No Feed

A careful reading of reports of the Winnipeg grain conference where varied interests in the prairie provinces are represented gives a fair insight into some of the complex problems in the growing of wheat and the serious business of trying to make a living in other ways in our Canadian West.

Prof. Rupert Ramsay of the University of Saskatchewan said the farmers of his province grow other things than wheat. He listed them this way:

Oats (in acres)	4,000,000
Barley	1,000,000
Rye	500,000
Flax	175,000

The suggestion was made that there might well be an increase in grazing land for the production of beef cattle and a revival of the bacon hog breeding which showed a decline of 41 per cent. in Saskatchewan last year. One might say that would be just the thing to do; have these other farm industries instead of depending on wheat.

That is fine until one hears the answer of the Saskatchewan people which is just this: What are we going to do with cattle and with hogs when we come to a year when we have a slight grain crop or no crop at all? So before one advises the man in Saskatchewan how to run his farm it is probably just as well to understand the peculiar conditions under which he is at times called upon to operate and try to keep going.

Close To Mt. Carmel

The troubled conditions in Palestine cause a constant parade of place names which are rich in Biblical history. At the moment Haifa is in the news because Arabs have been making attacks upon Jewish residents there and a number have been killed on the streets without waiting for the coming of night for such butchery.

It is interesting and informative to read that Haifa is a place of 20,000 people and has an excellent sea port, but there is nothing distinctive in that as the same could be said of a number of other communities.

It is when we recall that Haifa is under the shadow of Mt. Carmel that one is minded to turn once more to the 18th chapter of I. Kings, and look again at the story of King Ahab and Elijah. For it was right there on Mt. Carmel, overlooking the troubled Haifa of today that Elijah challenged the prophets of Baal to produce the fire which was to consume the offering on the improvised altar. Nor was the Mt. Carmel of that time a place of peace for it is recorded following the triumph of Elijah he gave the order:

> "Take the prophets of Baal; let not one of them escape. And they took them, and Elijah brought them down to the brook Kishon, and slew them there."

There is in fact repeated reference in the news of the day to places in Palestine where some notable event has been recorded in Old Testament history.

Reporters Do Better

When public men interview each other and then later on a report of the conversation is presented by way of a statement for publication there is disagreement. A great deal of it.

It has been so in the case of Premier Hepburn and Hon. J. G. Gardiner and others. "I never said that" has become quite a common phrase. They appear to have all been misquoted.

We are quite certain newspaper reporters do much better than that. When they listen to a conversation or an address or the remarks made in a public meeting they will put the result down as it took place and the charge of misquoting is not often made, and is less often justified.

But our public men who are having conversations and disputes appear to be hard to satisfy. When one reports what another said it is immediately met with denial or the explanation that the other gentleman neglected to include the context. The average reporter we are satisfied can do much better.

By Way Of Contrast

York County commissioners are going into rearmament on a larger scale. Instead of using a .32 revolver the officers there will soon be armed with .38, and it is likely enough there will be sawed-off shot guns brought in for additional equipment. The reason given is that the mugs are using heavier weapons and at present police find themselves handicapped.

That is the tendency of the day. Tough men in the States introduced the sawed-off gun and then the police there adopted it. Then the tough ones came into possession of machine guns and police did the same thing.

All of which must make us wonder at times how the Metropolitan police in Old London get along without weapons of any kind. Even during the dark days of the big strike and riots in 1926 the police were issued arms for only half an hour or so and then the order was revoked and the weapons were turned in. The criminal there knows well enough that if he is found in possession of a gun it is just too bad for him. He knows also that a policeman will not shoot him. Strange old city where police have no revolvers, no sawed-off guns and no machine guns. Just a night stick made of wood!

Regulating The Crops

If it were not for the adverse powers of which we often enough complain it is likely this continent would produce annually so much produce that we would not know what to do with it.

One well-informed writer estimates losses in United States in an average year this way:

Drought destroys 135,000,000 bushels of wheat, 200,000,000 bushels of oats and 543,000,000 bushels of corn.

Frost destroys 200,000,000 bushels of grain.

Floods wash $400,000,000 worth of property towards the sea.

If those figures are even approximately correct it means that in an average year there are at least one billion bushels of wheat, oats and corn destroyed through natural forces and natural conditions over which man has not control will either produce a crop or destroy it.

If it were not for what we call adverse conditions United States would be producing so much the country would be swamped, and probably our own land is in exactly the same position

We Defend The Straw Tick

We noticed the other day where some social service worker had been making a report on the manner in which some people were living. We quote:

> "The place for sleeping is unfit for human beings. There was only a tick filled with old straw and it was damp. All such sleeping equipment should be discarded in the interests of sanitation and cleanliness. If an appeal were made I am certain a suitable mattress could be secured."

We have not the least objection to people having a mattress on which to sleep. There are some remarkable ones made today and they are splendid equipment on which to place the wearied framework when the day is far spent.

But for sentimental reasons we must rise and say a word for the old straw tick. We are not inclined to allow any person to refer to it in a way which smacks of disrespect. We had such things on the Lot 4, Concession Ten, and so did nearly all the other houses along the road. The one exception was in the spare bedroom.

The one problem which used to present itself at intervals was how to sleep on the thing after it had been filled with fresh straw. It was known in advance that the thing would settle down after being in use for a few nights, but the first night was something not far removed from being an adventure. The tick was stuffed and when we say stuffed we mean it in the full-orbed sense of the word. It bulged as though it had undergone a species of inflation and the sheets, blankets and the fancy quilt bulged along with it.

At first sight it looked like trying to sleep on the side of a balloon and the chances of rolling off appeared to be excellent. It was necessary to resort to the tactics of an animal and root and burrow in the thing to find a place of safe lodging. And after having made that haven of security it was a trifle dangerous to turn over; much better it was to stay put. But it was a good and an all right place to sleep on good clean straw. Like many another thing in life it flattened out with usage. It became depressed and as though it had gone on a diet it lost its excessive rotundity. But we always knew the time would come again when the tick would be emptied and refilled and the "first night" performance would be once more an experience and an adventure.

They're Always Working

The large and representative attendance of directors which gathered here Wednesday to welcome J. A. Carroll, director superintendent of agricultural societies in Ontario, on his official visit to the board of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, told its own story of why the local Exhibition has made such vast strides in recent years. When city men, including merchants in the thick of the Christmas shopping season, are willing to give two hours and a half of their time to discuss various features of the Exhibition with the representative of the department and when farmers are willing to drive many miles on the coldest day of the winter to attend such a meeting, light is thrown upon the enthusiasm and zeal that have developed the local fair into one of the biggest and most successful in its class in the country.

Next year's Exhibition is still over eight months away but that makes no difference to the directors who are willing to work the year round for the success of the annual event and who lose no opportunity that offers itself of improving the Exhibition in some department or another. Urban members of the Board vie with the farmer directors in this twelve-months-in-a-year drive for a constantly expanding and improving annual fair and the only reward either class can hope for is the satisfaction they get out of the fact that they are doing something to advance the cause of agriculture in this district and at the same time are helping to draw the city and the country closer together and that in itself, most of them feel, amply justifies the time and energy they devote toward building up the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition.

There are not many local organizations who could muster such a large turnout as the Exhibition Board produced to greet Mr. Carroll, particularly at a season when the event in which they are interested is so far away and we have an idea that the interest shown convinced such a competent observer as the superintendent of agriculture societies for the province that there was little to worry about so far as the future of Peterborough's Exhibition was concerned.

NOTE AND COMMENT

If they keep up those purges in Russia it is not necessary to go to war with Japan to have a casualty list.

The trouble with trying to find new homes for European refugees is that each country seems quite satisfied that they should be sent elsewhere.

The Winnipeg football team was greeted by hundreds of people at the station when the players arrived home from Toronto. Our hats are off to a city that turns out to cheer losers.

A bit confusing we should say. King George VI. celebrated his birthday on December 14 and here in Canada we have been informed to officially mark the same event on May 20 of 1939.

At all events it must be admitted that Premier Hepburn is a real exponent of razzle-dazzle politics, as contrasted with the two-bucks-and-a-kick tactics of older administrations.

Ontario's beverage rooms must be closed promptly at 8 o'clock on Christmas eve. Commissioner Odette has ruled. The public would support a similar edict in regard to New Year's eve.

When Premier King hangs up his bachelor sock on Christmas eve we doubt if he will on the following morning find an offering in it from the broad acres of the Hepburn farm in Elgin county.

Jews are not allowed to attend moving pictures in Germany, but the Woodstock Sentinel-Review suggests he might make an exception and allow them to see the picture "You Can't Take It With You."

It has been duly recorded and with photographic evidence to prove it that Hon. R. B. Bennett's home in England has 18 bedrooms. We can't help wondering what the man intends to use for a clothes line on Monday.

Ottawa is asking the Canadian people to use more butter in cooking to get rid of the present surplus. That's a simple plan, from the viewpoint of the theorist in the department, but then he's not in charge of the family budget.

W. D. Black, Conservative member of the Legislature for Addington, says he knows nothing of his proposed retirement in order to allow Col. Drew to have his seat. He does enthusiastically rise and say "Here, take my chair.

Chicago man reported that two men held up his tavern at 4 in the morning and took $200 from him. An hour later the gentleman was in court facing a charge of having operated his tavern after 1 in the morning, the legal closing hour. And then officialdom proceeded to take a little more from him.

ROMANCE

(By A. R. K.)

¶ Alfalfa has a boy friend now, she's set her heart on him somehow, his future looks all right; she's sort of dropped her other friends, and from her path no more she bends, he comes most every night.

¶ Alfalfa says when they're alone, she dearly loves the things at home, she speaks it really sweet; she does not care to run around, and try to cover miles of ground, or gad about the street.

¶ She says when sitting in her nook, she simply dotes on things to cook, of nothing she's afraid; each night the man rings up and comes, she feeds him chocolate cake and buns her kindly mother made.

¶ Alfalfa's told him quite a bit, on how she dearly loves to knit, he says that's really fine; she hides her work just when he knocks, for she is knitting him some socks, a gift for Christmas time.

¶ Alfalfa got a book of rules, and then she bought the knitting tools, likewise a hank of yarn; she counts the stitches as she goes, some day she hopes to reach the toes, they look like half a barn.

¶ Alfalfa hastens now to knit, and wonders if the socks will fit, enormous feet they'd hold; if they're too large like how she fears, why he can pull them on his ears—when nights turn very cold.

F. C. Marshall To Hon. H. C. Nixon

EDITOR EXAMINER: Sir,—May I have space in your paper to reply to certain observations made by the Hon. H. C. Nixon, Minister of Game and Fisheries in the Ontario Government, referring to myself, which were published in The Examiner on Saturday, December 10th, in a reply to criticism of his department alleged to have been made at the annual meeting of the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association, December 7th, and reported in The Examiner on December 8th?

First, may I say that I made no attack on Mr. Nixon or the Department of Game and Fisheries at this meeting. This is evidenced by the fact that in the report of this meeting in your issue of December 8th I am not quoted as having said anything critical or otherwise of the Hon. Mr Nixon or his department.

Obviously the information on which he bases remarks regarding myself did not reach him through The Examiner report of this meeting.

Mr. Nixon states, "As for Mr. Marshall's criticism, it is interesting to note that in the year 1935 when he was the department's official representative, only 320,800 fish of all kinds were placed in Peterborough waters and of this amount there was not one single maskinonge."

Presumably, this is supposed to reflect on the manner in which I discharged my duties as game and fisheries officer at that time, though in what way it is difficult to see, as the officer had not at that time or has at present anything whatsoever to do with the restocking activities of the department, this work being carried out by the hatcheries branch of the department, the fry being requisitioned by the various fish and game associations and interested individuals through the local member and distributed by the hatcheries staff, frequently assisted by members of the local Fish and Game Association or other interested parties.

This statement by the Hon. Mr. Nixon indicates either a complete lack of knowledge of the workings of his department or a deliberate and very unfair attempt to reflect on myself while an officer of his department, and in either case does him little credit.

Again Mr. Nixon makes a comparison of the revenue collected in this county from the sale of non-resident licenses in the years 1930, 1933 and 1938. He states "To support this statement let me point out that in the year 1930 when the province enjoyed its greatest tourist business the revenue collected in Peterborough County with Mr. Marshall in charge was $9,000, in 1933 $6,900, and in 1938 under our present efficient staff $17,300."

Here again Mr. Nixon shows an astonishing disregard for facts inasmuch as I did not become connected with the Department of Game and Fisheries until late in November 1932, more than two years after the close of the banner tourist season he speaks of.

As for Mr. Nixon's comparison of revenue collected, in his efforts to reflect on me, this seems like rather small potatoes for a senior cabinet minister. It is, perhaps, indicative of his motives when the only year during my actual term of office that he quotes figures for was my first one with the department in 1933 when any action taken by me would not have had time to influence to any noticeable extent the revenue collected. Of course, the fact that Mr. Nixon, immediately following my resignation, doubled the enforcement staff would not have any bearing on this question and if it did, I suppose he forgot to mention it.

All of this, of course, will not put a single maskinonge in our waters or a partridge in our woods.

At least one scrap of interesting information is included in Mr. Nixon's statements and that is that $17,300 was collected from the sale of non-resident licenses in the county last year. As by far the greater number of non-resident licenses are sold when tourists cross the border coming into the province, and as these figures do not include the revenue from resident hunting, trapping, Gun and Fur Buyers' licenses, to say nothing of gasoline taxes collected when residents or non-residents take a fishing or hunting trip, some idea of the revenue derived from fish and game in this county may be arrived at.

Some knowledge of the amount of this revenue, coupled with the steady decline of our greatest fish, the maskinonge, and the fact that no effective steps have been taken to improve the situation "with respect to lunge," very naturally results in such outbursts of indignation as were heard at Fish and Game meeting.

Further in the face of this situation, when this association was bludgeoned into agreeing to the earlier opening of the maskinonge season last spring and the wave of indignation of sportsmen throughout the province struck the Department of Game and Fisheries to have that department state that it had not intended opening the season earlier until this association asked for it, does not go down very well and certainly was not conducive to a better relationship with the department.

• The Scourge of the Common Cold.

(From the Brockville Recorder and Times)

CANADIANS should be on the alert to combat that scourge of every man and respecter of none — the common cold — which becomes increasingly prevalent during the changeable fall season and cold winter months, the Hon. C. G. Power, Minister of Pensions and National Health, warns in a memorandum issued by that department at Ottawa.

Few major diseases leave such a widespread toll of discomfort and economic loss in their train as does this so-called simple infection, states Major Power in urging people to keep away from crowds when colds are prevalent and to practice good hygenic habits in order to build up resistance. The common cold is the chief cause of lost time in industry.

"If the total amount of suffering, inconvenience, complications and economic loss arising from the common cold could be computed, there is no doubt it would rank among the serious diseases," he declares.

The common cold is not caught by exposure to drafts or sudden changes in temperature, as is popularly supposed, but is the result of germ infection through either direct or indirect contact with those suffering from a cold. Drafts, exposure to wet and cold, overwork, improper food and local pathological conditions may, however, lower the body's vitality and allow the infection to gain headway.

In order to stay clear of colds, two general rules should be stringently followed: (1) Avoid contact with those who have a cold, and (2) adopt proper sanitary habits to strengthen resistance to the infection. In following the first, it is necessary to stay away from crowded and poorly ventilated places while colds are going the rounds. To build up resistance, a proper diet, sufficient rest, plenty of sunshine and fresh air, and cleanliness and care of the mouth, nose, throat and teeth are essential.

The Minister warns of the serious complications, such as bronchitis, pneumonia, sinusitis, and a depressed vitality favoring other infections, which are apt to be the result of the common cold if proper precautions are not taken. Persons with colds should go to bed and stay there for three days or until convalescent. Only in this way can the spread of the infection be prevented and possible serious complications avoided.

• Wheat Cost In Loaf of Bread 1 Cent

SUSPICION of a discrepancy between bread prices in Canada and in Europe and the apparent failure of Canadian bread prices to vary with the price of wheat had the prairie markets conference at Winnipeg by the ears for a time.

J. T. Hull, Winnipeg, of the Manitoba Wheat Pool, interjected a statement in the proceedings that Winnipeg was paying seven to eight cents for a one-pound loaf when the market price of wheat was about 60 cents a bushel. At the same time, bread in Germany was selling at 6½ cents a pound, though wheat was $2.28 a bushel, and in Italy bread was 7.8 cents with wheat $2.11.

"What is their bread made of?" someone asked, to general amusement.

"Bread is a matter of taste," Mr. Hull replied. Canadians did not like English bread. Britishers did not like Canadian bread and Germans like rye, he said.

In France, Mr. Hull proceeded, bread was 3.8 cents a pound, though wheat was $1.64; in Norway, 4.8 cents with wheat $1.62; in Finland, 6.9 with wheat $1.46; Sweden, 7.6 cents with wheat $1.33; Belgium, 3.1 cents and wheat $1.17; Hungary, 2.9 to 4.8 cents, with wheat $1.12; the United Kingdom, four cents with wheat at a market price (not what the farmer gets) of 65 cents.

There was a difference of opinion as to the size of the Winnipeg loaf, also as to comparative moisture content. Mr. Hull said German bread contained 10 per cent rye and Italian 11 per cent corn by Government order.

A farmer from Dauphin, Man., told the conference on December 16, 1932, he delivered wheat to his elevator there for 24 cents a bushel. At the same elevator he got $1.34 on March 27, 1935. On both days bread was seven cents a loaf in Dauphin.

James Richardson, Winnipeg grain dealer, suggested it might as well be conceded that the price of wheat was only a small factor in the price of bread. About one cent's worth of wheat made a loaf of bread but in addition there was the milling, transportation, sacking, lard, baking, wrapping, delivering.

To The Editor

TOO MANY

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—I notice by the reports in the press that a gentleman was brought to Peterborough to speak at the Fish and Game Association meeting and that this same gentleman boasts of taking about 60 lunge this year.

It seems to me there should be a law against such wholesale destruction of our best game fish. Thousands of Americans pay $5.50 each for a license to fish for a few days or a week and are quite satisfied when they catch one lunge.

I don't know whether this gentleman in question is a member of the Peterborough Game and Fish Association but it would only seem right to me that a "Fish Hog" should not be admitted a member of any protective association. Any man with a record for taking lunge such as this individual would not be a welcome speaker to any audience that comprised tourist resort operators, guides and others residing in the district of the Kawartha Lakes known to me and who are dependent for their livelihood on the maintenance of the fish and game in this area.

I think that any association that seeks to give direction to the government as to how they should run things in this country should first of all be representative of the people throughout the County of Peterborough.

It is hard to understand how an organization supposed to exist to protect game and fish could stand by without comment and listen to a man with a record for taking fish such as this party.

I think the Fish and Game Association if it exists to conserve and protect fish and game would be well advised to consult with and take advice and leadership from people who are conservationists.

Thanking you for this space.

Yours truly,
M. W. SHEARER.

IN PETERBOROUGH.

THERE is a Peterborough in New Haven and the following from a trade publication, "Shining Lines" tells something of the publishing business there and the manner in which it faces what we refer to as adversity:

WHEN WE HEAR what publishers have done after storms, fires, earthquakes, or other disasters that destroy or cripple their plants, our admiration goes to them. It is astonishing what some of them attempt and accomplish. Sufferings never keep them down. In the Eastern hurricane scores of publishers suffered great losses, but so far as we know, Paul and Dane Cummings of the Peterborough (N. H.) Transcript got worse treatment than others. First, the Contoocook flooded their building. When cut off from help, fire broke out. With flames leaping skyward, the publishers must have thought the worst had come. It hadn't. Just then the hurricane struck them. A $75,000 plant was soon in blackened ruins. But that week the Transcript came out on a single sheet, 10 inches long and seven wide, without a gloomy whine in it. It is that sort of manhood that makes one want to uncover.

Costa Rica estimates that four-fifths of its 1938 tourist visitors were Americans.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

THERE is none like unto the God of Jeshurun, who rideth upon the heaven in thy help, and in his excellency on the sky. The eternal God in thy refuge, and underneath are the everlasting arms: and he shall thrust out the enemy from before thee; and shall say, Destroy them. Israel then shall dwell in safety alone: the foundation of Jacob shall be upon a land of corn and wine; also his heavens shall drop down dew. Happy art thou, O Israel: who is like unto thee, O people saved by the Lord, the shield of thy help, and who is the sword of thy excellency!—Deut. xxxiii, 26-29.

IDLENESS ENCOURAGED.

(Montreal Star)

THERE WAS a time when Canada paid good money to attract settlers. But not today. We will not even let in British immigrants. The reason, of course, is tragically plain. We can no longer say to new settlers: "Make good on the land, as your pioneer predecessors did or go hungry." We have set up a system of "relief" which tempts these settlers into the towns where the various governments combine to keep them in degenerating idleness.

Better Date

It was Monday morning. The rent collector's bag was getting heavy, but his heart was light till he reached the house of Mrs. Mackay. Master Mackay opened the door.

"Mither and faither are oot," he said. "Will you call on Friday?"

"H'm," said the collector. "And why on Friday, my little man?"

"That's what I dinna ken," said the boy. "We're flittin' on Thursday."

Boat Made Trip Down River New Year's Day

Sixty years ago on New Year's Day, the Golden Eye, flagship of a fleet of steamers owned by the Calcutt Brewing and Malting Company took a load of passengers down the Otonabee river on a free excursion, and that winter went down in history as one of the mildest within the memory of the city's old timers.

There had been no snow up to that date and there was not even a fringe of ice on the river, but when the boat was several miles down river, it turned cold and they returned early. It froze that night.

Joe Goselin, father of Pete Goslin who operates a meat market and store now at the corner of Aylmer and Hunter streets can recall the Winter quite clearly. He said that on the Saturday before Christmas a boat came up the Otonabee from Hastings, Gore's Landing and other lake points loaded with farmers who were bringing fowl and farm produce to the Christmas market. The meat was sold in the old Music Hall which stood directly south of the public weigh scales on the market square.

Channel Narrow

The wharf was located at the foot of Dalhousie street and there was no bridge where the C.P.R. structure now stands. The river channel was so narrow that the steamers spent quite some time manoeuvring to turn around in the channel without running aground.

Robert W. Carson, popularly known as Cap Carson of 484 Sherbrooke street was living in Prince Edward county during the winter of 1877-78. He says there was no snow at all and the Bay of Quinte did not freeze over that year ,the boats being operated during most of the winter period. Farmers plowed on New Year's Day and cattle pastured without being stabled for winter feeding. At least they were able to browse all Winter.

Sir John Returned.

He recalls also that this was the year when the late Sir John A. MacDonald went back into power, defeating Sir Alexander Mackenzie, the Liberal leader. In Prince Edward County James S. McCuaig was the Conservative candidate and defeated Dr. Platt, Liberal. Mr. McCuaig was the grandfather of Mrs. C. H. Ackerman of this city.

Toronto Bay did not freeze over that year, said Mr. Carson as he recalls that during part of the Winter he was in the Queen City, and he says ice was brought down by the Burns Ice Company from Lake Simcoe, Lumberjacks were idle because there was not sufficient snow to permit logging.

June Was Cold

The month of March was far warmer than the month of June, and both he and Mr. Goselin recall that in June there was a heavy frost which did considerable damage. Mr. Carson states that the cold weather spoiled the excursion business on Lake Ontario during that month. He was employed on a steamer which plied between Toronto and Queenston and one way fare was ten cents.

The crops were almost a complete failure and in many places the straw was so short it was impossible to cut the grain with a reaper.

Neither of these men can recall a Winter that could be truly called an open winter except that of 1877-78. There have been many years when there was no snow and little cold weather until the first of January but after that the snow man made up for lost time.

So far this winter Rice Lake and Little Lake have both been frozen from shore to shore and subsequently opened up. At the present time both have large patches of ice inshore.

Shipyards Busy

LONDON, Dec. 16 — (AP). — The new issue of Jane's Fighting Ships, the Who's Who of the world's battlecraft, said to-day that the Powers would have 25 capital ships under construction as soon as the latest units already authorized are laid down.

This figure does not include whatever battleships Russia may be building, but does make allowance for two Japanese vessels of more than 40,000 tons reported to be under construction. (A German naval annual reported Russia is building three battleships of from 35,000 to 40,000 tons.)

"Shipyards have not been so busy since the Great War."

Rebels Launch Double Drive

HENDAYE, France, Dec. 16—(AP)—Spanish insurgent forces launched simultaneous attacks today against government lines in northern and western Spain, accompanied by heavy artillery bombardments.

Welding Tank Oxygen Foiling Pneumonia

NEWBORO, Ont., Dec. 16—(CP)—Oxygen administered directly into the mouth from a welding-shop tank kept the spark of life alive today in 22-year-old Harold Landon, critically ill in hospital here of pneumonia.

Three nurses have remained on duty since Sunday night when oxygen, brought from Don Carmichael's welding shop in Gananoque, 25 miles south of Newboro, first was given. The hospital reported today Landon was "holding his own."

Hope for the young man's recovery had been abandoned when attending doctors sent out a call for oxygen.

Landon's condition since has improved but hospital authorities said he still remained in critical condition. The nurses, Miss A. B. Landon, Grace Landon and Mrs. Gordon Hamilton, take turns in holding the life-giving tube to the patient's mouth.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

As the year draws to a close, we can turn the thoughts back to a lot of furious fun in the athletic swirl during the past four seasons. Faces are mirrors of emotion and we can recall a lot of faces in a lot of places—a lotta pans on a flock o' fans. Doggone poetry, eh? Odd appearances of players and customers and officials in one sport and another. Quick glimpses of a guy's exposed feelings, forgotten in a moment—but resurrected later in memory's filing cabinet. Aged faces, youthful faces, disappointed faces, beautiful faces. All parading down sports' trail in the past twelvemonth. Each a part of the picture—each belonging to some person and some phase of the game. So we'll speak of a few of 'em now.

* * * * * *

There was the disbelieving look on the mug of yours truly when a Belleville scribe last January informed him that an arrangement was made in the senior puck group where all teams would playoff. And the crestfallen faces in the Quinte press box the night the Petes eliminated Fliers. Pick Hines' poker face at all puck contests, regardless of the score. Shrimp McDougall's debonair demeanor as he went down gallantly before the Falls. And his solicitous appearance here as he picked up a Queen's husky after clipping him behind the net! Dazed faces of fans who fell out on the ice as a partition at the Brock gave away, and gleeful pans of other fans in the rink. Yep, just like it was yesterday.

* * * * * *

As Lefty Swung A Pip

The startled physiogs of the fans, one in particular, when Lefty McNally swung an uppercut on him at an Oshawa ball game. Perplexed but stubborn maps of Umps Colling and Kinkley that day as Petes swarmed around 'em when they called a play wrong and stuck to it. Disgusted face of Jim Dorris at the game's finish. Disgruntled mugs of GM-men as they insisted, even when losing to us, that McNally and Doll were washouts. And the face-splittin' grin on Knotty Lee in the Cataract City as his former Petes walloped the Big Roar boys. Not to mention the surprised look on Mickey Paige when Joe Jakafby was named to pitch here—when he'd banked on a southpaw. Disappointed pans on local folk who saw the Petes lose the finals to a poorer club.

* * * * * *

We can't forget the grim mug of Don Crowe battling bitterly in Toronto 'gainst the Beaches, nor the agonized face of Loucks as they toted him off. Nor the unbelieving look on Sarnia players as they left our gridiron a beaten band. We still see Red Creighton's embarrassed glance as he hurried off the lacrosse field in Lindsay when his pants began falling off in a rush! The pugnacious look of Jack Westonfelt and the indignant appearance of Rowan Chute for an undeserved penalty. The unholy glee of the Oshawa softball skipper's map as his team walloped Westclox. And the pain on a beautiful gal's face—we dunno her name—as she twisted an ankle in a softball scrap. The hopeful look on P.C.I. fans' faces in that last grid game here. Not forgetting the unrestrained joy shown by Lindsay scribes as Loucks kicked that field goal against the Imperials.

* * * * * *

The Looks Of Rasslers

And there was the calm pugilistic pan of Nick Orlando as he rocked a Toronto lad to sleep, and the blissful look of the other deep in the daisies. And hundreds of agonizing looks on rasslers' profiles as they did their stuff. The forced cheerfulness of promoters at the last slim mat show. Protesting appearance of hockey referees in numerous after-game arguments. And Eddie Murphy's continual worried look during diamond tussles all season. Alibi faces of golf and curling addicts as they explained why. Especially the horrible countenance of a fighter who spat a threat into our face if we didn't write him up bettah! Yeah, thousands of faces, most of 'em a blur, but many etched indelibly on the mind as the sports swirl keeps aswirlin'. It's no wonder we don't sleep well at nights!

* * * * * *

Secretary Leo Begley of the junior Lindsay hockeyists, writing in the Post, says a blast of protest from Lindsay will likely result from the rearranged groupings. Feels that if the eight-team circuit had to be split up, Lindsay should have been grouped with Peterborough and Port Hope. And he doesn't cater to the idea at all of Lindsay being jacked up to a "B" rating, instead of the "C" category. "We, as their secretary," says he, "have 'C' certificates for them to sign and it is the wish of the executive to remain in 'C' this year and perhaps graduate to 'B' in the next year or so. There is a mixup that the local officials don't like and they are going to take steps immediately to try to do something about it." We gotta admit that it is a strange setup, and not very satisfactory all around.

* * * * * *

A Guy Named Joe

Joe McNulty will likely be playing defence for the senior "B" Petes this semester and the big boy ought to do okay. He played on local ice once before, some five seasons back, when with St. Mike's—and the Gaels did our junior lads dirt on that occasion. Joe went north and played in Timmins last season, then coming here and going okay in rugby for the Orfuns. The Timmins paper the other day remarked on a puck fray there: "Jackie Young and Sammy Fassano don't seem to know that somebody else should score a few goals. It looks as if the two will battle it out for the scoring leadership now that Joe (Hawkeye) McNulty is no longer in the picture."

* * *

Bun Morganson writes in the Tely: "Down Baltimore way the hockey fans break into rousing cheers whenever they mention Pick Hines. Since taking charge of the Orioles hockey club of the Eastern League, Brother Hines has had his downs and ups. Right now the Windsor flash, native of Toronto, who had to take in Windsor before being accepted as a hockey coach, is riding on a six-game winning streak. Hines' Orioles lost their first four games and then took it out on Goodyears one unsuspecting evening in late November. Since their win over Goodyears, the Orioles have been winning game after game and they even tamed the famous New York Rovers in Baltimore last week. Hurrah for Pick, a real fellow, making good in a city where hockey was all but given up for lost." The Petes' ex-coach is getting famous, it seems.

Observation Platform: District hockey meeting at the Omemee rink tonight at eight; everyone welcome...Cobourg junior pucksters may be coached by Kenny Kane, former player here, this winter... The senior "B" title is already won by the Redmen, according to the Quinte columnist — and the team must be heaps bettah or Skipper Thomas would still hold out for intermediate ranking...Hugh (Bummer) Stirling of Sarnia Imperials insists he is through with the grid game; a real blow to the Imps' 1939 football hopes....Senior City Cage Loop swings into action at the Y.M.C.A. this Saturday night with three tilts...Dundas Bombers wanted too much dough, so their proposed grid game with Cobourg Ghosts fell through; Dundas won Big Four intermediate honors as Cobourg cleaned up in the O.R.F.U....Gal cagers are getting squared around for their coming campaign...Surely to goodness there'll be ice here early next week for some hockey practices...Most One-Sided Fight of the Year: The beating the bankroll takes as Xmas nears!

Cleveland Barons Defeat Hershey

HERSHEY, Pa., Dec. 16.—(CP)—Cleveland Barons finally are hitting the stride that brought them a sectional championship last year in the International-American Hockey League. The Barons took a 2-1 victory here last night over Hershey Bears to move into a second place tie with Syracuse Stars in the Western section.

Phil Hergesheimer, youthful wingman presently sought by Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League, tallied the first Cleveland goal in the first period. Red Hamill followed with the lone Hershey tally in the second. Harry Currie scored the winner for the Barons.

Most of the excitement, however, was provided in two fist fights, both involving Hamill. The big redhead, with the great junior team of Copper Cliff Redmen two years ago, exchanged blows with Currie in the third period and when Referee Burke tried to part them he attempted to attack the official.

In the last four seconds Cunningham and Hamill came to blows, Hamill again finally becoming embroiled with the official. Members of both teams became involved in the fight, which was subdued and then broke out again. Hamill had to be carried to the dressing room afterwards.

James Hooper and Thomas Paige as caretakers of the village rink for the 1938-39 season, at a salary of $70 per month, with the usual deductions for non-skating weather. Season tickets will be $1, with single skating at 10 cents per night, while public school pupils will be allowed three nights free skating per week.

GALE WRECKS STAND

DERBY, England — (CP). — A grandstand on the county cricket ground here was wrecked in a recent gale and replacement will prove costly for Derbyshire Cricket Club.

"Hat-Tricker"

Player No. 5 in the National league to register three goals in a game this season was Art Jackson, (ABOVE), speedy New York American forward, who rapped home a trio as he and his teammates defeated Detroit Red Wings, 5-1. Among the others who have turned the trick is his brother, Harvey Jackson of the Leafs.

Campbellford Coach Elected To Board

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 16.—Harold Dunk, coach of the local midget and bantam hockey teams was elected to the executive of the Ontario Bantam and Midget Hockey Association at their annual meeting held in Galt. The association's only income last year took the form of a grant of $150.00 from the Ontario Athletic Commission and it was decided that this year an entry fee of $2.00 per team should be charged. In future all players must present a certificate of registration of birth. The closing dates for entries will be January 20 when the play offs begin. Another ruling handed out was that if a boy plays in more than two games in a higher classification he is ineligible to play in a lower series. Next year's meeting will be held during the month of November and will likely take place in Toronto.

A Happy Girl

DETROIT, Dec. 16—(CP).—Happiest girl in Detroit on Christmas eve will be eight-year-old Peggy Rice. She has suffered from a tubercular spine since 1933 and for three years has been confined to a bed of wheel chair. Doctors say she will be recovered enough to walk for the first time in three years on Christmas eve. Her first steps will take her from her wheel chair to light the municipal Christmas tree at the city hall.

Thought He Was Shot

DETROIT, Dec. 16 — (CP). — Arthur Kemp, 23, was in jail today, captured mainly by his own imagination. Kemp was fleeing from the scene of a robbery when a policeman fired a shot in the air. Kemp fell, convinced he was shot. He was captured easily and found guilty in court. Sentence was postponed one week.

Cardiff Director Block Scheme To Put Club Back In Big-Time

LONDON, Dec. 16.—(CP Cable)—Opposition of Cardiff City's directors to an ambitious scheme to put the third division club back in big-time soccer has Welsh football fans by the ears.

A post-war drive carried the Welshmen to Wembley where they won the English Cup in 1927 and for a while kept them among the country's leading clubs. But the tide turned in 1929 and the Cardiff entry has put in the last seven years in the third division.

The directors have turned down an offer by H. H. Merrett, Welsh coal magnate, to advance £40,000 ($188,000) looking to the club's reorganization and their action led to the resignation of W J. Parker, a senior member of the board. Merrett's plan was to buy up the club shares at par and devote three years to rebuilding the team but the directors' reasons for turning thumbs down have not been disclosed.

Several first division clubs are undergoing special training in preparation for the heavy holiday program. Everton sent its players to Harrogate and Arsenal's team is golfing at Brighton on the South coast.

Everton, striving to overhaul Derby County, league leader, is at home to Charlton Athletic. The county with a margin of two points over the Toffee-makers, opposes Middlesbrough.

Portsmouth went to Belfast to strengthen its eleven now in lower half of the league table and McAlinden, Irish international inside forward may turn out against Chelsea Saturday. It is reported Portsmouth paid about £5,000 ($23,600) to Belfast Celtic for his transfer.

Frank O'Donnell, Aston Villa's high-priced centre-forward, was bitten by a dog Monday but he is expected to be fit for the match with Leeds United.

Although beaten 2-1 a week ago by Hamilton Academicals, Rangers cling tenaciously to a three-point lead in the Scottish Football League. Celtic and Hearts are battling for the runner-up position, deadlocked with 27 points.

The light blues have Aberdeen as visitor at Ibrox Park and Hearts have an equally hard battle ahead against Hamilton. St. Mirren tackles Celtic at Parkhead.

N.H.L. Stars

Frankie Brimsek, Boston, goaled the Bruins to a 1-0 victory over Montreal Canadiens for his fourth shutout of the season.

Ralph (Cooney) Weiland, Boston, scored the only goal in game against Canadiens.

Johnny Gottselig, Chicago, scored two goals and an assist as the Black Hawks and Toronto Maple Leafs played a 4-4 overtime draw. Murph Chamberlain, Leafs, scored two last period goals.

LEAFS TIE CHICAGO 4-4 AND CANADIENS LOSE 1-0 TO BRUINS

Brimsek Scores Fourth Shutout As Bruins Blank Canadiens 1-0; Leafs, Hawks, Amerks, Rangers Tie

By Robert Clarke
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

The palm for the smoothest bit of trading of the season goes today, beyond doubt, to Art Ross, the sage who guides the National Hockey League destinites of Boston Bruins.

There was a bit of eyebrow lifting two weeks ago when he sold Cecil (Tiny) Thompson, one of the great goalies of all time, to the Detroit Red Wings. True, the Bruins got $15,000 in cash and a player thrown in but the wise ones weren't quite sure of how the Boston team would fare with Frankie Brimsek as a replacement.

Many figured that rotund Jack Adams, manager of the Wings, got the better of the deal for the veteran Thompson still is good for several more seasons of bang-up hockey. And the experts saw a question in whether the Bruins would be as great with Brimsek in the nets.

That was just six Boston games ago that the switch was made and all the questions have been answered in full by the Bruins, in general, and Brimsek, in particular.

The Bruins have won five of those six games, all in a row, and Brimsek a rookie with only a year in the minors behind him as professional experience, has scored four shutouts.

His 4th Shutout

His fourth shutout, making him undisputed leader in this respect among N.H.L. netminders, came last night when the Bruins defeated Montreal Canadiens 1-0 at Montreal on a third period goal by Ralph (Cooney) Wieldand. At the same time in New York, the Rangers and Americans played to a 1-1 draw in their second intra city clash of the season, while Chicago Black Hawks tied 4-4 at home with Toronto Maple Leafs.

But the bit that must give Ross a chuckle and cause Adams to toss about in his sleep is the fact that Wings only two years ago had tabs on Brimsek as an amateur and passed him up. Brimsek, born in Eveleth, Minn., played two amateur seasons with the Pittsburgh Yellow Jackets in the Eastern United States league and the Jackets are a stepping stone to Pittsburgh Hornets, a farm team for Detroit.

Lean Johnny Gottselig, leading pointmaker in the N.H.L. with nine goals and an equal number of assists, came through for two goals and aided in another for the Hawks against Leafs. Murph Chamberlain was the leading light for the leafs with two tallies.

Big Earl Seibert got another of the Hawk goals, while Mush March added the other. George Parsons came through for a Toronto tally in the first period while Harvey (Busher) Jackson got the remaining Leaf goal.

At New York, Phil Watson sent the Rangers ahead in the second period but Americans tied up the game soon after the start of the final session on Art Chapman's goal.

WIGAN BEATS BARROW

Sarnia Jolted As Stirling Decides To Quit

SARNIA, Dec. 16 — (C.P.).—One of the greatest figures in the history of the Canadian gridiron, Hugh (Bummer) Stirling to-day stepped to the sidelines to join mates who have brought football fame to this small border city.

Stirling did not reveal his reasons for leaving the game after 10 years of service with Sarnia Imperials when he spoke last night to the Kinsmen Club of which he is president-elect for next year.

The loss came as a severe jolt to hopes of the Imperials who have won eight consecutive Ontario Union titles, two Eastern and two Dominion championships behind the terrific punting of the Bummer. His retirement breaks up the great backfield that for years made the Imperials among the most-feared clubs in football.

Only Alex. Hayes, veteran quarterback, remains of the old guard. Orm Beach, giant half who co-starred with Stirling, was killed in an explosion before the 1938 season got under way. Norm. Perry, now Sarnia's Mayor, and Rocky Parsaca, have left the game to younger men.

A triple-threat man, the 32-year-old star who came to Sarnia after a sparkling career as a junior at St. Thomas, counted 493 points in his 10 years of senior competition. He was a superb ball-carrier and forward passer, besides being ranked among the best booters of all time.

The big fellow closed his career with a good season, being selected by coaches and sports writers as secondary defence half on The Canadian Press all-Eastern team. In his 10 years as a senior Bummer crossed opposition lines for 26 touchdowns, kicked 16 field goals, booted 260 singles, and place kicked 55 points after touchdowns.

Ranger Defence Too Good For This Boston Attack

MUZZ PATRICK DAVE KERR PHIL WATSON
MEL HILL ART COULTER ROY CONACHER

Two of the most favored teams in the National Hockey League were battling when this picture was taken in New York, where Boston Bruins had a date with the Rangers. The latter went down before the Bruin dynamiters, 3-0, as Frank Brimsek registered his third shut out in a row. This Boston attack was not completely successful, but it provided plenty of camera action as Mel Hill and Roy Conacher, rookies with the Bruins, made a sorty into Ranger territory, but were forced to the corner by the rival defence pair of Muzz Patrick and Art Coulter. Goalie Dave Kerr stands ready, while Phil Watson has moved back to protect.

Tigers Get Star 3rd Sacker Pinky Higgins

NEW YORK, Dec. 16—(AP).—The baseball men have left this old trading post after three riotous days during which the conversation went round and round, and in calm retrospect today it looks as though Detroit Tigers of the American League did more good for themselves than any other club.

In landing third-baseman Pinky Higgins, a proven star, in yesterday's major trade with Boston Red Sox, the Tigers finally boarded up their blind spot. Now all Manager Del Baker has to worry about is where to play Rudy York.

Neither Boston Red Sox, who finished second in the junior loop, nor Cleveland, which staggeed in third, appears to have benefitted materially from what small trading was done, so Detroit must automatically become the choice to chase New York Yankees to the wire next year.

Cleveland acquired the veteran outfielder, Ben Chapman. The Red Sox got three fair-to-middling pitchers in Elden Auker and Jade Wade from Detroit and Denny Galhouse from Cleveland. The Sox were in desperate need of mound replacements, since old Lefty Grove seems to have pitched his arm away.

In giving up Auker and Wade Detroit gambled mightily that Fred Hutchinson, its expensive young pitching prize from Seattle, will live up to his price tag. The Tigers gave two season players, Jo-Jo White and Tony Piet, and a lot of owner Walter Briggs' money for the 19-year-old, who won 25 and lost seven last year.

Bowling And Piloting A 'Rassler Spoil Siesta That Usually Finds Turkey Gehrke In Bed Now

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 16—(AP).—Arthur (Turkey) Gehrke, the hibernating Watertown tavernkeeper, has yet to take his annual siesta under a pile of comforters, and the reason therefore was out to-day. He's managing a wrestler.

In recent winters, Turkey by this date always could be found in his bedroom over the taproom, dozing blissfully while the snows blanketed Wisconsin. Just a couple of weeks ago his tentative yawns brought printed forecasts of his pending retirement.

But rotund Turkey and his "boy," Tubby Reinhardt, were on hand for a rasslin' card here Monday night, a phenomenon unnoticed for nearly four days.

It was a stomach ailment which first sent Turkey to bed to keep the misery from his bones. Now it's disappeared after Turkey resumed bowling, following a 27-year lapse. A doctor told him recently, Turkey said, that he showed up better than younger fellows. He's down to 186 pounds, and feels more like 26 (Tubby's age) than 56

Lacrosse Experts Warned From U.S.

TORONTO, Dec. 16. — (CP). — Canadian lacrosse players planning to migrate to California this winter were warned today by the Canadian Lacrosse Association that such a step would automatically bring a two-year suspension from the Dominion body. The association said that certain California interests are attempting to attract Canadian players to a league in that state this winter.

"Past experiences with similar United States interests has been very disastrous for Canadian players who were left when the leagues were financial failures," the association said in a statement. "The Ontario and British Columbia Association and the C.L.A. are refusing players permission to go to California.

"There is no truth in the report that three British Columbia clubs are going (to California), and it is very doubtful if any player from this province will break the rules, as officials are very firm on this point. Ontario players are advised not to be misled—only to find themselves out of organized lacrosse for a period of two years."

Unemployment in Belgium is decreasing.

Tiger Fielder Balks At Move

(Detroit Times)

Despite the fact that he has been "sold down the river," Jo-Jo White plans to make Detroit his permanent home, he said today. He will remain here until March 1 before reporting to any club elsewhere. He thinks, however, that he will not go to Seattle. He said:

"I would prefer, if I have to go back to the minors, to go to the American Association or the International League. My parents live in Atlanta, Ga., and they are well up in years. In case of emergency I wouldn't want to be so far away from them as 2,500 miles. I will quit rather than go to the Coast.

"I am going to live in Detroit. My 5-year-old daughter was born here. It is her home, and here we will stay. Tonyo Jo loves Detroit and I will not take her away.

Admires Club

"Despite the fact that the Detroit Baseball Company has disposed of me I have the greatest admiration for the management. Since coming here I have had the most considerate treatment from both the late Mr. Navin and from Mr. Briggs. I am sorry that I have to leave, but I will wait until the club officials get back from the New York meeting and then try to arrange for a transfer to some club father East."

Jo-Jo came to Detroit in 1931. Since then, he says, he has played on an average of 100 games each year of the 154 games on the regular schedule of championship games. Asked what he considered his most valuable contribution to the success of the team he said:

Always Hustled

"Every minute I have been with the team I have hustled. I never let down a second, save the first year when I broke my leg and was out of commission for almost three months. My hitting hasn't been so hot. One season I hit .313. In other years I was below the .300 mark, but I think in fielding and speed I was an asset to the club. I know that if a ball club wants to get a player it needs it has to give something of value to get that player. I do not want to go back to the minors and I think a major league club could use me. I a monly 29 years old and think I still have a major league career ahead of me."

Regrets Leaving

Jo-Jo lives at 3540 Chicago boulevard with his wife and daughter, Tonyo Jo, and says he hopes to dwell here long enough to rear his family in this city. He said.

"One of the nicest features of the Detroit ball club is its generosity. Many ball players have been broke in the Winter, but the club under the Navin administration as well as under the Briggs regime has come to the rescue without the public knowing a thing about it. In my experience here I have known of this being done repeatedly. They have given with the right hand and haven't let the left hand know."

Louis Next Bump For Farr, Nova Winner

By Alan Randal
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 16—(C.P.). — No matter who wins the Duke in Madison Square Garden's ring tonight, be it rugged Tommy Farr from the Welsh coal pits or Lou Nova, the handsome californian, it seems most probable Joe Louis will tackle the victor before next summer's bloom begins to fade.

The winner of the 15-round Farr-Nova go shapes up as the only logical contender for Louis' heavyweight crown, unless, of course, some young white hope that is a white hope comes booming out of nowhere in a great hurry. But that seems unlikely.

As matters stand, Nova, a former California footballer who won 27 of his 29 fights, ranks as the only formidable but untested white hope. The hard rock from Tonypandy is his test—a wicked assignment.

Aside from Farr and Nova the only other ranking contender in sight—though possibly the term is gross exaggeration—is Maxie Baer. And there has scarcely been a country-wide clamor for another Louis-Baer match though neither Tommy or Lou would mind meeting the one-time California madcap on the way to a shot at Louis if necessity demands it.

Joe Up Next?

If Lou beats tough Tommy one can expect to hear the drums beating immediately for a Louis-Nova get-together. Farr, should he take Lou's measure, will land just about back in the spot he enjoyed when he came here about 18 months ago to do battle with Joe and astounded one and al by staying 15 rounds with the chocolate-colored champion.

Already a three-time loser in the United States—to Louis, Jim Braddock and Baer—Farr has announced his intention of retiring if he loses to Nova. Meantime Louis feels obligated to fight Farr, and, he hopes, erase the stigma Tommy left by lasting the route. On the strength of his ruggedness and past experience, of 22 15-round bouts, Tonypandy Tommy at about 205 pounds, is the 7 to 5 favorite to pass Lou.

Northern Mother Needs Clothes, Institute Hears

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Dec. 16—The first of the afternoon meetings of the Women's Institute, which supersede the evening gatherings for the winter months, was held on Saturday at 2.30 p.m., at the home of Mrs. W. D. Thorndyke.

Mrs. R. J. McKnight took the chair, and after the W.I. opening ode, the secretary, Mrs. J. W. Hilton, read the correspondence. A letter of thanks was received from Mrs. J. McBride, a sick member, and one long connected with the Institute, both faithful in attendance when health permitted, and helpful in the various W.I. undertakings. Another letter contained an appeal from a mother in Harcourt, northern Ontario, whose husband is ill, and who needs clothing she might make over for her children, or wool from which she could knit, and similar help. All donations are to be left with Mrs. E. C. Richards, and it is hoped to send the bale before Christmas.

The usual Christmas cheer baskets and cards will be packed and mailed, again this season, donations to be brought in next Wednesday, to the community waiting room where the work will be done. Groceries, fruit, candy, etc., are required.

The January meeting will be in the hands of Mrs. D. Olan, convener of the standing committee on "Community Activities," who will also arrange for the place where the gathering will be held.

John Lawson, Seymour Pioneer To Mark 90th Birthday Sunday ✓

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TRENT RIVER, Dec. 17—He recalls that in his youth he carried grain for a mile on his back, then rowed with it seven miles along the river Trent to Hastings; once he made a thousand pounds of maple sugar which he sold for ten cents a pound; he used to have his mail delivered by courier once a week.

He is Trent River's grand old man, John Lawson, who celebrates his 90th birthday on Sunday, and he has lived on the 14th Concession of Seymour township for the past 79 years. A man with a keen mind, he can remember days that seem far remote to the average person today, and he tells about them with a vividness that makes one appreciate that in his own mind they are as yesterday.

Born in 1848 in Prince Edward county, he went to Percy township when he was five years of age, and six years later moved to Trent River with his father, Isaac Lawson, and still lives on the same farm.

Their first home was a log shanty, built while they cleared the land. In these surroundings he grew to manhood and in 1873 John Lawson married Martha Stone of Bath, whose death occurred in 1911. His second wife, Mary Jane Collins of Dummer, died in 1930, and since that time his sister, Mrs. John Free with her granddaughter, Eleanor Brown, have lived with him.

Wood $2.00 a Cord

All preserves in the time of his fresh manhood were made with maple syrup, and that accounted for the market for a thousand pounds of it that he once made. Wood sold for about two dollars a cord, butter for 12 cents a pound, eggs for five cents a dozen.

Oxen took the place of horses in many phases of farm life in those days. Mr. Lawson can remember taking many a trip in winter by oxen, some as far as Marmora, 17 miles away, to sell coarse grain to the Gilmour and Rathburn Lumber company for shanty purposes. Such a journey required an entire day.

Mail Once a Week

The first post office was on the Frank Lee place, now known as "Home Acres," the property of Thomas J. Brown. Mail came by courier on horseback once a week from Campbellford, nine miles away.

The first school house was built on the corner lot of Fred Cooke's farm along Highway 30 toward Campbellford. It was used as the Episcopal church, where Rev. D. O. Crossley conducted services.

Mr. Lawson enjoys good health which he attributes to long walks that he takes. When the weather permits, he finds his way to the Sunday afternoon services of the United church. He has been a life long member of that church, and has served on the trustee board. He has a wide circle of friends through the country and is known as a kindly man of upright character, just in all his dealings.

Five Escape Fumes

TORONTO, Dec. 16. — (CP). — James Thomson, war veteran, rescued a family of five who were overcome by coal gas today while in bed at their home on Jones avenue. "I heard them groaning and rushed downstairs," said Thomson.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Wandich live behind a shoe store operated by the father. Pauline, 14; Alec, 10, and Olga thre and one-half, were asleep in the two-roomed apartment with their parents while fumes escaped from a combination gas and coal stove, firemen said.

Marmora Guild Holds Baking Sale

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, Dec. 16. — St. Paul's Ladies' Guild added another successful event to their year's enterprises as they held an afternoon tea and bake sale at the rectory on Wednesday afternoon.

A Christmas gift table and a mysterious parcel table also added to the revenue of the afternoon. The drawings for the quilt and Christmas cake resulted in the former being won by Mrs. I. B. Nichol, while the cake went to Mrs. James Jones, Marmora Township, and R. Wellman, Peterborough.

Germany claims it now is the world's leading manufacturer of "cast steel."

Canada Should Take Quota Jewish Refugees, Debaters Say

(Examiner Correspondence.)

PLAINVILLE, Dec. 16—The first debate of a series took place at Plainville Tuesday evening between Plainville Y.P.S. and Coldsprings Y.P.S., with the topic "Resolved that Canada should accept responsibility of providing refuge for her share of the dispossessed Jews of Europe."

Cold spring debaters upholding the affirmative, were Clarence Ash and Lorne Brisbin with Misses Lucy Lander and Dorothy Harris for the Plainville-Gores' Landing side. The affirmative side was declared the winner by the judges, Miss Eula Latter, Gores' Landing, Miss Moffat, Coldsprings and Miss Crews, Camborne.

A series of interesting lantern slides were shown and refreshments were served at the close by the Plainville Young People.

The December meeting of the W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. Leslie Carruthers with about fifteen ladies present. Mrs. Everett Brisbin was the group leader in charge of the program. Mrs. Louis Buttar read a chapter of the study book. Miss Mary Herriott gave a reading and Mrs. Fred Bowman, a solo.

During the business there was the annual election of officers: Mrs. Leslie Carruthers was returned as president with Mrs. Fred Bowman as vice-president. Recording secretary, Mrs. Glenn Cole; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Gerald Lander; treasurer, Mrs. Louis Buttar; mission Band superintendent, Miss Lucy Lander; assistants, Misses Grace Dines and Helen Carruthers; pianist Miss Bernice McKinlay; assistant, Mrs. L. McKinlay; strangers' secretary, Miss Clara King; christian stewardship, Miss Ewart King; supply secretary, Mrs. Herriott; literature secretary, Miss Mary Herriott, missionary monthly secretary, Mrs Amis; press secretary, Mrs. Glen Cole; associate helpers, Mrs. Thomas Buttar; peace secretary, Mrs. Wilbur Cole.

On Friday evening a basket social was held in the church basement sponsored by the W.M.S. and was quite successful. There was also a bazaar and entertainment. Miss Edith Hoskin of Coldsprings gave an interesting talk on her trip to England and Scotland during the past summer.

Chest Wheezing Means Bronchitis

The principal symptom of bronchitis is a dry, harsh, hacking cough accompanied with a rapid wheezing and feeling of tightness across the chest.

There is a rising of phlegm, especially in the morning. This phlegm is at first of a light color, but as the disease progresses becomes yellowish or greenish, and is sometimes streaked with blood.

You will find in Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup a remedy to stimulate the weakened bronchial organs, subdue the inflammation, soothe the irritated parts, loosen the phlegm and mucus, and help nature to easily dislodge the morbid accumulation.

Vernard Arraigned

NEW YORK, Dec. 16—(AP).—George Vernard, Canadian manager and agent in charge of market operations of McKesson and Robbins, Inc., drug firm, was arraigned today in Federal Court on a complaint charging violation of the Securities Act pertaining to fyling of false statements with the New York Stock Exchange.

Bail was set at $3,500 after Vernard waived hearing. He was connected with W. W. Smith and Company, which allegedly handled sales for the drug firm in Canada through offices in Montreal.

Provincial, Federal And Municipal Refunding Plan Essential For Vital Defences, Says Hepburn

TORONTO, Dec. 16—(CP).—The vital need of building national defences makes imperative a refunding of public debts in Canada, Premier Mitchell Hepburn said yesterday in an address at the Empire Club. The alternative to refunding was national bankruptcy and the loss to investors of the principle of these debts.

"What are we going to do about debt? Let us face it. We have a national refunding scheme, provincial, federal and municipal. It has been done in other countries. Yes, in Britain. In Australia."

Advocates of monetary reform were called crackpots and nitwits but their detractors had nothing better to offer.

"My desire is to save our principle—to pay back for value received but we won't be able to do that much longer if we drift along. Three or four years from now when the country is facing bankruptcy, as my friend the Globe and Mail has observed, we'll wonder why we didn't do something. Let us have the courage to do what is necessary.

"We're living in a new era. When I was at the Pacific they were worrying about national defence. It is time to take stock and put our house in order because we're going to face the need of national defence.

Stand by the Democracies

"The democracies must stand together. In my opinion three nations have agreed on a conquest of the world and the rest of us must stand together and resist the inroads of dictators."

Mr. Hepburn said he recently had been accused of a conspiracy "to rip this country asunder." Canada was worth saving and he was bent on saving it, not destroying confederation.

"I believe in one Canada, not nine Canadas"

Ontario's attitude before the Rowell commission for the maintenance of provincial rights and revenues was a proper stand. She had not gone to the commission cap in hand, demanding concessions from the federal government as had other provinces.

"When these other provinces made demands on the federal treasury, it was Ontario's business because Ontario contributed nearly half of federal revenues.

"I believe Ontario has paid its share in regard to confederation and I do not believe she should be asked to pay more."

There were subvention on Alberta coal, Maritime fish, Western wheat, Maritimes potatoes and other things. To all these Ontario contributed. At Sault Ste Marie was a great industrial concern struggling to get along. Its chief competitor, located in Nova Scotia, received $1,500,000 in subsidies and "our industry at the Soo has to pay its share to subsidize its competitor in the Maritimes."

The Hudson Bay Railway was built simply to satisfy political demands of the west. A Federal Minister told him so. Last season two small vessels took cargoes of wheat from Churchill.

"This year the west had sufficient political influence to force the Federal government to guarantee wheat prices." Wheat consumption was falling all over the world yet Canada aggravated the situation by promoting its production. The guarantee would cost the Federal treasury 60 or 70 million dollars.

He had been told recently by an Alberta man that near Brooks, Alta., where there is an irrigation scheme, to which Ontario contributed, the wheat subsidy was resulting in lands being taken out of diversified farming and turned back to wheat.

"It is politics, just politics pure and simple. It is a bid to get the votes of the west. But we will create a worse situation than the one we have now."

"In regard to William Lyon Mackenzie King, this gentleman charges me with conspiracy to destroy Confederation. There is no more loyal Canadian than I in this gathering. I love this Canada and am proud to know it is a link in the British Empire.

An Imperialist.

"I am not only a Canadian, I am an Imperialist if you want to call me that.

"Now this Mr. King who charges me with entering into a conspiracy too destroy Confederation is the same gentleman who in 1930 got up in Parliament and enunciated a policy that did more to destroy Confederation than anything else that has happened. King said 'not a five-cent piece for relief to any province with a Tory government'."

"Imagine that man trying to accuse me of conspiracy against Confederation. Imagine a leader like that man talking about an appeal to the public on the issue of national unity."

A few scattered hand-claps met this sally. "I'm glad there are some Tories in the audience," said the Premier.

"Here we had a national leader enunciating a policy with a club. The Provincial governments had to be satisfactory to him. I thought we were getting along but he's getting so near the five-cent piece in regard to Ontario, I'm questioning my own affiliations."

Ontario was not complaining about her contributions to the Federal treasury but she did object to the charge she was an exploiter of the rest of Canada. Heaven only knew what might have happened to Canada in the depression had it not been for Ontario's natural resources.

Mr. Hepburn justified Ontario's refusal to have anything further to do with the Royal Commission on Federal and Provincial relations on the ground that the Federal government had imposed new taxes since the Commission was erected and thereby violated an understanding there would be no additional taxation pending its report.

Another Ontario Loss.

There was a drive by the other provinces to transfer the collection of succession duties to the Federal government, he charged. Ontario would be the chief loser and would have to impose other taxation should the drive succeed.

Mr. Hepburn said in a recent speech he had estimated there would be a saving of $700,000,000 annually if public and private debts in Canada were refunded at lower rates. The Federal government with its railway debts, subsidies for one thing and another was piling up debt but creating no assets. Action to reduce debt charges was urgent.

Ontario was trying to balance revenue with expenses. Debts being taken on had assets behind them But Federal debts were going up.

"Who is the Moses to lead us out of the wilderness. I'd face the issues frankly and squarely. The facts are obvious."

One of Ontario's economy measures was the closing of Government House. There was no measure of disloyalty in that. Suitable quarters had been provided in the Legislature building for the Lieutenant-Govenor.

national income, a conference of the federal and state governments was called in 1931 to consider measures to restore solvency and avoid default.

The Premier's Conference, as it was called, adopted and carried out an ambitious program. It embodied a 20 per cent reduction in all adjustable government expenditure, including salaries and pensions; conversion of internal debts of the governments on the basis of 2½ per cent reduction of interest; additional taxation; reduction of bank interest, and relief of private mortgages.

By June, 1937, the plan was pronounced successful. Finances of the Commonwealth were again on a satisfactory basis and the combined revenues of the commonwealth and the six states exceeded expenditures by £966,000 (Australian) (about $3,864,000).

Salary Cuts Restored

By that time the public service salary cuts had been restored and substantial remissions made in all fields of taxation. It was estimated that conversion on operations in London since 1932 have saved Australia more than £3,250,000 a year in interest.

The Australian government railway lines, which comprise all but 811 miles of a total mileage of more than 37,900, have been a paying proposition. The gross earnings of all government lines in 1935-36 were £41,301,549 of which £11,533,678 was net earnings, representing a return on the total cost of 3.41 per cent.

The government of the Commonwealth is a coalition, called the United Australia party, headed by Prime Minister Joseph Lyons who was re-elected late in 1937.

Dr. F. Sanderson Actuary Dies In Toronto

TORONTO, Dec. 16.—After a long illness, Dr. Frank Sanderson, dean of Ontario actuaries, died at his home at 44 Delisle avenue last night, in his 78th year.

Dr. Sanderson was an old Peterborough boy, was born and raised in Smith township, and attended Peterborough Collegiate at about the same time as E. A. Peck, K.C., and Thomas H. Graham of 679 Aylmer street. His father was John Sanderson and their home was on the Chemong Road, almost facing the turn to Omemee.

For over a quarter of a century Dr. Sanderson was associated with the direction of McMaster University, not only as a member of the senate and the board of governors, but also as chairman of a number of important committees. Some years ago he was honored with the degree of LL.D.

Fellow of the Faculty of Actuaries of Scotland, and also the Actuarial Society of America, he was known as an authority by governments and insurance companies. Educated at Peterborough schools and the University of Toronto, he entered the actuarial profession in 1887.

Joined Insurance Company

Passing his initial examinations at Edinburgh and London, England, Dr. Sanderson became connected with the Manufacturer's Life Insurance Company, and later with the Canada Life Assurance Company. He joined the Canada Life, first as assistant and later became chief actuary and joint general manager of the company.

Dr. Sanderson was the author of the "Mortality Experience of the Canada Life" which was adopted by the Ontario Legislature as a standard for certain classes of insurance. He was also the author of a number of valuation tables for life insurance companies.

One of the founders of the Toronto Insurance Institute, he became a member of the Institute of Actuaries of Great Britain and also a Fellow of the Royal Statistical Society of Great Britain. After retiring from the Canada Life he established himself as an independent consulting actuary.

Advised Department

In that capacity he was associated with a number of Canadian and American insurance institutions. For several years he was a consulting adviser to the Ontario Insurance Department. He served for several years as treasurer and member of the board of directors of the Social Service Council of Canada. For over thirty years he was a member of Walmer Road Baptist Church.

Dr. Sanderson was twice married. By his first wife, Amy Pierce, he had one son, Hector M. of Toronto His second wife, Charlotte Thrall, who survives him, was for many years head of Moulton College.

MILLBROOK

Mrs. S. E. Eakins Re-elected Head

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Dec. 16.—Rev. H. R. and Mrs. Williams entertained the W.M.S. of Grace Presbyterian church for its annual meeting, held at the manse on Wednesday at 3 p.m., with Mrs. S. E. Eakins in the chair, and the host reading the Christmas message from Matthew 2, and offering the opening prayer.

The roll was answered with a verse of scripture, and Miss Ruth Thorndyke gave a reading, "Soft Answers," prior to the reception of reports, the secretary asking for the privilege of bringing her coverage of the year's activities at the January meeting, as figures were not complete to date.

Near Objective

The treasurer reported $114 raised to date for missions, toward the total allocation of $125, with a number of dues, holiday bags, and mite-boxes yet to come in. In the expense fund there is a balance of $13.42, but it was not thought it will be necessary to touch this as the amount outstanding on the allocation will bring that fund to the desired total. The Auxiliary has sponsored very few activities this year, giving way to the sister society, the Ladies' Aid, and practically all its funds have been raised by voluntary giving.

The welcome and welfare secretary, Mrs. C. Thorndyke, reported callsm ade upon the sick and shutins, and four removals, Mrs. H. G. McLeod and Harry, to St. Catharines; Marian Belch, who is attending the university at Toronto; and Mr. E. Williams to Havelock. The secretary was instructed to send for an "In Memoriam" certificate, the first the society has ever had, one member having donated the necessary amount to secure this honor.

Indian Girl Outfitted

The sale secretary told of an outfit for an Indian girl with both new and second hand clothing, and other articles, valued at $20.40, shipped in the fall, and of the contribution of a complete layette by the junior auxiliary, which also remitted ten dollars to the Presbyterial treasurer.

Before vacating the chair to Rev. Mr. Williams, who conducted the election of officers for 1939, the president feelingly voiced her thanks for the fine showing, financially and in other respects, made by the year's work, and urged an earlier planning of activities after the new year.

The list for 1939 includes: Honorary presidents: Mrs. H. R. Williams, Mrs. W. T. Deyell, and Mrs. Z. Seaton; president, Mrs. S. E. Eakins; vice-presidents, Mrs. James Kennedy, Mrs. H. Seaton and Mrs. M. Kinsman; secretary, Mrs. J. R. Thompson; treasurer, Miss Agnes Johnston.

Department secretaries: Glad Tidings, Mrs. J. N. McGill; welcome and welfare, Mrs. W. C. Thorndyke; supply, Mrs. Milton Fallis; expense, Mrs. R. J. McMahon; press, Miss Ruth Thorndyke; pianist, Mrs. John Thompson.

The minister closed the meeting with prayer and candy was served during the social hour at the close.

City Appeals Auburn Mill Assessment

An appeal by W. J. Henry, city assessor against the decision of the Court of Revision reducing the assessment of the Auburn plant of the Dominion Woollens and Worsteds, Ltd., by $16,200, was heard this morning by Judge S. L. Smoke.

The reductions allowed by the Court of Revision were $9,500 on the mill property, $5,700 on business and $1,000 on vacant land.

Mr. Henry referred in the tax roll to four properties owned on Auburn street by the company. Originally there were four houses, but two of them have been torn down. The two vacant lots are assessed at $200 each.

Two $750 Houses

A house occupied by Samuel Montgomery is assessed at $750 and an adjoining house of similar construction, tenanted by Oliver Green, is also assessed at $750.

Other properties mentioned by Mr. Henry were a house occupied by Leslie Delong, assessed at $1,000, and another at 195 Auburn street, occupied by Tom Smith and assessed at $1,000, also a vacant area of land valued at $3,000, and then the mill property with $88,000 assessment on the buildings and $7,000 on the land.

The business assessment was $57,000 while the mill was in operation, but with the flitting of the machinery from Peterborough, this assessment was reduced to $5,700.

Appraised In 1919.

An appraisal of the Auburn plant made by the Canadian Appraisal Company was read by W. F. Huycke, K.C., city solicitor, estimating in 1919 the value of the plant, property and water and electric power lease at $418,104.10. The machinery and equipment was valued then at $242,603 and the water lease at $40,000.

Assessment of the mill property, land and buildings were quoted by Mr. Henry as follows:

1918—$5,000 on land, $40,000 on buildings—total, $45,000.

1920—Land $5,000, buildings $75,000—total $82,000.

1927—Land $7,000, buildings $78,000—total $85,000.

1934—Land $7,000, buildings $78,000—total $85,000.

1935—Land $7,000; buildings $88,000—total $95,000.

An appraisal of the plant made in 1928 by the Canadian Appraisal Company at the time of a new corporate set up totalled $850,405.53, including $247,341.04 for buildings and $546,064.79 for machinery and equipment. The replacement value of the plant at that time was declared to be $1,162,207.84.

Mr. Henry told F. D. Kerr, K.C., solicitor for the company, that the Court of Revision's reduction of assessment of the buildings and land was $10,500.

Founded In 1818.

The appraisal of 1918 affirmed that the mill was established in 1818 and was one of the oldest industries in Canada. Mr. Henry acknowledged that the main stone section of the plant was a very old building. In a modern manufacturing plant, Mr. Kerr suggested, the office would not be separated from the factory as at Auburn.

This appeal is continuing this afternoon.

Puts Trust In Lord.

"I depend on the Lord for that," said Frank A. Dalton, explaining why he did not insure his house at 582 Chamberlain Street, at the hearing of his assessment appeal by Judge Smoke this morning. He was replying to City Solicitor W. F. Huycke, K.C., who was asking him about the value of the property and the amount of insurance placed on it.

Its assessment this year was $1,300 on the house and $350 on the land, a total of $1,650.

Percy Rutherford, realtor, testified that the house was in good condition. He estimated its value at $2,200, and added that he would like to have it for sale at that figure.

Mr. Dalton said he sold the house five years ago for $1,800, and thought it was worth from $1,800 to $2,000 now. It came back to him in a condition, he said, that was hardly fit for a person to live in. During the last three years he had spent $625 on repairs.

M. R. Sloan, deputy tax collector, said the assessment on the property had been reduced $100 since 1934.

"There is nothing I can do for you," Judge Smoke stated in dismissing the appeal and confirming the assessment for 1939.

No Action Taken In Neary Protest

The Kiwanis club executive, taking up the matter of mistakes that had been made in their recent spelling bee, decided at an executive meeting that officially they could make no adjustment in regard to the elimination of Lionel Neary, whose father complained the boy had been eliminated wrongly. The club is holding to the rules of the contests, that complaints should have been filed at the time any injustice was done, but members are unofficially taking steps to see that young Henry's case is adjusted to some extent. In the city championship Eileen McDonough of St. Mary's Convent placed second, with Rita Sullivan of the Immaculate Conception school, third.

Husband And Wife Conspire To Beat Doctor Result Is That Man Gets Electric Treatment

If you are suffering from indigestion don't let your wife convince you that you have neuralgia also.

This rather unusual moral was born this week when an employee in the Canadian General Electric Company who is married to a thrifty Scots-woman was the victim of an economy experiment by the good wife.

The man was suffering from indigestion, and being a member of the Mutual Benefit Society was entitled to medical care from the Society doctor. When he advised his wife that he intended to visit the medico she immediately hit on a plan to save two dollars. For weeks she had been distressed by neuralgia so she explained to her husband that he might as well pretend that he had the affliction along with the indigestion and get some free medicine for both ailments.

She carefully explained to him the symptoms, showed him where the pain was, even made a grimace of pain to complete the picture, and the husband headed for the doctor's office, convinced that he had married the smartest woman in the world.

The doctor soon dispelled the indigestion and then the husband let a groan out of him, and proceeded to complain of the neuralgia. "Can you do something for this pain, doctor, I believe it is neuralgia and the pain is here," said the conspirator indicating some portion of his body.

"Certainly," replied the medico, "what you need is an electric treatment. Come into this room."

And so the poor man now more bewildered than ever took an electric treatment that he certainly couldn't bring home to his wife and to add to his troubles he clasped his hands together when in the midst of it and the jolt made his face even redder than it had been. The wife still complains but her husband is definitely "cured."

Cheerful Givers Of Keene Elect President

(Examiner Correspondence.)

KEENE, Dec. 16. — Mrs. Charles Nelson was elected president of the Cheerful Givers W.M.S. Circle at the annual meeting held at the home of Mrs. Ralph Adamson. Mrs. Peter Mather was elected secretary. The new officers will replace Mrs. E. Adamson and Mrs. R. Adamson, both of whom resigned after two years in office.

Mrs. Elmer Adamson conducted the devotional program, which had a Christmas spirit to it, and Mrs. Ferguson, wife of the pastor, gave an interesting address on the spirit of giving as seen at Christmas. Mrs. Adamson served a delicious lunch and a social hour followed. A total of $57 collection had been collected during the year, it was announced.

The Ladies' Club met on Tuesday at the home of Mrs. P. Gillespie, with Mrs. Ferguson, president, in the chair. A letter was read by the secretary, Miss Jean Armstrong, of New Carlisle, Quebec, an absent member. Miss M. Bryce played the piano while members sang Christmas carols. Interesting readings of the Christmas customs in many countries were heard, and Santa Claus in person, garbed in red and accompanied by jingle bells, arrived to distribute gifts, after which refreshments were served.

Lakeshore Team Wins In Checkers

Port Hope-Cobourg checker players defeated Peterboro-Lindsay at the Y.M.C.A. Tuesday night by the close margin of three wins, the final score reading 11 victories for the visitors with five draws and eight losses. Several of Peterboro-Lindsay's best players were absent from the line-up. Dr. Annis was the only representative from Lindsay. He teamed up with four Peterboro men, McArthur, Buck, Johnson and Griffin against the five outstanding visitors who comprised their team. The series is now tied with one victory for each team, and an effort will be made to reverse the score at their next meeting.

About forty players turned out for the Tuesday night feature, and quite a group of spectators watched the games. Every Peterboro Club member now wears a large button on his coat with a checker board printed on it with a number. The object is that anyone may challenge a member for his button. After the Tuesday night engagement, the visitors were guests of Peterboro-Lindsay players at Brooks Grill, and about 12.30 a.m. the Port Hope and Cobourg men set out for home.

Bean Is Lodged In Boy's Nostril

Johnny Moher, four year old son of Mrs. Frances Moher of Douro township had an unpleasant experience this week when a white bean became lodged in his nostril.

The child was playing with a few beans which he found and unknown to his mother forced one of them into his nose. His breathing pulled the bean farther up the nostril so that it was almost out of sight. He was taken to St. Joseph's hospital when the mother was unable to remove the bean. By this time the heat of the child's body and moisture had caused the bean to swell considerably. Doctors had little trouble removing the pellet with instruments, and he was taken home a short time later.

AUTOMOBILE STOLEN.

The automobile of Vincent Eastwood, chairman of the City Trust Commission, was stolen Thursday afternoon from where it had been parked outside the city buildings on Simcoe street. Mr. Eastwood was in the city offices on business and when he came out his car was gone. The police were notified immediately but despite an extensive search no trace has so far been found of the missing automobile.

RADIO CASES.

There was no session of the police here today, a contrast to Thursday's all-day court, but Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., had a busy afternoon nevertheless at Campbellford, where the lengthy docket included a number of charges of failure to take out radio licenses as well as several liquor control act charges.

PETERBOROUGH'S TURN COMING.

If there are local citizens who have not yet procured their radio licenses for the current year they should not fail to take notice of the fact that radio inspectors have been busy in various parts of the district, notably at Lindsay and Campbellford and charges have been laid. It may be Peterborough's turn soon for a similar round-up of delinquents.

PROVIDE CHRISTMAS SHOW

Gordon Miller was applauded heartily at the Kiwanis Club's luncheon on Friday when President L. J. Pettit announced the manager of the Regent Theatre will provide a Christmas show for the city's underprivileged children — a yearly custom with him. Children from the Shelter, St. Vincent's Orphanage, and the Kiwanis Summer Camp, will be given free tickets on Friday next. Manager Lawrie Mitchell announced that the children from the two institutions will be picked up by special busses free of charge, and those from the Summer Camp will show their admission cards on regular busses in lieu of tickets.

CHRISTMAS CAROL SERVICE.

The annual Christmas Caroll Service which has been such a welcome feature of the Christmas season in Peterborough during the past few years will be held on Sunday evening, December 18th, in the Collegiate Auditorium, after church service. The old familiar songs and carols of the Christmastide will be used and special musical numbers heve bean arranged by the committee in chargeo f the program. The service is part of the program of the Friendly Hour Group of the Y.M.C.A. which meets every Sunday evening after church service. The doors at the Collegiate will be opened at 8.20 and everyone who enjoys singing is invited to attend and take part in this joyous occasion.

Two Convicted Of Stealing From Automobile

Stanley Clark and Leo Tobin were both convicted before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court Thursday afternoon of stealing $20 worth of groceries from George Monahan, Oak Lake, on the night of December 3. They were remanded until Saturday for sentence.

The goods allegedly stolen were taken from a car parked behind the Duffus garage.

The crown evidence in the Clark case had been heard at the morning session and after the court opened in the afternoon, Clark who conducted his own defence gave his version of the affair. He said that he had two drinks of porter in the Grand Hotel when a stranger got into conversation with him and asked him to deliver some groceries on his bicycle. The two had started across the block cutting through by Comstock's and when they had nearly reached Water street Clark had stopped to adjust his pant clip.

While he was doing so, he said the other man went across Water street and round the end of the Duffus building and came back in a short time with the groceries. They started along King street and were overhauled by the Monahan brothers who claimed the groceries. Clark said that he wanted the Monahans to follow the other man who had kept on going after surrendering the carton he had been carrying but the two had refused to do so.

Magistrate Satisfied

Magistrate Langley said that he was quite satisfied in his mind that Clark had helped to steal the groceries that had been taken and that he was guilty of the offence charged. At the request of Crown Attorney McElderry sentence was deferred until Saturday.

In the case against Tobin, Leo Monahan swore that the accused was the man he had seen with Clark. He said Tobin was walking along with Clark carrying one carton of groceries while Clark had the other carton in the carrier of his bicycle. George Monahan said the man he had seen looked very much like Tobin although he could not positively identify him and similar evidence was given by Mrs. Leo Monahan who said the prisoner was the same size as the man with Clark and looked just like him.

Detective Sergeant Meagher told of a conversation he had had with Tobin the Monday after the theft of the groceries from Monahan's parked car and said that Tobin had admitted being with Clark on the Saturday night although he did not admit that he was there when the goods were taken.

Tobin himself was the only witness for the defence. He said that he had been in Clark's company earlier in the evening on the Saturday night in question but had left him and gone to the home of his brother where he had spent the night. He swore that he was not with Clark at the time the groceries were stolen.

In cross-examination Tobin admitted three previous convictions, one of them he said for vagrancy.

Magistrate Langley found him guilty of the charge, pointing out that he had not called anybody to prove his statement that he was at the home of his brother at the time of the theft.

In his case too sentence was deferred until Saturday morning.

10 Million Less Horses Means 40 Million Acres More For Grain

Moose Jaw, Sask., Dec. 16 (CP)

DECLINE in the horse population of United States and Canada might have far-reaching effects not considered before, J. G. Robertson, provincial livestock commissioner, told members of the Moose Jaw Agricultural Society at their annual banquet here last night.

In recent years the horse population in United States has decreased by 10,000,000 said Mr. Robertson, with the result that 40,000,000 acres necessary for their maintenance can now be thrown into wheat production. This in normal times, he said, might mean an increased wheat production of 480,000,000 bushels, 120,000,000 more than Canada's total production this year.

Rork Ferguson, M.P. Addresses Mailmen

Rork Ferguson, M.P., was the speaker at a meeting of the Peterborough-Hastings branch of the Rural Mail Couriers' Association at Havelock Thursday night. He discussed the prospects of abolishing the contract system of delivery, and advised all rural mail couriers to join the association. Mr. Ferguson suggested that the most effective plan of getting rid of the contract system was by all couriers uniting in their association and presenting their case in a body to the government.

During the evening a draw to raise funds for the branch treasury resulted as follows: 1, groceries worth $5, won by G. A. Young, Havelock R.R. 1.

Second prize, $4 in groceries, won by Miss Katie Anderson of Havelock.

Third prize, groceries worth $3, won by Robt. Marshall, Havelock, R.R. 4.

Fourth prize—Groceries worth $2 won by Mrs. J. J. Fitzpatrick of Stirling.

Fifth prize, groceries worth $1 won by W. Morris of Hall's Bridge. The prizes were provided by W. J. Shearer and Harry Shearer both enthusiastic supporters of the association. Mr. Ferguson made the draw.

Two Boys Are Held For Cutting Trees

Two small boys, one 12 and the other nine have solved the problem of securing a convenient and close-at-hand supply of Christmas trees but the solution is not regarded very complacently by the individual most closely affected.

It takes a lot of Christmas spirit to make a citizen regard complacently two of his pet evergreens laid low on his lawn so that when a Downie Street resident found that spectacle in front of his home he was naturally a trifle angry and called for police action.

It was discovered that the culprits were two small boys living in the neighborhood who had chopped down the evergreens to be carried off for Christmas trees.

The young offenders were given a chance Thursday night to see the interior of the police station for a while and they will likely make an appearance shortly in juvenile court to explain their conduct for the benefit of the magistrate. The trees they cut down were some 12 feet high.

William Brown Smith Pioneer Dead Age Of 83

Member of a prominent family on the outskirts of the city, William Brown of Smith township died on Thursday afternoon in his 83rd year. A man whose boast it was that he was never ill, he suffered only three days illness before his death.

All his life Mr. Brown lived on the same farm on which he was born, almost directly across the road from Queen Mary Isolation hospital. His father, James Brown, was of Belfast-Irish stock, and came to this country a hundred years ago, as one of the original settlers of Smith, part of the vanguard of settlers in this section of the Empire's outposts in the reign of King George IV. His mother was Hannah Brumwell, whose parents moved to this country in 1820.

Spent Life on One Farm

The farm on which William Brown was born and raised was the same place where he spent all his life. The log house in which he was born still stands in a fair state of preservation, although it has been untenanted since Mr. Brown erected the present residence nearly half a century ago.

A man of great energy, of simple, rugged honesty, he was beloved by all who knew him. He had a saving sense of humor that gave pleasure to both himself and those with whom he came into contract.

One of the oddities about his extensive farm was the yoke of oxen which he preferred to horses for ploughing. He used to tell that he first droven oxen before a plough when he was ten years old, and that he still liked them best. Right up to the time of his death he had a team of them that he worked regularly in the fields. For, despite his advanced age and the presence of sturdy sons on the farm, he still enjoyed his work and went regularly to the fields.

Great Man For His Home

He drew great enjoyment from his family circle, believed that a happy home life was life's greatest treasure. He was once active in civic affairs, had been a deputy reeve of Smith township.

His wife, formely Elizabeth Lytle, surives, together with two daughters and seven sons. They are Mrs. W. G. P. Benton of Peterborough and Miss Flossie Brown, at home, Frederick T., Victor J., Ephraim H., Jonathan, Klondyke Gold, R. Morgan, and J. Sidney. One son, Wilfred, died in 1922.

The funeral will be held on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the late residence, Rev. M. C. Parr of George Street United church officiating. Interment will be at Little Lake Cemetery.

Graham of 679 Aylmer street. His father was John Sanderson and their home was on the Chemong Road, almost facing the turn to Omemee.

For over a quarter of a century Dr. Sanderson was associated with the direction of McMaster University, not only as a member of the senate and the board of governors, but also as chairman of a number of important committees. Some years ago he was honored with the degree of LL.D.

MILLBROOK

Mrs. S. E. Eakins Re-elected Head

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Dec. 16.—Rev. H. R. and Mrs. Williams entertained the W.M.S. of Grace Presbyterian church for its annual meeting, held at the manse on Wednesday at 3 p.m., with Mrs. S. E. Eakins in the chair, and the host reading the Christmas message from Matthew 2, and offering the opening prayer.

The roll was answered with a verse of scripture, and Miss Ruth Thorndyke gave a reading, "Soft Answers," prior to the reception of reports, the secretary asking for the privilege of bringing her coverage of the year's activities at the January meeting, as figures were not complete to date.

Near Objective

The treasurer reported $114 raised to date for missions, toward the total allocation of $125, with a number of dues, holiday bags, and mite-boxes yet to come in. In the expense fund there is a balance of $13.42, but it was not thought it will be necessary to touch this as the amount outstanding on the allocation will bring that fund to the desired total. The Auxiliary has sponsored very few activities this year, giving way to the sister society, the Ladies' Aid, and practically all its funds have been raised by voluntary giving.

The welcome and welfare secretary, Mrs. C. Thorndyke, reported callsm ade upon the sick and shutins, and four removals, Mrs. H. G. McLeod and Harry, to St. Catharines; Marian Belch, who is attending the university at Toronto; and Mr. E. Williams to Havelock. The secretary was instructed to send for an "In Memoriam" certificate, the first the society has ever had, one member having donated the necessary amount to secure this honor.

Indian Girl Outfitted

The bale secretary told of an outfit for an Indian girl with both new and second hand clothing, and other articles, valued at $20.40, shipped in the fall, and of the contribution of a complete layette by the junior auxiliary, which also remitted ten dollars to the Presbyterial treasurer.

Before vacating the chair to Rev. Mr. Williams, who conducted the election of officers for 1939, the president feelingly voiced her thanks for the fine showing, financially and in other respects, made b ythe year's work, and urged an earlier planning of activities after the new year.

The list for 1939 includes: Honorary presidents: Mrs. H. R. Williams, Mrs. W. T. Deyell, and Mrs. Z. Seaton; president, Mrs. S. E. Eakins; vice-presidents. Mrs. James Kennedy, Mrs. H. Seaton and Mrs. M. Kinsman; secretary, Mrs. J. R. Thompson; treasurer, Miss Agnes Johnston.

Department secretaries: Glad Tidings, Mrs. J. N. McGill; welcome and welfare, Mrs. W. C. Thorndyke; supply, Mrs. Milton Fallis; expense, Mrs. R. J. McMahon; press, Miss Ruth Thorndyke; pianist, Mrs. John Thompson.

The minister closed the meeting with prayer and candy was served during the social hour at the close.

City Appeals Auburn Mill Assessment

An appeal by W. J. Henry, city assessor against the decision of the Court of Revision reducing the assessment of the Auburn plant of the Dominion Woollens and Worsteds, Ltd., by $16,200, was heard this morning by Judge S. L. Smoke.

The reductions allowed by the Court of Revision were $9,500 on the mill property, $5,700 on business and $1,000 on vacant land.

Mr. Henry referred in the tax roll to four properties owned on Auburn street by the company. Originally there were four houses, but two of them have been torn down. The two vacant lots are assessed at $200 each.

Two $750 Houses

A house occupied by Samuel Montgomery is assessed at $750 and an adjoining house of similar construction, tenanted by Oliver Green, is also assessed at $750.

Other properties mentioned by Mr. Henry were a house occupied by Leslie Delong, assessed at $1,000, and another at 195 Auburn street, occupied by Tom Smith and assessed at $1,000, also a vacant area of land valued at $3,000, and then the mill property with $88,000 assessment on the buildings and $7,000 on the land.

The business assessment was $57,000 while the mill was in operation, but with the flitting of the machinery from Peterborough, this assessment was reduced to $5,700.

Appraised In 1919.

An appraisal of the Auburn plant made by the Canadian Appraisal Company was read by W. F. Huycke, K.C., city solicitor, estimating in 1919 the value of the plant, property and water and electric power lease at $418,104.10. The machinery and equipment was valued then at $242,603 and the water lease at $40,000.

Assessment of the mill property, land and buildings were quoted by Mr. Henry as follows:

1918—$5,000 on land, $40,000 on buildings—total, $45,000.

1920—Land $5,000, buildings $75,000—total $82,000.

1927—Land $7,000, buildings $78,000—total $85,000.

1934—Land $7,000, buildings $78,000—total $85,000.

1935—Land $7,000; buildings $88,000—total $96,000.

An appraisal of the plant made in 1928 by the Canadian Appraisal Company at the time of a new corporate set up totalled $850,405.53, including $247,341.04 for buildings and $546,064.79 for machinery and equipment. The replacement value of the plant at that time was declared to be $1,162,207.84.

Mr. Henry told F. D. Kerr, K.C., solicitor for the company, that the Court of Revision's reduction of assessment of the buildings and land was $10,500.

Founded In 1818.

The appraisal of 1918 affirmed that the mill was established in 1818 and was one of the oldest industries in Canada. Mr. Henry acknowledged that the main stone section of the plant was a very old building. In a modern manufacturing plant, Mr. Kerr suggested, the office would not be separated from the factory as at Auburn.

This appeal is continuing this afternoon.

Puts Trust In Lord.

"I depend on the Lord for that," said Frank A. Dalton, explaining why he did not insure his house at 562 Chamberlain Street, at the hearing of his assessment appeal by Judge Smoke this morning. He was replying to City Solicitor W. F. Huycke, K.C., who was asking him about the value of the property and the amount of insurance placed on it.

Its assessment this year was $1,300 on the house and $350 on the land, a total of $1,650.

Percy Rutherford, realtor, testified that the house was in good condition. He estimated its value at $2,200, and added that he would like to have it for sale at that figure.

Mr. Dalton said he sold the house five years ago for $1,800, and thought it was worth from $1,800 to $2,000 now. It came back to him in a condition, he said, that was hardly fit for a person to live in. During the last three years he had spent $625 on repairs.

M. R. Sloan, deputy tax collector, said the assessment on the property had been reduced $100 since 1934.

"There is nothing I can do for you," Judge Smoke stated in dismissing the appeal and confirming the assessment for 1939.

No Action Taken In Neary Protest

The Kiwanis club executive, taking up the matter of mistakes that had been made in their recent spelling bee, decided at an executive meeting that officially they could make no adjustment in regard to the elimination of Lionel Neary, whose father complained the boy had been eliminated wrongly. The club is holding to the rules of the contests, that complaints should have been filed at the time any injustice was done, but members are unofficially taking steps to see that young Henry's case is adjusted to some extent. In the city championship Eileen McDonough of St. Mary's Convent placed second, with Rita Sullivan of the Immaculate Conception school, third.

Husband And Wife Conspire To Beat Doctor Result Is That Man Gets Electric Treatment

If you are suffering from indigestion don't let your wife convince you that you have neuralgia also.

This rather unusual moral was born this week when an employee in the Canadian General Electric Company who is married to a thrifty Scots-woman was the victim of an economy experiment by the good wife.

The man was suffering from indigestion, and being a member of the Mutual Benefit Society was entitled to medical care from the Society doctor. When he advised his wife that he intended to visit the medico she immediately hit on a plan to save two dollars. For weeks she had been distressed by neuralgia, so she explained to her husband that he might as well pretend that he had the affliction along with the indigestion and get some free medicine for both ailments.

She carefully explained to him the symptoms, showed him where the pain was, even made a grimace of pain to complete the picture, and the husband headed for the doctor's office, convinced that he had married the smartest woman in the world.

The doctor soon dispelled the indigestion and then the husband let a groan out of him, and proceeded to complain of the neuralgia. "Can you do something for this pain, doctor, I believe it is neuralgia and the pain is here," said the conspirator indicating some portion of his body.

"Certainly," replied the medico, "what you need is an electric treatment. Come into this room."

And so the poor man now more bewildered than ever took an electric treatment that he certainly couldn't bring home to his wife and to add to his troubles he clasped his hands together when in the midst of it and the jolt made his face even redder than it had been. The wife still complains but her husband is definitely "cured."

The new officers will replace Mrs. E. Adamson and Mrs. R. Adamson, both of whom resigned after two years in office.

Lakeshore Team Wins In Checkers

Port Hope-Cobourg checker players defeated Peterboro-Lindsay at the Y.M.C.A. Tuesday night by the close margin of three wins, the final score reading 11 victories for the visitors with five draws and eight losses. Several of Peterboro-Lindsay's best players were absent from the line-up. Dr. Annis was the only representative from Lindsay. He teamed up with four Peterboro men, McArthur, Buck, Johnson and Griffin against the five outstanding visitors who comprised their team. The series is now tied with one victory for each team, and an effort will be made to reverse the score at their next meeting.

About forty players turned out for the Tuesday night feature, and quite a group of spectators watched the games. Every Peterboro Club member now wears a large button on his coat with a checker board printed on it with a number. The object is that anyone may challenge a member for his button. After the Tuesday night engagement, the visitors were guests of Peterboro-Lindsay players at Brooks Grill, and about 12.30 a.m. the Port Hope and Cobourg men set out for home.

Bean Is Lodged In Boy's Nostril

Johnny Moher, four year old son of Mrs. Frances Moher of Douro township had an unpleasant experience this week when a white bean became lodged in his nostril.

The child was playing with a few beans which he found and unknown to his mother forced one of them into his nose. His breathing pulled the bean farther up the nostril so that it was almost out of sight. He was taken to St. Joseph's hospital when the mother was unable to remove the bean. By this time the heat of the child's body and moisture had caused the bean to swell considerably. Doctors had little trouble removing the pellet with instruments, and he was taken home a short time later.

CASE DISMISSED.

A charge against William Miller, Louis street, of illegal possession of liquor was dismissed in police court after a number of adjournments. The Crown offered no evidence.

FIST ADV. IN THREE YEARS

The fire sale advertisements in yesterday's Examiner were the first to be seen in this paper in the past three years. It is a remarkable boast for any city to make, that its merchants have not suffered a fire in three years.

POSTAL HOURS EXTENDED.

Wickets at the post office will be open next week from 8 a.m. until 9.30 p.m. for the convenience of the public. As Christmas Day falls on Sunday there is, of course, no delivery of mail that day, the last being on Saturday, December 24.

AUTOMOBILE STOLEN.

The automobile of Vincent Eastwood, chairman of the City Trust Commission, was stolen Thursday afternoon from where it had been parked outside the city buildings on Simcoe street. Mr. Eastwood was in the city offices on business and when he came out his car was gone. The police were notified immediately but despite an extensive search no trace has so far been found of the missing automobile.

RADIO CASES.

There was no session of the police here today, a contrast to Thursday's all-day court, but Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., had a busy afternoon nevertheless at Campbellford, where the lengthy docket included a number of charges of failure to take out radio licenses as well as several liquor control act charges.

PETERBOROUGH'S TURN COMING.

If there are local citizens who have not yet procured their radio licenses for the current year they should not fail to take notice of the fact that radio inspectors have been busy in various parts of the district, notably at Lindsay and Campbellford and charges have been laid. It may be Peterborough's turn soon for a similar round-up of delinquents.

PROVIDE CHRISTMAS SHOW

Gordon Miller was applauded heartily at the Kiwanis Club's luncheon on Friday when President L. J. Pettit announced the manager of the Regent Theatre will provide a Christmas show for the city's underprivileged children — a yearly custom with him. Children from the Shelter, St. Vincent's Orphanage, and the Kiwanis Summer Camp, will be given free tickets on Friday next. Manager Lawrie Mitchell announced that the children from the two institutions will be picked up by special busses free of charge, and those from the Summer Camp will show their admission cards on regular busses in lieu of tickets.

CHRISTMAS CAROL SERVICE.

The annual Christmas Caroll Service which has been such a welcome feature of the Christmas season in Peterborough during the past few years will be held on Sunday evening, December 18th, in the Collegiate Auditorium, after church service. The old familiar songs and carols of the Christmastide will be used and special musical numbers heve bean arranged by the committee in chargeo f the program. The service is part of the program of the Friendly Hour Group of the Y.M.C.A. which meets every Sunday evening after church service. The doors at the Collegiate will be opened at 8.20 and everyone who enjoys singing is invited to attend and take part in this joyous occasion.

Two Convicted Of Stealing From Automobile

Stanley Clark and Leo Tobin were both convicted before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court Thursday afternoon of stealing $20 worth of groceries from George Monahan, Oak Lake, on the night of December 3. They were remanded until Saturday for sentence.

The goods allegedly stolen were taken from a car parked behind the Duffus garage.

The crown evidence in the Clark case had been heard at the morning session and after the court opened in the afternoon, Clark who conducted his own defence gave his version of the affair. He said that he had two drinks of porter in the Grand Hotel when a stranger got into conversation with him and asked him to deliver some groceries on his bicycle. The two had started across the block cutting through by Comstock's and when they had nearly reached Water street Clark had stopped to adjust his pant clip.

While he was doing so, he said the other man went across Water street and round the end of the Duffus building and came back in a short time with the groceries. They started along King street and were overhauled by the Monahan brothers who claimed the groceries. Clark said that he wanted the Monahans to follow the other man who had kept on going after surrendering the carton he had been carrying but the two had refused to do so.

Magistrate Satisfied

Magistrate Langley said that he was quite satisfied in his mind that Clark had helped to steal the groceries that had been taken and that he was guilty of the offence charged. At the request of Crown Attorney McElderry sentence was deferred until Saturday.

In the case against Tobin, Leo Monahan swore that the accused was the man he had seen with Clark. He said Tobin was walking along with Clark carrying one carton of groceries while Clark had the other carton in the carrier of his bicycle. George Monahan said the man he had seen looked very much like Tobin although he could not positively identify him and similar evidence was given by Mrs. Leo Monahan who said the prisoner was the same size as the man with Clark and looked just like him.

Detective Sergeant Meagher told of a conversation he had had with Tobin the Monday after the theft of the groceries from Monahan's parked car and said that Tobin had admitted being with Clark on the Saturday night although he did not admit that he was there when the goods were taken.

Tobin himself was the only witness for the defence. He said that he had been in Clark's company earlier in the evening on the Saturday night in question but had left him and gone to the home of his brother where he had spent the night. He swore that he was not with Clark at the time the groceries were stolen.

In cross-examination Tobin admitted three previous convictions, one of them he said for vagrancy.

Magistrate Langley found him guilty of the charge, pointing out that he had not called anybody to prove his statement that he was at the home of his brother at the time of the theft.

In his case too sentence was deferred until Saturday morning.

10 Million Less Horses Means 40 Million Acres More For Grain

Moose Jaw, Sask., Dec. 16 (CP)

DECLINE in the horse population of United States and Canada might have far-reaching effects not considered before, J. G. Robertson, provincial livestock commissioner, told members of the Moose Jaw Agricultural Society at their annual banquet here last night.

In recent years the horse population in United States has decreased by 10,000,000 said Mr. Robertson, with the result that 40,000,000 acres necessary for their maintenance can now be thrown into wheat production. This in normal times, he said, might mean an increased wheat production of 480,000,000 bushels, 120,000,000 more than Canada's total production this year.

Rork Ferguson, M.P. Addresses Mailmen

Rork Ferguson, M.P., was the speaker at a meeting of the Peterborough-Hastings branch of the Rural Mail Couriers' Association at Havelock Thursday night. He discussed the prospects of abolishing the contract system of delivery, and advised all rural mail couriers to join the association. Mr. Ferguson suggested that the most effective plan of getting rid of the contract system was by all couriers uniting in their association and presenting their case in a body to the government.

During the evening a draw to raise funds for the branch treasury resulted as follows: 1, groceries worth $5, won by G. A. Young, Havelock R.R. 1.

Second prize, $4 in groceries, won by Miss Katie Anderson of Havelock.

Third prize, groceries worth $3, won by Robt. Marshall, Havelock, R.R. 4.

Fourth prize—Groceries worth $2 won by Mrs. J. J. Fitzpatrick of Stirling.

Fifth prize, groceries worth $1 won by W. Morris of Hall's Bridge. The prizes were provided by W. J. Shearer and Harry Shearer both enthusiastic supporters of the association. Mr. Ferguson made the draw.

Two Boys Are Held For Cutting Trees

Two small boys, one 12 and the other nine have solved the problem of securing a convenient and close-at-hand supply of Christmas trees but the solution is not regarded very complacently by the individual most closely affected.

It takes a lot of Christmas spirit to make a citizen regard complacently two of his pet evergreens laid low on his lawn so that when a Downie Street resident found that spectacle in front of his home he was naturally a trifle angry and called for police action.

It was discovered that the culprits were two small boys living in the neighborhood who had chopped down the evergreens to be carried off for Christmas trees.

The young offenders were given a chance Thursday night to see the interior of the police station for a while and they will likely make an appearance shortly in juvenile court to explain their conduct for the benefit of the magistrate. The trees they cut down were some 12 feet high.

William Brown Smith Pioneer Dead Age Of 83

Member of a prominent family on the outskirts of the city, William Brown of Smith township died on Thursday afternoon in his 83rd year. A man whose boast it was that he was never ill, he suffered only three days illness before his death.

All his life Mr. Brown lived on the same farm on which he was born, almost directly across the road from Queen Mary Isolation hospital. His father, James Brown, was of Belfast-Irish stock, and came to this country a hundred years ago, as one of the original settlers of Smith, part of the vanguard of settlers in this section of the Empire's outposts in the reign of King George IV. His mother was Hannah Brumwell, whose parents moved to this country in 1820.

Spent Life on One Farm

The farm on which William Brown was born and raised was the same place where he spent all his life. The log house in which he was born still stands in a fair state of preservation, although it has been untenanted since Mr. Brown erected the present residence nearly half a century ago.

A man of great energy, of simple, rugged honesty, he was beloved by all who knew him. He had a saving sense of humor that gave pleasure to both himself and those with whom he came into contract.

One of the oddities about his extensive farm was the yoke of oxen which he preferred to horses for ploughing. He used to tell that he first droven oxen before a plough when he was ten years old, and that he still liked them best. Right up to the time of his death he had a team of them that he worked regularly in the fields. For, despite his advanced age and the presence of sturdy sons on the farm, he still enjoyed his work and went regularly to the fields.

Great Man For His Home

He drew great enjoyment from his family circle, believed that a happy home life was life's greatest treasure. He was once active in civic affairs, had been a deputy reeve of Smith township.

His wife, formely Elizabeth Lytle, survives, together with two daughters and seven sons. They are Mrs. W. G. P. Benton of Peterborough and Miss Flossie Brown, at home, Frederick T., Victor J., Ephraim H., Jonathan, Klondyke Gold, R. Morgan, and J. Sidney. One son, Wilfred, died in 1922.

The funeral will be held on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the late residence, Rev. M. C. Parr of George Street United church officiating. Interment will be at Little Lake Cemetery.

DOROTHY DIX

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I am married to one of the finest women who ever lived. She is good, and when I say good, I mean GOOD! She is broad-minded, generous, kind, sympathetic, understanding, everything a woman should be, and she is an angel to my mother. But my mother hates her just because she is my wife and is forever trying to prejudice me against her. Every time my wife isn't around my mother puts on the cry act and says my wife is trying to take me away from her. On the contrary, my wife is always reminding me about my mother's birthday, Mother's Day, etc., and urges me to kiss my mother and show her attentions. I have always adored my mother, but the way she is acting is shattering my respect and affection, and makes me feel lost to her. My wife says that I am wrong in this and that without love for one's mother one is not capable of loving any one else. But have even mothers a right to ruin their children's lives? UNHAPPY SON.

ANSWER:

I once heard a mother say that there was no jealousy on earth so fierce and terrible as mother jealousy. She said that the jealousy that a woman felt when she saw her lover or her husband deserting her for another woman was a pale passion compared to the jealousy that tore a mother's heart when she saw her child loving some one better than herself.

Evidently your mother belongs in this class of green-eyed, possessive mothers who must always be first with their children, and who are willing to wreck their children's happiness in order to hold them. There is nothing you can do about it because jealousy is a species of insanity that is deaf alike to reason and the appeal of affection. Your mother knows that the greatest misfortune that could come to you would be to break up your home. She knows that to separate you from the wife you love and to kill your faith in her goodness would break your heart and wreck your life and send you out into the world a lonely, disillusioned, embittered man. Yet she is willing to commit this crime against you, as millions of other jealous mothers are willing to commit against their sons and daughters.

She is trying to poison your mind against your wife. She is trying to kill your love and admiration for her. She is accusing her of offenses of which she is guiltless. Just because she wants you to herself alone. She can't stand for you to depend on any other woman, or to go to any other woman for comfort when you are down-hearted, or for any other woman's hands to nurse you when you are sick. She wants to keep you always Mamma's baby boy and for you never to grow up to be a man.

Such a mother can never understand that the affection that a man gives his mother and his wife are not the same and do not clash. Nor can she realize that no matter how fond a man is of his mother, no matter what pals they have been, nor how congenial they are, she can never give him the companionship that he craves when he is married and that he finds in a wife if he gets his heart's desire. Between Mother and son there is the gulf of a generation that separates them in interests, in points of view, in habits, but a husband and wife are one.

What a son should do with a mother who is trying to break up his home and alienate him from his wife is hard to say. But I do not believe that his filial duty requires him to let her wreck his life with her senseless jealousy. The Good Book says that when a man marries he should leave Father and Mother and cleave unto his wife.

DEAR MISS DIX—We have two adolescent boys who are running true to form, doing all of the silly things and exhibiting all of the irritating characteristics that belong to that age. My husband finds them hard to stand and gets so out of patience with them that he very often flies off the handle and says more than he means. Of course, his temper is over in a minute and he is awfully kind and indulgent to the boys. But I am afraid they don't forget what he says as quickly as he does, and I don't want them to get alienated from him. What can I do to help matters?

A FOND MOTHER.

ANSWER:

The principal thing is not to interfere between the boys and their father. Men creatures understand each other and the boys won't take seriously their father's strictures, or respect him less for jacking them up.

But, all the same, every father who has to deal with half-grown boys needs to hold the thought of his own youth continually in mind and to remember the follies of which he was guilty, and how his father used to call him a young ass and prophesy that he would come to no good end.

Most men forget that. They actually believe that when they were in their teens they were staid, sober, responsible young men who were never girl-crazy. Nor thought they would die if they couldn't have the same kind of clothes and shoes and hats all the other boys had. They forget that they ever flunked school, or stole the horse and buggy after Dad had gone to sleep to take Sweetie to a party, or did any of the other silly things their own boys do.

If they are wise fathers, they will laugh off a lot of the boys' follies. They will be very patient with the youngsters and hold out a helping hand to them, for it is a hard time for the boys as well as the parents when the lads are going through the hobbledehoy period when they are neither man nor boy.

• • • • • •

DEAR MISS DIX — My husband and I have recently moved to the town in which his people live. I am meeting them for the first time and am shocked to death to find that his family are so ordinary, for he is such a fine and cultured man. He has a great deal of love and respect for his parents and his family want to be very friendly with us, but I do not wish to have anything to do with them because I aspire to higher things and pick my friends accordingly. Shall I tell my husband that I refuse to visit them or have them in my house, or continue to live under the strain of having them drop in while I am entertaining my friends?

O. G.

ANSWER:

I think you will alienate your husband's affection from you and lose the respect of everybody worth while if you are such a snob as to refuse to let your husband's family visit him. DOROTHY DIX.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, December 17.

There are indications of a particularly lively and perhaps strenuous day, according to the lunar as well as mutual aspects. Nevertheless, there may be much high pressure activity that is not of a particularly harmonious nature. A tendency to rash, impetuous and irritating conduct may incite enmity, jealousy, and opposition. Speculation and new matters may prove gainful if managed with proper restraint.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of much activity and enterprise, with much to be gained in speculation, new projects and major interests if they are not put in jeopardy by rash, impetuous and tempestuous conduct. The latter would be sure to excite bitter opposition, strife and jealousy or hatred.

A child born on this day may have fine initiative and the power to put over important projects by its energy, audacity, and determination. At the same time its indomitable will, impetuosity, and perhaps quarrelsome nature may invite defeat and unfriendliness.

ROMANCE INC.

BY OREN ARNOLD

CHAPTER 27

NOT MANY of the dormitory students went to town that Sunday night, and of course the students who resided in town were widely scattered, so that relatively few of the collegians knew of Dr. Holgate's adventure before Monday morning. Night extra editions of the papers were not sent out to the Rice campus.

But The Houston Post emblazoned it on Page 1 Monday morning, and at breakfast the talk was high. In the dormitory commons professors and students alike poured over the newspapers. The Post had even printed a picture of Bob Towne and Sara Sue Davis—snapped by a staff man in the hospital corridor—and this added still more interest. Towne, the star football end, and Mrs. Davis, whose Counsel in Romance had been a campus sensation now for some weeks.

"She must be crying," somebody remarked. "She has a handkerchief to her face."

"Probably is. Upset. Didn't know she knew Holgate. She must have been in the swimming party. Odd that a somewhat quiet professor, rather than the athletic Towne, should have done the heroics."

"Says she and Towne just called afterward. They weren't on the party."

"Well, it's tough on Holgate. He ought to get a medal or something—if he pulls through."

The talk was incessant. People hadn't known a lot about Thornton Holgate, not even his fellow professors, but the papers had dug up his entire record. It read rather impressively, especially as to scholarship. The Rice faculty men were pleased to see a bookish scholar be physically competent to be a hero in emergency.

Dr. E. O. Lovett, Rice president, and Dr. Harry B. Weiser, dean, motored to Galveston soon after breakfast, the campus talk said. They telephoned back that Dr. Holgate was still critically ill, and was having every care. A typed report from the registrar's office was posted on the bulletin board in the administration building cloister. Bob Towne overslept—missing first class—but made a full report of the incident when he did appear. He offered no explanation of Sara Sue's interest in the affair, partly because he knew no explanation himself, but he did say that Sara Sue had spent the night in a hotel near John Sealy hospital, where she could be near the injured man. Bob also thought it unnecessary to mention the wordlacing Peaches Pomeroy had given the widow. Peaches herself showed up on the campus about noon, but added little to the information already known now.

She was talking to one group when she almost precipitated another unpleasantness, there in the main sallyport.

"The Davis person stuck her nose into it, claiming to be his sister," Peaches was saying. "She's a professional meddler! She's—"

"Why, that's a l— that's not so!" piped up Worthington Gurley, who had been in the group. "Sara Sue Davis wouldn't do that. You're crazy yourself. You're—"

He was violating at least two technical rules. A freshman may not adress an upperclass girl on the campus—the sophomores have ruled—and he was speaking disrespectfully anyway. "Scram, slime!" somebody ordered. But, at that, most of the group agreed with him. Peaches was too well known; especially the fact that Bob Towne had dropped her for the new Davis widow.

T. J. Sanders was out at the field house before noon. He couldn't pick up much talk there, though. The Negro trainer had only a few crumbs of information, and the coaches hadn't arrived for the day. T. J. went on over to Sara Sue's cottage.

"She ain't here, Mistuh T. J., Cleopatra informed him. "But you's welcome to come in and set. I brings you a cuppa coffee, suh?"

"Thanks, Cleo. Believe I will. When will Sara Sue return?"

"She down at GalVESton, suh. Mistuh Professuh Holgate, he got hurt. You hear about all that?"

Sanders nodded. He wondered what took Sara Sue down there but reflected that it was none of his business. The thought that she might have personal concern did not occur to him. In fact, it had never occurred to anyone, not even Bob Towne or Peaches Pomeroy. Nobody knew that Sara Sue had been secretly coaching Thornton Holgate in personality development, love making and such allied arts.

"Mighty good coffee, Cleo. You're an excellent cook."

"Aw shuh now, Mistuh T. J., heh-heh!" Cleo wabbled her pleasure. And brought him coffee cake. They were alone in the cottage.

"Cleo, what does a man have to do to marry Sara Sue?" T. J. was making talk.

"Suh?"

"How can I get next to Sara Sue, and make her like me?"

"Lawd, Mistuh T. J.! You has to have oomph!"

"Oomph?"

"Yas SUH! Miss Sara Sue, she quality folks. Cain't nobody go jest peddlin' around with her. You knows her pappy befo' he die? She come frum ancestries."

T. J. grinned. Cleo's dialect always delighted him. And her ideas were seldom far wrong, either, he had discerned.

"I admit she's quality, Cleo. But how can I corral for my own?"

"You thinking about making permanent marriage with her? Hones'?"

"Well, it's an idea. Isn't it?"

"Sho is. Yas, suh. But is you good enough for her?"

"No, I'm sure I'm not. But—" He really meant that, too, he reflected.

"Naw, suh. You ain't, and that's a fack. Ain't no young man good enough. But, then, it has to be some allowances made, I reckons." Cleo was quite serious about it, and so T. J. did not laugh openly.

"Bes' thing I knows is to make deep love to her all the time, suh. Jes don't never give up. I helps you all I can, suh. You rates high with my opinion."

"Sa-a-ay, thanks, Cleo! That's a compliment, sure 'nough. Now listen, Cleo—say, here's a five-dollar bill. Just between you and me. For good luck and friendship. And there might be another five-dollar bill, almost any week-end I happened to drop in like this. I figure your excellent coffee and rolls are worth that, at least. You understand, Cleo?"

"Yas, SUH! I should say I does! Thanks you, suh!"

Cleo accepted and concealed the money in some cavernous recess of her great bosom, smiling broadly, happily. She poured more coffee, talking the while.

"I starts right in to help you, suh, the minute Miss Sara Sue set foot in that do'. Anything I can do, you jest calls on me, Mistuh T. J. I know she goin' be awful disappointed she miss seein' you this mornin', but you jes' come back when you can. Yassuh."

"Thanks, Cleo. You're a gem."

"Yassuh."

"Ah—Cleo."

"Suh?"

"I wonder if I happen to have much competition. That is—are any other men, boys, making serious love to Sara Sue? You know what I mean. She's so pretty and sweet! I 'clare to goodness, Mr. T. J., she the pretties' white girl I ever is see! I been knowin' her since she was in diapers. I nurse for Mrs—"

"Yes, yes indeed, Cleo. But now as to the others—?"

"Yassuh, it's some other young men likes her, too. Mistuh Bob, he got a bad case on her. And Mr. Worthin'ton—he awful young, but he sho smitten, heh-heh! But they don't gimme as much as you does, suh."

"How?" T. J. cocked his head at that, looking quizzically at the Negress.

"They pays me quite gen'rus to help them, too, but not no five dolluhs, naw suh! You the onliest one what's tip me that much, suh. Have some mo' coffee, Mistuh T. J.?"

T. J. swallowed, mopped his brow with a handkerchief, and grinned wryly. Finally he chuckled. Well, it was his own deal, he reflected! Still grinning, he arose to go.

"Um. Well, I must be going, Cleo. Ad valorem."

"Yassuh. I sho will."

Make A Perfect Entrance

Admiring glances greet this charming couple as they enter restaurant, theatre, or party. Their perfect poise comes of knowing what to do and say on all occasions.

In restaurants the young woman follows the head waiter and takes the chair he pulls out for her. If no head waiter appears, the young man leads, draws back his guest's chair and helps her remove her wrap before seating himself opposite.

This young man always rises when introduced to a woman or a much older man. But the girl does not rise when a man's introduced unless he's very distinguished.

Knowing the social graces is one of the secrets of charm. Our 32-page booklet teaches you the etiquette of dining, visiting, travelling. All about introductions, invitations and acceptances, engagements and weddings, too.

Send 15c in coins or stamps for your copy of ETIQUETTE FOR ALL OCCASIONS to Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS and the NAME of booklet.

GOODNIGHT STORY

By MAX TRELL

Knarf and Hanid, the shadow-children with the turned-about names, rapped on the door of Mrs. Cuckoo's little cottage at the top of the Cuckoo Clock.

"Who's rapping at my door?" Mrs. Cuckoo called from inside.

"Knarf and Hanid. May we come in?"

"Just a minute," said Mrs. Cuckoo.

It was just a minute before nine o'clock. Mrs. Cuckoo opened her door only on the hour and half-hour.

At exactly nine o'clock she opened the door. "Go inside," she told the shadows in a quick whisper. Then she stood on the edge of her little porch and called out: "Cuck-oo, cuck-oo—!" nine times to let everyone in the house who was listening know that it was nine o'clock.

"It's called the Scarf of Time."

Then she went inside again and shut the door.

Shadows Curious.

She found the two shadows sitting in comfortable chairs in her little parlor. Mrs. Cuckoo smiled, sat down in her own rocking chair by the fire, put on her spectacles, and went on with her knitting. Mrs. Cuckoo was always knitting. She made one stitch every second. But no one could ever find out what she was knitting. It seemed to be a long thin scarf which never came to an end, and disappeared inside a small wicker basket which never seemed to fill up.

Now Knarf and Hanid had often wondered about this scarf, and that was the reason for their visit tonight. So as soon as Mrs. Cuckoo sat down in her rocker and took up her knitting needles, Knarf said: "What are you always knitting, Mrs. Cuckoo?"

"Can't you guess?" Mrs. Cuckoo said with a smile. "It's something that all of us have to have, you, I, the children, mother and father."

Looks Like a Scarf.

"It looks like a scarf," said Knarf. "But it's so long. And you never get through making it."

"You're right," Mrs. Cuckoo replied. "It never has an end. It just goes on and on. But it's very precious. It's called the Scarf of Time."

"The Scarf of Time?"

"Yes, darlings. And it's exactly like Time. All of us have to have Time; none of us can do without it. And Time is precious, every second of it. None of us must waste it. And Time is for everything: Time for work, Time for play, and Time for sleeping and eating and talking. And there's night-Time and day-Time. And Time goes on and on, never coming to an end." Mrs. Cuckoo paused and smiled. Now what do you think of that?

LAKEFIELD

Report Is Made On District W.I. Convention

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 14.—A splendid report of the 37th annual convention of the Central Ontario area of the Women's Institute which met November 16 to 18 in Toronto was presented by Mrs. S. E. White, local delegate, at the regular December meeting of the Lakefield Branch of the Women's Institute, which was held here in the Memorial Hall.

Anything that makes for better rural life, makes for better urban life, because the two are so closely related," Mrs. White stated, in reporting the address of the Hon. Georges Bouchard, M.P., who is a professor at the College of Agriculture at St. Anne's, P.Q.

Prof. Bouchard said he came from the Lower St. Lawrence where, people in Montreal say, civilization is about to cease. In Dr. Bouchard's opinion, the people of Ontario are about half a century behind his province. The Quebec people are interested in handicrafs and have kept alive their traditions They have learned that although handicrafts may not pay, they are, like honesty, something worth while.

Miss Marjorie Frankish, a member of Lakefield's Junior Institute, gave a paper on Home Economics at the annual convention, Mrs. White reported. "Something that is coming to the fore in home economics is family relations," Miss Frankish said.

(1) Alloting the work justly; (2) sharing the fun; (3) giving the youth something of their own in stock or money; (4) talking over the difficulties as well as the achievements. The youth will appreciate the confidence; (5) let there be juudicious entertaining at home. Encourage the children to bring their friends home; (6) teach handicrafts.

"As these gradually grow in our homes, the standards of living will gradually rise," Mrs. White said, quoting Miss Frankish's closing words.

Reforestation

Mrs. J. M. McCulloch in her report on agriculture and Canadian industries said that Hall's Bridge and Lakefield had reported that the subject of "Reforestation" had been taken up by them. Other branches had studied production, marketing, grading and quality. Warsaw and Lakefield had visited manufacturing plants in their district A report sent in by Mrs. Stanley Higgins of Lakefield—'so interesting that I must read it,' Mrs. McCulloch said—dealt with the visit of the local branch to home industries.

Mrs. Clarence Hayes, in her report on legislation, recommended the study of laws relating to women. She advised all women to exercise their franchise.

Mrs. J. R. Cooper's report on community activities stated that Apsley reported that a library of over 400 books had been established there.

"One of the highlights of the convention was the arrival of Lord and Lady Elgin," Mrs. White reported. "Lord Elgin gave us a good description of the Empire exhibition at Glasgow, and spoke of the work of the Scottish Council for Community Service during unemployment.

'Nothing brings more happiness and contentment than daily work for the common weal, a fact well exemplified by the Women's Institute,' Lord Elgin said.

"Unaccompanied and with clear voice, Lord Elgin sang the old Scottish ballad, 'The Laird o' Cockpen,' to the delight of the convention delegates.

"Lady Elgin, vice-president of the Scottish Rural Institutes, extended greetings to the convention. 'In Scotland there are one hundred branches and 50,000 members of the W.I.' she said."

In reply to the roll call the members gave a suggestion for a Christmas table decoration, a tree of gumdrops being perhaps the most unusual. Other suggestions included evergreen; a small tree decorated; a cellophane tree in colors; a group of small animals; holly; Christmas tree candles on a reflector; and poinsettas.

Following the program, the members exchanged gifts and candy and grapes were passed. There was a demonstration of candy making.

Arrangements were made for the presentation of a lecture and slides entitled, "Dick the Gardener," during the month of March.

Arrested For Theft

George H. Clayton, 48, of New York, was arrested in Toronto by instructions of New York police officials on a charge of the theft of $700,000 arising from an alleged $14,000,000 stock swindle in the United States.

Turns Anti-Nazi

The Marquess of Londonderry, one of the strongest pro-German advocates in England and personal friend of German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop, personally requested Prime Minister Chamberlain to give a specific pledge that "we are not prepared to sacrifice an inch of territory or one individual" to Nazi colonial demands. Lord Londonderry strongly condemned the Jewish pogroms in Germany.

A Large "Ja" For Der Fuehrer

Konrad Henlein Sudeten Nazi leader, is pictured in a polling booth as he cast his ballot in the elections for the German Reichstag. Thirty deputies were elected to office in a list headed by Fuehrer Hitler, Henlein and Karl Frank. The ballot read "Do you acknowledge our Fuehrer Adolf Hitler, the liberator of Sudetenland, and do you give your vote to the list of the National Socialist German Labor party?" Beneath was a circle for the answer "ja," or yes, and a similar circle for "nein" or no. One report had Hitler receiving 99.2 per cent. of the total votes cast. Another report indicated over 25,000 ballots were cast against Hitler.

Lindsay Shies Off Election

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, Dec. 16.—Owing to the scarcity of money in the civic treasury, an effort is being made by a number of citizens to have next year's municipal government elected by acclamation. Three members of election, the otehrs being elected for the present council must seek re-election, the others being elected for a two-year term. Two members of the Hydro Board will seek re-election but an aspirant for this body has thrown his hat in the ring—M. Dickerson, a former member of the Board, who was disqualified two years ago because of the acceptance of an electrical contract while a member of that body.

Ex Grandview Reeve Dies

The death is announced at Grandview, Manitoba, of John Dunseath, brother of Mrs. T. H. Graham of Peterborough. Mr. Dunseath, who was in his seventy-second year, was born in Verulam Township, and went west forty-five years ago. He was reeve of Grandview for a number of years.

McNamee Named Reeve

Patrick McNamee, reeve-elect of Carden Township, Victoria County, has been unanimously elected to that office as an expression of gratitude and apprecation on the part of the residents of that township. Four years ago he was superintendent of road work in that township, and suffered the loss of his right hand through an accident. Carden Township has no compensation insurance, and compensation would not be awarded by the Compensation Board. However, they awarded him $3,600 damages to be paid by the municipality. Mr. McNamee refused to accept the award, claiming the people of the municipality could not afford to pay that sum. He finally consented to accept $200 to cover his medical costs and $1,000 for the loss of his hand.

Cars Collide

Two cars were involved in an accident on the Peterborough highway, two miles east of Lindsay, on Tuesday night. A car driven by Mrs. George Hall, town, collided with a car driven by Cecil Downey, of Reaboro. The two cars met almost head on, and had they been travelling at a faster rate a serious accident would have resulted. The occupants escaped with a sligth shaking up, but both cars were damaged to the extent of $300.00.

WOMEN'S WORK AND INTERESTS

MAKE IT SATIN, PLEASE

The tailored but feminine gown, right, can be had in white or black satin with sheer chiffon top, applique cut-outs in satin. The back is built-up, not halter fashion.

The new off-shoulder night dress, above, comes in tea rose satin with val-type lace and hand-scalloping. Shoulder straps are corded and the half sash is wide ribbon.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

It's as true as ever this Christmas that many girls haven't too many underthings is taken into consideration. Lingerie designers have at last awakened to the fact that width and length are as desirable in nightgowns as in shoes. Furthermore, some women have made a kick about all gowns being cut on the bias, and, consequently, have brought back a few on-the-straight.

Of course, hand-made undies are what every woman wants. But the majority like machine - stitched seams. They save a lot of ripping.

Holly Smybol Of Thorns Worn by Christ

Holly with its thorns and blood-red berries is thought to symbolize the crown of thorns worn by the Saviour; another belief is that the use of holly comes from the pagans. It is certain that holly was supposed to be particularly hateful to witches and that at one time it was thought that, unless a maiden adorned her bed with a sprig of berried holly, she would be visited by a mischievous goblin.

The use of mistletoe comes to us from the Druids, who believed from its immortality that the plant possessed many miraculous virtues; they called it "All-Heal." The Scandinavians dedicated it to their Goddess of Love, Friga, whence probably arises the custom of kissing under the mistletoe. The superstitious believe that a maiden who is not kissed under the mistletoe will not marry during the ensuing year. The privilege of kissing under the mistletoe is supposed to be measured by the number of berries the branch contains; but this latter belief has but little observance in this country, any mistletoe (and occasionally even a branch of holly) serving the purpose.

The Wassail bowl, so named from the Saxon "waes Tael" (lit. "be in health," corresponding to our "to your health"), carried by the children singing carols, owes its origin to the custom of drinking the health of friends in the spiced wine drunk at Christmas time in mediaeval days. It was a spiced and sweetened drink served in huge bowls with roasted apples floating in it.

These old customs and others have survived although time has brought changes in them. And so it is that at Christmas quaint customs are followed by a composite of lore, legend and traditions from many lands, indicative by this very fact of the universality of the Christmas spirit —"On Earth Peace, Goodwill Toward Men."

GIFTS FOR BABY

Gifts for the very young set always include bibs of novel pattern or material. Bibs that are very protective as well as smart may be made of oiled silk in an apron style, with tie at the waist as well as at the neck. The ties and binding may be of bias tape to harmonize with the colored silk. Other bibs can be made of towelling and appliqued with a simple design such as a bunny eating a carrot. Gingham or any loosely woven material may be fringed about three sides, after first being stitched by machine to hold the fringing in place, or blanket-stitched by hand. The half-moon for the neck, and in case of an apron bib the whole upper, is neatly hemmed instead of fringed.

Percy W.I. Enjoys Christmas Meeting

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARKWORTH, Dec. 16. — A Christmas spirit prevailed throughout the December meeting of the Percy W. I. which was held at the home of Mrs. Fred Brown on Wednesday afternoon when a large number of members and a few visitors were present.

After the business session Mrs Honey gave a full account of the convention held in Belleville a short time ago. Mrs. Will Potter gave a splendid paper on "Joys of Giving." The program consisted of a recitation by Mrs. Lorne Evans and community singing.

Home-made candy was sold, which will add to the treasury. Mrs. Marsden donated a hand-made rug which will be sold, proceeds to go to the Institute.

The motto, "Make Others Happy and You Yourself Will Be Happy" and the roll call, My happiest Christmas, was heartily responded to.

The popular idea of exchange of Christmas gifts added a fine touch to the afternoon's entertainment.

A vote of thanks was tendered to the hostess and the meeting was brought to a close.

St. John's Guild,

The December meeting of the St. John's Guild was held at the home of Mrs. Will Mowat on Tuesday afternoon with a fair attendance. After the devotional exercises led by Mrs. Harry Brooks, president, a short business session was held in which the bills from the recent bazaar were ordered paid. The rest of the afternoon was spent in sewing, after which the hostess served lunch and the meeting closed with prayer.

Proper Diet Essential For Clear Skin

Absolute cleanliness and better health habits are the first steps toward eliminating blackheads and other minor skin blemishes.

If your pores seem to be enlarged, if they are clogged with small particles of dust and dirt or if there are tiny, hard lumps just underneath the surface of your skin, the chances are that your circulation is sluggish. You need exercise—preferably outdoor exercise. And you ought to start slapping on your creams and lotions with real vigor.

In addition, wash your face with soap and water at least twice a day. Be sure that your diet includes more fresh vegetables and green salads than starches, more fruits than rich pastry. Try to get eight hours sleep every night.

If, after six weeks of sticking to your rules for exercise and diet and giving your face a thorough but gentle cleansing, you still have a pretty unattractive complexion, better see your family doctor.

Forgives Thief

PUDACAH, Ky., Dec. 16—(AP).—The thief who stole $20 from Lonnie Williams, blind cigar stand operator, is forgiven. Williams had saved the money for a Christmas trip to Frankfort, Ky. C. K. Lovejoy, hotel manager, heard of the theft and sent him $25. "I wish whoever got the 20 bucks a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year," said Williams, smiling.

Fur Coat Styles Show Trend To Be Much Shorter

A new problem faces milady this autumn because skirts have become much shorter and the women are now faced with the annoying question of whether or not to shorten their fur coats.

Styles in fur coats show a definite trend towards the shorter variety. A fitted coat is still worn long, but the new popular boxy swagger coats are much shorter than the average fur coat purchased last year. Last season it was correct to have a coat from 10 to 13 inches from the ground depending on the height of the person wearing it, but this season coats are from 12½ to 15 inches from the ground.

If a woman does decide that her coat should be shortened it would cost $1.50, and if three inches or more of the fur is removed, this can be saved and put back should styles change again. Putting the piece back on would cost at least three dollars because the bottom of the coat would have to be joined and reblocked.

Many women argue there is no sense to having a good coat shortened this year because in another year the coats may be long again. But on the other hand many women, including those who own valuable Persian lamb and seal coats are having them reduced in length.

There is little radical change in fur coats this year. The boxy pattern will predominate in the new models and a new line of muskrat coats which in appearance resemble a dropped mink coat worth $1,200, are making a strong bid for popularity. These rat coats will cost about the same as muskrat garments did in 1937.

Millbrook W.M.S. Re-elects President

MILLBROOK, Dec 16.—Mrs. Percy Stinson was hostess for the W.M.S. of St. Andrew's church, which met at her home, Centre street, on Wednesday at 3 p.m., for its annual gathering, the president, Mrs. A. L. Sisco, issuing the call to worship, and asking nominations for vacant offices on the Peterborough Presbytery executive. Two names were suggested: Miss F. L. Hetherington as first vice-president, and Mrs. J. H. Might as strangers' secretary.

Delegates appointed to attend the Presbyterial Rally on January 24, were Mrs. Sisco who will take the memorial service for deceased members, and Miss Estella Hetherington, who will bring back the report. Girl Guide Members Hold Delightful Tea

The first social event since they moved into their new room at the Lyceum was held by the Girl Guides on Thursday afternoon, when First and Second Company were hostesses to Guide mothers and their friends at a delightful tea and sale of handicraft work made by the girls themselves.

Sparkling with its new garb of cream and green paint, the room was en fete for the occasion, and happy Guides are extremely grateful to Father P. J. Kelly, who has made it possible for them to carry on. Due to heavy rent which they had been paying all year for their club rooms, the Guides were in danger of having to disband until Father P. J. Kelly heard of their plight, and kindly came to their rescue by giving them this attractive room in the Lyceum.

Mrs. R. Whalon, District Captain, poured tea at the lace-covered tea table, which was centred with a graceful arrangements of carnations in two shades of pink. Assistant tea hostesses included Miss G. Bridcott and Miss Mary Stewart.

Articles from the handicraft table sold rapidly. Miss G. Bridcott was convener, assisted by a number of the Girl Guides.

We Noticed

....That our old friend Santa Claus brought some nifty toys from his northern fairyland when he arrived here a couple of weeks ago. They're the best ever, yes indeed, for your reporter has seen them all!

✧ ✧ ✧

....Dear old Santa Claus and his merry men must have been working overtime this summer. The dolls have sunnier smiles and lovelier clothes than ever before. The automobiles, tractors, fire-engines, airplanes, trains, trucks all have the most up-to-date stream-lining. All the old favorites, many in new guise, and a host of new toys appealing and different are here.

✧ ✧ ✧

....Toylands are full of them—and full too of eager-faced, bright-eyed youngsters looking for a few new ideas of what to ask from Santa. If you are finding it difficult to capture the Christmas spirit, just pay a visit to one of the toylands for a few minutes, and we'll guarantee you'll be wanting to hang your sock on the mantlepiece, too!

Adds Another Triumph

Beautiful Mary Astor, long a screen favorite, has added radio appearances to her list of triumphs. She has been scheduled for other broadcasts in between movie roles.

Yuletide Spirit Prevails At Tea and Bazaar

The happy spirit of Yuletide was very evident at the successful and well attended tea and bazaar which was held Thursday afternoon in the Y.W.C.A., and of which the 'Y' Twenty Club members were the gracious hostesses. A Christmas tree ablaze with colored lights, and rooms decked with emblems typical of the holiday season made a festive background for the bazaar tables.

In the green Room the tea table was arranged with a lace cloth, and in the centre a large, single poinsettia was placed on a mirror reflector. Four scarlet tapers in crystal holders brought out the gleam of the silver services at each end, where tea was poured by Mrs. Harold Morrow, Miss Annie Wood, Mrs. H. R. H. Kenner, and Mrs. R. Waddell. Assistant tea hostesses included Mrs. Clare Collins, Mrs. Hugh Waddell, Mrs. Eric Westbye, Miss Margaret Widdess, Miss Grace Comstock, Mrs. Herb Bradburn, Mrs. G. Rishor, Mrs. T. Gentles, Miss Mary Medd.

Mrs. J. Forbes, assisted by Mrs. A. Piercy and Miss Lillie Elliott represented the Senior Gym Class, and were in charge of the homecooking table, which was laden with tempting homemade goodies, and decked with red candles and diminutive, snow-sprinkled Christmas trees.

Tickets on a Scotch doll, donated by Miss Isabel Leckie, and on a Mary Lou doll donated by Miss Mary Lou King, were sold by Miss Mabel Quinlan; on a Christmas cake donated by Graham's Bakery, and a Westclox clock donated by the Western Clock Company, by Mrs. Austin and Miss Clemina Long. Green and scarlet boxes and baskets of candy, under the auspices of the school girls' Gym class, were sold by Miss Rosamond McLean, assisted by Miss Viola McLean and Miss Lillian Martin.

At the doll table one found the most adorable dolls all designed to make any little girl's heart beat faster Christmas morning. They were dressed in dainty, hand-knitted suits, and complete wardrobes might be purchased to go with them. Even the three little pigs, in knitted suits of red, white and blue, were there, all tucked up in a gay gift box! Particularly interesting was a chesterfield and two arm chairs fashioned, we are told, of berry boxes, and covered with a white woven fabric. Blue rosette cushions went with them. Doll mattresses stuffed to comfortable proportions, and with pillows attached, were accessories to the doll requirements. Members of the Monday night gym class were represented here. Mrs. W. S. Howson was convener, assisted by Mrs. Walter Bannon.

The novelty table featured novel ideas for Christmas gifts, and handmade Christmas cards, knitted gloves and mitts, embroidered towels, knitted baby things, lovely tatting, aprons, and many other useful artices. Mrs. S. White was convener, assisted by Mrs. D. White and Miss D. Tice. Donations on display here were received from members of the 'Y' Old Country Club, the Thursday Gym class, the badminton class, and residence members. Miss Frances Simmons and Miss Dorothy Pearson were in charge of the hot dog and soft drinks booth in the evening.

Christmas gifts and novelties in connection with the bazaar, and gifts that come in through the week will be on sale at the Y.W.C.A. until Christmas.

LEARN AND LIVE

LOS ANGELES — (CP). — Husbands and fathers will learn some day they could save money by appearing not to notice startling changes in feminine headgear, remarks The Los Angeles Times.

Do You Know?

That hard-cooked eggs are more tender and tasty than hard-boiled eggs? To hard-cook, put the eggs in boiling water, two cups for each egg, and turn off the heat immediately; cover the eggs and let stand for forty-five to sixty minutes, depending on the number of eggs.

✧ ✧ ✧

All soiled clothes should be entirely dry when put into the hamper, or mildew may develop? One damp towel in the basket will not only cause mildew to appear on the towel, but on all other pieces dampened by contact with it.

✧ ✧ ✧

Here is a new tip for removing iron-mould marks from your linen. Stretch the stained part over a jug and keep it in place with a rubber band, then pour boiling water through the linen from a kettle. Moisten this dampened area with a little oil of lemon and repeat the treatment until the iron mould has gone, then wash with more boiling water to remove the acid.

FOR MOTHER'S HELPER

If a mother's helper is on your list we'd suggest as an aid to mother, that you give her one of the little ranges made just for her. Try to get someone else to give her a set of aluminum to go along with your gift . . . and maybe some china. Then little Susie will have the most sublime faith in Santa Claus. There are heaps of things for those little domestic animals . . . sets for washing and ironing dolls clothes, sewing outfits and wee brooms and carpet sweepers that will teach her to take care of her own room.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

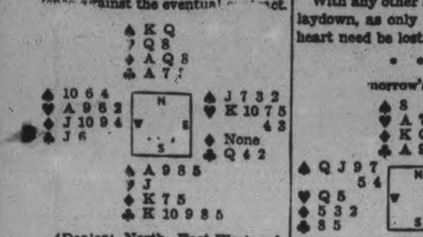
WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

LISTEN AND LEARN

IF ONE OF YOUR opponents bids and rebids a particular suit, and his partner then assists it, how many cards have they in the suit? Right — at least eight or nine. If you have four cards of the suit, how many can your partner hold? Right —either one or none. When you listen to such bidding conversation you may learn many things, if you also think—including the best defense against the eventual contract.



(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable)

North began the auction on this deal with a bid of 1-Diamond, South called 2-Clubs, North 3-Diamonds, South 3-Spades, North 4-Clubs, South 4-Diamonds and North 5-Clubs.

Copyright, 1938, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Before leading, West reviewed the bidding and figured with North's diamond bid, his jump in the suit and South's assist, he might find his partner void, so he led the diamond J, which East ruffed.

East had no other return but a heart, as spades had been bid by South. He made the lucky return of a heart, which West won, giving him a chance to allow East to ruff another diamond.

With any other lead the hand is a laydown, as only one club and one heart need be lost.

Fire Ravages Thornbury Main Street

Phone Office, Library 2 Hardwares Burn In 5-Hour Blaze

THORNBURY, Ont., Dec. 17. —(CP).—Damage of more than $100,000 was caused early today when the worst fire in 50 years destroyed or damaged three buildings and several stables here. Two firemen were injured slightly fighting the blaze. Thornbury is about 25 miles east of Owen Sound.

Five hundred telephone lines were put out of commission when the fire, which broke out in G. D. Binkley's general store, destroyed the Bell Telephone Company office. The town's public library, a fraternal order's meeting hall, two hardware stores and at least three stables were gutted.

Only the fact a south wind was blowing the flames away from other nearby buildings prevented the blaze from spreading through the town of 1,200 residents. Thick, wet snow falling at the time, into which occupants of three apartments were forced to flee in night attire, also aided firemen in fighting the outbreak.

Volunteer town firemen and a detachment from Collingwood, 12 miles east of Thornbury, got the fire under control after nearly five hours' work. Water was pumped from the Beaver River, 500 feet from the blazing buildings. With communications crippled, news of the fire was carried by motorists to Meaford and telephoned from there to outside points.

Operator Driven From Post.

Florence Andrews, night telephone operator, remained on duty warning residents and summoning aid from Collingwood until the flames forced her from her post. Shortly after Miss Andrews fled the telephone office was gutted. All lines from Thornbury were put out of commission.

The injured firemen were Fred Pedwell and Vance Jarred. They were standing on a ladder 15 feet ground, pouring water on the flames when a sudden burst of flames forced them to jump to safety. The men suffered bruises and slight burns.

Among those forced from their homes were Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Binkley; their daughter, Irene, and Edward Hardry. The fire was believed to have broken out in Binkley's store from an overheated stove and spread quickly to adjoining premises. The burned stores were stocked with Christmas goods which were expected to be a total loss.

Exploding ammunition in one of two hardware stores gutted by the flames created a hazard for firemen. Other premises damaged or destroyed were F. W. Eastland's hardware store; the Independent Order of Odd Fellows' Hall and the Thornbury Public Library. Most of the town's residents aided in fighting the fire, forming bucket brigades from the river to the scene of the outbreak.

Negress To Be Allowed Take Nursing Course As Edmonton Board Sets Precedent

EDMONTON, Dec. 17 (CP)—Edmonton Hospital Board decided last night to accept a 24-year-old Negress as a student in the Royal Alexandra Hospital training school providing her academic qualifications comply with regulations.

Miss Margaret Crang, former Edmonton alderman, sponsored the motion urging acceptance of the girl, first of her race to apply to be a student nurse at the hospital.

"There should be no class distinction in our training school," said Miss Crang in starting a 90-minute debate.

Dr. A. F. Anderson, hospital superintendent, said he was 100 per cent in favor of having the girl in the hospital but questioned whether patients would be.

"I am not prejudiced against race myself but I know that the general public is," Dr. Anderson stated. "There would not likely be any snobbishness among the nurses, but it is the general public I am thinking of."

New Liberal Organization Mooted For Ontario

Monday's Session To Lack Power Of Reading Premier Hepburn Out Of Party, Step Only Possible After National Caucus

OTTAWA, Dec. 17 (CP).—When the caucus of Federal Liberal members Liberal defeated candidates and Liberal Senators in Ontario meets here on Monday the first business likely will be consideration of a resolution expressing confidence in the leadership of Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

A prominent Liberal here today said he expected the next step would be to consider whether, in view of Premier Hepburn breaking with Mr. Mackenzie King and since Mr. Hepburn is head of the Liberal machine in Ontario, a new Liberal organization in the province should be built up to act independently of the Ontario Premier.

The caucus would have no power to read Mr. Hepburn out of the Liberal party, this parliamentarian said, because it will represent only Ontario. The Liberal party is a national institution and the only way a member of the party could be read out would be following action of a national caucus such as will be held after parliament opens next month when all provinces will be represented. Men have been read out of a party in the past by the national party leader after a national caucus had decided such a step should be taken.

National Tie Already Cut?

The view here is that while a national caucus could read a man out of the National Party, it would lack authority to read him out of the Provincial Party. However, it is argued Mr. Hepburn has already dissociated himself from the National Party.

Until the break-up between Mr. Hepburn and Mr. Mackenzie King, the National Liberal Federation acted as the Federation of the Provincial Liberal Associations which supported the party in both Federal and Provincial elections. The only exception was in Quebec, where each county is a separate unit acting directly with the national organization.

However, it is claimed that since Mr. Hepburn became Premier of

Judge Confirms Assessment Auburn Plant

Judge Smoke confirmed Friday evening the Court of Revision's reduction of $16,200 in the property and business assessment of the Auburn mill unit of the Dominion Woollens and Worsteds Limited estate in Peterborough, disallowing the appeal by W. J. Henry, city assessor.

Of the old limestone factory building on the east side of the river, spanning approximately three-quarters of a century of this city's progress, E. A. Cross, of Toronto, a consulting structural engineer, witness for the company, could visualize only one possible end, if any attempt was made to extract dollars and cents out of it, and that was to reduce its stout gray walls to crushed rock for making roads. And even that method of salvage might be impractical, he said, because it was probably cheaper to get road material directly from a quarry.

And so, both parties to the appeal in Judge Smoke's court swathed with thick layers of crepe Kendry's woollen mill, described as obsolete and antique, whose last employees eighteen months ago went on strike for more money, while all the while, according to David G. H. Melton, plant manager of the Bonner-Worth mill on McDonnel street, the company's efforts to rehabilitate the majestic stone pile at Auburn had become desperate.

Irony of Crisis

A pathetic note of irony ran through some of the evidence, especially in the contrast of employees of the only factory in the northeast section of the city contending that their pay envelopes should be increased out of a mill which today is regarded as fit only for road material, and expensive material at that.

F. D. Kerr, K.C., representing the company, posed this question to Mr.

Wheat Crisis May Bring Fixed Quota

Canadian Producers Uneasy Lest Plan Cut Acreage

By Carl Reinke
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

WINNIPEG, Dec. 17— (C.P.). — Attention and hopes of the wheat industry of Western Canada will turn to the meeting of the International Wheat Advisory Committee in London on January 10, when all the world's wheat exporting and importing nations will go into a huddle to try to bring some order out of the present wheat crisis.

What result may specifically be expected from that conference wheat growers and traders here hesitate to predict. They have hopes—but their hopes vary widely. The one point on which they agree is that a member of the Dominion Cabinet's Wheat Committee attend as Canada's representative.

The wheat producers themselves, especially the pools, place their hopes on some ultimate agreement fixing international quotas and a minimum world price. The export market would then be stabilized and the farmer would be assured of at least a reasonable minimum.

The grain trade, some economists and Government agriculturists, on the other hand, fear the result to Canada of a fixed quota system which, they feel, will be sponsored by some other members of the wheat-producing "big four" (United States, Canada, Australia, and Argentina) whose wheat lacks the premium quality of Western Canada wheat.

Trouble Ahead in Quota.

A quota system, they fear, will bring rigidities into the picture not now present and mean a definite reduction of wheat acreage involving a series of new problems. If that should come about, they ask what will happen to the railways when there is little grain to haul, when much of their revenue is derived directly from grain traffic. What becomes of the great debt total owed by the West to the East? What happens to Eastern manufacturers when 3,000,000 of their 11,000,000 customers are unable to buy?

"Time spent at the London wheat conference discussing possible international arrangements to limit exports or production is time and effort completely wasted," said H. G. L. Strange, economist of the Searle Grain Company. "What is worse, it might do serious harm to the producers in the exporting countries.

Need Higher Consumption.

"The London conference has one very obvious and definite contribution to make to the world wheat situation—to devote its entire time to discussing means of increasing consumption of wheat and persuading countries with surpluses to admit over their frontiers more of the goods of the countries which now need the wheat but can only pay for it by export of their own goods."

J. H. Weeson, president of the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool, considered hopeful the outlook for some achievement from the London meeting.

"Our hope is that the outcome of the discussions will lay a foundation for a world wheat agreement, participated in by both export and import countries," Mr. Wesson said. Such an agreement was necessary so cut-throat competition might be ended among the exporting countries.

Donald Coster, LEFT, indicted president of the McKesson and Robbins, Inc., killed himself at his suburban estate at Fairfield, Conn., after investigators looked into an $18,000,000 shortage in the listed assets of his firm. Lumberjack Outhops Steve Brodie In 200-Foot Plunge To Top Of Vancouver Party

VANCOUVER, Dec. 17.—(CP)—Gordon (Oscar) Erickson, the Swedish lumberjack from Vancouver island who bettered Steve Brodie's act by leaping 200 feet into the choppy rip tide of the harbor mouth, complained today "it wasn't half as much fun as I thought it was going to be."

Erickson is in the police-guarded psychopathic ward at Vancouver General Hospital, his back a mass of bruises from hitting the water at 75 miles an hour.

"I jumped just for the fun of it," hes aid. "I wish I hadn't. I wouldn't do it again for many thousand dollars."

Late Thursday the 31-year-old tree feller from Jordan River, B.C., climbed to the railing of the new Lion's Gate suspension bridge, threw off his overcoat and jumped off backwards. He was hauled from the water by a ferry passenger who jumped overboard to the rescue.

"I guess it's a miracle I'm alive. The doctors say I must have hit my back first because that's where I'm bruised.

"But that wasn't what happened. I doubled my arms over the top of my head and went in head first. That's all that saved me."

Police said he was being detained for observation. No charge has been laid against him.

But it's the police angle that worries Erickson most, the red-haired logger admitted.

Cairo Students Riot

CAIRO, Dec. 17. —(AP)— Police wielding batons were called out today to disperse students of Cairo high schools who "struck" as an expression of sympathy with graduates demanding better employment conditions.

The student demonstrators stoned passing street cars and buses. Twelve were arrested.

Police who tried to force entrance into an agricultural school were repulsed by a volley of bricks.

4,000-Mile Dog Trek

HALIFAX, Dec. 17 — (C P) — Eugene Milier, Edmonton laborer and Great War veteran, who set out with his dog team of "Nip" and "Hobo" last May 6 for Halifax, arrived in the city last night at the end of a 4,000-mile trip. After a visit here he plans to return home with his team and expected to reach Edmonton some time next summer. The trek from Edmonton took seven months and 10 days.

Canada To Tie Up Coster's Drug Assets

NEW YORK, Dec. 17 — (A.P.).— Still more sensational disclosures of the incredible web of international financial intrigue spun by F. Donald Coster, the wizard whose magic failed him, were forecast to-day with 10 investigations seeking to unravel the tangled skein.

The breath-taking developments yesterday, climaxed when Coster ended his two-lives-in-one by firing a bullet into his brain, indicated the suspected milking of the $87,000,000 McKesson & Robbins Drug Company of $18,000,000 in assets was only one of his many far-flung extra-legal activities which extended into Canada.

The Canadian Government sought to tie up assets of the company in Canada where vast crude reserves reputedly were stored. Investigators weer seeking to determine whether any assets actually were in the Dominion or whether they might have existed on paper only.

At Ottawa it was learned the Income Tax Division of the National Revenue Department has issued writs of conservatory attachment against assets of the Canadian affiliates of McKesson & Robbins.

(Issuance of the writs, which will in effect temporarily attach the assets of the companies related to the drug concern, is a preliminary step in the Canadian Government's investigation into the financial affairs of the companies.)

Involved In Two Wars.

The investigators pushed inquiries into reports that Coster, really Philip Musica, an Italian-born immigrant and ex-convict, had, as head of the world's third largest wholesale drug concern, helped finance one South American war and assisted in smuggling arms to Spain in violation of the Neutrality Act.

So significant did this development appear to Ambrose McCall, assistant attorney general, that he abruptly adjourned the State's investigation until Monday in order to study the case.

The United States attorney's office disclosed it had begun an inquiry into reports Coster helped finance Bolivia in its war with Paraguay over the Chaco boundary in return for a promise of a quinine monopoly.

Further furors accompanied the disclosure that papers connected with an indictment against Coster-Musica 18 years ago were missing from the office of the chief clerk of the general sessions court here.

The missing documents were indictments, filed against Coster, then known under his real name of Musica, for forging of evidence and bribery of a witness in a murder case, in 1920. The indictments later were dismissed.

Caretaker Wounds Burglar Surprised Looting Sturgeon Lake Cottage

Shoots Through Window At Pair Busy Inside And Gets 2nd Shot As They Flee, Trail Of Blood Vanishes Across Lake Ice

ANCONA POINT, Ont., Dec. 16 (CP).—One of two men surprised while burgling a summer cottage at this Sturgeon Lake resort was wounded early today by a rifle bullet fired by Harold Hillis, caretaker of several homes on the point. The men escaped by fleeing along the ice covering the lake.

Hillis, superintendent of Windweep farm, surprised the men in the cottage of Robert Fennell, Toronto, as he returned home from a school concert. He went to his home for a .22-calibre rifle, poked it through a partially opened window shutter and fired at the burglars at work inside the house.

Takes 2nd Shot.

The men burst from the cottage and fled to the lake as Hillis again fired his rigle. The caretaker and Provincial Constable David Adair, brought from Lindsay, 13 miles south-west of the Point, followed a trail of blood on the ice for a considerable distance. The trail was lost when the men took to the shore.

Hillis said he noticed lights in Mr. Fennel's palatial summer home, and went to investigate, taking his rifle with him. "When I got close to the cottage I heard the sound of breaking glass," he said. "When I got within 20 yards I saw the shutter on one of the windows was half open.

"I could hear the two men inside and I shot through the lower part of the shutter. I thought at the time I had hit one of the men and I saw them go out on the lake. When they were running on the ice I took another shot at them."

The attempted burglary was one of several here in the past two weeks.

Manion Trades Tributes With Bennett

TORONTO, Dec. 17—(CP).—Two old companions on speaking tours, Conservative leader R. J. Manion and his predecessor, Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, revived memories of past associations today as they awaited their second joint public appearance since they exchanged roles at the national Conservative convention last July.

The party chieftains spoke last night at the annual banquet of the Commercial Travellers Association of Canada here and left at once for Montreal where they address the banquet of the Dominion Commercial Travellers Association.

Dr. Manion paid tribute to Mr. Bennett's services to Canada during his five years as Prime Minister and expressed the hope he would have many years of happiness and further opportunities to serve Canada and the Empire.

Mr. Bennett said Dr. Manion was devoting his life to a cause "and I know what that means." From those who believed in Dr. Manion and his cause, the country demanded service and only by rendering of such service could democracy and freedom be preserved.

The former leader said he had come not as a guest but as an honorary member of the Association to say goodby before leaving the country.

No Profiteering.

In the present disturbed condition of the world great armaments were necessary, said Dr. Manion. The democracies desired peace but it was the dictatorships which had the say as to whether there would be peace or war.

If war came and Canada took part there should be equal sacrifices by all. There should be no profiteering in patriotism. A few should not be permitted to profit while others sacrificed their lives. Believing this to be the sentiment of the Canadian people, Dr. Manion said he had worked out two proposals relating to the manufacture of armaments which might seem radical to some, but which would be adopted eventually.

"All arms and munitions which we need for the direct defence of Canada," he said, "should either be manufactured by the government itself or under the complete control of the government with profits eliminated.

"There should be complete control of profits in the manufacture of arms and munitions of all kinds for the United Kingdom."

Dr. Manion considered these proposals fair because they provided opportunity for private enterprise and for service to Canada and assured co-operation and a fair deal to the Empire while at the same time enabling Canadian producers for arms which might be expected.

Skater Goes Down As Pal Seeks Aid

BRANTFORD, Ont., Dec. 17 (CP) —Stephen Mitchell, 13, was drowned in Mohawk Lake, near here yesterday when he plunged through ice on which he was skating. A playmate, Keith Hager, attempted to rescue Stephen but ice conditions proved too dangerous.

Young Hager said they had been on their way to a pond to skate with other boys but had missed the way and so had gone to Mohawk Lake.

"Steve was skating but I did not want to go out on the ice and played around close to the edge, said young Hager. "While I was looking the other way I heard Stephen call help. I looked around and saw a plash of water and knew he had fallen in.

"I ran out and almost reached close enough to get my hockey stick out to him but I felt the ice breaking under me and had to run back. I tried several times. Stephen was hanging onto the edge of the ice but it kept breaking off."

The boy said he then ran to the park caretaker and when they returned, Stephen had disappeared.

Opium Runners Nabbed

HONOLULU, Dec. 17 — (AP), — United States customs officers held five Chinese to-day following the seizure of 80 tins of opium valued at $38,000, smuggled ashore from the Canadian steamship Empress of Japan Thursday. The vessel arrived here from Vancouver, B.C., en route to the Orient.

Collector Doyle said a fine of $13,333 would be imposed on the ship.

Germans Cling To Christmas Trees As Nazis Regiment Yuletide

BERLIN, Dec. 17.—(AP)—Instructions on how to celebrate Christmas in acceptable Nazi fashion have gone forth from various cultural department of the National Socialist regime. Emphasis is laid on the principle that observance of Yuletide is an ancient Germanic custom and should be followed as such.

"Under National Socialism Yule has regained its ancient traditional character of winter solstice rejoicings," one order observes. "Our Germanic forefathers celebrated Yule which is older than Christ and which Christendom borrowed from the Germanic prototype."

In several cities members of girls' Hitler organizations have indicated they will sing no more Christmas carols. Other orders are to the effect that the place for religious Christmas exercises is church and must not on no account be introduced into community celebrations."

Christmas plays must not be performed in schools. Instead, reversion to the old custom of presenting dramatic versions of ancient legends bearing on the battle between light and darkness, good and evil, is recommended, with full allowance for old local customs. Christmas trees are as popular as ever however.

The orthodox Christian view toward Christmas is retained by Bishop Theodore Heckel, who was appointed in 1934 to have charge of "the church foreign affairs department." In a Christmas message sent today, on behalf of the home church, to evangelical communities abroad he said:

"The message of the bospel must always stand in the midst of strife. After one year of war perils avoided, it behooves Christians of all the world to kneel by the manger and render thanks, but also to pray for strength to continue peace work already begun."

ANOTHER ROBOT

BRISBANE, Australia — (CP) — Two residents, Walton Wall and R. S. Blakeway, have invented a robot bombing device for planes. They have submitted plans to the defence department.

Nazis Execute Bandit

NUREMBERG, Germany, Dec. 17. —(CP-Havas)—Willi Heller, 24, died on the guillotine at midnight for wounding a taxi-driver in a robbery attempt four days ago.

He had been sentenced to death by a special court only a few hours earlier, along with his companion in the crime, Hanna Muendel, 21. The swift punishment was part of a government drive to cut short a wave of banditry in the Reich.

Chancellor Hitler commuted Fraulein Muendel's death sentence to life imprisonment.

Cost Of Christmas Menu Seldom Reviewed But Here Is $5.00 Dinner For Family

Preparations for Christmas dinner are beginning to bulge the family budget, and by the time the turkey reaches the table in all its glory the bill of extras is likely to leave little change from a five dollar bill.

Heads of most households take an expansive attitude of "hang the expense." Few of them in the afterglow of satisfaction count the cost, although the domestic plans for the occasions are naturally and as a matter of course adjusted to the available cash. The spending is automatically related to the amount that can be agreeably spent. In one home it may be three dollars, another five, and so on, and usually no one reviews the Christmas menu to ascertain what was the overhead. That disposition is not allied to the festive spirit of the day, except in the home where circumstances require that every penny must be counted.

Estimating the Bill.

As a matter of curiosity the Christmas dinner bill might be estimated, omitting the item of the work done by wife and mother and in many instances other members of the family, because the labor of love is beyond computation.

First there is the turkey. For a family of five or six persons an eight pound hen turkey should be ample, and the price may be from 25 to 28 cents. As a convenience in this practical sum in arithmetic, a ten pound bird at 25 cents the pound fits more easily into the accounting, and that major item will set your wife back $2.50. Probably, your meal may begin with a fruit cocktail, or the now established tomato juice. Selecting the tomato essence, again for convenience, 10 cents should buy enough for the dinner. Add celery at 15 cents, cranberry sauce at 20 cents a tin of peas 15c, although you can get a good quality at two tins for 25c. If you desire as alad you need at least lettuce 20 cents and tomatoes 15 cents, taking for granted that you have a supply of mayonnaise on hand.

Pudding Cost 90 Cents.

Bread to stuff the turkey calls for 8 cents more, and if you use onions another 15 cents. One turnip shouldn't cost more than 5 cents, and then comes the pudding that will probably cost about 30 cents, and a three-pounder means 90 cents. Bread, butter, tea or coffee are daily necessities and shouldn't be included in this festal reckoning. So, leaving them out, the bill of fare as mentioned amounts to $4.63. Add two pounds of grapes at 25 cents, and the total becomes $4.86, averaging 80 cents for a family of six. Surely there should be some carry-over from that ten pound turkey for another meal, possibly two, contributing something to the credit side of the bookkeeping.

Strike out the salad and reduce the turkey to eight pounds and the cost of the dinner drops to $4.

Chicken Cuts Cost to $3.

Substitute a five-pound chicken at 22 cents a pound for the turkey, and you shrink the total to less than $3.

Cliff Shea, manager of the F. and G. store on George street, was consulted about most of these prices, but his quotations were used simply as a basis for the computation, which is not to be regarded as his estimate.

If 5,000 families in Peterborough could all have turkeys on the table Christmas Day, and here's hoping they all at least fare well, the total outlay for Peterborough's festal dinner would amount to close to $20,000. At any rate it is pleasant conjuring, and only ascetics and the unfortunates whose digestive systems fail to function, knocking in some of the cylinders, and the inveterate vegetarians, if there are any, would frown on the contemplation of simple home pleasure of Christmas dinner, a good old British institution, that has come down through the ages, particularly with the silent but glowing approval of the Fat Boy in the Pickwick cavalacade.

Doomed To Be Beheaded Prisoner Laughs At Lesser Trials

THE French courts are carrying on. The prisoner, Maurice Pilogre, is laughing—for the time.

He was sentenced to be beheaded a month ago for slitting the throat of one of his colleagues. Sentence was to be carried out within a week.

But he had to be tried for robbing a Deaville villa. He was sentenced to 20 years in prison.

Then a Paris military court tried him. They ordered 115 days in prison for deserting the army.

He is to be tried once more, for burglary.

Then he can be executed—without serving the prison sentences. The newspaper L'Oeuvre asked today: "Why not have the man beheaded and save the taxpayers' money?"

SALAAMS TO THE LAW

LONDON—(CP)—"Forgive us, sahib. You are God. No take us into calaboosh," two Indian seamen pleaded with a policeman who arrested them on board ship. They were acquitted.

SASKATOON, Dec. 17 (CP) — Distribution of Thatcher and other rust-resistant wheat to farmers at the same price at which wheat is sold to milling companies, market price plus one and a half cents a bushed diversion charge, will be urged upon the Canadian wheat board by the United Farmers of Canada, Saskatchewan section, and other organizations.

H. A. Crofford, vice-president of the U.F.C., has initiated a movement by which he hopes to impress the wheat board of the necessity for such action. He has invited boards of trade, agricultural societies, farmers' organizations and the public generally to express themselves on the subject.

The central office of the United Farmers has already been in communication with the Canadian wheat board and with Hon. J. G. Taggart, provincial minister of agriculture.

In a statement yesterday, Mr. Crofford said that at least two rural municipal councils had endorsed the idea, and that rural municipal councils throughout the province would be asked to give consideration to his scheme.

The U.F.C. officials said more than 50,000 bushels of Thatcher and other rust-resistant varieties of wheat are in storage here.

British Bill Guarantees Exports To Fight Unfair Trade

LONDON, Dec. 17.—(CP)—Great Britain gave Germany a double-pronged show of her financial strength today and at the same time held out the possibility of an agreement to prevent a trade war.

First Prime Minister Chamberlain in a luncheon address yesterday declared Britain's "great financial resources * * * in a war of long duration might well prove to be the deciding factor."

Then the House of Commons unanimously advanced through second reading a bill extending the government's power to guarantee exports, a weapon that could be used to fight what Oliver Stanley, president of the Board of Trade, called "unfair methods of trade."

Mr. Stanley said he believed it was better for Britain and Germany to come to an amicable agreement for sharnig available markets and added: "We are hopeful that it will be possible to reach an agreement of that kind with mutual benefit to both of us."

But if that were impossible "we should find it necessary to put into operation those methods with which we feel it is right now that we should arm ourselves."

Not In Trade War Yet

He made it clear the new guarantee bill was "economic rearmament, and the economic rearmament we are now trying to undertake is exactly like our other rearmament. We never want to have to use it, but we know that if we are in a position to use it if we have to, we are much less likely ever to have to put it into effect."

Mr. Stanley said Britain had not embarked on a trade war with Germany and added "we do not want one with anybody."

At the same time he recited the old music hall jingle that went something like this:—

"We don't want to fight but, by jingo, if we do, we've got the ships, we've got the men and we've got the money too."

The bill, which Labor and Liberal spokesmen stated the opposition accepted, would increase from £50,000,000 to £75,000,000, ($235,000,000 to $352,000,000) the total export guarantees which the board of trade could grant.

It could be of help to British exporters in meeting Germany's barter trade system and contains a provision whereby material assistance could be sent to China.

Mr. Stanley assured the house there was no intention of extending credits to countries violating international law or whose attitude was hostile to Britain.

Robert Hudson, parliamentary secretary for overseas trade who a few days ago declared Britain could meet and face Germany at "her own game" in trade, last night called the new measure a "national necessity." He said that whereas once trade followed the flag, now trade was affected by national prestige.

Arms Count In Trade.

"In a world of power politics," he said, "undoubtedly the trade of this country depends to the largest extent on whether or not the world believes we are in earnest about our scheme of rearmament, and I have evidence of that the world over."

Mr. Chamberlain's statement, made at a luncheon in honor of Lord Bicester, the former Vivian Hugh Smith, well-known banker, was possibly the sternest he has made in connection with Germany:

"We may take it that when German statesmen—I will not say the German people—reflect on the possible consequences of a conflict, if ever a conflict should arise between our two countries, they think not only of our armaments but of our great financial resources, which in a war of long duration might well prove to be a deciding factor."

Much of the Commons debate undoubtedly will reach the ears of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the German Reichsbank, in London on an undisclosed trade mission.

The Prime Minister's words also would have to be considered in any conversations between Schacht and official or semi-official British representatives.

The Daily Herald, one of the principal organs of the Labor opposition, agreed with Mr. Chamberlain's latest rap at Germany but added that the Prime Minister "should not count too much on the money bags."

There was evidence of unrest in financial and business circles which think the government's trade policy is too slow.

The authoritative Financial Times warned editorially that "the fortunes of this country are indissolubly linked up with foreign trade," and added that decreasing British exports could not be allowed "to continue without running the risk of greatly impairing its economic security."

In addition to guaranteed export credits, the Financial Times advocated new trade agreements, protective or punitive tariffs, more efficient private sales efforts and—as a last resort—direct government subsidies for exports.

Those in close touch with party affairs are not sure the caucus will be solid for Mr. Mackenzie King. "No one knows what this caucus will do," said this prominent Liberal. Officer Walks Ledge In Stocking Feet To Arrest Burglar

PATROL SERGEANT Richard Carr walked along a narrow ledge on the second storey of a Toronto home in his stockinged feet last night and arrested Roy Penny, 25, Toronto, on a charge of housebreaking. Penny was crouching behind a chimney adjoining the premises he is alleged to have burglarized.

While a cordon of police officers watched from below, Carr jumped four feet from house to house, drew his revolver and ordered Penny to emerge with his hands up, Penny offered no resistance. The two descended to the ground by a ladder.

Police said Penny had jewelry in his possession taken from the home of Arthur Gynn. Police were called to the scene after a passer-by heard the sound of breaking glass. Carr entered the house and stepped out on the ledge in further search when he discovered the house was empty.

Labor To Fight Conscription

LONDON, Dec. 17 — (A.P.).—Organized labor to-day prepared to fight any attempt by the Government to impose peacetime conscription.

The Labor Party prepared to open its first attack in the House of Commons on Tuesday on the Government's proposal for a national registration to give an index of passive and active defence forces available for any emergency.

The original proposal, reviewed yesterday in the House was for "a voluntary national register," but some labor source said that was only a disguise for conscription which might be applied against manpower but not against industrial or financial resources of the nation.

The Daily Herald (Labor), in an editorial, gave Labor's position that "as for compulsion, the Government had better realize right away any attempt at peacetime conscription will be fought tooth and nail by the whole of organized labor, and any scheme put up for consideration must meet three cardinal requirements:

"It must be efficient; it must be voluntary; it must be based absolutely on democratic principles."

Labor fears that the voluntary nature of the register might be abandoned arose yesterday when the Government tabled a motion recommending that the results of the voluntary scheme be reviewed at the end of next March.

Schacht Returns Empty Handed?

LONDON, Dec. 17 — (A.P.). — Hjalmar Schacht, German Reichsbank president, went home to Berlin to-day amid indications he had found little but frigidity toward a plan to exchange German Jews for foreign funds.

Informed sources put considerable stress on the German Embassy "anxiety" to deny on the day of Dr. Schacht's departure that he came here to ask Great Britain for anything.

Nevertheless, it is known he conferred with George Rublee, Permanent Director of the Inter-Governmental Committee for Refugees formed at the Evian-Les-Baines conference last summer, and Earl Winterton, British chairman on the committee, on the Jewish question.

It is also known he conferred with Oliver Stanley, president of the board of trade, on the dangers of a trade war. Great Britain has indicated her business men will face financial support to fight German inroads on British trade in south-eastern Europe if they need it.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Dec. 17 — (C.P.). — Outside selling and lower prices at Chicago and Liverpool caused wheat futures prices to slip lower on the Winnipeg market yesterdal. Trading appeared nervous and quotations closed unchanged to ¼ lower, December at 60, May 61¾ to ⅞ and July 62¼b.

Export business in Canadian wheat was placed at 300,000 bushels. Shipments of Argentine wheat this week amounted to 996,000 bushels, compared with 453,000 bushels a week ago and 1,062,000 bushels last year. Australian wheat and flour shipments this week totalled 1,683,000 bushels, against 1,644,000 for the previous week and 3,054,000 bushels a year ago.

WEEKLY GRAIN REVIEW.

WINNIPEG, Dec. 17 — (C.P.). — Pressure on overseas markets by new crop Argentine and Australian wheat, together with rumors some wheat recently purchased by India would be resold, gave a depressing tone to the Winnipeg Grain Exchange last week, causing quotations to move down more than a cent.

Prices at close of Friday's trading were 1¾ cents lower, December at 60, May 61¾-⅞, and July 62¼ cents.

Uncertain marketing policies in Southern Hemisphere countries and belief that heavy and concentrated selling is contemplated, especially by the Argentine, helped push futures down. It is estimated Argentina will have an exportable wheat surplus of about 184,000,000 bushels which must be materially reduced through sales unless a large quantity is carried over into the next crop year. Australia's small crop this season may lessen pressure from this direction.

Another factor in world markets was the persistent offering of United States wheat through their wheat export subsidy plan. Under this plan almost 70,000,000 bushels have been exported. The United Kingdom has purchased more than 30,000,000 bushels of this total, with Norway, Holland, Belgium, Switzerland, Greece, and China also coming in as buyers.

Possibility of recent purchases of Australian wheat by India being resold did not improve the tone of the market and it was expected this unlooked for export source would have a tendency to create a vigorous selling policy by Southern Hemisphere countries.

Biblical Thoughts For the Shut-Ins

By Rev. E. R. James, Toronto

THE MYSTERIOUS BIRTH

The angel and said unto her: That Holy Thing which shall be born of thee shall be called the SON OF GOD.—St. Luke 1:35.

A lovely Jewish maiden in Nazareth suddenly sees an angel visitor in her home. Renan, a master of literature, says that St. Luke's Gospel is the most beautiful book ever written. This story of the miraculous birth of Our Lord is described with a delicacy which is in striking contrast to the rejected gospels of that age. Modern scholarship is agreed that the story originated in Palestine and not in Corinth. About twenty years after Our Lord's resurrection and ascension Palestinian Christians were hearing and repeating this story of the Virgin Birth of Our Lord. These Jewish Christians believed that Jesus Christ died, rose from the dead and ascended into heaven. They believed and accepted His unique resurrection and departure. This story answers their natural question: "How did He come into this world"? It was the key to the mystery of the incarnate God, God manifest in the flesh.

The Apostles do not refer to this story. Very probably they kept it as a secret till after the death of the Virgin Mary, who was under the protection of St. John the Divine. The story has every evidence of being told by a woman, very probably the Lord's Mother herself. She could not die with the secret.

The Apostolic preaching was "Jesus and the resurrection." They proclaimed what they had experienced of the life, teaching, death and resurrection of the Master. This was the very first article of their belief. St. Paul practically makes no reference to the virgin birth. It was possibly reserved for the secret teaching of believers. In this story God is entering once more into human life. He is making a new start, a new beginning. He is creating a new Head of the human race, Jesus Christ the Son of God. A famous Christian scholar, Bishop Gore, says that in his long experience he finds that men who claim to believe in the resurrection and denied the virgin birth gradually came to deny the resurrection also.

Mary does not understand the angel's statement. She is not married. But like every Jewish maiden her hope was that through marriage she might be the mother of the Lord's anointed, the Messiah, Who would "restore again the kingdom to Israel." The angel explains: "The Holy Ghost shall come upon thee and the power of the Highest shall overshadow thee and that Holy Thing which shall be born of thee shall be called the Son of God." Think of the courage and submission of the maiden as she replied: "Behold the handmaid of the Lord; be it unto me according to thy word." She understood all the suspicion, horror and evil report that would be and still is her lot. Truly "as word pierced her own soul also."

Then follows the story of the birth in Bethlehem, "the House of bread." There Joseph and Mary had come to register for the census according to Roman law. The stable in the cave, the manger cradle. "There was no room for them in the inn." Trajic words—they ring true in every generation. The humility and glory of the Divine Child. The shepherds testimony of the angelic visit and the song. Was there ever a time when the world needs the angelic message more than this; "Glory to God in the highest and on earth peace, good will toward men."

Who is this so weak and helpless,
Child of a lowly Hebrew maid,
Rudely in a stable sheltered,
Coldly in a manger laid?
'Tis the Lord of all creation,
Who this wondrous path hath trod;
He is God from everlasting,
And to everlasting God.

"A new commandment give I unto you, That ye love one another; as I have loved you, that ye also love one another."—John 13:34.

Christ's New Commandment

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Dec. 18 is Matthew 5: 43-38; 22; 34-40; Luke 10: 25-137; John 14: 34, 35; 15: 12-14; Galatians 5: 13, 14, the Golden Text being John 13: 34, "A new commandment give I unto you, That ye love one another; as I have loved you, that ye also love one another.")

BY NEWMAN CAMPBELL

WE HAVE been studying the ten commandments. Today we have what Jesus called a new commandment. It is so important that if we keep it we have also kept all the other ten commandments.

The "new" commandment is, "that ye love one another." Don't you see that you couldn't steal, kill, be unfaithful, or do any of the other things that are forbidden in the ten commandments Moses gave to the children of Israel, if you were just to love everyone?

Everyone should memorize Jesus' words when He said: "Ye have heard that it hath been said, Thou shalt love thy neighbor and hate thine enemy." (This was the old Jewish law.) "But I say unto you. Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them which despitefully use you, and persecute you:

"That ye may be the children of your Father which is in heaven: for He maketh His sun to rise on the evil and on the good, and sendeth rain on the just and on the unjust.

"For if ye love them which love you, what reward have ye? Do not even the publicans the same?

"And if ye salute your brethren only, what do ye more than others? Do not even the publicans so?

"Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father in heaven is perfect."

If we all lived up to that standard, even as far as we can, wouldn't the problems of that world be solved? We probably couldn't be perfect, but that is the ideal toward which to strive. Those people we couldn't love, we could at least treat with kindness and try to understand they are troubled and help when we could.

We could hold our anger when we are slighted or abused, knowing that nothing can really hurt us but our own wrong doing.

Who is our neighbor? asked the rich you man of Jesus. And then He told the beautiful story of the man who fell among thieves and the Good Samaritan. Practically everyone knows this story, but it is like the fairy stores of our childhood, it can be told over and over.

"A certain man went down from Jerusalem to Jericho and fell among thieves, which stripped him of his raiment, and wounded him, and departed, leaving him half dead."

A priest came that way, you remember, and, seeing the wounded man, passed by on the other side of the street. Then a Levite came by and he, too, saw and passed by. But a certain Samaritan came along and dressed the man's wounds. Setting him on his beast, the Samaritan took him to the nearest inn where he paid for his care. When he left he told the innkeeper that if he spent more money he would pay him when he came that way again.

"Which now, of these three, thinkest thou was neighbor unto him who fell among thieves?" Jesus asked.

Of course the young man said the Samaritan was the most neighborly.

Then said Jesus unto him, "Go thou and do likewise."

That, then, is what is meant by being a Christian—not only believing, going to Sunday School and church, obeying the laws of the land and of good conduct, but being interested in all those with whom we come in contact, and in being a good neighbor to them, helping in every way we can. In the sad state of the world today, isn't that worth trying? Is there any better way to bring about "Peace on earth, goodwill to men"?

Deny Somaliland To Be Offered Duce

LONDON, Dec. 17.—(CP Cable)—Official denials were made today of Paris reports that Prime Minister Chamberlain would offer British Somaliland to Premier Mussolini when he visits Rome in January.

"Nothing whatever is known of any such proposal," it was stated in official Whitehall circles.

The report, which was branded "pure nonsense," claimed Mr. Chamberlain would cede British Somaliland to Italy in return for full application by Italy of the non-intervention committee's plan for the withdrawal of all foreigners fighting in Spain.

Meanwhile the Prime Minister refuses to answer all questions concerning the agenda of his Rome talks. He also declines to bind himself to follow any particular policy, insisting on a free hand to further his policy of European appeasement.

Cathedral Musings

When Jesus was born in Bethlehem He was laid in the manger between the ox and the ass. So also, is the Christ within us between the ox of our stupidity and the ass of our self-will, obstinate and stubborn. Before we can become conscious of the Christ this stupidity must be eliminated, for we must seek knowledge of spiritual things. Also must our self-will perish utterly. In this we have the example of the Perfect One, who did not seek his own will, but the will of the Father. For Jesus valued not His humanity, but rested in His Divinity. Neither did He think that in His humanity He was 'good', for He realised, what we have yet to learn, that God only, the source of all good, is alone good and that whatever goodness we may be endowed with, or acquire, is not of us, but of the Father who is within us. It is a fact that the farther we travel along the way, the more we realize our human imperfections. They reveal themselves to us the more clearly we vision the ideal we are striving to attain, a measure of that unity with God that the Master spoke of. So we see that in this also, He is our Example, for we should strive for that unity and with prayer and constant meditation seek to uplift our consciousness so that we may realise the Love of the Most High. In this, there must be, of course no thought of self. We must be as the flowers of the field, which unfold and rest in the warmth and light of the sun and question not the source, or origin of the radiance which gives them life. He who truly loves the Divine Light has no thought as to whether personally, he is of the elect or not, for his love, patterned on the Love which God has for him, is filled with trust and is without fear. As the Psalmist says: Yea, though He slay me, yet will I trust Him. The destructive emotions of mistrust and fear are based on self and self-interest and no man can love God and his own self as well. This may seem a hard saying, but that is so, only because, for the most of us, self is the only thing we know, but those who have glimpsed the Light know that self is a snare and a delusion, the one great cause of the misery and woe of this sorrowful world.

Italian Opportunist Views On Bethlehem

"Bethlehem as viewed by an Italian opportunist," will be the topic of the address in St. Andrew's church Sunday night.

A large number of biographies of Jesus have come from the press within recent times; none of these has quite the same interest as that written by Grovanni Papini, a native of Florence, Italy. If ever a man deserved the name of opportunist, Papini is that man. For more than twenty years he was before the public in many different lights, and as the champion of various and widely different movements. He was the leader of a small band of rebellious spirits, the versatile contributor to a widely read periodical. He dealt with all kinds of problems under the name of Gian Falco. For a time he adopted the positivism of Auguste Comte which made humanity its watchword and denied every form of revealed religion. He was at the same time idealist and bragmatist and carried on both philosophies with evident success.

After this varied career his translator Mary Pritchard Agnette says that love came to him, he retired to a quiet country home, became a Christian and wrote the story of Christ. Over 100,000 copies of his book were sold in Italy and for a while the press could not compete with the demand, an excellent translation in French sold rapidly in Paris, and the English translation has gone around the world.

Oakville Writes Off Disputed Church Taxes

OAKVILLE, Ont., Dec. 17—(CP)—Oakville's town council met in private session last night and apparently decided to "call off" its dispute with St. John's United Church over uncollected taxes.

Rev. D. H. Gallagher, minister of the church, said today he was glad the council had decided to write off the taxes, unpaid since 1935, as "uncollectable." He added: "We certainly prefer that to litigation."

Council met—after excluding the public and press representatives—to consider the question after it was disclosed that through an error St. John's and two other churches had paid illegally assessed local-improvement taxes for 10 years prior to 1935.

That was when St. John's Church officials first discovered the mistake and refused to pay more taxes. A total of $80 was owed by the church, which at one time was put up by the municipality for sale for taxes. Subsequently it was withdrawn from the tax-sale list.

Christmas Boxes Given Shut-ins

HASTINGS, Dec. 17.—The annual meeting of St. Andrew's W. M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. Wm. McEachnie, Front street, on Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Chas. Dodd presided over the devotions and a short program including a Christmas contest and a Bible contest. The roll call was responded to by singing theword "peace or joy."

Boxes were packed as Christmas remembrances to the shut-in members of the society.

Rev. D. K. Perrie then took the chair for the election of officers, which resulted as follows:

President, Mrs. Chas. Dodd; 1st vice-pres., Mrs. Wm. McEachnie; 2nd vice-pres., Mrs. E. Hahn; secretary, Mrs. J. A. Brown; treasurer, Mrs. H. B. Wilson; Glad Tidings secretary, Mrs. Allan Sherwin; Home Helpers' secretary, Mrs. Reta Johnston; supply secretary, Mrs. Wm. West; Literature secretary Mrs. D. K. Perrie; auditors, Mrs. D. K. Perrie and Mrs. Reta Johnston; pianist, Mrs. H. B. Wilson.

Following the meeting a ten cent tea was served, over twenty attending. The proceeds were in aid of the Sunday school.

FREEDOM NOT USED

MELBOURNE — (CP) — Federal Attorney-General Menzies, speaking at the Old Scotch Collegians' Association, said a national spirit was sadly lacking in Australia and although people talked about their glorious freedom they did little to make use of it.

A National Message

By the late Rev. W. Pascoe Goard, LL.D., F.R.G.S., F.R.E.S.

A LOST DOCUMENT FOUND

Let us now seek to identify the modern "nation and company of nations," who are the holders of the bill of divorcement. This is of vital and far reaching consequence.

First let us settle, by the production of unbreakable documents, the fact that it is absolutely impossible that Israel should have ceased to be a nation, distinct and separate from other nations, even from her sister nation, Judah.

We shall here produce one document. It is specific, definite, and is attested and confirmed by oath by the Lord himself.

Thus saith the Lord, which giveth the sun for a light by day, and the ordinances of the moon, and of the stars by night, which divideth the sea when the waves thereof roar; the Lord of Hosts is His name.

If these ordinances depart from before me, saith the Lord, then the seed of Israel also shall cease from being a nation before Me for ever Jer.xxxi, 35-36. There are many other scriptures dealing with this fact.

Therefore, as far as the Bible is concerned, and as far as the God of the Bible is concerned, the Bible and the God of the Bible are wholly committed to the continuity of the separate and distinct nation Israel.

Let us now go a step further and see that such nation shall be not only a nation, but a Kingdom, with a descendent of the house of David upon the throne.

For thus saith the Lord: David shall never want a man to sit upon the throne of the house of Israel. Jer. xxxiii 17.

This helps us greatly in our search.

We therefore narrow our search for Israel down to the limits set biologically for us in the Book of Books.

We seek for white people of Hebrew stock, descendents of the ten tribed nation of Israel, multitudinous, organized as a kingdom among the nations.

Furthermore, the kingdom nation Israel in modern times has all the above indications; but it has also this other sure identification, namely, that he who occupies the throne of Israel, must be, and is directly descened from, and possesses the throne right of the House of David.

Glance now at the nations and see which among them can lay claim under these conditions, to be the holder of the Bill of Divorcement. There is only one throne on earth old enough to qualify; namely the British throne. There is only one House which can qualify, namely the House of David, which occupies that throne.

A hundred other proofs can be, and have been furnished.

The British Kingdom then is the holder of the Bill of Divorcement. When we use the term "British," we use it in its original Bible meaning, which is the "People of the Covenant."

When we speak of the holders of the Bill of Divorcement, we use the phrase in the meaning of the Isiah text, which shows that while the then daughter nation was involved in the divorcement as well as the mother nation, and while the daughter nation shared in the redemption as well as the mother nation, the daughter nation, prior to the coming of "Ye people from afar"—had not the custody of the "Bill of Divorcement." It was then in the possession of "your mother whom I have put away". However it does not matter for the purpose of this enquiry which one of the two parties held the Bill. Both parties were concerned in the Bill, and benefited under the redemption.

Christ's New Commandment — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON — By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Matthew 5:43-48; 22:34-40; Luke 10:25-37; John 13:34, 35; 15:12-14; Galatians 5:13, 14.

Real Christians do not hate even their enemies. They follow Jesus' command to "Love your enemies, do good to them that hate you."

Hearing what Jesus taught, a lawyer, who was a Pharisee, tried to trick Him by asking, "Which is the greater commandment?"

Jesus answered: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind."

And further, loving one another, "Greater love hath no man than this, that he lay down his life for his friends." (GOLDEN TEXT—John 13:34.)

Selling At a Loss

The Food Distributors' Division of the Retail Merchants' Association have decided to ask the provincial government to do something to put an end to "loss leaders" in food stores. "Loss leaders" are special items which have been reduced in price beyond the known laid-down figure, and they are used for the purpose of attracting people to a store in the expectation that when once there they will purchase something on which the store will make a profit. Manitoba already has a law which forbids the sale of any food article at a price less than 5 per cent. above the cost to the retailer. So they want something like that in Ontario.

Always there is that increasing tendency to ask the government to step in and tell people how to run their business. Possibly the farming community would not object if something like that was done on its behalf. At the moment the Ontario farmer can get about 56 cents for a bushel of wheat, 25 to 27 cents for oats and from 32 to 34 cents for barley. A man does not need to be either a farmer or an economist to know grain cannot be sold at that price for a profit. If sold at all it is at a loss. The one and only difference in the two cases is that the merchant with his "loss leader" follows that course deliberately and with a purpose, while the farmer sells at a loss because he cannot help himself.

Too Much Mockery In It

Always is there the wise man who points the way out of difficulty. He has turned up recently in Toronto, the difficulty there being that police threaten to crack down hard on anything which looks like reckless driving or drunk driving particularly on Christmas eve.

So there is a way out by one wise man forming an association of unemployed men who can drive cars, and they will be available to attend to the driving of cars for owners who get well soused and are therefore unable or afraid to try and drive their own cars.

One might contend that it is a better plan than having men try to drive their own cars while drunk, only to get into trouble or fall into the hands of police with the added danger of fines and the impounding of cars. Also it would mean a few dollars to unemployed men.

But right there the good points in the scheme come to a sudden end. They terminate and stay terminated. The idea of considering it necessary to get soused on Christmas eve is so poor that it is poverty stricken to the extent of being in the pauper class. The only reason for the existence of Christmas is that on that day we mark the birth of Christ, an event which took place in surroundings which were humble to the point of being primitive. If it were not for that event we would not be celebrating Christmas at all. That is why it is difficult to find anything commendable in making plans for drunken men to be driven home on Christmas eve. There is too much veiled and open mockery in the whole thing.

When Italy Spends

The Italian government announces in advance it will spend $526,000,000 for military purposes in the next budget year, and that is an increase of $130,000,000 over the last budgeted amount for similar purpose.

Italy is not a wealthy nation as nations are rated; there has been so much spent for armament and the Ethiopian campaign in recent years that there has been a constant drain on the treasury, and Ethiopia is not yet an asset. The new land in two years has called for a direct tax of 17 per cent. on Italy's resources.

But there is no voice raised in Italy to say the new expenditure is not needed; there is no newspaper which dare say the sum is too great for the people to carry. All the newspapers with one accord express approval. They have been instructed what Mussolini wants said and in words which vary only in the matter of selection they all expound the same idea—approval.

Italy in spending $526,000,000 for military purposes will have to depend on the world outside to supply much of what is needed. Within her own boundaries there are metals, but the country has always been short of such basic items as iron ore, coal, oil, nickel, and so on. Such commodities will have to be purchased from world markets, and Britain and United States control most of them. In view of the manner in which war materials have been freely sold it is better to say that Britain and United States contain these articles, for it is not correct to say they control them.

We believe it quite correct to say that when Italy plans to spend $526,000,000 for military purposes she will depend to a great extent on other nations to supply much which she needs. So these other nations which supply needed material will be actually adding strength to a force with which some day they may have to contend.

He Kept His Secret

Strange enough how some people parade through the news columns. Possibly most people have by now forgotten all about Gaston Means, but at the time of the Lindbergh kidnapping case he was much to the front, largely because he put himself there.

It is a strange commentary upon human nature that each such event divided human beings into two classes, (1) those who want to do something useful and right, and (2) those who see in distress the opportunity to do something for themselves.

Gaston Means fitted into that latter class. The Lindbergh case was but a few days old when he approached Mrs. Evelyn Walsh McLean, then the estranged wife of the publisher of the Washington Post. He knew where the baby had been taken; some place in Mexico and for $100,000 he could go and get it because he knew the abductors. The woman foolishly paid him that amount of money, but the Lindbergh child was not found in Mexico, and nothing is known of what became of the $100,000, but the supposition was that most of it if ever paid out by Means came back and went into his own pocket.

Gaston Means died the other day and took his secrets along with him.

Has The Wrong Idea

The Duke of Devonshire, under-secretary for the Dominions in the British government, made an address in which his theme was that the voice of the British Empire would be a greater force in world affairs if it contained more people.

According to his calculation there should be at least 40,000,000 people in Canada. How he arrived at that figure we know not unless it was by the simple process of multiplication. Nor did he say what we would do with 40 million people. But his reason for desiring to have a far greater population in all parts of the Empire was plain enough. He put it thus:

"Battleships, tanks, guns and rifles are no good unless you have men."

It might be suggested to the Duke of Devonshire that he take time out to do a little thinking before he makes any more addresses. In Canada we are not accustomed to thinking of our young and able-bodied men in connection with tanks and rifles and other equipment. Nor do we care to be informed that we should have more population here in order that we might provide more soldiers. When the last war came we gave of our best and we gave freely. The Duke is on the wrong track when he seeks to develop the theory that we should have more population in order that we could provide more soldiers. That is the accepted view in Germany and Italy, but Canada has not subscribed to it and never will.

Taking a Poor Course

Toronto Board of Control and City Council have agreed that only certain newspapers can receive press privileges at the city hall. Full facilities for reporting meetings and obtaining available news will be granted only to papers which are associated in membership with the Canadian Press Association, the Audit Bureau or Circulation and the Canadian Daily Newspaper Association.

That elaborate fence is erected because members of Toronto governing bodies do not like the Daily Clarion, a Labor paper which is said to be communist in its outlook. They do not come out openly and say they will not admit a representative of the paper to the council meetings because council meetings are open to the public, but they go at it in another way and we think a dangerous way.

The Examiner and nearly every other daily paper in the Dominion could qualify as being eligible to secure all available press facilities at Toronto city hall, but lack of these qualifications is not good reason why the non-possessor should not be admitted.

If the same course is logically pursued at other times it would mean that if any of the existing Toronto dailies which are now in the preferred class pursue a course which is offensive to the City Council and Board of Control then some more regulations can be made and the offending newspaper placed in the non-preferred class. In expressing these views the Examiner would make it plain that it does not approve of the Clarion and possibly Toronto could get along splendidly without it, but we cannot see even-handed justice in a policy which seeks to ban the paper from the city hall because it does not possess membership in certain organizations.

Toronto officials have apparently overlooked something else. And it is a matter of quite recent history. Tim Buck, communist, was arrested and sent to prison in Kingston because he was a member of what was then declared to be an unlawful organization. He was little known, but upon his release he returned to Toronto and has since polled a vote in municipal elections which was amazingly and unexpectedly large. The same idea will work with the paper to which officialdom objects. Suppression will put it in the martyr class and possibly that is what the publishers of the Clarion most desire.

Taxing The Churches

A report from Oakville tells about a difference of opinion between the town council and some (if not all) of the churches. The minister of one of the churches advised that there be refusal to pay the taxes on the church property as demanded on the ground that they were illegal. After there had been no payment for three years the church property found its way to the sale-for-taxes list, but it was finally removed from that precarious position.

It is recorded that for ten years prior to 1935 all the churches had been paying taxes on local improvements, such as frontage rates for sidewalks or pavements, etc., and it is now claimed such payment should never have been demanded or made as church property is exempt from taxation.

We admit finding it difficult to understand the report from Oakville as the existing practice there would have to conform to the provisions of the Municipal Act, in which the Assessment Act is incorporated. Section 4 reads:

"All real property in Ontario and all income derived, whether within or without of Ontario, by any corporation or received in Ontario on behalf of any corporation, shall be liable to taxation subject to the following exemptions:

"Every place of worship and land used in connection therewith and every churchyard, cemetery or burying ground."

That description of exemption rights for church property is not quite so emphatic or sweeping as might be taken from the above because the section which deals with payment for local improvements reads this way:

"The exemptions provided for by section 4 shall be subject to the provisions of the Local Improvement Act as to the assessment for local improvements of land, which would otherwise be exempt from such assessment under that section."

That is plain enough. The buildings used by churches are exempt from taxation but when local improvements are made then the land is taxable to the extent of the frontage improvement made to the premises. It operates that way in Peterborough and church property here is expected to pay for local improvements. Just how they are trying to make it appear otherwise in Oakville is something difficult to understand.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Municipal candidates can dig out that "I stand for strict economy in the transaction of public business" and get it ready for a possible campaign.

This is becoming a turkey-raising country, a news item states, and apparently the poultry thieves have already discovered that fact.

We imagine the only objection Premier King has to Mr. Hepburn visiting Australia is that he is only going to stay there two months.

Man in London took his life when told he would have to have all his teeth pulled. We had been hoping that dentists had succeeded in living down their bad reputation.

New York aquarium reports some of the fish there appear to be nervous at times. Probably our lunge and bass feel that way every year after the opening of the fishing season.

German newspaper says Anthony Eden's reputation as being the best dressed man in Britain was his only qualification for entering public life. Which sets one wondering if the people in Germany have a better method.

New York girl is getting married to a man with $14,000,000 and she is referred to as a "glamor girl and a prominent member of New York's Cafe society." Hanged if we know just what that means but it does not sound much like ham and eggs in her own kitchen by her own hands.

PROBLEM

(By A. R. K.)

¶ I like poor friends at Christmas time, for they are really in my line, just humble decent men; for I don't have to think too hard, when making out my Christmas card, on what to get for them.

¶ One man I know he gives me grief, when through with him I feel relief, I check and double check; I haven't settled on him yet, and from my searching all I get is pains across the neck.

¶ Of socks he has three dozen pair, of neckties more than he can wear, he sports a diamond ring; of house coats he has three or four, of tie pins he owns half a score, can't think of anything.

¶ And braces wouldn't do for him, he's always dressed up right and trim, got lots of slippers too; can't send him handkerchiefs I know, for he has more than he can blow, I don't know what to do.

¶ I can't send him a chunk of cheese, or yet a case of corn or peas, for he's got lots to eat; I cannot send him gloves or hats, nor pick a pair of fancy spats, to wrap around his feet.

¶ For shopping is a pleasant sport, for people of the humble sort, it's like a day in spring; but I get crooked like and bent, when I try shopping for a gent—when he has everything.

To The Editor

CHRISTMAS BASKETS

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—There are many people who may not have been attending church for the last Sunday or two and who may not know that the churches of Peterborough are quietly and with little publicity assisting the out of work and unfortunate by providing Christmas baskets.

Besides the lengthy list of families supplied by the city relief office the clergy and ministers add to the list many names of those who are not yet on relief who are in one way or another frequently worse off than those who are being assisted by the city and township relief offices. When people realize the big burden which naturally falls most heavily on those churches which are not financially well off they will readily see to it that the ministers and church committees who are carrying the load and doing the work do not go short of the money to pay the bills.

An average Christmas basket costs between $3.00 and $3.50 and your own minister will welcome your early co-operation.

Yours for,
A MERRY CHRISTMAS.

• Ottawa Calling Queen's Park

A SUPPOSED telephone conversation which grew in the mind of "Hank" is reported in the columns of the St. Thomas Times-Journal:

Premier Hepburn is sitting in his office at Queen's Park when telephone buzzer buzzes.

Mitch—"Yes."

Operator—"Ottawa is calling Prime Minister Hebburn."

Mitch—"Ottawa! Where's that?"

Operator—"Ottawa, Canada, is calling."

Mitch—"Ottawa, Canada? Oh, yes, I remember now — that's where there's supposed to be a federal government."

Operator—"Are you Mr. Hebburn?"

Mitch—"Hepburn's the name, sister....Hep and burn."

Operator—"Will you take the call, Mr. Hepandburn?"

Mitch—"Just call me Mitch, sister, if it will make it any easier for you."

Operator—"Will you take the call, Mitch?"

Mitch—"Why not—wait a minute? Is it collect?"

Operator—"Hold it please!" Business of waiting. "Party on the other end of the line says he will pay."

Mitch—"That's a novelty; having somebody at Ottawa doing the paying....All right, sister, put him on."

Operator—"Just a minute, please. Hello, Ottawa, HELLO OTTAWA! Ottawa, are you asleep? Hello—Oh, here's Mr. Hepandburn for you, Ottawa—All right, Mitch, there's your party."

Voice on Other End of the Line—"Hello; Is that you Mister Prime Minister?"

Mitch—"Why all the formality? This is Mitch Hepburn—who's calling?"

Voice on Other End of Wire—"This is Prime Minister King speaking."

Mitch—"Who?"

Voice on Other End of Wire—"W. L. Mackenzie King—you've heard of me, haven't you?"

Mitch—"King? King? Oh, yes, I remember now—you've got something to do with the government down there haven't you?"

Voice on Other End of Wire—"I'm head of the Dominion Government, I'll have you know, sir."

Mitch—"Do tell! Well, what have you been doing during the last three or four years?"

Voice on Other End of Wire—"What's that, sir?"

Mitch—"I say, your voice seems to be coming out of the past — where you speaking from, Kingsmere?"

Voice on Other End of Wire—"No; I'm right here in my office in the parliament buildings?"

Mitch—"There seems to be a lot of static on the line—what's that noise I hear?"

Voice on Other End of Wire—"That's Norman Rogers and Clarence Howe talking."

Mitch—"Rogers and Howe, eh! What is this, another foul conspiracy?"

Voice on Other End of Wire—"No; we just called you up to wish you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year."

Mitch—"Oh, another peace overture! Goodbye—and don't forget to pay for this call."

Business of slamming up the receiver.

• Strange Cases Heard In Court

SOME STRANGE highlights on human nature come out in court cases. From London, Ont., comes the report of a case which was heard by Judge Wearing, formerly of Peterborough:

A London widow went onto the county court witness stand to tell Judge Wearing all about the two years she says she was courted by "a fast worker." The judge heard about the laundry the widow did, the Sunday meals she cooked when the boy friend got tired of boarding house fare and the gifts the two exchanged.

The result of it all is that the widow, Mrs. Gwendoline Harris, is to get $112 and costs from Henry Ernest Hastings, a London brewery worker. The two consented to a judgment part way through the trial.

The money is to pay medical bills. Nothing was provided for the laundry, nor for the furniture she got from him.

The widow said her husband died in July, 1935, and before the fall, Hastings "called me on the telephone and asked me to keep company with him." She said she didn't go out with him for two or three months after that.

She says when she got ill, he promised to pay doctor and hospital bills. He counterclaimed for some furniture which he valued at $300, including a bed, dressers, and a 14-tube radio.

She told Defense Connsel W. B. Henderson, K.C., that Hastings gave her that furniture.

"Why you hardly knew the man then," said the lawyer.

"He was a fast worker," the widow said.

Then she said she did laundry for him and wanted $156 for it. Mr. Henderson suggested the furniture might balance the laundry account. The widow wouldn't agree.

She bought lots of things for him, she said, such as shirts, ties, underwear, and once a lighter with his name engraved on it.

"He was sick of boarding house meals, so I gave him his meals every Sunday."

They were going to be married, the widow said. Two or three months after she met him, she found out he was married, but there was talk of divorce.

She said he bought her a coat that cost $58 or $68, with the exception of the $10 down payment, and that he also bought her dresses. The cost was a Christmas gift.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

NOW as he walked by the sea of Galilee, he saw Simon and Andrew his brother casting a net into the sea: for they were fishers. And Jesus said unto them, Come ye after me, and I will make you to become fishers of men. And straightway they forsook their nets and followed him....

And they went into Capernaum; and straightway on the sabbath day he entered into the synagogue, and taught. And they were astonished at his doctrine: for he taught them as one that had authority, and not as the scribes.

And there was in their synagogue a man with an unclean spirit; and he cried out, saying, Let us alone; what have we to do with thee, thou Jesus of Nazareth? art thou come to destroy us? I know thee who thou art, the Holy One of God. And Jesus rebuked him, saying, Hold thy peace, and come out of him.

And when the unclean spirit had torn him, and cried with a loud voice, he came out of him. And they were all amazed, insomuch that they questioned among themselves, saying, What thing is this? what new doctrine is this? for with authority commandeth he even the unclean spirits, and they do obey him. And immediately his fame spread abroad throughout all the region round about Galilee.—Mark 1, 16-18, 21-28.

A GIFT FOR HIM.

(Neal O'Hara, in New York Post)

LADY, DEAR, if you're gonna buy your husband a Christmas gift, be advised that a coast-to-coast survey of 2,000 adults shows that only one case in 1,000 will handkerchiefs be the most exciting gift for him, the chances are only five in 1,000 that hosiery will ring the bell and it's only ten chances in 1,000 that a necktie will make him swoon when he opens that package.

PECULIAR PHOBIAS.

(Kitchener Record)

PROBABLY a great many of us are suffering from a mild form of insanity if we consider the phobias that obsess many persons in one form or another.

For instance, says W. L. Clark in the Windsor Star, some persons write an important letter and have it sealed and stamped, ready for posting. But they fear they have put the letter in the wrong envelope, or they have not signed it, or have failed to insert an enclosure, and they open the sealed letter to find their fears were groundless.

Chemists sometimes fill a prescription and after the person gets it, the chemist is all in a dither because he fears he has put poison instead of something else in the medicine.

Doctors sometimes operate and sew up the wound and then are obsessed with the idea they have left some instrument inside the patient.

Business men sometimes go to safety deposit boxes and after the bank is closed they get the phobia that they have left their documents strewn all over the bank floor.

And then there are those individuals who try the door a half dozen times to make sure it is locked, or make two or three trips to the cellar to satisfy themselves as to the furnace being properly checked before retiring for the night.

These are all strange fears. Practically everyone has them or knows someone who has been obsessed by the phobias. Doctors claim it is a form of insanity. At that rate very few people are 100 per cent sane.

Pay Sanctioned Commission By Town Council

HASTINGS, Dec. 17. — Town Council sanctioned a request from the Hastings Hydro Board Thursday night asking them to pass a motion authorizing the board to pay salaries to members. The request called for a salary of $24 to two regular members and $30 for the chairman. Salaries are yearly, for twelve regular meetings.

In his address to the council, Reeve Lewis E. Kelly, also a member of the Hydro Board, said the board unanimously felt it should have something for its services. "I found out it was no senator's job," he said as he told of extra meetings and work in connection with the Hydro Commission. "I think the people expect a man to get pay for what he does. Salaries will be paid from Hydro funds and have nothing to do with the town treasury," he added.

The majority of the council seemed of the opinion that a move of this type would not be in the best interests of the council as it was the final meeting of the year. They maintained that the request should have been presented earlier in the year, since the request called for payment of salaries for the year 1938. Sanction was given on motion of I. Bond and S. Stevenson.

Report On Fires.

A report on 1938 fires was presented by Fire Chief Fred Dodd. On the list was one major fire at the United Church and a series of grass and chimney fires of minor importance. His report was accepted on motion of C. Lynch and I. Bond.

Constable W. Wellman, in his report on dog taxes and poll taxes, revealed that $3 remains to be paid for poll tax. By Saturday, he expects to have collected $35 for the year. Three owners have failed to pay dog taxes, he said. About $100 will be collected this season for dogs. At bit of humor was injected into his report when he revealed that a dog reported dead by its owner now has a litter of pups and is still without a tag.

Bylaw 781 appointing deputy returning officers and poll clerks in the event of an election was given its several readings.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, December 18

SUNDAY'S horoscope is a very interesting and intriguing one, with much of a devastating nature forecast in both the private and business associations. It spells upheaval and surprising and perplexing adventures, with probably a tinge of the romantic and dramatic. Affairs of social and emotional incitement call for new environs, arranged probably by secrecy or subtlety.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of thrilling adventure, with sudden change, dramatic experiences and devastating reaction in business and in the social and sentimental life. Unpredictable events demand change.

A child born on this day may be romantic, adventurous and audacious, as well as being fond of change, thrills and the romantic. It may also love intrigue.

For Monday, December 19

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for a lively and expansive day. At the same time, there is prospect of much conflict or adversity. There may be setbacks and hazards in finances through unwise or speculative maneuvers. But new contracts are under benefic sway, and friends and employers should be helpful.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a year of contradictions. Much may be gained through new contracts and advantageous change or travel, but not without disappointment or some form of frustration or obstruction. Much depends on acumen, good judgment and the help of friends. Be very careful in speculation and all manner of chances or gambles.

A child born on this day may be energetic, versatile and ambitious, gaining the recognition of those in position or power. It may be assisted over difficult places and depressions by friendly co-operation.

CHAPTER 28

THe TUESDAY morning papers, which necessarily went to press about 2 a. m., when vitality is lowest, carried the information that Dr. Thornton Holgate was sinking.

But the early edition of the Tuesday afternoon papers carried an encouraging note. The Chronicle, for instance, had little other early-day news, and so gave the matter a banner line:

RICE PROFESSOR GAINING
New Hope Held for Recovery of Holgate

The noon edition of The Press went even farther, declaring that the professor was rational, and was even taking nourishment, and quoting physicians as saying his prompt recovery was almost certain. The head injury, which might have gone either way during the first 30 hours or so, responded to expert treatment so that he passed the crisis satisfactorily, physicians agreed.

At 4 p. m. the registrar's office posted a typed notation on the cloister bulletin board:

"It is a pleasure to announce that Dr. Thornton Holgate, injured Sunday at Galveston, now is reported definitely recovering. This information has come direct from his attending physicians."

If anybody had bothered to analyze the episode, it would have been noted that Dr. Holgate's adventure had perhaps undue attention. That is, he was not a celebrity, or anything of the sort; he had merely saved a couple of lives, and almost lost his own. In the big routine of international news day by day, this was not outstanding.

But it had come at a time when other news was rather slack. And it had had just enough of the human element—a little child, a mother, a scholarly professor, the daughter of a rich man—to interest a great many people. The editors were astute in giving the story considerable play.

"Summers!" yelled Emmett Walters, Chronicle city editor, on Wednesday morning. "Slip out to Rice and see if you can round up any more stuff on Holgate. Our kid correspondent out there might miss a few bets."

Summers is The Chronicle's top man. Not only the star reporter, but the ace investigator and good-will builder, whose discretion often is worth thousands of dollars in the paper's till. He works more or less ad lib.

But Summers didn't find anything new on Holgate, except that the man's popularity was of course, mounting. But Summers, ever alert, did come back with a recommendation for a Sunday feature article. He did a little raving about the principal character to his boss.

"Thought you were a married man," Walters probed. "Why are you so sold on this woman? A red-headed widow at that!"

"I am married. And have a child. And love my wife. But I'm not blind, personally or professionally. That widow Davis has all of Rice wrapped up in a bag."

"Okay, take Jess Gibson out and shoot the works," Walters ordered Gibson was the staff photographer. The order meant that one of the best newspaper feature teams in Texas was turned loose on a new story. Editor Walters knew his Sunday paper would sparkle on at least one page. It wasn't the first time Summers had been sent out on one story, and brought back a different and better one.

The interview with Sara Sue Davis was, of course, pleasant.

To begin with, poor Jess Gibson went mildly berserk. He saw instantly that Sara Sue was photogenic. He had brought, as customary on such trips, two dozen cut films, in holders. He expected, as customary, to use perhaps two or three of them. But after two hours of it, he grinned a little sheepishly and admitted that he was through now. "I haven't any more negatives, Mrs. Davis," he apologized, quite unnecessarily.

He had pictures of her at her desk, on her front porch, in her garden, in an apron in her kitchen. He had closeups of her face. He had profile studies. He had angle shots—lying flat on the grass for two good views. He snapped her serving a tennis ball. He caught her standing beside the sign in front of her cottage. He wanted a bathing suit view of Sara Sue and lacked the nerve to ask for it, but Summers, being a reporter, supplied the nerve. Graciously, Sara Sue complied, changing in five minutes and appearing in last season's swim suit. Jess snapped her by squatting on the ground, with Sara Sue on a corner of her back porch. "We'll paint in a springboard, and I can fake in a pretty lake scene I already have," he explained. Sara Sue smiled at him.

Meanwhile, of course, Summers had been talking; or making her talk. He knew how to interview people and he made interesting conversation with an interesting girl. All told, he not only had a delightful morning, but he had a delightful story as well.

"It seems to me that I'd better become just a bit personal, Mrs. Davis," he was saying, when Gibson finished shooting. "You have spoken enthusiastically of love counsel, as a profession. You have spoken, wisely I think, of the importance of love as a consideration for collegians. May I ask now—are you in love yourself?"

It was a flat, open question. Summers eyed her keenly.

"Maybe," she paried.

"Fine! And—with whom?"

A reporter can seldon do any harm asking polite questions; often he learns a lot.

"That's a secret. It—it wouldn't interest the public anyway, I imagine."

"I disagree, but then it's a secret if you say so, Mrs. Davis. And still—what do you think of Bob Towne, the football star?"

Sara Sue laughed. "It isn't he. I was just joking, really. I like Bob, though."

"Ahem. I have learned, also, Mrs. Davis, that a Mr. Gurley and a Mr. Sanders, and several other young men—not that I blame them—are, shall we say, attentive? You see, your affairs are the subject of some campus discussion, and—"

She smiled again at that.

"Yes, I know. I can't help it. The answer still is no."

"Um. Mrs. Davis, why did you go to Galveston Sunday night?"

He could have fired a pistol, or struck her with his hand, or shouted Boo. But he wouldn't have startled her any more than he did with his snap question.

She stood looking up at him—Summers is a tall man, a clean-cut, likeable man—and bit her lip in some confusion.

"Mr. Summers," she said, after several seconds, "I like your paper very much. I have enjoyed talking with you, too. I want to continue liking you both. I also want to compliment you—on your alertness, and—and everything. Mr. Summers, have you—ever been in love?"

It was his turn to look a bit surprised now.

"Why—yes!"

"Very deeply? Very, very deeply?"

"Um. Surely. My wife is—well, she—"

"She is wonderful. Glorious. I can see it, Mr. Summers. You are that kind of man. Your love was an exalting thing, and probably still is. Almost—divine!" Sara Sue barely whispered the last word.

The tall reporter looked at her for several seconds. He nodded.

Then he quietly turned away, picked up his hat, and spoke to the photographer who was waiting. Gibson took his cameras on to the car, leaving them alone.

"If you want any of the pictures, you can have them, ma'am," Summers said, then. "If you want to see the manuscript I write—and this is an unusual offer—I will bring it out. In fact—Mrs. Davis, if you ever want anything out of The Chronicle, you just telephone me!"

She smiled her gratitude.

"Thank you. I knew you'd understand. Understand that I have a lot of secrets I can't reveal. After all, I advertised counsel in romance. When one of my—clients—needs my advice, or asks for it, I must act."

Summers WAS confused now.

He had thought that he had put two and two together, to get an unspoken four. But—well, there's never any understanding women.

He bowed his thanks again and went away.

Goodnight Story

By MAX TRELL

KNARF and Hanid were very pleased the other night to find Mr. Punch and his wife, Judy, sitting in the playroom. Both of them were puppets— they often played in little puppet-shows for the amusement of the children.

"Sit down; make yourselves comfortable," Mr. Punch said gaily to Knarf and Hanid. "Take the soft chairs—they're the best."

"Nonsense," said Judy.

"Nonsense, my dear? Why do you say nonsense?" Mr. Punch inquired. "I don't see anything nonsensical about asking our good friends, Knarf and Hanid, to sit in the nice soft chairs."

Knarf and Hanid wondered, too.

Are No Soft Chairs

"Of course it's nonsense," said Judy. "There aren't any soft chairs for them to sit in. You'd better sit on the floor," she told the two shadows. "Try to make yourselves as comfortable as you can."

Mr. Punch laughed. "Well, if there had been soft chairs, you could have sat in them. Are you hungry?" he asked at the next moment.

The two shadows shook their heads. "We had a very big dinner," Hanid said.

"But you'd like some nice cookies, wouldn't you—crisp almond cookies with apple jelly?

"Well, down in our pantry," he continued, "in a large china pot with a cover on it there are—"

"Nonsense!" said Judy suddenly. "There isn't a cookie in the house. You ate the last crumb for breakfast this morning."

Wrong Again

Mr. Punch sighed. "You see, there aren't any. But if there had been

"Take the soft chairs."

I'm sure you would have enjoyed eating them."

"Oh! that's all right, Mr. Punch," said Knarf. "We really didn't want any—much."

Mr. Punch felt happy again. "Do you know," he said, "Judy is one of the smartest persons in the world. She never lets me say anything that isn't exactly right. You might think I'd get insulted," Mr. Punch went on. "But not me—no sir. I don't like to say things that aren't true. Why! goodness knows what sort of silly things I might say! But Judy always stops me. Judy's the smartest, the cleverest, the nicest, the—"

"Nonsense, Mr. Punch!" Judy broke in sharply. "You're saying the silliest things again!" But this time Knarf and Hanid could see that she was smiling even though she didn't lift her head from her darning.

Defence Service Low In Men For Air Courses

LONDON, Dec. 17.—(CP-Havas)—A detailed picture of Great Britain's armed manpower and defence needs, particularly in the air service, was given the House of Lords Thursday by the Earl of Birkenhead, parliamentary secretary to the foreign secretary.

Asked by Lord Strabolgi, Labor during debate on the projected voluntary national service, the precise information regarding the needs of the defence services, Lord Birkenhead gave the following figures for the regular Royal Air Force, as of Dec. 3:

	Required	Recruited
Pilots	2,100	1,300
Observers	550	396
Mechanics and Specialists	26,000	18,000
Apprentices	3,000	2,167

While describing the general situation as satisfacory, Lord Birkenhead said there was a distinct lag in the recruiting of certain specialists, particularly radio operators. Although there has been some reinforcement, 2,000 additional volunteers were needed for the 19 existing auxiliary squadrons.

Lord Birkenhead said 70 per cent of the personnel needed to man the 10 balloon squadrons to serve as an aerial barrage around London had been recruited.

More than 2,000 pilots for the volunteer reserve air force are under training in 30 schools, with three more soon to be opened. Enlistments are progressing satisfactory, but the recruiting campaign is to be intensified.

Army Undermanned.

Their lordships were told that the regular army had 201,138 men as of December 1, representing a 20,524 deficit from the objective of 221,662. At that time there were 31,068 officers and men in the reserves, as against a normal reserve strength of 56,396. The territorial army was 23,800 men below its normal strength of 223,800. However, this lag was considered comparatively negligible, inasmuch as the territorial army's planned full strength had recently been increased.

Turning to the navy, Lord Birkenhead said the fleet's manpower, fixed at 95,000 when Britain embarked on her rearmament program, now stood at 119,000. There was no dearth of volunteers but a particular effort would be made early next year to increase the enlistment of specialists, particularly for the fleet air arm.

He pointed out that five aircraft carriers are under construction, in addition to the seven already in service. Every British battleship and cruiser carries at least one plane. The government spokesman explained that the recruiting campaign will concentrate on the enlistment of men between the ages of 17 and 28 who are willing to undertake a seven-year service.

Women Answer Readily

Lord Birkenhead gave the following figures to illustrate the progress achieved by October 31 in building up the strength of the air raids precautious service, the passive wing of Britain's anti-aircraft defence:

Men needed, 582,000; men enrolled, 564,295; women needed, 330,000 women enrolled 330,267. There was still a big gap, however, in requirements for auxiliary firemen. Between 75,000 and 100,000 had volunteered whereas 300,000 were needed.

Lord Strabolgi, declaring himself in favor of the voluntary service plan, expressed his gratification over what "seems to be some hardening of the government's foreign policy."

Lord Birkenhead assured the house there was nothing "Machiavellian" behind the government's plans and listed its recruiting aims as:

11. To enlist and enroll for immediate training all volunteers necessary to fill the gaps in the defence services.

"2. To lay the basis for sane and ordered recruiting in time of emergency.

"3. To prepare the necessary machine for a complete national register were an emergency to arise."

L. B. Pollock Wins Silver Fox Award

TORONTO, Dec. 17.—(CP)—L. B. Pollock won the grand championship award in silver foxes as the fifth annual Ontario Farmers' four-day pelt show neared an end last night. The Keswick, Ont., breeder also took the reserve grand championship and four other championships and three reserve titles.

The Sunglo Cup, awarded to the breeder with the highest aggregate score in open classes, was won by O. W. Thompson of Kitchener, one of the largest of Ontario's 1,700 breeders and president of the Ontario Fur Farmers' Association. The Sunglo Cup was awarded by a Summerside, P.E.I. fox food firm.

Pollock also displayed the champion adult silver fox pelt, winning a cup donated by the Ontario government, the champion puppy fox pelt; the best half silver pelt and the best pale pelt. He also won reserve championships in the adult fox class; the three-quarter silver fox and the pale fox class.

W. H. Schaefer, Kitchener, showed the best pair of matched extra pale fox pelts and the best three-quarter silver puppy class pelt. He also won the cup, one of 15 awarded during the show, for the best six pelts from foxes born in 1937, the get of one sire. Schaefer added to his winnngs with the cup for the best two pelts from foxes born in 1938, the produce of one dam.

The grand champion mink pelt was displayed by Martin and Stevens, St. Marys, Ont., mink breeders. A cup donated by the Ontario government went with the grand championship. The St. Mary's firm also won the championship in the young male pelt class. Reserve championships in both classes were won by Lloyd Stiff, Toronto.

Collegiate Notes

Hockey

P.C.I.'s idea to enter a team in the Junior City League as they did last year, seems to have fallen through. And for just one reason. There is not going to be a Junior City League operated in Peterborough this year. However, it is definitely a good bet that the Garnet and Grey will be in there battling in the Senior Interscholastic group. While it doesn't look as though there will be a C.O.S.S.A. group formed in these parts, P.C.I. will get a bye into the tournament that is held each year in the Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto. There is not sufficient interest in the neighbouring towns—Bowmanville, Oshawa, etc. to form what would have been a Lakeshore Group, similar to that in basketball and rugby, but there may be an eastern league including Belleville, Trenton, etc. and P.C.I. would likely be called upon to play them before making the jaunt to Toronto. Now, it may occur to you that P.C.I. would be sadly out of practice by the time this tournament rolled around, having no league here to play in, but that is not strictly correct. Here's why. A goodly portion of the prospective Garnet and Grey team will doubtlessly be playing for the local Junior O.H.A. team and would thereby get their practice. And to round off the team work, P.C.I. could schedule exhibition games with Grove School, Trinity College of Port Hope, etc. This idea seems to be catching on around the Alma Mater and we think it well worthy of your support.

Christmas Cards.

A couple of weeks back we were forced to relate that the advance orders of School Christmas cards were far and away below that of other years. Also that in order to get the cards at the given price (6c per card) the Company had to receive an order of not less than 2,000 cards. Well, the lists were passed around again shortly after that time and apparently a sufficiently large order was received. We understand that the number of cards ordered was something like 2,800 which while in excess of the necessary number was far short of other years. The garnet was changed to a little deeper shade, as promised and form representatives were busily engaged in distributing the cards on Thursday and Friday of this week. In our opinion this sharp decrease is not exactly noteworthy. Perhaps the cards were not as good as other years, or maybe 'Frankenstein and Dracula' got the student body's s[illegible] cash. Who can tell? Why, didn't we buy a card ourself?

Camera Club.

Mr. Henry has made good his promise of giving us a motion picture each and every week, and on Tuesday the third in this series was presented in the morning assembly. This one, entitled "From Sea to Sea" was perhaps the best of the trio. It showed glimpses of Canada from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Flashes of the principle cities, etc. and etc. and was interesting to say the least. May this continue. The Camera Club held their regular meeting on Wednesday and this week's feature was a talk on 'Chemistry in Photography' by our rival correspondent, Hugh Kenner. The Camera Club is also aiding in the distribution of Xmas cards, which arrived the latter part of this week.

Basketball.

Both the Senior and Junior boys basketball teams have been working hard the last couple of weeks, but practices have had to be called off until after the holidays because the gymnasium is being decorated for the "At Home". As we have remarked before all three teams of the Garnet and Grey have a good chance to finish in the money in the oncoming season. The Senior Girls' team has been working out for some time now, under the direction of Miss Brisbin. Mr. Craig and Mr. Bamforth will probably coach the Junior and Senior boys' teams as they have done for the last few years. There is a possibility of Mr. David lending a hand with either or both of the teams, too. Mr. David it was learned was a Senior Intercollegiate player himself, when he attended College, not so long ago. The likely opening date for the teams will be January 13, and the opposition may be Lindsay. In the last few years P.C.I. has seldom failed to have at least one team in the tournament in Toronto. In 1935 the Senior Girls won the championship for the old school and only last year Mr. Bamforth's Garnet and Grey Seniors won the C.O.S.S.A. title in Toronto. Three years out of the last four a P.C.I. junior team has been in the finals of the C.O...A. However they have been usually beaten by the Niagara Falls district representatives. This year though might just be their year to beat all and sundry and come home with a championship for you and our P.C.V.S. We shall see.

Dramatic Club.

P.C.I.'s Dramatic Club under the direction of Mr. Hale seems to be coming along fine. They are practicing regularly each week, usually on Thursdays and hope to be able to show their progress to the school soon. Up until now, they have been studying, chiefly, the details of acting, voice and expression. It is their wish and their idea to present a play later on in the year. Probably in the spring of '39. This is a new idea in the school, and a good one, and deserves to go places. Let's hope so.

The 400.

Plans for this year's big social event of any year, the annual 'At Home' are going right ahead at this point. The date for this year is set at Wednesday, December 28th. The invitations have already been sent out, or are in the process right now, and everything points to a bigger and better 'At Home'. The orchestra, which has been somewhat of a question mark up to this point has definitely been announced as Jerry Whooll and his band. This orchestra is well known and well-liked locally and should go over allright. The gymnasium is being decorated now under the directions of Miss Thompson, Mr. Cornell and Jim Harvey. We understand that a new plan in decorations is being tried but were unable to learn the details for you. However it promises to be a big, big night in the school calander, Yowsah, yowsah!

Glee Club.

The Glee Club, another of the school organizations is moving right ahead. Practicing every week. They have no definite plans but wish to co-operate in any way they can with school activities. Or, perhaps put on a show of their own later on. This is under the direction of Miss Weddell, as we have probably mentioned before. They are anxious for a larger turnout, but, as this group is confined to girls and anyway we haven't half the voice of the third monkey in the famed 'Hear no evil, See no evil, Speak no evil Trio' we'll have to abstain from offering our vocal support. Though we're with this worthy group, morally.

Dots 'N Dashes

The old school is getting a new coat of paint . . . or at least the old half of the old school . . . The newer section being done last year . . . You have to truck on down to get around the ladders and tarpaulins in the halls, right now . . . A lot of P.C.I.'s forgotten heroes are coming back to fame right soon . . . We mean of course the late Gallopin' Garnet and Grey Ghosts of football fame . . . Quite a number of football players also dabble with the hoop sport . . . The Student's Council has gone to, or will go to, the Property Commission of the School Board about the proposed new rink . . . Chances look OK rightnow . . . Don't be too surprised if the school comes up with a couple of basketball winnahs . . . We warned you . . . Contributions, literary and art, are pouring in for the Echoes . . . Have not heard the basketball groupings as yet . . . No more gym classes this year . . . As the gym is being decorated for the 'A Home' . . . Wonder where we can get that 6c for the Christmas Card?

Municipal Slate Is Planned By Belmont Organization

HAVELOCK, Dec. 16—(Special).—A rigid program of economy in the administration of Belmont and Methuen township affairs is said to be the slogan of the People's Progressive Municipal Association formed recently in Havelock. The association is planning to place a slate of officers before the electors when the regular nominations are held a week from next Monday.

Slate Named.

Last Tuesday evening the Association held a meeting in a Havelock hotel and the following names were put forward as a tentative slate for Belmont and Methuen township council: C. H. Steenburgh, reeve; Eugene McLaughlin, Charles McConnel, George Newton, Tom Bannon, councillors. Joseph Johnson, former reeve, was in the chair during the meeting.

Last night the Belmont council wound up the business for the year at the last regular meeting and were treated to an oyster supper by Reeve William Griffiths at the Armstrong hotel. All of the municipal officers were on hand besides members of the township council and a few members of the Havelock town council.

After the dinner several of the members made brief speeches and voiced their plans for 1939. The members extended thanks to Reeve Griffiths for the able leadership he gave the Council, and he in turn paid tribute to the councillors and to the municipal officers, particularly the treasurer and collector.

To Contest Reeveship.

Isaac Anderson, the younger member of the township council in point of age but the oldest perhaps in point of service, having at least seven years in the council saddle, declared he would run for Reeve in the forthcoming election. Reeve Griffiths also said he would seek re-election, and he extended good wishes to his youthful opponent.

Joseph McNeeley, Frank Sophia, both councillors last year, are in the ring again according to statements made following the supper. Don Plunkett, the other councillor, is undecided at the present time on whether or not to stand again.

DOROTHY DIX

Man Expects Too Much of a Woman After He Marries Her And Is Sorely Disappointed Because a Wife Does Not Have At Least Twenty Personalities To Suit His Varying Moods.

DEAR MISS DIX—Men are what women marry. Men are divided into three classes: Husbands, bachelors and widowers. A bachelor is a man whose mind is filled with obstinacy and whose soul is filled with suspicion. Husbands are of three varieties: Prizes, surprises and consolation prizes. Making a husband out of a man is one of the highest arts known to civilization. It requires science, patience, persistence, faith, hope and charity. If a woman flatters a man, she frightens him to death. If she doesn't, she bores him to extinction. If she permits him to make love to her, he gets tired of her in the end. And if she doesn't, he gets tired of her in the beginning. If she believes all he tells her, he thinks she is foolish. And if she doesn't, he thinks her a cynic. If she wears gay colors, rouge, lipstick and a startling hat, he hesitates to take her out. If she wears a little brown turban and a tailor-made suit, he takes her out and stares all evening at a woman in gay colors who is painted up like a barn door and wears a hat that hits you in the eye. If a girl is a good fellow and drinks and smokes with a man, he says she is leading him on to destruction. If she doesn't, he calls her a flat tire. If a girl is a clinging vine, he considers her a nitwit. And if she is modern and hard-boiled and able to hold down a good job, he accuses her of having no heart. If she is silly, he longs for an intellectual companion. And if she is brilliant, he craves a playmate. Most men are like worms in the grass—they wriggle around a while, then some chicken grabs them. So what?—G. W. A.

ANSWER:

This clever analysis of his sex is made by a man and it should explain several things that have kept women guessing through the ages, and have given them a perpetual headache.

First, it explains why women find it so hard to catch husbands. It is because men are not satisfied with just one wife. They want twenty different kinds of wives, but they don't want to have to support a harem. They want all these different types of ladies consolidated in one single human female. They want a wife who can double in string and wind and play the drum with their feet. Few women are that versatile.

For, alas, it is only too sadly true that it is not enough for any woman to carry any line of standard charms and virtues with which to appeal to the fickle masculine fancy. Because, no matter what role she essays, she is damned if she does and damned if she doesn't. And so what is a poor girl to do? No wonder so many young women quit wearing themselves out trying to guess the insoluble riddle of what men really like in women and espouse careers instead of men.

For another thing, this frank estimate of his fellow men by a man explains why so many women fail to give satisfaction as wives. They can't, because their husbands married them for one thing and then expected them to be something else as soon as the marriage ceremony is over. A man marries a girl because of her glamour, for instance, and he expects her to turn into a good scrubwoman as soon as he gets her home. Or he married a girl because she was so quiet and domestic and he is dissatisfied with her because she doesn't scintillate. Or he marries a spender and berates her because she isn't a penny-pincher.

The solution of the mystery seems to be that men are still polygamous at heart and it takes a wide variety of feminine talent to satisfy them.

❖ ❖ ❖

DEAR MISS DIX—I am engaged to a girl with whom I am very much in love. She is the only child of a widow and her mother's whole life revolves around her. Her mother takes her breakfast to her in bed and never permits her to do any work at all, not even wipe a dish, but waits on her hand and foot. Now I am a poor young chap just getting a start and I won't be able to afford to give my wife a servant, or for her to do nothing but groom herself and wear pretty clothes. Do you think I will be able to make her happy enough so that she won't miss her mother's indulgence? I intend to be very kind to her, but I probably won't be quite as good to her as her mother is.—DALE.

ANSWER:

Of all the poor choices of a wife that a man can possibly make the worst is a girl who is her mother's spoiled darling. She is absolutely unfitted for the give and take of marriage and for assuming the responsibilities, and making the sacrifices that it requires. All of her life the girl has been pampered and indulged and petted and made to feel that she is the centre of the universe; that her pleasures and her wishes are to be considered before anybody else's, and that the whole world must do her bidding.

Utter selfishness has been bred in her bones and cultivated in every fiber of her being. It is so much a part of her that it can never be eradicated. She doesn't even know she is selfish, because she has been brought up to think that she has a right to the best of everything; that she should have fine clothes while others wear their old ones; that she should be idle while others work.

No man can enslave himself to his wife as a mother does to her daughter. No man wants a wife who is not willing to do her share of the adjusting of a couple to each other in marriage. Or who will not do her part in the work of building up a home. But when he marries one of these spoiled brats she considers herself ill-used and goes back to Mother whenever he expects her to act like an adult human being.

❖ ❖ ❖

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—During my first two years at college I made a brilliant record as a student, but now I have fallen so much in love with a girl that I can't put my mind and my work and my grades have sunk to nothing. I am now studying law, but my mind is so distraught by my love that I don't expect to last out my freshman year. What shall I do?—WORRIED.

ANSWER:

"My only books were women's looks and folly is all they have taught me," says the old poem. That seems to be about your fix, and my serious advice is to go to some alienist and have your head examined. Surely you must be crazy to let a case of calf love wreck your whole life.

"Open House" Is Held By School

"What fun children must have in school nowadays," was the remark one visitor made as she was shown through the class rooms of the Queen Mary school during its "open house" on Thursday afternoon, and her feeling was shared by the many others who viewed the class rooms in holiday dress.

The originality of the children had been allowed full sway in the planning of Yuletide decorations for their school room, and the results were indeed worthy of their very evident pride. A Christmas tree decked with tinsel and gaily colored motifs made by the children stood in almost every class room. In the junior rooms sand-tables had been converted into miniatures of the children's conception of Christmas. In one room Santa Claus was shown as he entered his home at the North Pole. Made of castle-like proportions, it was white as the sparkling snow surrounding it, with doors and windows of bright red. His reindeer grazed on the front lawn, and his two-seated wooden sled, also of scarlet, was in readiness for the journey over the housetops on Christmas eve

At another sand-table a humble tent was raised, and tiny figures kneeled around the Holy Child. A blue sky studded with stars formed the background, and one could almost hear the angel chorus. Christmast cards, cutouts, and illustrations done with colored chalk on the blackboards all carried out the Christmas theme.

Visitors were welcome to the class rooms by teachers and class mothers.

Spray of pine and poinsettias decorated the windows of the kindergarten room, where tea was served. Mrs. L. Ingram, Mrs. D. A. Loucks and Miss C. Cairns received. Tea was poured at the silver tea services by Mrs. E. Telford, Mrs. E. G. Wagar, Mrs. R. H. Taylor and Mrs. T. J. Carley. The tea table was covered with a mosaic cloth, and the centerpiece, flanked by sprays of pine and holly, was a silver sleigh filled with colored toys and drawn by silver reindeer. Silver candelabra at each side held lighted scarlet tapers. Mrs. C. Fulford was ten convener, and tea room decorations were arranged by Mrs. W. E. Fanning and Mrs. J. Matthews.

The candy table was convened by Mrs. A. K. Whyte and the home baking table was in charge of Mrs. J. Heffernan and Mrs. M. G. Harmoved a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Macauley for giving his time to the branch. The committee served dainty refreshments.

Fashions

Mummy or aunt will enjoy every stitch she makes in sewing these darling Tyrolean pajamas.

Buttons give a double-breasting effect and emphasize the high waisted bodice with full shoulder sleeves. The bloomer legs are as cunning as can be. Make it of a flannelette print to keep her cozy and warm. Plain or printed cottons as broadcloth, chambray, challis, etc., are also lovely. For special occasions as visiting over night with grandma, she'll adore it of crepe de chine or of satin crepe.

A nice suggestion for auntie is to give her the pattern and the material in a Christmas box.

Style No. 3284 is designed for sizes 2, 4, 6 and 8 years. Size 4 requires 2¼ yards of 39 inch material.

Splendid Cough Remedy Easily Mixed at Home

It's So Easy! Makes a Big Saving. No Cooking.

To get quick relief from a distressing cough, mix your own remedy at home. Once tried, you'll say it's your favorite cough medicine, and it's so simple and easy.

First, make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. A child could do it. No cooking needed.

Then get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. This is a compound containing Norway Pine in concentrated form, well known for its prompt action on throat membranes.

Put the Pinex into a 16 ounce bottle, and add your syrup. Thus you make 16 ounces of very efficient remedy, and you get four times as much cough medicine for your money. It tastes fine and never spoils.

And for quick, blessed relief, it is splendid. You can feel it penetrating the air passages in a way that means business. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and eases the soreness. Thus it makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep.

Just try it, and if not pleased, your money will be refunded.

Wed 64 Years Couple Enjoy Game Of Cards

Their combined ages total one hundred and seventy-nine years, yet they still enjoy their game of cards, still cling to life from sheer enjoyment of it.

They are Mr. and Mrs. Gavin Preston, and they recently celebrated their 64th wedding anniversary at their home in Lakefield. Friday night when a reporter called on them he was met at the door by Mrs. Preston, 89, and taken into the kitchen where a game of cards was in progress. Cards lay ready to be resumed while the aged couple—Mr. Preston is 90—answered questions, and at the conclusion of the interview the old lady went to the door and lighted the way with rare old courtesy, concerned lest he should fall in the dark.

It was a long, happy life that the old couple have lived. Born in the township of Smith, only a few miles from Lakefield, both were named Preston. Mr. Preston is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Preston who came to this country more that a century ago from Scotland and settled on a farm on the Lakefield-Buckhorn road about six miles north of Lakefield. Mrs. Preston was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Preston, who came of Scottish and Irish stock. Their farm was on the land where now stands the House of Refuge. The two elder Prestons were half-brothers.

Mr. and Mrs. Gavin Preston resided on a farm in Smith until 1914, when thty retired to Lakefield. They have two children living, Mrs. Ernest Turk of Lakefield and Walter Preston of Smith township. One son, Alexander, served overseas with a Vancouver regiment and died in 1924, partly as a result of his war years.

Old age has brought the couple some infirmities, but they are remarkably active considering their years. Mr. Preston is still able to go for walks quite frequently, often attends services on Sunday at the Lakefield Presbyterian church. Mrs. Preston is not able to get around so well.

North Monaghan Township Ratepayer Pays Taxes In Coppers Been Saving For Year

PENNIES MAKE POUNDS, and pounds, — well, everybody knows the magic of pounds. Heaps of them can do nearly everything Aladdin's lamp ever did. Pennies are not so potent, but their possibilities were demonstrated by a North Monaghan man, who works in a local factory, in paying his township taxes several days ago. He produced a tin can about ten inches high, and a cotton bag somewhat along the lines of a salt bag. Both of them were full of coppers, sufficient to efefct "appeasement" of Harold Baptie in his official position as tax collector. The ratepayer said he began about this time a year ago to drop into a drawer every copper that came to his hand, and in the end he had saved enough of them to pay this year's taxes. About the only other person who has made a similar accomplishment of late is a little boy who delights in dropping coins into a tin bank, then giving them a tuneful shake, unaware that they would get him quite a quantity of jelly beans at the corner drugstore.

Germany And Russia May Reach Accord

The reaching of an accord between Germany and Soviet Russia was suggested as a possibility by Lloyd Van Gorder, late of London, England, in addressing a large audience in the Paragon Hall Friday night under the auspices of the Peterborough branch of the British-Israel Word Federation. Mr. Van Gorder's subject was "Germany, Jewry and Britain."

"Observers of German political strategy are noting a trend in favor of closer alignment with Russia," maintained Mr. Van Gorder. "It may seem absurd to suggest an accord between Germany and Russia," continued the speaker, "but remember that the Russia of today is not essentially different from either Germany or Italy." The speaker brought many authorities to bear out his contention and warned his audience not to be surprised if startling changes took place in Germany's High Command and foreign policy in the near future.

Jewish Persecution.

"Palestine is the worst place Jewish refugees could possibly go to," he said, "in view of the fact that it will shortly become the 'storm centre' of the world. By all means provide a place of refuge for this persecuted people but in their own interests let it not be Palestine. Italy will strike into that territory from the south, and the Russian-German confederacy from the north—events are even now shaping in that direction. Jewish settlers in Palestine will then be in a most unenviable position, even worse than in Germany today."

Great Britain, concluded the speaker, would only solve her troubles as and when she realized her identity with the House of Israel, as distinct from Jewry. Present events and their outcome were clearly foretold in the Bible which ought to be the guide book of our race, the speaker said.

Seven Days In Jail For Drunken Driving

Pleading guilty to being drunk in charge of a motor car on George Street on Friday night, Clifford Robinson, was sentenced by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. in police court this morning to seven days in jail and he will be prohibited from driving an automobile for three months. The car he was driving was not his own so that it was not ordered impounded.

"This man was drunk" said Chief Newhall "and the man who owned the car was also intoxicated and he got the accused to drive for him. He got caught and the other man escaped."

Robinson asked for leniency but the Magistrate told him there was no suspended sentence in such cases. He made the sentence seven days to let the accused out for Christmas.

A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning to six weeks in the county jail, the sentences to run from December 5.

There was one previous conviction against Clark and a number against Tobin, and Magistrate Langley told the pair that they were lucky they were not sent to the reformatory.

"If either of you comes before me again," hes aid, "I want to warn you to expect a stiff sentence."

Clark had asked for a suspended sentence, but Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry agreed with the magistrate that the crime of stealing from motor cars had become too common and must be stopped.

Young Man Takes Pledge For Year

One of the conditions on which a local young man was allowed to go on suspended sentence in police court this morning after he had pleaded guilty to stealing a number of pairs of socks from the Kresge Company, was that he refrain from the use of intoxicating liquor for a year.

Crown Attorney McElderry explained to the court that the young man had a good job and did not need to steal, but that he had been very intoxicated at the time the offence was committed.

"The socks he stole were some he could not wear," said Chief Newhall.

Magistrate Langley said that the stores should be protected against shoplifting even when done by drunken men, but suspended sentence on condition that the accused did not drink for a year.

Canadian Legion Notes

"A chields amang ye takin' notes, and, faith, he'll print them."—Burns.

The Legion Carnival will take place on Monday evening and it is imperative that all members who can possibly do so should come along between now and Monday and lend a hand, as there is a tremendous amount of work to be done to get things into shape. This event bids fair to be the largest and most successful affair the branch has ever carried out. Each member will be given a definite job and will be expected to do it. Those who cannot attend to give help can at least attend the carnival and spend some money. There will be all kinds of goods at the various games and it will be a real opportunity to get your Christmas gifts easily and cheaply.

The monthly meeting held on Wednesday last was a most decided success and many of the members went home toting poultry, which would be of value when the wife began to complain of the lateness of the hour. Comrade Dan Douglas led the chorus and announced the various winning numbers and if he did not have a sore throat the next day he should have had.

The first section of the billiard tournament finished with Comrade Nicholls as the winner, and the second section is well on the way.

The cribbage tournament with an entry list of 24 has started and the players are requested to come along and play their games and get it over by Christmas.

The carpetball teams are going along swimmingly, but it is noticed that No. 12 (Renouf's Ramblers) are not very far from the bottom, and that No. 11 (Grace Cacklers) are comfortably roosted on the lowest perch. Snap out of it for the good name of the Legion.

American toys will be introduced into Switzerland.

Two Rather Inebriated Gents Taken Twice By Gent Who Was To Get Them A "Crock"

In the course of their nightly ramblings at hours when most respectable persons are safe in bed, reporters often run across strange people, even stranger happenings.

Last night one reporter found such an occurrence when, about two in the morning, he ran across two rather inebriated residents of the northern section of the county dragging a Christmas tree up George street. This story does not concern the Christmas tree, presence of which is still unexplained.

It was the doleful appearance of the two celebrants that caught the reporter's eye. Guarded enquiries led to an explanation. The two were earlier sitting in a downtown restaurant and were feeling in need of another visit with friend Bacchus, when a total stranger made his appearance before them with the information that he could procure the needed refill. Each dug into his pocket and between them they handed over what he claimed would be enough for a pint of liquor, to be purchased at the home of an unnamed servant of Bacchus. A few minutes later he returned with the information that no pints were available—only quarts. Once again they reached for their funds, and made up the required amount. He left and that was the last either saw of him that night.

"And the sad part of the whole thing is," said one of them ruefully, leaning on a branch of the Christmas tree, "I remember now that I had that same trick pulled on me a long time ago when I was on leave in London."

Fifty-One Families Will Require Baskets City Relief Officer Metheral Announces

Persons who wish to share the spirit of Christmas with citizens for whom the holiday might be a rather lean event are reminded that their goodwill can find an outlet through Relief Officer Metheral's office.

"We have twenty-six single persons who need help," Mr. Metheral told the Examiner today. "All we can do in their case is to give them tickets for a turkey dinner at a restaurant. Then we have fifty-one families we have not yet provided for. We made a list of all those families we thought might go short, took them up with representatives of the churches and now we have fifty-one left."

Mr. Metheral said the co-operation of citizens in helping to fill Christmas baskets for these fifty-one families would be greatly appreciated.

OSHAWA NOSES OUT PORT COLBORNE 5 TO 4 IN SENIOR O.H.A.

Goodyears Win Sixth Game In Seven Starts

(By the Canadian Press.)

TORONTO, Dec. 17 — Big Bob Ecclestone, bellowing boss of Toronto Goodyears, pored over statistics to-day and came up with the announcement that if his men down Niagara Falls Brights in a Senior A Ontario Hockey Association fixture here next Wednesday, they'll have beaten every team in the six-club league at least once.

The Goodyear powerhouse roared on in Toronto last night as the undefeated league leaders smashed the threat of St. Catherines Chiefs 5-1. Hot in their last few games, the Chiefs folded under the relentless drive of the Torontonians. It was Goodyears' sixth win in seven starts. They tied one game.

Meanwhile, the up-and-coming Oshawa G-Men, who drew with Goodyears in Oshawa on Wednesday, stepped into Port Colborne last night and took a 4-3 overtime decision from the Sailors. The winning goal came on a breakaway during a Port Colborne gang attack.

Results left Toronto far ahead in the league race with 13 points against eight for Port Colborne and St. Catharines. Oshawa are in the third slot with seven.

Too Much Class.

It was disappointing for St. Catharines, who won four of their last five games. It was a let-down too for many of the crowd of 3,500 who rooted for the Chiefs, but who soon realized Goodyears had too much class.

The winners scored a goal in the first period, added three in the second and another in the third. The lone St. Kitts' counter came from the stick of Jack Boyd.

Don Metz, who'll probably go up to Toronto Maple Leafs of the National League next season, counted two for Goodyears, as did George Imlach, one of the league's leading scorers. Peanuts O'Flaherty scored the other goal.

Port Colborne fans saw their best game of the season in the see-saw Ports-G-Men battle. The Tars outplayed their Eastern foes, but erratic passing robbed them of several good chances.

Tied 3-3 in overtime, the break came when little Winkie Smith broke away from a Port Colborne sortie and passed to Carl Maundrell after carrying the puck the length of the ice. Maundrell, one of Oshawa's best snipers, beat old Hawse Marsh in the Ports' nets. The goal came after seven minutes of the extra session.

Doc Rowden, veteran rearguard, who scord two, and Doc Dafoe with one, were the other Oshawa marksmen. Leo Fitzgerald as a double scorer for the homesters with Doug Runions, a veteran of the ice lanes, adding the other.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

Just before the season on hockey here commences, another word or two on senior rugby. Some rather startling hints from Sarnia were brought in today by a little bird—an ostrich—and they're worth a thought maybe. One rumor is that Coach Art Massucci is on his way out, despite the many grid titles he brought to the town, he and his teams. Another statement is from the sports writer there who says the town is too small to finance a senior rugby squad—and that the club went in the red this year. How about all the lush years, though? And then comes the report that Bummer Stirling is quitting, which—following the death of Orm Beach—will leave the Imps very ordinary for another season. While a news item announces that 14 persons from Europe were recommended for naturalization as Sarnia citizens. Can it be that the Imps are importing from overseas instead of from Windsor and the U.S.?

* * * * * *

Sarnia scribe writes: "Playing their hardest schedule in senior history, Sarnia Imperials compiled a composite score of 161 to 69 in games this year. As scoring goes, the season's record is far from tops so far as the aggregate count is concerned. But the locals this year were not opposing teams like Hamilton Panthers or the University of Western Ontario, clubs that helped swell their scoring in other seasons." Are youse critics of the Orfuns listenin'? The Orfuns were outclassed this year, yes, but they weren't rated as weak as Cubs or Western, you see. And this is according to Red Wilson, Sarnia writer who used to play senior for the Imps.

* * * * * *

Caught On Off Day

Red continues: "Seven victories, two ties and two defeats are included in the 1938 record. Peterborough Orfuns caused a seven-day's wonder by nosing out the Imperials 3-2 in Peterborough, and Toronto Argos caught the Sarnians in the same off-day position in the Eastern Canada final to wallop them 25-8, largely by virtue of a first period rush that netted them 12 fast points. The Nats wilted in group playoffs, after two previous ties, though they were hand-picked for the Dominion title this year. Balmy Beach, primed as never before to halt Sarnia's championship march, dropped two more games to them. Peterborough ran out the O.R.F.U. string here when they went into action with all their backfield stars missing and soaked up a 59-0 licking."

* * * * * *

It is downright amazing the number of guys who aspire to be puck referees. Must be at least half a dozen in town who have applied to the O.H.A. for a job as arbiter at hockey matches. It'll serve 'em all right if they're accepted! Folks sometimes feel sorry for the referee when he is in the middle of a hot argument with a dozen players and two coaches swarming around him, as the fans boo whatever he does, but these guys ask for the job. They are very anxious to pick up the dough, which is good, and forget the fans' uproar as much as possible. They get good expenses and a nice chunk guaranteed for every game, regardless of how slim the crowd is. Once in awhile they have to fight their way out of a rink, but that is an exception. Personally, we have nothing against referees so long as they know the rules thoroughly and have fair judgment. Which most of 'em have. But a "homer" is a guy who should be protested to the O.H.A. and kept off the slate.

Just One Poor Season

Archie Weir is the only Petes' defenceman of 1938 left here, and he will be out with the team again when workouts begin. Weir is gradually training some of the excess beef off, and is down to around 175 now. While he didn't go as well as usual last winter, he hopes for a real comeback on the rearguard this semester. And fans, who recall his fine work of previous seasons, shouldn't criticize too fast. He may return to his real form and be a tower of strength in front of the goal once more, and score plenty, too.

* * * * * *

Not too much satisfaction over the O.H.A. intermediate "B" setup in this district is expressed by some of the squads. Originally it had Oakwood, Lakefield, 'Caygeon, Beaverton and Lindsay in, but now Sutton and Newmarket have been added—and some of the teams are inclined to pout. Dunno the Lakefield reaction, but no doubt the Northerners feel it is a lotta mileage with the price of gas what it is. Lindsay may not enter such a circuit, and we hear Oakwood and Bobcaygeon are wobbling on the proposition. While the Oshawa Cokes, learning that Peterborough will have no intermediate "B" team this winter ,figure it's not worth while just playing Port Hope. Omemee at first were interested but, finding they couldn't use a Peterborough player, have changed their minds — unless maybe a district loop is formed with the winner entering playdowns. It's all very much up in the air at the moment.

Down In The South

Southend Intermediate Loop will re-organize at a meeting next Wednesday at eight p.m. in the Sacred Heart clubhouse. Teams expected in are Clippers, Pirates, Leafs, Canucks, Brintons and maybe Southenders. Any interested are invited for the election of officers, entries and plans for the season. A good sheet of ice was noted at the Sacred Heart rink last eve. Incidentally, the Y's Men's Club have put a juvenile squad in the Southend Puck Loop, rounding out that circuit to three four-team divisions.

* * * * * *

Church Hockey League entry forms, with fee and bond, must be in by Dec. 27th, with as many names on the list as desired. Players must be regular attendants of the Sunday School or religious organization for which they wish to play. Those wishing to change from one to another must remain out of hockey a year, except in the case of a residence move. A guy may play two games in higher company and still revert to his former club. While O.J.H.A. lads are eligible, O.H.A. players cannot play in the Church Loop. O.H.A. rules govern except that body-checking is allowed only in the defence zone in the two younger sections, the penalty-shot rule is out and overtime is allowed in finals in two five-minute periods. The loop is not responsible for injuries, and protests must be in writing to an executive member within 48 hours of a protested tilt.

MUSSING UP THE MAPLES

Last Tuesday evening Stan Adamson of the C.G.E. put on the best bowling act seen around Duffus Academy for many years, when he stepped out for his Cost No. 2 team and poured in three consecutive games of 303, 309 and 335 to chalk up the high three game mark for the season, 947. In his hitting streak he got in a total of 28 strikes and 4 spares, a head pin once and a split another time kept him from going up out of sight. Reg. Dyer's City League 922 of two week's ago was hocked down after Adamson's blast.

While several local bowlers have 900 scores to their credit it is a well known fact that this doesn't happen every day. The records at Duffus' Alleys show where Leo Martyn, now of the Brinton and City leagues, ran amuck about 8 years ago in the annual spring tournament and knocked off 1,061 pins for 3 games. Only two league bowlers have made perfect singles of 450, Wilfred Shiner in 1928 and Tom Curvin in 1935.

During the past week besides Adamson's fines core Gord. Caird of the Brinton league had a big night with an 840 total and in Thursday's City League the reliable Freddie Martin took the honors with a huge 883. Thursday night's City League results given below show where averages will take an awful dip as several of the old stand-bys found the going real tough.

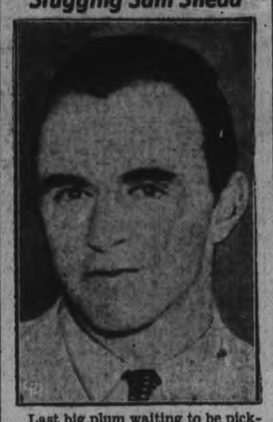
Slugging Sam Snead



Last big plum waiting to be picked off the 1938 golfing tree is the $10,000 Miami open, and shooting for top money will be Sam Snead, ABOVE. Sammy has already set a new record for earnings.

Inside Sportin' Dope

BY A. WISE CRACKER

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well Mac, we're still sitting around here waiting for our hockey season to get itself under way and meanwhile the lads is going to break the lid off by playing a exhibition fixture in Owen Sound Tues. nite. It will give Mister Buckland a chance to look over some of his material although when a gang aint got their ice legs yet its pretty tough trying to decide whether you got stars or just hockey tramps. These late-starting seasons is supplying plenty of argument in favor of a artificial ice plant and everybody is beginning to realize that the town that aint got 1 of them things is well back in the rear nowadays.

I Told You So

The football season is over and while I don't want to do none of that I told you so stuff, still you gotta admit that I picked the Argos and that the same win just about the way I said they would by their climax plays and their deadly down field tackling. The fact that this young Mister Red Storey was the hero of the day shows just how strong that Argo cast really was with any 1 of 7 of or 8 players liable to break out in a picture play any time. If the public aint realized it yet they had in the Toronto Oarsmen this season 1 of the strongest, all-round football squads in the history of the game in Canada, strong in every position and with plenty of reserve strength, led on the field by 2 of the smartest quarterbacks in the country and on the bench the best coach in Canada. When you get that combination what chance has the opposition got and on top of all that the Argos all season has been playing with a dash and abandon that has had other teams constantly baffled.

Typically Argos

What other team in the Dominion woulda pulled that play the Toronto gang perpetrated in the last quarter against the Blue Bombers when Mister Isbister intercepted a Winnipeg forward pass right on the Argos' goal line. Most every other team woulda been delighted to let it go at that and play safe but not Mister Hayman's lads. Mister Isbister took a chance by making a lateral pass right on his own doorstep and this here now Mister Storey galloped 100 yards down the field to Winnipeg's four-yard line and the next moment Argos had another try. You can't beat that kinda stuff for sheer nerve and as the Dominion champs has been pulling such plays all season you aint got no right to call them flukes.

In the N.H.L. Mac, the Boston Bruins seem to be doing their best to make it a runaway affair and so they have only been beaten twice in 13 starts. They got power and speed and back of that this young Mister Brimsek, which has had 4 shutouts in his last 5 games, is already making the Beantown fans forget Mister Tiny Thompson. So far Boston and the New Yorker Rangers looks fas the 2 best teams in the loop and they should finish 1 and 2 in the regular schedule. That of course don't mean much when it comes to the playoffs.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

LOU NOVA BLONDE CALIFORNIAN WHIPS FARR IN 15 ROUND BOUT

Coming Heavyweight Champion Has Welshman On Verge Of Knockout In 14th

By Gayle Talbot
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 17—(AP).—Write the name of Lou Nova big in your book, for the young man from Alameda, Calif., who pounded Tommy Farr for 15 rounds here last night is certain—in time—to be the next world's heavyweight fighting champion.

It might be a year, and it more than likely will be two years before the California kid is ready to knock the wreath off Joe Louis' placid brow. But the 10,000 who saw him wreck the durable Welshman last night will bet that he does it sooner or later.

Nova, tempered in only 25 previous professional fights, gave the veteran Farr a worse shellacking than Farr received from Louis, or from Max Baer or from Jim Braddock. He had the Welshman on the verge of a knockout at the finish.

For the last two minutes of the 14th round Farr absorbed perhaps the most cruel beating of his long career. A terrific left hook first sent him tottering and brought his guard to his knees, and Nova must have poured a hundred furious blows to his chin and body before the bell finally ended the round.

But Tonypandy Tommy stood up. Furthermore, he came out for the final round and lasted through that one, too, though the ringsider wondered what held him up as Nova lashed him with everything in his arsenal.

"I hoped the referee would stop it in the 14th," said the victor as he lay, dead-tired, in his dressing room afterward. "I was afraid I would hurt him seriously. My, I didn't know any man living could take punches like that."

Nova and his manager, Ray Carlin, are ready for Max Baer any time. They are willing to fight Louis within a year.

"I'll confess I was a little tired for the last five rounds," Nova said, "but now that I've gone 15 rounds and whipped a man like Farr I feel like I'm over the big hump. Maybe Dempsey and Tunney won't think now that I've been rushed too fast." It was Lou's first 15-round match.

Joe Louis was one of the most interested spectators.

Tackled for an opinion on the latest "white hope," Joe said: "He looks mighty good, mighty good."

Euchre Party Held By Bowling Club

HASTINGS, Dec. 16.—More than fifty attended the second euchre of the season Wednesday night sponsored by the Hastings bowling club. The event took place on the first floor of the Clarendon Hotel.

Twelve tables were filled with players, each aspiring for the season prize of a first quality woollen blanket.

Prizes for the evening were awarded to Mrs. John Fleming, ladies' first prize, a toilet set; Miss Mary Fowlds, lucky number prize, a mirror and Mr. Clarence Gillespie; men's first, a gent's toilet set. Bert Lemoire and Clarence Gillespie had an equal number of games but Mr. Gillespie won on a draw.

A refreshing lunch was served to wind up a pleasant evening, following the games.

Seabiscuit, Stagehand Rated Tops For 1938

Voted the best horses of the year in racing circles were Seabiscuit, LEFT, and Stagehand, RIGHT, who captured first place honors in the all-age and three-year-old divisions respectively in the annual poll conducted among turf writers. Seabiscuit came within $36,000 of equalling Sun Beau's money-winning record during the year and, of course, beat War Admiral in the famous match race. The Admiral had beaten out Seabiscuit for first place in last year's poll by a scant 18 points. Stagehand, winner of almost $200,000 during the year, had many notable wins to his credit and was an easy winner over Lawrin in the three-year-old voting. Two other divisions were voted on, the two-year-olds colts and two-year-old fillies with El Chico getting top spot in the former and Inscoelda in the latter.

Toronto Victorias Win Thauburn Cup

TORONTO, Dec. 17 — (C.P.). — Toronto brothers left outsiders holding nothing but the broom to-day as the annual High Park bonspiel for the Thauburn Memorial Trophy was "sooped" into the records.

Skip T. S. Graham paced the home teams into a close final that saw his Toronto Victorias edge out B. Kennedy's Royal Canadiens 10-8. The win gave his rink the prized trophy, climaxing a five-day 'spiel that drew strong quartettes from several provincial centres.

Though visiting teams were eliminated from the main competition, highlight of the bonspiel still was tagged to A. C. Hoffman's Kitchener four, which chalked up on Wednesday the only eight-end of the meet.

The Hoffman four won its way into the consolation final, but C. Bulley's Toronto Granites were too good for them in the final last night, and the visitors wound up on the losing end of a 13-3 count.

Before the final in each competition, a kilted Scot piped the competitors in a grand march to the banquet table for addresses by 'spiel officials. Toast to the visitors was replied to by D. G. P. Forbes of Kitchener.

Tony Galento Roars Revenge At Lou Nova; Terror Of Taprooms Ready To Take 'Em All

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Dec. 17—(AP).—Tony Galento, Orange, New Jersey's globular contribution to the prize ring, headed home today bellowing contempt for "dat bum, Lou Nova."

"Gimme Nova and any three guys like him," the two-ton terror of the taprooms shouted when he learned of Nova's decision over Tommy Farr in New York last night. "I'll take 'em all at the same time. I'll knock 'em loose from their ankles without even gettin' a sweat up."

Joe Jacobs, Galento's manager backed him up.

"That guy Nova," Jacobs sneered. "Tony'd chase him out of the ring—if we could get him in it."

Galento knocked out Dick Daniels, Minneapolis, in the third round of what was billed as an "exhibition" last night.

Angered when Daniels poked him with hard rights to the face, Galento flattened him once with a right over the heart, then warned: "Now will you behave?" When Daniels threw some more punches, Galento repeated the treatment and Daniels stayed down.

Wants To Pitch On Wooden Leg

DALLAS, Tex. Dec. 17—If courage and an artificial leg will serve him, Monty Stratton will be back in there as a big league pitcher.

And he has every confidence, he assured in an interview, he can come back as a Chicago White Sox hurler as soon as he "gets the hang" of using a wooden leg on the mound.

Monty's right leg had to be amputated at the knee when a major blood vessel was severed accidentally by his own pistol while he hunted rabbits on his mothre's Grenville, Tex., farm.

First Haircut

But he told this writer today he feels he can pitch as well as ever when they bring him his artificial limb to take the place of the missing half-leg.

Propped up in a wheel chair while a hospital attendant gave him his first haircut since he entered the hospital, Monty said:

"The only thing I'm worried about is whether I can manage to field bunts."

"Are you really serious about this, Monty?" he was asked. "After all, the Sox have offered you a lifetime office job."

"Now, don't think I'm not grateful for that job Mr. Comiskey has offered me," Stratton explained in his soft Texas drawl. "But I believe I've still got plenty of pitching left in this arm of mine.

No Breaks

"I'm not asking any favors. After all, it's every man for himself in baseball. If I pitch for the Sox no opposing batter is going to give me a break just because I've got a phony leg.

"But I know the Sox will give me a tryout if I tell them I think I can still play the game. That's all I want, a tryout.

"Why look, the other day a fellow came in to see me. He's got only 5 inches left on one leg, and he said he can get out on a dance floor and no one knows the difference.

"Dizzy Dean told me he thought I could still pitch. And I know I can, just as soon as I get the hang of using this new leg of mine.

"You see, I'm a right-hander. That means my left leg is the important one in pitching. And it's just as good as ever. I'll just have to learn how to swing the right one over for my delivery." He swung his arms to demonstrate, barely avoiding the point of the barber's scissors.

More Thrill, Skill And Speed Yet To Come In Pro Hockey

NEW YORK, Dec. 17—(CP).—In keeping with the times, the national hockey league tempo undoubtedly has quickened over the years but Lester Patrick, long a man of vision, reported today the maximum of thrill, skill and speed is yet to come.

This is not exactly a new theory for Lester. Rather it is a reiteration of a gospel as told the career of this high priest of New York Rangers. It is the more interesting though, when one considers that only this season Mervyn (Red) Dutton wrote on hockey as it is today and the New York Americans manager termed it "the fastest game on earth."

For the start of his argument Patrick turned to hockey's cradle days. For the clincher he pointed to present-day gate receipts—juicy dollar signs that few can ignore.

"The man who invented hockey must first have thought of just one thing—to put the puck, or whatever they played with then, in the net," said Lester during what he termed a crystal gazing session. "That still must be the main object of the game. Defence must be secondary.

"Furthermore, that seems to be the idea of the fans as a whole. The public pays the freight and they appear to want goals, even if a team is in front. And clubs that play that kind of hockey show increased gate receipts to prove the point."

Pays Dividends

Lester admitted he was referring particularly to his own Rangers because they get liberal doses of his more speed, more goals gospel from one season's end to the other. But, while stating it paid dividends in dollars and cents, Patrick confessed his theory, in its entirety, possibly was too far advanced for the N.H.L. in its present stage of development.

He foresaw the end of the behind-the-blueline defenceman, hockey's blocking back. They must give way to secondary offensive men who are as good for a goal as the forwards they back up. Lester figured his own son Lynn as the type of forward most admirably suited to taking over defence duties.

Such a move, if and when it comes, would give the Rangers a pair of rushing brothers on the backline, Lynn and Murray Patrick. And in this connection, boss Patrick said that in spite of difficulties connected with handling brothers, he was all for such combinations. Lester, who should know because he handled Bill and Bun Cook, and now has Neil and Mac Colville in addition to the Patricks, said these difficulties were mostly temperamental quirks.

Looking into the crystal again, the Ranger boss disagreed with the oft-heard contention that streamlining of hockey presaged the end of the individual stars such as Eddie Shore, King Clancy, Lionel Conacher, the late Howie Morenz or other greats who have stepped down.

"I don't know who he is," said Lester, "but the star of tomorrow is just around the corner. After all, at first glance, who would have said Morenz would have become the great that he did?"

Remember When—

Urban Shocker, famed veteran pitcher, was traded to New York Yankees by St. Louis for "Bullet Joe" Bush and two rookie pitchers, 14 years ago today. Shocker played with Ottawa in the Canadian Baseball League in 1915 and after a season with Toronto Leafs of the International League, was traded to St. Louis Browns.

WITHERS—In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. William Withers who passed away, December 17, 1932.

God knew that she was suffering
And the hills were hard to climb;
So He closed her weary eyelids
And whispered, "Peace be thine".
The golden gates were open,
A gentle voice said "come,"
And with the redeemed in Heaven
Our mother entered home.

—Ever remembered by her daughter, Mrs. Keliele and Family.

WITHERS—In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Martha Withers, beloved wife of William Withers, who passed away, December 17th, 1932.

No silent! Just passed out of earthly hearing,
To sing Heaven's sweet new song.
Not lonely! Dearly loved, and dearly loving
Amidst the white robed throng.
Not dead! But past all fear of dying,
And with all suffering o'er.
Mother is not dead—
Jesus called her to live for evermore.
And in that Home beyond the sky,
Where no one ever says good-bye,
We'll meet some day your joy to share,
Where you await our coming there.

—Ever remembered by her husband, and daughter, Mrs. E. G. Suther-

CARD OF THANKS

Floods Sweeping Down Yangtse

SHANGHAI, Dec. 17 — (A.P.). — New Yellow River floods inundating six districts of Northern Kiangsu Province were reported to-day in dispatches from the endangered area, approximately 400 miles northwest of Shanghai.

Flood waters were said to have broken through river dykes near Kaifeng, Honan, and poured as far southward as Kiangsu's northernmost tip.

Meanwhile Chungking dispatches quoted the Chinese Vice-Minister of Air, General Chen Cheng, as estimating Japanese casualties at 270,000 men during Yangtse Valley fighting from June through September. Of these 96,000 were killed in action.

Chen said 30,000 Japanese soldiers had been sacrificed to gain 50 miles along the Anchang Railway since the fall of Kiukiang on July 26.

The Chinese official estimated in all 1,000,000 Japanese were engaged in fighting and garrisoning the already captured territory, 600,000 of them fighting in the Yangtse Valley.

Trick Ad Gets Job

TORONTO, Dec. 17—(CP).—Roy Kennedy, 21-year-old Manitoba youth, spent more than two months attempting to find a job by the usual methods. Finally, he put an advertisement in a newspaper that said "Lazy, dishonest, unreliable young man requires work of any kind."

Now he's attempting to make up his mind which of 19 jobs he should accept. He said his people would "disown me if they knew I did such a crazy thing as putting that ad in the paper."

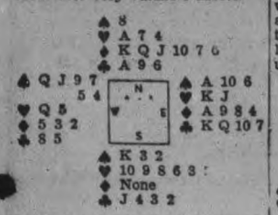
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

WHAT IS A GOOD HAND ANSWERING THAT question correctly depends upon the circumstances. Many a holding which would be worthless as a dummy is valuable if its owner is declarer at its longest suit. A partner with a fair amount of high card strength and a moderate fit for the trumps can turn mere long suits of small cards into very valuable assets.



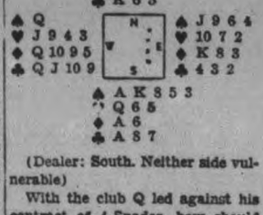
(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable)

One diamond was North's opening bid on this deal and East overcalled with 1-No Trump. South passed and West bid 2-Spades. North rebid his diamonds at the three level and East bid 3-Spades. South and West passed and North bid 4-Diamonds.

When East failed to put in another bid, South was in a quandary. He feared the consequences of the 4-Diamond bid because his hand provided no entries for his partner. However, with a vulnerable partner bidding and rebidding with no encouragement, South decided to gamble on 4-Hearts, figuring the damage could be no worse than at 4-Diamonds.

West led the spade Q which East won with the A. He returned the club K to the A. Declarer led the diamond K and tossed a club when East failed to cover. This was followed with the Q. East held off again and another club was discarded. When the J was covered, South ruffed and led to the Heart A. He then gave up a heart and a club.

Monday's Problem



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable)

With the club Q led against his contract of 4-Spades, how should South plan the hand?

General Tax On Land Values Suggested As New Form Of Levying Municipal Taxes

A new form of municipal taxation, already in force in some cities in Australia and elsewhere, was outlined by H. B. Cowan, senior, at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis Club Friday. Mr. Cowan asked for investigation of his conclusion by responsible bodies with a view to learning whether such a system could be introduced with success into this city.

"A remark made at a meeting of the directors of the Children's Aid Society this week by our energetic superintendent, Miss Young, determined the subject of my address to you at this luncheon," he said. "Miss Young informed the directors that the advent of cold weather had increased the problems of the Children's Aid Society. During the mild weather of the summer and early fall some of the poorer residents of Peterborough find it possible to get along not too badly. When cold weather sets in these families are forced to crowd into warmer but more restricted accommodation. One effect of this condition is that the children, including girls in their early 'teens, walk the streets after dark. The rest of the family do not object, as they otherwise would, because it means that there are just that many less to share the crowded living quarters."

Such conditions are general in cities of eastern Canada, he said, as well as throughout the United States. "It is because of such conditions as these, but magnified many times over in the larger cities of the continent, that the United States government has spent several billion dollars during recent years for the purpose of providing suitable living quarters at low rentals for those who otherwise could not afford to live in such quarters. The tragedy of it is that these great efforts have been largely fruitless inasmuch as the underprivileged classes, for whom these buildings were intended, do not occupy them. Instead they have moved elsewhere and created new slums wherever they have gone."

Taxation Limit Reached

The fundamental cause, though not necessarily the only one, of such conditions, Mr. Cowan suggested, is the faulty system of municipal taxation in force on this continent. "Municipalities on all sides admit that they have reached the limit of their taxation powers. Taxation on real estate has become so burdensome that the erection of buildings is discouraged. Unemployment is thus increased and our municipal debts expand. As a result appeals are being made to our provincial governments and to the Dominion government for financial assistance to tide our municipalities over this condition." He found significant the government's housing scheme, in co-operation with municipalities, is making newly erected homes exempt from taxation for a period.

"In view of this situation, what, we may ask, would be the effect if Peterborough were to remove all taxation upon buildings and arrange to raise its required revenue on an entirely different basis?" Mr. Cowan asked.

In municipalities such as Sydney and Brisbane in Australia and Wellington, capital of New Zealand, there is no tax on improvements such as buildings, he related. "The required revenue is obtained by a levy on the unimproved land values. These cities have prospered under this method of taxation. Sydney has a population of 1,400,000. It has followed this system of taxation for many years. The ratepayers have the privilege of voting it out and imposing a tax on improvements whenever they so desire but no one suggests such a move. They have found the folly of other forms of taxation."

Not "Single Tax"

This is not a "single tax," Mr. Cowan explained, but a purely municipal tax on land values for municipal purposes. "In 1896 New Zealand passed legislation providing for exemption of buildings and improvements in municipalities from taxation, on vote of the electorate. Under this act increasing numbers of municipalities removed all taxes from buildings until, in 1934-35, 45 per cent of the municipalities, including 57 per cent of the population, raised all revenues from land values. Votes taken with the object of returning to the taxation of improvements, have not met with much success. The city of Wanganui, for example, which abolished taxes on buildings in 1925, did indeed return to them in 1928; but in 1931 buildings were again exempted by a largely increased majority."

In Sydney, Australia, taxation differs greatly from Peterborough, Mr. Cowan continued. He offered the experience of people in the former city. "They say, in effect, 'We believe in taxing the things we don't want and in not taxing the things we do want. We want to make it as easy for people to erect their homes as possible, therefore we do not tax houses. We desire to make it as inexpensive as possible for our manufacturers and merchants to do business, therefore we do not tax factories and stores. We do not want speculators to add a speculative value to land and thereby interfere with its proper use. Therefore we tax land values.

'We believe that land values are created by the presence of population, and that population, therefore, has a right to at least a share of these values.

'We believe that a tax on buildings discourages the erection of buildings and thereby helps to cause unemployment and slums and the need for relief. Therefore we do not tax buildings.

No Sky Scrapers

'Sky scrapers appear only where land values are unduly high. It is because investors cannot afford to buy more land that they build up into the air. Our system of taxing land values discourages speculative values in land and thus brings its values down to a point within the means of those who desire to use it. Therefore, we haven't any sky scrapers in Sydney, although Sydney is the second largest city in the Empire.

'We believe that it should be made as easy as possible for our people to have lawns and gardens around their homes. High speculative values of land discourage this. By taxing land values we make it easy for our citizens to obtain land for lawns and gardens, especially as they do not have to pay any tax on their homes.

'Before we adopted our present system of taxation,' they say, 'speculators had seized most of the desirable suurban property. Thus, as population increased, it was difficult for our citizens to acquire homes on reasonable terms in the suburbs. Our system of taxing land values has helped to squeeze out these speculators and has promoted a natural development of our suburban areas with the result that it has done much to prevent the development of slum sections in the city.'"

If Peterborough were to follow the lead of New Zealand and Australia, judging for the experience of the cities in these other Dominions, the annual taxes on the great majority of householders would be materially reduced, Mr. Cowan claimed. "This is because these houses are assessed at considerably higher values than the land they occupy. Thus the building of more and more homes would be encouraged."

No Passing On

"Taxes would be increased in the central parts of the city where land values are the highest. Strange as it may seem, such a development would be a God-send to most of the merchants on George street and in our other principal business areas. This is because a tax on land values, unlike a tax on buildings, cannot be passed on to the tenant. An increase in the tax on land values, and the abolition of the tax on business premises, would make it necessary for those who were holding land out of use in the business areas, where land was occupied by old and obsolete buildings, which barely raise enough revenue to meet the current taxes, to put such land to better use. They would find it necessary either to erect new stores and offices, in order to obtain an increased revenue therefrom, or to remodel and remove the present buildings. Every development in this direction would tend to bring down rentals. This would benefit our merchants and reduce the cost of doing business."

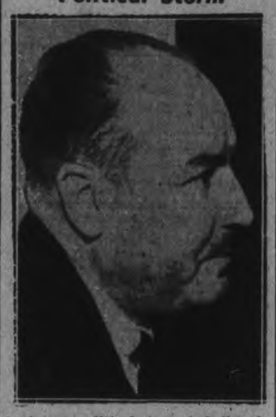
An average tax of $24 on each lot in Peterborough would bring in a revenue in excess of this city's present budget of more than $870,000. "How does such a tax compare with the taxes being paid by the great majority of our householders?" Mr. Cowan wanted to know. "The fact, however, is that the tax on the great majority of these lots would be materially less than the amount stated. This is because we have land in the centre of the city which has been sold for as high as $500 a foot frontage on George street. The taxation on such land would be much higher than that on land values in the residential areas."

Steps To Be Taken

To introduce such taxation in Peterborough it would be necessary that the city apply to the Ontario legislature for a special act granting it the power to exempt buildings from taxation and to increase the tax on land values. "Should we be afraid that we might bite off too much at once permission might be asked for power to reduce the taxation on buildings by twenty per cent every two years and add the tax to land values. "Should we be afraid that we might bite off too much at once permission night be asked for power to reduce the taxation on buildings by twenty per cent every two years and add the tax to land values, but only upon condition that such changes be first approved by a vote of the ratepayers. My own conviction is that were we to succeed in such an undertaking the beneficial effects which have attended this form of taxation in Australia and New Zealand would be quickly manifested in Peterborough. It would enable us to go far towards solving the difficult problem of securing new industries for Peterborough. Were a city in a position to inform manufacturing industries that their buildings would be exempt from taxation, or largely so, and that virtually their only tax would be on land values, the city would have a tremendous inducement to attract such industries."

Should some enterprising candidate for municipal office decide to test the feeling of the citizens of Peterborough at the polls along such lines, the result should be interesting in the extreme, Mr. Cowan believed. Or should some service club, the Chamber of Commerce, or other groups decide to appoint a committee to check his statements by writing to municipalities he mentioned in his address, the outcome of such a move might prove of great interest to residents of this city. "The fact that years of experience have demonstrated the advantages of this system of taxation by cities large and small, not only in Australia and New Zealand, but also in several cities in the western provinces of Canada, which for years have exempted a considerable part of the assessment on improvements from taxation, would seem to justify us in seeking to find some means of impreving upo nour existing system of taxation," Mr. Cowan concluded.

Political Storm



A new political storm is believed brewing in Mexico as a result of the manifesto published recently by General Manuel Perez Trevina (ABOVE) said to be a disciple of former President Plutarco Calles. The general attacked the policies of the Cardenas government and called upon the masses for the formation of a new political party, ostensibly inclined to the right. General Trevino's last official office was as Mexican ambassador to Spain during the regime of Spanish President Manuel Azana.

Demand For Turkeys Increasing As Better Birds Supplied

Demand from Toronto buyers for turkeys which is increasing every year proves the Peterborough district is fast becoming the banner producing area of Ontario, according to local butchers.

Peterborough county for the most part is high ground, particularly in the sections north of the city, near Lakefield, and Young's Point and it is from this part that many of the choice birds come. At the present time, Miss Millie Freeburn is reported to have upwards of 270 choice turkeys ready for the market and Mrs. Jack Armstrong has a flock of almost eighty turkeys. Both women live between Lakefield and Young's Point.

Changing of Thanksgiving Day to early in October ruined the turkey market for farmers, but the trouble is being overcome somewhat by the fact that housewives have shown a decided tendency to favor the turkey as a Christmas dish. This trend has become so pronounced in recent years that the demand from big cities and the local consumption has taken care of the huge supply of turkeys with a steady price prevailing throughout.

There are, however, hundreds who still prefer goose for Christmas with a side order of apple sauce and the trimmings. For this mob of buyers local butcher shops and the open market will provide plenty of grand specimens, which are in perfect condition for the table.

Four Drumsticks.

Chickens also have their public, particularly in the homes where the family consists of man and wife or parents and one child. Some larger families prefer purchasing a pair of chickens because there are four drumsticks and less likelihood of mutiny at the dinner table. Husbands and boys down through the years retain their desire for a large drumstick, sliced off at the body and served as is, while the women go for the white meat, the breast and the long slabs of solid meat off the flanks.

Demands so far for fowl has been a little slow, although the windows of most butcher shops present a picture that would make a French chef envious and would encourage any connoisseur of fowl to dig down in his pockets and produce the price of a plump hen turkey.

Grain has been plentiful this year and prices low, so that the farmers have served grian generously to the fowl, with the result that turkeys, chickens and geese now appearing on the market are extra choice. Fred Jopling and Harold Lowes claim that there is another improvement noted in turkeys and that is birds with crooked breasts are almost a thing of the past. The farmers by breeding, culling and proper care, and encouraged considerably by educational work of the Dept. of Agriculture have almost eliminated crooked breasts.

Choice hen turkeys will run between 13 and 16 pounds apiece, while young gobblers will go as high as 24 pounds. Geese, ducks and chickens will be available at all weights, with the majority rating the classification of "choice."

Fred Jopling wants twenty tons of turkeys for home demand and to meet orders from Toronto buyers and will be purchasing this week. New Centre will require about a ton alone for city orders while Loblaws, Buehlers, F. and G., Masons, Braunds, A. and P. and Habcco stores will all take a quota. Loblaws have shipped a large quantity of chickens to Toronto recently, although it may seem strange Loblaws sold more geese last Christmas than they did turkeys.

Buyers favor birds with the heads on, and claim that they keep better in this condition when the skin is not broken.

Last year Harold Lowes purchased slightly over 1,400 pounds of turkeys from Miss Minnie Freeburn and seventy choice hens from another farmer.

Mishap In Bush May Cost Eye

(Examiner Correspondence.)

JANETVILLE, Dec. 17. — On Wednesday evening Walter Walker suffered a painful accident while working in the woods. Walker and "Calp" McGill were splitting hardwood in Hildon Johnston's bush, and when doing the last block a splinter flew off the wedge into Walker's left eye.

The victim was rushed to the office of Dr. Gleason in Lindsay for treatment. Dr. Gleason said the steel had pierced the pupil of the eye, and it was doubtful if he would regain his sight.

Cross, who incidentally was the engineer on the A. Wander Company and the last additions to the Western Clock Company and Raybestos Company plants in Peterborough: "If the company were to say to you, here, take the Auburn mill and the land, everything as it stands, and any sum you get for it over $50,000 is yours, how much do you think you'd get out of it?"

"Not a cent," Mr. Cross said after a moment's thought. "In fact that offer wouldn't interest me in the least, because I can't imagine any manufacturer wanting the place."

And to a slightly similar question Mr. Melton replied, although he said he had no authority for the utterance, that he believed Dominion Woollens, if they got an offer of $25,000 or $30,000 for the whole property, would be "very much surprised."

An inference that might have been imagined from the evidence was that in the final analysis of their problem and its eventual solution, figuratively folding the woollen tents and vanishing off to Hespeler, a town that hasn't even sewerage accommodation, was a feeling that the strike hastened the end of Auburn, providing the management with a timely reason aggravated by resulting loss of business to abandon the old stone textile mill.

Building Not Efficient

Mr. Melton said in his evidence and with some emphasis, that the company had realized for years the building was a handicap to economical manufacture, and lacked the light and ventilation employees of today expect and demand. Back in 1919 they attempted to add some efficiency to the place by building an addition embodying factory design of that time, and enlarged it in 1934. Those were efforts "to rehabilitate" the plant, Mr. Melton said, and then during the last two years other problems developed.

A major defect of the central building of the Auburn group, Mr. Cross said, lies in the fact that the pillars supporting the ceilings are not sufficiently far apart to accommodate the machinery made today. That was the main reason for the construction of the two modern additions, Mr. Melton explained. Column spacing in those buildings had been increased. "The cards on the old machines were 48 inches wide as compared with 60 to 72 inches on the new ones," and that meant the pillars were in the way of employees, and efficient operating was impossible. And "the mules built in 1871 were obsolete and out of date." The finishing room was dark and the dye house was damp, and ventilation was inadequate. The stone walls are three feet thick, making the cutting of new windows costly.

Manufacturer's Estimate

In Mr. Melton's evaluation there are only the 1919 and 1934 buildings. "The others have no tangible value from the manufacturing point of view."

The only basis of appraisal Mr. Melton said he could consider was the utility of the buildings. What use could they be put to? What service could they render? And his answer was, none. The old buildings were only a shell, rambling and inefficient.

Mr. Kerr asked Mr. Cross whether he thought the old section would be of any use to a manufacturer who might consider buying the two extensions. The reply was a doubt of suitability as place of storage.

"What would be a reasonable selling value?" Mr. Kerr asked.

"Only what you can get for the place," Mr. Cross answered. "I'm inclined to think no manufacturer would start there unless you gave him the building. Even then I doubt that he'd take it. You might get a manufacturer who needed a building like the newer one, 175 feet by 75 feet, with ground on which to expand."

Mr. Cross said that with all the facilities of transportation today, manufacturers preferred "to manufacture and ship" rather than manufacture and store." The trend has been growing for some years against the old custom of storing.

"Lay out your machinery and group the buildings around it," was the modern idea in factory designing, he added. "You don't try to fit the machinery into the building.

"What would you recommend if the company was offered $40,000 or $50,000?" Mr. Kerr asked.

"I'd certainly recommend that they take it, plant, lands, everything."

Comparative Appraisals

Other evidence showed that the Auburn mill was appraised in 1919 at $132,000 and in 1928 at $247,341, and in the company's books the value was listed in 1936 at $266,706.49. The old Otonabee textile mill on Hunter street was valued at $23,000 as an asset in the company's bookkeeping, and it was assessed at $8,000, but it was sold to the Weston Bread Company by Dominion Woollens for $3,300.

Wm. Tinker and J. K. Sheehy were afternoon witnesses for the city, represented by Mr. Henry, City Solicitor Huycke, City Clerk Armstrong, and M. R. Sloan, assistant assessor.

Hastings Chief Has Last Laugh On Youth Who Once Claimed He Was 21 Years Old

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Dec. 17.—Town Constable William Wellman has the last laugh in a controversy with a young man here, who refused to pay poll tax.

Chief Wellman said the young man had been questioned regarding his age when he had seen him in a beverage room. The youth assured the constable he was 21 and was allow to stay.

When poll taxes came due the young man refused to pay, stating he was not of age. He was given the alternative of discontinuing his practise or paying the tax of $5. Deciding that it would be cheaper to admit the truth, the young man said he was not 21 and as a result is barred from the beverage room.

No Pomp Or Tinsel For Vancouver Mayor

VANCOUVER, Dec. 17.—(CP)—Pomp and ceremony will be "out" at Vancouver's city hall after Mayor-elect Lyle Telford takes office next year.

"I don't believe in it," Dr. Telford, elected chief magistrate Wednesday, said in an interview last night. "We haven't got time to fool around with needless sham."

Questioned regarding the visit of the King and Queen to the city next summer, Dr. Telford, Co-operative Commonwealth Federation member of the British Columbia legislature for Vancouver-East, felt sure "all Vancouver would want to give them a royal welcome."

"We want to give their majesties a welcome without tinsel or sham. I know they will appreciate the conditions under which our people are living and will ask for only a show of love from the heart."

The new mayor will not parade in the robes of his office or wear the chain restored to use by G. C. McGeer, Liberal member of parliament for Vancouver-Burrard who was mayor of the city from 1934-36.

The Philippines Government claims to now have over 6,000 miles of national highways.

The Work of the Liver
In Maintaining Health

You may sacrifice the appendix and gall bladder, and do without a kidney, or even the stomach, but the liver is necessary if life is to continue. The liver filters poisons from the blood and removes an excess of sugar which is stored for use in time of need. It secrets bile which is passed into the intestines to keep them active and to aid digestion.

It is readily seen that once the liver goes wrong there are all sorts of troubles, such as, indigestion, constipation and a poisoning of the system which soon brings pain and suffering and serious disease.

Scores of the most serious diseases are prevented by keeping the liver healthy and active and this can readily be accomplished by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. It is a fine health habit to use one pill a week as a regulator of the liver, kidneys and bowels, making the dose more frequent if found necessary to keep the bowels active.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are for sale by all druggists or The Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Limited, Toronto, Canada.

Eastern Farm Parley Advocated

Surpluses, Low Prices National Worry, That Must Be Solved

TORONTO, Dec. 19 — (CP).—An all-Eastern conference of agricultural and business interests was advocated today by the Ontario chamber of agriculture to bring Eastern Canada into line with the West in seeking ways and means of improving the lot of Canadian farmers and expanding agricultural exports.

The existing situation of large agricultural surpluses and low prices was a national problem, the executive of the O.C.A. declared in a statement issued Saturday. It urged that eastern farmers, businessmen, economists and government heads get together as soon as possible in a meeting similar to last week's marketing conference in Winnipeg.

The executive's recommendation was made after the chamber's delegates to the western conference, R. J. Scott and R. H. Mayberry, reported that Canadian agriculturists face four alternatives:

Reduce production; reduce exports, using the surplus in Canada; reach an international agreement with other exporting countries so that each may be apportioned an equitable share of the world market or, as a last resort, a "free-for-all fight" for existing markets which "no one would win."

Who to Absorb Losses

"The whole problem will have to be attacked from many angles and the finding of a solution will not be easy," the delegates told the executive. "Who is going to carry losses which might arise from reduced production or reduced exports? Canada as a nation or the wheat-producing provinces of the West? It is possible that both reduction of production and exports will figure in the final solution."

The executive statement emphasized the proposed conference would be of a "purely fact-finding" nature, similar to the Winnipeg meeting called by Premier Bracken of Manitoba. The five eastern provincial governments were requested to co-operate with farming and financial interests in making the conference a success.

Commenting upon the results of the Winnipeg meeting, Mr. Scott, president of the United Farmers Co-operative Company, and Mr. Mayberry, vice-president of the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association, said the feeling of the delegates was "overwhelmingly unanimous for national unity and elimination of all issues and viewpoints which would create discord."

They suggested the permanent committee which permier Bracken was empowered to set up to study the possibilities of extending trade should appoint sub-committees on international exchange; interprovincial trade in feed grains and better merchandising methods; industrial uses of farm products; study of the national debt structure and establishment of a western problems research council.

Icy Roads Cause Traffic Crashes

Icy road conditions are considered responsible for a number of traffic accidents in the district over the weekend.

Fred Stevenson, 26 Park street, sustained a cut on the head requiring three stitches to close it when he was knocked off his wheel on Highway No. 7 Saturday evening by a car driven by M. Hartley. The latter was bringing a number of Peterborough hockey players home from Omemee where they had been practising and was meeting another car when the acicdent happened. He did not see the bicyclist and when his car skidded the rider was upset from his wheel which was damaged.

Near the Millbrook turn on Highway 28 Norman McKenzie of Cobourg escaped injury on Saturday afternoon when his car skidded into the ditch. The machine was damaged to some extent.

Allen Warren, Romaine street, is sporting a black eye as the result of his automobile sliding off the icy surface of Highway No. 28 near Rossmount on Saturday. The car rolled over in the ditch and was very badly damaged and Warren was lucky to escape with an injured optic.

Iran has placed on order in Germany for 32 railway engines.

Tot Slumbers In Car While Thief Takes It To Dance

Dunkirk, N.Y., Dec. 19 (AP)

IT TAKES more than an automobile theft to break up the slumber of 16-months old Barbara Abbey. Mr. and Mrs. Gerry Abbey of Westfield left Barbara in their auto while they did some Christmas shopping. When they returned the car and baby were gone. About an hour later, a deputy sheriff arrested a youth as he stepped from the stolen car at a dance hall. Barbara was still sleeping in the back seat.

2 Women, Man Die, 3 Hurt In Curve Crash

CANBORO, Ont., Dec. 19—(CP).—A man and two women were killed when an automobile in which they were riding wavered on a highway curve and struck a heavily-laden transport truck near this hamlet 20 miles south of Hamilton early today. Four other persons were injured.

The dead: Raymond Schihl, 35-year-old Fort Erie railroad worker; Mrs. Sarah Schihl, 45, wife of William Schihl, and Teresa Koabel, 17.

Mary Teresa Schihl, 16, most seriously injured, suffered a fractured skull, concussion, a fractured jaw and broken ribs. Hospital authorities at Dunnville, 7 miles distant, where the injured were taken, feared she would die.

Others hurt were William Schihl, 45, brother of Raymond; William Koabel, 50, driver of the car, and Arthur Collard, a passenger in the truck. Their condition was not thought to be critical. Seven-year-old Anne Irene Schihl, seventh occupant of the motor-car, escaped unhurt.

Swings Wide on Curve

The car was said to have been proceeding east when it swerved to the left and then to the right on approaching a curve. It collided almost head-on with a truck driven by Alfred Crooks, Dunnville. The truck pulled a trailer loaded with a seven-ton well-drilling rig.

The occupants of the automobile were returning to their home at Stevensville, seven miles west of Fort Erie, after visiting friends at Canfield, near Canboro. The crash occurred before the home of Rev. T. Pryce, Baptist minister of Canboro, who aided other Canboro residents in pulling the victims from the wreckage.

Raymond Schihl apparently was killed instantly. Mrs. Schihl died in the rear seat of the car before she could be removed from the wreckage while Miss Koabel died in the Pryce residence.

Child Racket Charged In Canada

Welfare Head Claims Many Adoptions Are Virtually 'Sale'

OTTAWA, Dec. 19.—(CP).— Exploitation of child adoption by racketeers in Canada was charged here by Charlotte Whitton, director of the Canadian Welfare Council.

In an interview yesterday she said there are "adoption brokers" and child-placing rackets which virtually amount to the "sale" of homeless children for commercial gain.

She was commenting on Florence Horsbrugh's attack in the British House of Commons on British adoption practices and the British woman M.P.'s bill to overhaul child adoption laws which was given second reading last Friday.

The belief expressed by Miss Morsbrugh that only societies registered with the government should be empowered to undertake adoption work is in accord with child protection ideals in Canada, Miss Whitton said.

"But although some Canadian provinces have gone far beyond British legislation and practice in child protection and adoption, there is many a slip between the legislation itself and the administration standards set up to achieve its objectives."

Poverty Paves Way.

Miss Whitton says that many poverty-stricken parents who desire better home and care for their children are victims of the adoption racketeers who on receipt of a fee promises to find a home for the children but does not carry out a thorough inquiry before placement.

There have been cases of actual "sale" of children in Canada, she said. Within the last two years cards in windows offering babies for adoption at $35 were displayed in certain streets in at least one Canadian city. Legislation, however, was overcoming such criminal exploitation of infant life.

"The worst enemies of good placement and adoption practice are often the adopting parents themselves. Their natural desire for privacy leads them to an agency working on the 'no questions asked' policy," said Miss Whitton urging that only recognized child protection agencies be patronized.

4 Indian Women, Children Freeze In Hudson Bay Blizzard

OTTAWA, Dec. 19.—(CP).— Officials of the Indian Affairs Branch of the Department of Mines and Resources awaited details to-day from the far north of the deaths of four Indians caught in a blizzard on the south shore of Hudson Bay.

Dr. H. W. Well, director of Indian affairs, telegrapher Dr. D. L. Bell at Sioux Lookout, Ont., to fly into the north to-day if he considered he could do anything for the survivors of the little band. Sioux Lookout is about 450 miles south of the little settlement of Winisk at the mouth of the river of the same name.

Department officials were without definite word whether the physician had taken off to-day. According to meagre details that reached the Department through the Hudson's Bay Company two families of Cree Indians were caught in a blizzard Dec. 13 and two women and two children were frozen to death. Other members of the band were believed suffering from frostbite and exposure.

There are no rado communication facilities in the area, a bleak and frozen stretch of Sparsely wooded muskey 175 miles east of the Manitoba border. Little bands of Cree Indians hunt and trap over several hundred square miles in the neighborhood, living in tepees as their forefathers did, and making a precarious living off the desolate country.

Few Inhabitants

There are few settlements in the district. Indians emerge from the wilderness occasionally to trade at Winisk or at Fort Winisk on Lake Winisk, about 250 miles south of the river mouth.

Department officials at first reported the winter tragedy took place on the west coast of James Bay, which, however, lies a couple of hundred miles to the east of Winisk area.

Essentially hunters, the Crees live on rabbits, fish and other game while they trap for furs to trade with the white men for the staples of life. Department officials who had been in that country said it was a wilderness of muskeg and rock with only a sparse growth of stunted shrub to provide shelter from a blizzard.

It was believed here the victims of the tragedy might have been caught by the sudden blizzard while making the rounds of the family traplines far from the safety of the warm tepee.

Details of the deaths will not be available until the mercy plane returns or until some runner carries the word out from the isolated settlement.

Deputy Sheriff Slain In Kentucky Dispute

HARLAN Ky., Dec. 19—(AP).—A former deputy sheriff, Perry Noe, 34, was dead today, the victim of a fusillade of bullets.

Sheriff Herbert Caywood said John Lee, 40-year-old Highsplint mine foreman, was charged with murder after Noe was killed yesterday on a roalroad track.

Noe, a Harlan anti-labor conspiracy trial defendent, worked as a watchman at the Highsplint coal company, near where the shooting occurred. Le is a Highsplint Mine foreman.

At the labor trial in London, Ky., Noe testified that he had never "shadowed union organizers nor taken part in any other anti-union activities." The trial defendants were charged with conspiring to thwart unionization of coal miners under the Wagner Act.

11 Detroiters Fated To Die By Christmas Eve In Traffic, Half Their Own Carelessness

DETROIT, Dec. 19 (CP) — Eleven Detroit persons, glowing with Christmas spirit, made Christmas preparations today, unaware they will be killed between today and Christmas Eve in traffic accidents, police said today as they studied the death toll of previous years.

Seven will be men, three will be women and one a child. Half will be struck through their own carelessness, the other half will be only partially to blame. Sergeant Kenneth R. Dickinson, traffic expert, said his predictions could be knocked into a cocked hat if people would follow five simple rules:

If you drink, don't walk or drive. Call a cab.

Always look before you cross a street.

Never step out from behind a parked car.

Wear something white at night, or carry a newspaper.

Drive carefully, observing all traffic laws.

Aid for Detroit's safer Christmas campaign came from a traffic slogan contest arranged by police. The slogan adopted was "Santa Suggests Safety." Mrs. M. A. Coan, a Scottish grandmother who never drove an automobile, suggested the slogan.

Taking British Love Of Peace For Weakness—A Blunder, Chamberlain Warns Nazis

Want Germany Partner For Good Of Europe But Get No Encouragement In Berlin, "Ceding No Territory At Rome Conferences"

LONDON, Dec. 19 (CP Cable).—Leaders of the German nation will be making a "tragic blunder" if they mistake British love of peace and willingness to compromise for general weakness, Prime Minister Chamberlain told the House of Commons today.

The Prime Minister reviewed his foreign policy in a speech featured by firmness and plain language not contained in several of his reviews made recently.

Concerning Germany, Mr. Chamberlain said there is no policy in this country to cramp or hamper. On the contrary there is a conviction that unless these strong virile people can be "induced into partnership with others to improve the general lot there will be neither peace nor progress in Europe in the things that make life worth living."

But apparently that spirit on the part of the British nation has not been enough to impress Germany.

"I am still waiting for a sign," Mr. Chamberlain declared, "from those who speak for the German people that they share this desire and that they are prepared to make a contribution to peace which would help them as much as it would help us."

No Change to Make.

The Prime Minister spoke in a debate provoked by a motion of the Labor party attacking the Government's foreign policy. He told the House that if he had to live over the past 18 months he would not change his foreign policy one iota.

Even if the policy failed to bring lasting peace to Europe "I would still say it was right to have tried it because the alternative was war. I certainly would not like to take that responsibility on my shoulders unless faced by the madness of others."

In a passing reference to the Dominions the Prime Minister said they had been fully informed of all aspects of the Government's foreign policy "and we have been rewarded by a general absence of criticism from that part."

Touching on the Anglo-French relationship the Prime Minister referred to recent mutual defence declarations and said they were more significant than formal treaties because they represented the intentions of governments rather than mere words in a document.

Mr. Chamberlain reiterated the Government's intention to refuse belligerent right to General Franco unless the British plan for the withdrawal of volunteers from both sides is accepted. It is true, the Prime Minister said, that Italy has sent troops to the Spanish insurgents, but since October they had not exceeded 200. Then they were only replacements and there had been no increase in the Italian effectives. In his judgment this was not a breach of Premier Mussolini's pledges, on which the Anglo-Italian treaty was made effective.

Giving Nothing Away

Once again Mr. Chamberlain declined to commit himself on the policies he will advocate when he sees Premier Mussolini in Rome in January. He deprecated reports he would hand over British territories

Goering To Meet Chamberlain In Rome

LONDON, Dec. 19 (CP) — Field Marshal Hermann Goering will go to Rome to meet Prime Minister Chamberlain when he is there in January to see Premier Mussolini, the Herald (Labor) reported today. This arrangement was made by Hjalmar Schacht, governor of the Reichsbank, during his visit here last week, the newspaper said.

"It was arranged for Goering to come to London last month," the Daily Herald continued, "but the revolt of public opinion here against the new anti-Jewish persecutions in Germany made the visit impossible.

"But when the premier's visit to Italy was announced, Goering felt it would be possible to meet him there on what Germany considers 'neutral ground.' Mussolini's approval was sought and obtained. Schacht was given the task of proposing the idea in London."

The paper said the meetings of the British, German, and Italian leaders would probably take place at Mussolini's country villa, Rocca Della Caminate.

Schacht's Only Success

"The arrangement of this meeting was Schacht's only success in London," commented the Herald.

Prime Minister Chamberlain meanwhile went before the House of Commons to defend his "appeasement" policy in the last foreign affairs debate of the year.

The debate, scheduled to start about 4 p.m. (11 a.m., EST), was brought about by an opposition motion for a vote of censure stating "this House has no confidence in the foreign policy of His Majesty's government."

German economic thrust to the east, the prime minister's scheduled visit to Rome in January and the Spanish and far eastern situations were among the subjects expected to come under review.

Labor and Liberal members acknowledged that the prime minister would easily defeat the censure motion because of his huge majority in Commons, but they wanted a full airing of foreign affairs before the House recesses Thursday for Christmas.

90 Exclusive Squirrel Hillers Shed Trousers, One Faints As They Yield Bandits $10,000

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 19 (AP)—Clues to the three young gunmen who forced 90 members of an exclusive club to peel off their pants and then frisked their pockets were as scarce today as statements from their perturbed victims.

Witnesses said the trio were masked with handkerchiefs from nose to chin, thwarting identification.

Police reported the cash loot, lugged out of the club in Pittsburgh's Squirrel Hill section, was "between $10,000 and $30,000." The same place was robbed six years ago.

The robbers entered under the unwilling sponsorship of one of the members, with three guns poked in his back.

Inside, the leader mounted a table and commanded:—

"All of you line up against that wall—take off your pants and throw them out in front of you."

The members obeyed, one of them keeling over in a faint.

"Let him lie there, he won't die," snapped the leader.

Ontario's Federal Liberals Present King Vote Of Undoubted Confidence; Hepburn To Read Roebuck From Party

Looking For Judgeship Attacking Me Says Premier

TORONTO, Dec. 19 (CP).—Premier Hepburn said today Arthur W. Roebuck, Liberal member of the Ontario Legislature for Toronto Bellwoods and former Attorney-General, will be read out of the party and his seat in the Assembly moved to the Opposition side of the Chamber at the next Legislative session.

Mr. Roebuck resigned from the Cabinet during disagreement with the Premier over government policy toward the committee for industrial organization, now known as the congress of industrial organizations, during the 1937 strike of automobile workers in Oshawa. He publicly has supported the stand of Prime Minister Mackenzie King in his present dispute with Premier Hepburn.

Since the break with Mr. Hepburn, Mr. Roebuck has been excluded from the Liberal caucus but has retained a seat on the fringe of the party benches in the Legislature.

In announcing the imminent action against his former Minister, the Premier said:

"The trouble with Mr. Roebuck is that he wants a judgeship. When he was a member of my government he was just as hostile as I toward the Federal administration. But now he goes to them hat in hand looking for a judgeship, and, of course, he must attack me."

Windsor To Visit England Early In Spring?

MANCHESTER, Dec. 19 (CP-Havas).—The Manchester Guardian today reported the Duke and Duchess of Windsor may visit England before the King and Queen go to Canada next spring.

"A friend of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor tells me that they will remain in the south of France until the end of February, when they will return to Paris," wrote the London correspondent of the newspaper.

"They intend to come to London next year before the King goes to Canada, but the date has not yet been fixed, nor where they will stay. Fort Belvedere, being a 'grace and favor house,' could at the King's pleasure be at their disposal, but a good deal would have to be done to make it ready for occupation.

"A London hotel might be inconvenient because of the pressure of public interest, but there are possible houses near Windsor. The Duke has, by the way, a room or two at Burkingham Palace, where he keeps uniforms and other possessions.

"The Duke spends a good deal of his time now reading books of a somewhat serious nature, and keeps himself fairly closely informed on foreign and domestic politics. My friend tells me that the Duke looks very fit, younger than he did a couple of years ago, and much calmer and more settled in his outlook."

Absent-minded Miner's Dynamite Almost Leaves Town Dry

Logan, W. Va., Dec. 19 (AP)

THE Saturday night rush was on at the state liquor store. A customer spied a package on the lighted stove and handed it to the clerk in the belief someone left their purchase. Inside the package — apparently left by a forgetful miner — were seven sticks of dynamite.

Germans Drill Ukrainian Storm Troops

LONDON, Dec. 19 — (C.P.-Havas)—Ukrainian Nationalist storm troops are being armed and drilled by German instructors in the Carpathian Ukraine, and the Separatist movement has become serious enough in Poland for Pope Pius XI. to take a hand, The Daily Herald (Labor) reported to-day.

Poland's anxiety over the Ukrainian independence movement is steering it toward the Soviet Union, but it may already be too late for the Poles to escape Czechoslovakia's fate, The Daily Telegraph (Conservative) said.

"Germany's plan is evidently to exploit those autonomist tendencies among the Ukrainians which were already manifest at the time of the peace treaties," the editorial said.

"Its realization would involve dismemberment of Poland and Russia on a grand scale. An autonomous Ukrain bound by ties of gratitude and interest to the German liberator would bring an immense addition to the economic and strategic strength of Germany and provide her with a secure foothold on the Black Sea at Odessa.

"Since Munich, Poland, in particular, has begun to be acutely aware of the danger, and she seems to have been curiously lacking in prescience when she apparently failed to foresee, or at any rate, to guard against such development in the period preceding the Munich crisis."

Open German Aid.

The Herald (Labor) said:

"Poland warns Germany, 'Hands off the Ukraine.' There is no danger of its not being delivered to the correct address.

"Openly aided by Germany Ukrainians are working for formation of an independent Urkainian state from the 500,000 Ukrainians of Ruthenia, the 6,000,000 of Poland, and the 30,000,000 of Soviet Russia.

"Ukrainian Nationalist storm troops, armed and uniformed by Germany, are drilling under German instructors in Chust, the tiny Ruthenian capital.

"The Ukrainian Separatist movement in Poland itself has become serious enough for the Pope to take a hand. His interest is that Poland is the easternmost outpost of the Catholics ,that the Poles and Ukrainians are both Catholic countries, and that any quarrel between them would be to the certain profit of Nazi Germany, bitter enemy of the church."

Feel National Unity Needs Premier's Statesmanship Now

OTTAWA, Dec. 19 (CP). — The Liberal caucus this afternoon adopted a resolution expressing "undoubted confidence" in the leadership of Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

Announcement the resolution was passed came from the secret session of Ontario Liberal Senators, members of parliament and defeated candidates in the last general election as the caucus adjourned for luncheon at 2.05 p.m. after a session of two and a half hours.

At 3 p.m. the members will meet again to continue discussion of the state of the party and particularly the public quarrel between Mr. Mackenzie King and Premier Hepburn of Ontario.

The resolution expressing confidence in the prime minister read:

"In view of the fact that the leadership of the Liberal party in Canada, has been subject of criticism in the province of Ontario, we, the Ontario Liberal members of the Senate and the House of Commons, and the unsuccessful Liberal candidates in the past election, assembled in caucus, desiring that our attitude be made known to Mr. King and the public, have passed the following resolution:

"Resolved that we acknowledge the courageous public service that the prime minister has rendered in the interest of the unity and welfare of all sections and classes of the nation during his long and successful leadership of the party, and that, at this time, when democratic institutions which have been won at great sacrifice are so gravely imperilled, and when our national unity and security sorely need the wisdom and statesmanship displayed by Mr. King throughout his public career, we declare our unbounded confidence in his leadership and, unreservedly, pledge our loyalty, devotion and support for the future."

A committee of seven which left the caucus room at one p.m. finished its deliberations and returned at 1.50 p.m. It was presumed the committee drafted a declaration on some point for submission to the caucus.

Members of the committee were: Charles Cameron, M.P. Hastings South; Senator A. C. Hardy, Leeds; Frederick G. Sanderson, Deputy Speaker of the House, Perth; J. J. Duffus, M.P. Peterborough West; Norman McLarty, M.P. Essex West; J. A. Bradette, M.P. Cochrane, and J. C. McRuer, a candidate in Toronto last election.

When the caucus opened in the Commons Railway Committee Room shortly before noon the only absentees from the 91 persons qualified to attend were absent because of illhealth, Mr. Fraser said.

W. H. Taylor, Liberal member for Norfolk and regular Ontario party chairman, called the meeting to order at 11.15. It was anticipated the first business would be consideration of a resolution of confidence in and loyalty to Mr. Mackenzie King.

Like all party caucuses it was conducted in strict privacy.

Those attending expressed themselves freely on the Hepburn-Mackenzie King crisis as they killed time about the committee room before the caucus was called to order.

Annoyed at Mr. Hepburn.

The impression gathered was that while the Ontario Premier had many friends in the group they were annoyed at Mr. Hepburn for creating a situation tending to raise difficulties within the party.

"Mitch is a fine fellow and I like him very much," said one member, "but he has made things difficult for all of us. He should direct his great political ability to fighting for the party and not against it."

A popular topic among the members was how a split between Federal and Provincial Liberals would affect them in their own constituencies, and whether separate organizations existed or could be conveniently established.

Some felt the Federal Government made a mistake in attacking Premier Hepburn, that he could do less harm by continuing his attacks than would result from an out-and-out break. Others were convinced Mr. Hepburn's tactics were steadily undermining the prestige of the King

Nazi Airforce Branded Instrument Of International Blackmail

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—(AP)—A United States military expert said last night that Germany had made its air force "an instrument of international blackmail" by multiplying the capacity of its aircraft factories.

George Fielding Eliot, former major in the army's intelligence reserve, writing for the Foreign Policy Association, expressed belief that Hitler bargained at the Munich conference with fewer than 3,000 first line planes. He said it was difficult to believe a report Germany had 10,000 planes.

Rather, Eliot contended, Germany contrived to gain superiority over Great Britain and France in the air by its industrial readiness to turn out aerial replacements at the rate of thousands monthly.

"The Munich accord of September 30 served notice on the world that force underlies all international relations as a possible final arbiter," Eliot said. "It also profoundly altered the conditions under which forces may be applied tomorrow in Europe and the world."

Great Britain's air force, Eliot said, "all things considered, is probably the most formidable air arm in Europe—at the outset of any war.

"In training, equipment, command and tactical doctrine it stands very high," he explained. "It's weakness lies in the inability of British industry, without more 'controls,' to replace its planes as rapidly as the integrated German industry can replace German losses."

France, in five years, has sunk from first to sixth place in air power, Eliot asserted.

White Lamp Black For Moccasins— Kid Kidded

"GIVE ME a nickel's worth of white lamp black for my moccasins," a 12-year-old boy here asked a hardware clerk.

"What?" the clerk questioned.

Britain Not Boosting 46 Million Czech Loan, Offers 20 Million Of It As Gift Instead

London, Dec. 19 (AP)

CZECHO-SLOVAK legation officials said today Great Britain had refused to supplement her loan of £10,000,000 ($46,762,500) toCzecho-Slovakia.

One described the action as "repudiation of Prime Minister Chamberlains promise made in the House of Commons on Sept. 3."

Mr. Chamberlain at that time announced Great Britain was "prepared immediately to arrange an advance of £10,000,000" and added: "How this advance will be related to the final figure is for the future."

Czecho-Slovak officials say now Great Britain has told them there will be no addition to the original loan. But the government has offered to make £4,000,000 of the original £10,000,000 loan a straight gift.

Czecho-Slovakia accepted this but said reconstruction within her dwindled territory, following the Munich accord which gave her Sudetenland to Germany, would cost £100,000,000.

Czecho-Slovak officials also said they had failed to get any guarantee of a loan from France but that the latter nation agreed to cancel a 700,000,000-franc ($18,200,000) loan granted Czechoslovakia in 1937.

Europe, Scotland To Greece Shivers Under Blasts Of Snow, Sleet Storms

London At 26 Has Its Coldest Day In 10 Years Ships Fight Gales—17 Below In Prague, And Weatherman Promises Worse To Come

LONDON, Dec. 19 (AP).—Northeast winds from Siberia laden with snow and sleet struck Europe today from Northern Scotland to Southern Greece, sending temperatures tumbling to record lows. Official forecasts said there was even worse coming.

London temperatures dropped from 42 degrees Fahrenheit to 26 in 24 hours, bringing the coldest day in 10 years. Snow fell over Scotland and England as far as South London.

At Hastings, one of Great Britain's warmest south coast resorts, water froze on the beach.

Some of the coldest temperatures, 25 to 30 degrees below zero, were reported from the Carpathian Mountain districts of Eastern Czechoslovakia. In Prague it was 17 below.

The bitter cold was especially unwelcome in Czechoslovakia, because the loss of the rich Sudetenland coalfields to Germany has resulted in a coal shortage.

In Paris yesterday a low of 14 degrees was registered, but there was no snow. Cafe terraces lighted braziers to keep their customers warm.

Berlin reported 22-degree weather while ice-breakers off the north German coast attempted to keep the Baltic free of ice jams.

Ferries and swing bridges in the Netherlands were frozen into inaction and many roads were impassable due to ice. Because of the strong east wind, water was so slow between the mainland and the Frisian islands that no ships could cross.

The Simplon-Orient express was long delayed by blizzards in Yugoslavia.

Lifeboats aided distressed ships off the British coast. Five men were saved from a sinking French schooner near Landsend, Britain's westernmost point.

Ten men on a Hull trawler were rescued after a ship sprang a leak. A wireless message from the Netherlands steamship Alderamin reported one seaman was lost overboard during the storm.

The cold spell gave promise that the usual wet and muddy Christmas of western Europe might give way to traditional picture-postcard snow and holly weather.

U.S., Argentina Work Closer To An Accord

LIMA, Dec. 19 — (A.P.). — Delegates to the Pan-American Conference expressed belief to-day that Alf. M. Landon's speech emphasizing the Monroe Doctrine was highly distasteful to Argentina, which already had differences with the United States on the question of continental solidarity and defence.

A few hours after the speech by the United States delegate, however, Isidoro Ruiz Moreno, chairman of the Argentine delegation, declared "We already have smoothed out some differences and I am sure a complete accord will be reached."

Argentina has been opposing the United States on the matter of continental solidarity ever since the conference opened. She refuses to approve any pact against aggression or any strong declaration that applies only to "outside aggression," claiming the United States is a potential threat to Latin American nations because they have no assurances President Roosevelt's "good neighbor" policy would continue under a different regime.

The Argentine delegates were

Postmaster Attends

A surprise was occasioned when Postmaster General Elliott, who has been seriously ill for nearly a year, entered the caucus chamber at the last minute. It had not been expected Mr. Elliott would be able to attend. He appeared in good health and was warmly greeted by his colleagues.

Mr. Elliott's attendance brought the Ontario cabinet representation to full strength, the others being Transport Minister Howe, Trade Minister Euler and Labor Minister Rogers.

It was Mr. Rogers who brought the quarrel between Mr. Hepburn and the Federal administration as represented by Mr. Mackenzie King out into the open.

Speaking at Port Arthur a week ago Saturday he charged Mr. Hepburn, in an "unnatural political alliance" with Premier Duplessis, was conspiring to remove Mr. Mackenzie King from the leadership and to set up a federal administration more to the liking of the two central provinces.

Among the absentees were Dan McIvor, Fort William; Arthur G. Slaght, Parry Sound; W. H. Moore, Ontario; Ross Macdonald, Brantford City; Sam Factor, Toronto-Scadina; Senators Frank O'Connor, Toronto, George P. Graham, Brockville, Sir Allen Aylesworth, Toronto, and J. H. Spence, North Bruce.

Several of the absentees had indicated their plans to attend but were prevented by illness. Mr. Moore had accepted but came down with a cold and it was stated Mr. Slaght had already arranged to leave tomorrow for the south because of ill health.

Only woman attending the caucus, and the only one of her sex qualified to attend, was Senator Cairine Wilson of Ottawa. She was the first woman in the Canadian Senate and was appointed by Mr. Mackenzie King in 1930.

A "Laughable" Idea

TORONTO, Dec. 19 (CP)—Premier Hepburn of Ontario said today it was "laughable" that federal members of the Liberal party meeting in caucus in Ottawa should propose to read him out of the party. He said he had not been a member of the National Liberal party for nearly two years.

The caucus was called to discuss the state of the party and the present dispute between Mr. Hepburn and Prime Minister Mackenzie King. The premier has said he has lost confidence in the National Liberal leader. The caucus today adopted a resolution expressing "undoubted confidence" in Mr. Mackenzie King's leadership.

Of reports the caucus would read him out of the national party, Premier Hepburn said:

"I have not been a member of the National Liberal party for some time. I refused to attend a meeting of the National Liberal Federation; I have absented myself from all subsequent meetings and on my instructions no member of the provincial party has attended meetings.

"In the light of this situation, the Federal Liberals are just making themselves look foolish. I repeat that I am no longer a member of the national association and I have issued specific instructions that no member of the provincial association should take part in federal activities.

"We are not worrying about what action they may take at Ottawa. It's just a joke as far as we are concerned. I am the leader of the provincial Liberal party and they can't read me out of that."

Wood Found In One Of Town's First Houses Is Used To Make Three Violins By J. Morden

Wood that was used seventy-five years ago and more in the attic of a home located where Braund's new stores are now being erected on Charlotte street, has gone into the making of three violins by John Morden, who conducts a repair shop in the Greene building.

More than ten years ago, when the house that was once known as the William English residence was being torn down, Mr. Morden sauntered through and salvaged some rare curly maple and some spruce. The spruce was used in the house as joists and the maple had been thrown down so that one might walk across the unfinished floor of the attic without falling through the lath and plaster.

The wood had lain there for more than three quarters of a century before Mr. Morden came into possession of it. Two years ago he fashioned a first violin from the wood and found it most satisfactory, using the spruce for the belly of the instrument, the maple for the sides and back. This year he started to work on two more and they are now nearly completed. He intends this week to call in a music teacher for a professional opinion on the playing ability of the instruments. And he still has enough wood left from the old building to make one more violin.

Mr. Morden is a cabinet maker, learned his trade with the old Stanley Piano company, once in business at George and Dalhousie streets. Later he worked for the J. M. Greene Music company. He has fashioned 18 violins now, makes instruments of rare delicacy and precision. It was close to thirty years ago that he made the first one—from an old bedstead, and since then he has been carefully gathering material from old buildings as they are torn down. For the wood that went into construction a century ago was far, far better than any that can be bought at reasonable price nowdays, Mr. Morden said. Add to that the fact that a century of seasoning gives wood perfect quality for instrument construction, and you can see why news of the dismantling of any old building is important to him.

Nearly half a year's labour has gone into the making of the two violins that Mr. Morden is finishing at the present time, although he said he does not work at his hobby steadily, but just "off and on."

Cheese Patrons At Campbellford Vote For Electric Power Plant

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 19.—Patrons of the Ryistone Cheese and Butter Company were of the unanimous opinion that they should install Hydro-Electric power at their plant, and the directors were instructed to take immediate steps to proceed with the work. It was felt that all arrangements should be made before the cheesemaker had secured his full requirements for the year. F. H. Barnum, president of the company who acted chairman, tendered his congratulations to the cheesemaker both for his consistently good work throughout the year and particularly for his having won a prize at the Belleville show, where he faced competition from all parts of the province. He felt that with a little more care at the farms and with some improvement at the factory second grade cheese could be entirely eliminated. W. P. Moore, secretary of the meeting, which had the largest attendance of any factory in this district, urged closer cooperation among the patrons in an endeavor to place the factory in the one hundred per cent. class during the coming season.

A. G. Thompson, manager of the Campbellford branch of the Bank of Commerce, and Dairy Instructor J. A. Murray, both addressed the patrons briefly on financial and dairy matters.

The financial statement for the year disclosed the following figures: Total pounds of milk, 1,934,291; total pounds of cheese, 159,643; total pounds of butterfat, 60,473; total paid to patrons for cheese, $21,572.87; average price received per pound of cheese, 13.51 cents; average milk per pound of cheese, 12.11, average price per pound of butter fat, 30.51 cents; total pounds of whey butter, 4,663; price received for butter, $943.77.

The general purpose of the Rome conversations would be to improve Anglo-Italian relations and understandings through personal contacts and mutual confidences. He said it was an "insult" to suggest that he will "betray any cause or abandon any vital principles or sacrifice any important interests either of this country or of our friends."

He denied reports he intended to cede British Somaliland to Italy. He said "no suggestion" had been made by Italy.

Hugh Dalton, moving the censure motion for Labor, said it was a motion of no-confidence in Mr. Chamberlain "personally." He said the Munich agreement "has unsettled all Europe."

Sir Archibald Sinclair, Liberal leader, declared Chancellor Hitler now is about to move on Memel and the Ukraine and that "the prime minister is still being duped by Mussolini."

Aged Woman Found Dead In Her Bed

Mrs. Mary Cadigan, widow of the late John Cadigan was found dead in bed at her home 125 James street, around 6 o'clock Saturday evening. Eighty-five years of age, she lived alone and had been playing cards at the home of Mrs. Scott, a friend on Friday night and was apparently in the best of health when she left for her home. Her sister-in-law, Mrs. Daniel McMillen who lives at 130 James street, across the street from Mrs. Cadigan noticed on Saturday that the garbage can had not been taken in at the Cadigan home so she went across to investigate and found the front door locked and the key on the inside. The police were called and Mrs. Cadigan was found dead in bed, having apparently died in her sleep, as the bed clothing was not disarranged.

Death was due to natural causes and Dr. Herb Young decided that no inquest would be necessary.

The funeral will be held on Tuesday morning from the funeral home of Lane and Eeano to the Church of the Imacumlate Conception for Requiem High Mass at 9 o'clock. Interment will be at St. Peter's Cemetery.

50 Billions Of Microbes Are Said Lurking Around Christmas Corners Under Mistletoe

DANGER! WARNING! HANDLE CAREFULLY! USE GREAT CARE!

These are some of the signs that might well be placed on a product that is being sold in Peterborough floral shops. But no warning is attached as yet. You just pay your fifteen cents and take your chance with disease and possible death.

You never knew mistletoe was so dangerous, did you? Well, we dunno, we're inclined to be skeptical, too. According to scientists fifty billion microbes are lurking around the Christmas corner and all on account of mistletoe, but what are fifty billion microbes among friends. We'll probably still buy it and stand hopefully under it.

Here's the way it works out. One sprig of mistletoe, placed in a strategic spot, may well average ten kisses. In Peterborough there are some 200 pounds of mistletoe in floral and other shops, or about 5,000 sprigs. That makes a total of 50,000 kisses at least that will change hands —so to speak—in dark corners beneath the mistletoe over the holiday season.

Now Dr. H. H. Pitts of the Vancouver General Hospital Pathological Laboratories was worried about all the kissing that was going on a couple of years ago. At that time, he said that a million bacteria may be exchanged during a single kiss. And 50,000 kisses—more than two apiece for every man, woman and child in Peterborough—multiplied by 1,000,000 bacteria makes 50,000,000,000 germs.

Well, as we said before, we dunno. What with Munich pacts and war talk, maybe under the mistletoe would be a nice place to die.

French Organize To Fight Colony Gift

PARIS, Dec. 19.—(AP)—Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet told the Chamber of Deputies today that "in case of unprovoked aggression all the forces of France—on land, sea and in the air—spontaneously and immediately would be utilized for the defence of Great Britain."

During a brief review of foreign affairs Bonnet indicated that France expects Great Britain to do likewise for her.

"The foundation of our diplomatic actions remains the French-British entent," he said. "If one of the two nations should be the object of unprovoked aggression, the other certainly would not hesitate to come to her aid.

"How could it be otherwise when it is a question of two nations like France and Great Britain whose relations, following the expression of Mr. Chamberlain, 'are so close they surpass simple juridical obligations because they are founded on an identity of interests.'"

A French "no surrender" bloc organized forces to fight what it feared was a plan by Great Britain and France to turn over part or all of British and French Somaliland to Premier Mussolini.

An Offer By Chamberlain.

The bloc, uniting Communists, Royalists and Independent Centrists opposed cession of any East African colonies to Italy.

Members of the group claimed that Prime Minister Chamberlain would go to Rome with such an offer when he visits Mussolini Jan. 11-14.

Mussolini's silence in his Sardinia speech yesterday on the Italian campaign for territorial expansion in the Mediterranean and Red Seas failed to stifle French fears. Some observers believed his silence only meant he was aware of such offers from London and Paris despite denials from officials of both capitals.

Westwood W.I. Holds Christmas Bazaar

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WESTWOOD, Dec. 17 — The Christmas spirit pervaded the December meeting of the Women's Institute on Tuesday afternoon in the town hall. There was a large attendance and the president, Mrs. J. Clysdale, presided.

Dainty Christmas gifts were exchanged by the members, and a number of Christmas hymns and carols were sung with Mrs. F. E. Birdsall at the piano. Interesting current events were read by Mrs. S. MacDonald.

It was announced the January roll call will be a choice of a quilt block pattern or a meat recipe. Arrangements were made to send Christmas cheer to several shut-ins of the community and Christmas cards to the elderly. Plans were discussed to hold a card party on January 27.

A splendid report of the annual Women's Institute convention at the Royal York Hotel in November was given by the delegate, Mrs. Stewart Graham. An appropriate reading entitled "Concerning Christmas" was given by Mrs. William Morris.

Following the meeting a bazaar was held, which was well patronized by the members. The home cooking table was in charge of Misses Mary Birdsall and Edith Bray and a table of miscellaneous articles including aprons, fancy work, etc., was attended by Misses Edna Clysdale and Kathleen Cameron. Afternoon tea was served by the group in charge.

We Noticed

...Dropped shoulders, miniature sleeves, an infinitesimal waistline, and actually—a hoop in your skirt. These are the lovely enough fashion details to make you look as though you'd just stepped out of a 1900 picture frame.

✧ ✧ ✧

That's for you to bear in mind when you explore the shops for a romantic frock to carry you through the gay holiday season when all you'll want to do is dance—and you'll want to wear while dancing a dress that will float over the shiningly reflective floor—a dress equally gracious shagging or doing the Lambeth Walk.

✧ ✧ ✧

Our shop tours this weekend weren't all confined to gift buying—we saw out of the corner of an eye—a slipper satin dress of gleaming black with dropped shoulders, a disappearing waist, and yards of skirts; a taffeta gown in daintiest pink, with corseted waistline, deep decolletage, and ruffled hem, and reflecting in every details of soft-top, swaying skirt and moulded waistline the newest of the season's elegance, a dress of heavy silk faille the lovely shade of amber honey.

Two Plays Are Feature Of Annual Concert

The annual Christmas entertainment of the Murray Street Baptist Church Sunday School was held Friday evening with one of the best attendances for several years.

The program, given under the direction of Dr. A. J. Madill, the Sunday School superintendent, featured as its main numbers "Aunt Carrie's Christmas Carroll" and Adopted by Santa Claus." These plays, directed by Walter Fitzgerald, Marion Wray, and Ruth Ellis, were well chosen and well acted, and the appreciation of the audience was shown by its attention and applause.

Other numbers on the program included a guitar solo by Bobby Frise; selections by the S.S. orchestra, under the leadership of Fred Trotter, and a chorus by the Juvenile Choir. Prizes for regular attendance during the past year were awarded to Kenneth Easson, Ray Yelland, Jack Sutcliffe, Gray Zavitz, Raymond Sutcliffe, Joan Smedmor, Rosaline Lasenby, Thelma Zavitz, Betty Wilson, Norma Smedmor, Sylvia Boorman, Donald Goheen, Verne Whatley, Robert Graham and Kenneth Gillespie.

Certificates for the Temperance course were given to seventeen juniors and thirteen intermediate scholars. White gifts for the needy were given by each individual class in the Sunday School, and gifts of canned goods, fruit, vegetables or money were placed in a box on the platform. These gifts, with donations from church members, will be used to send Christmas cheer to the twenty-five families allotted to the church by the Relief Board.

The evening was brought to a close by a gift to each child of a bag of candies and orange, presented by Santa Claus himself. The thanks of the Sunday School was expressed to the directors of the two plays, Misses Marion Wray and Ruth Ellis, and Walter Fitzgerald and Mr. Tewsley; to Mrs. Pettit for decorating the room; to Mr. Mills and Mr. Ellis for the Christmas tree; to Mr. Valentin, Grant Smedmore and Percy Johnston for the platform arrangements; to Arthur Mann, the genial Santa Claus; and to Fred Trotter for the help of the augmented Sunday School orchestra.

Learn To Say The Right Things The Right Way; Don't Let Your Appearance Become Slovenly And Don't Drop The Lovemaking Of Courtship Days.

IF YOU want your wife to stay in love with you, son—and believe me it is money in your pocket and peace in your life to keep her thinking that she married Prince Charming—take these tips:

First. Don't alibi your own stupidity and laziness and excuse your blunders by sayings that women are a mystery that no one can unriddle, and that no man can tell beforehand which way the cat is going to jump.

Study your wife until you know all of her moods and tenses. Pry into her mental processes until you find the key that works her. No time is better spent by a husband than in getting his wife's number. For it is never what a husband does or says that matters to his wife. It is the way he says or does it that lets him in for tears and reproaches, or the glad hand.

Second. Keep yourself easy on your wife's eyes. Don't think that marriage gives you the right to cut out shaving and go around looking like something the cat brought in and that ought to be buried. If you don't enjoy looking at a woman in a soiled wrapper and with cold cream on her face, think how much less thrill a woman gets out of having to look at a slouchy man with a three-days' stubble of beard on his face.

The old rule that if you want to be kissed you must keep yourself kissable, holds just as true for men as it does for women. Many a wife first begins to wonder what made her do it when her husband starts to sit around home without his collar and in his stocking feet.

Third. Don't cut out the lovemaking. Marriage does not automatically extract a woman's sweet tooth and make her prefer roast beef to chocolate creams. She still has an insatiable appetite for soft talk and wants to be told how beautiful and wonderful she is, and how you would die of grief if anything untoward should happen to her.

Bear in mind that before marriage your wife had many suitors who flattered her and cajoled her and made love to her. Now she has only you, so you must pinch-hit for all of the others. So you should increase the fire and fervor of your love-making instead of letting it peter out. And great will be your reward if you do so, for you can stop a wife's fault-finding with a kiss, and with a kiss shut her eyes so tightly that she will be blind to all of your shortcomings.

Fourth. Use the salve-spreader instead of the hammer in dealing with your wife. No husband can drive his wife an inch, but he can jolly her into going wherever he wishes her to go. Criticism acts on a woman like a mordant does on a dye. It sets her in her opinions and ways.

So, if you want your wife to be a good housekeeper, don't fling her biscuit in her face and ask if she has a government contract for making cannon balls, or tell her that her coffee has enough grounds in it for divorce. Just mildly remark that the bread and coffee are not quite up to her usual standard, and she will break her neck to live up to her reputation. If you want her to be economical, praise her thrift. If you want to cure her bad temper, just tell her how beautiful she looks when she wears that Mona Lisa smile and she will be afraid to say Jack Robinson lest she break it up. Soft soap liberally applied will go further toward keeping a wife happy and contented and believing she drew the matrimonial prize than town and country houses and mink coats and for her husband to possess all the cardinal virtues.

Fifth. Chum up with your wife. Little as you may expect it, your wife married you to get a companion. She wanted a steady date. Somebody who would like to do the things she liked to do, who enjoyed the things she enjoyed. Somebody to play around with. But, more especially, somebody she could talk to endlessly about what she thought and felt and who would talk to her about the things he was interested in.

If you are not going to be that sort of a husband, don't marry, son. If you are not ready to settle down to be a fireside companion, stay single. It is a cruel thing to take a girl out of a happy home and dump her down in a little apartment and leave her to spend her evenings by her lonesome. Don't do that. Don't be one of the husbands who drive their wives to finding companionship in other men and having to go to the movies to get a picture of real home life.

Zimbalist Club Amateur Night Is Well Attended

There was a good attendance at the First Amateur Night Contest given by the Zimbalist Club on Saturday evening. Mr. Fred Skitch was the splendid adjudicator, and Mr. E. Fisher the genial Master of Ceremonies. All the contestants made a fine impression, and were heartily applauded during the hour of entertainment.

Prizes, to be presented on Friday evening, were won by the following: First Mary Jane Wharry, brilliant little nine year old violinist; second, Nancy Spring, ten year old violinist from Lakefield; third, Shirley Ashby and Janet Prophet for the playing of violin duet; fourth, a tie between Ross Cribbis for a piano solo and Ruth Fisher for playing of Christmas Carol on hand-made chimes; fifth, Kenneth Reade, violin solo, David Poulsom, on his hand-made Broomer-uke; sixth, Colin Jack and Donald MacTavish for a very humorous skit; seventh, Pearl Tretheway for the singing of a lovely Foster Melody, and Audrey Lacey, piano solo; eighth, Jack Patterson, violin solo (unaccompanied).

In announcing the winners, Mr. Skitch remarked on the splendid talent shown, and advised every contestant to keep on with his work, and listen to good radio music so that his knowledge in the wonderful art of music might be broadened. Piano accompaniments were provided by Miss Marguerite Rome and Jean McLeod.

"Plain Jane" Is Presented At Grove School

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 19. — "Plain Jane," a tragic operetta composed and directed by Hubert M. Eisdell, won the unreserved approval of a large audience when it was presented in the auditorium at the Lakefield Preparatory School here Friday evening. Mr. Eisdell, who is at present Master of Music at the Grove School, was formerly a star tenor in Queen's Hall, London, England, where he sang under the direction of Sir Edward German, world-famous composer and director.

The operetta formed the second portion of a musical program, the first part of which was a concert performance of selections from Gilbert and Sullivan presented by the Grove Singers under Mr. Eisdell's direction.

K. A. MacKenzie, headmaster, welcomed the guests and introduced Mr. Eisdell who spoke a few words of explanation before announcing the first number—the "Overture to the Pirates of Penzance," played as a piano duet by Mrs. A. Logan Green and Miss M. Widdess of Peterborough.

The second selection was the "Bridesmaids' Song" from "Trial by Jury." It was sung by a choir of feminine voices, made up of Miss Betty Lampman, Mrs. H. F. Ketchum, Mrs. H. Eisdell, Miss Gladys McCorkindale, Mrs. (Rev.) H. R. Howden, Miss Elizabeth Ketchum, Miss O. M. Perry, Miss J. Grahame, Mrs. G. Treby-Robinson and Miss K. Lampman. Mrs. H. R. Howden took the solo.

Selection number three was in two parts and included "A Regular Royal Queen" from "The Gondoliers" and "Pinale of H.M.S. Pinafore" from "H.M.S. Pinafore."

The selections were sung by the full choir with Mrs. H. Eisdell and Miss G. McCorkindale taking the first duet in "A Regular Royal Queen." Mrs. Treby-Robinson and Miss K. Lampman singing the second duet and Mr. John Macaulay rendering the bass solo. The delightful harmony of mixed voices blending in the "Finale of H.M.S. Pinafore" was most enjoyable.

Mrs. H. R. Howden contributed the fourth number, a solo entitled "The Sun Whose Rays" from "The Gondoliers."

A fifth selection "We are Courtiers" also from "The Gondoliers" was sung by a chorus of fourteen lower school boys, who, dressed in school blazers, each with the tiniest of toppers perched precariously over one eye, marched briskly onto the stage, rendered their decidedly amusing number to the delight of all, and disappeared into the crowd.

Mr. Eisdell Sings

The most delightful part of this portion of the program was when Mr. Eisdell favored the audience with the vocal selection entitled, "A Wandering Minstrel, I" from "The Mikado." Mr. Eisdell's rendition of this number expressed to his audience a wealth of feeling ranging from pathos to sheer joy. He was supported by the full chorus.

Miss Gladys McCorkindale, soprano, sang the solo, "Poor Wandering One," from "The Pirates of Penzance." She was supported by full chorus.

"Prithee, Pretty Maiden," from "Patience" was sung as a convincing vocal dialogue with Miss J. Grahame and Mr. John Macaulay taking the leading roles. A mixed chorus, snging bouche fermie, supported them.

The final number on this portion of the program was "The Policeman's Chorus" from "The Pirates of Penzance." It was sung by seven older boys of the school, who making an impressive entrance at the rear of the hall marched up the middle aisle to the stage, where decked with policemen's helmets, they gave their number, to the delight of the audience.

During intermission Mrs. Green and Miss Widdess played a second duet.

The operetta, "Plain Jane," Mr. Eisdell explained, was arranged by himself with the assistance of A. P. Herbert, a writer for "Punch" and a member of the British Parliament, who was a mate of Mr. Eisdell's during the war. A number of Mr. Herbert's extraordinarily clever lyrics were used in the composition of the musical farce

Piano Overture

A short piano overture was played by the composer and the curtain went up on a love scene—laid, curiously enough, around a breakfast table. J. Macaulay, in the role of an exceedingly timid cleric, "The Reverend Frederick Tate," was making love to Miss Jane Surbiton (Miss Gladys McCorkindale) along with Rev. and Mrs. Howden in the roles of Mr. and Mrs. Surbiton, packed plenty of laughs for the audience.

At the conclusion, Headmaster Mr. Mackenzie, on behalf of the Grove Singers, presented Mr. Eisdell with a silver cigarette case, in appreciation of his kindness and patience in training the singers for Friday night's program. In thanking the choir, Mr. Eisdell said: "It was not work for me. I have been in music all my life, and it is a great joy to express the feelings I have in my heart through the voices of my choir, and that is what I have tried to do."

Not Fair To The Leader

There ought to be a better way of finding a seat for the new leader of the Conservative party than having it done by newspaper reports. Mr. Drew has been a leader only a short time and of course he will have to have a seat in the Legislature. The existing Legislature was elected in October of 1937 and therefore has several years to run before there will be a general appeal to the electors. If Mr. Drew is to participate actively in the affairs of the party from the floor of the House—and he should—then some one will have to resign so he can have a seat.

The rumor was in existence a few days ago that Wm. D. Black, the member for Addington, was ready to offer his seat, but Mr. Black made haste to deny any such intention. He has been rather successful in holding that riding, having gone through eight contests safely, although his 1937 majority was but 230.

The next seat-rumor is from East Simcoe, which is occupied by William Finlayson, but which went to the Liberals in the former contest. Mr. Finlayson said he had no knowledge of resigning his seat for the new leader of the party, and if anything of that kind was to be done it would be necessary to call a meeting of the riding executive. Mr. Finlayson did take occasion to say he did not think the seat was what might be called a safe one, as it has changed several times in recent contests, and in 1937 Mr. Finlayson went back with a majority of but 103.

The matter of the sitting member's majority would make little difference as the Liberals would likely allow any seat to go by acclamation if Mr. Drew were willing to accept membership in the Legislature on that basis.

What seat may next be attacked by the rumor route we do not know and it probably makes little difference apart from showing there is not a widespread willingness on the part of members to resign in order that the new leader may be seated. It does seem that securing a seat for the new leader of the Conservative party is something which should be handled by the central association instead of allowing the affair to be bandied about through various ridings. The present method is one which could readily cause considerable embarrassment to Mr. Drew.

From $7.50 To 75 Cents

McKesson & Robbins Incorporated was the name of a firm which had been doing a great business in United States and other countries, including Canada. For some time there has been an investigation going on in New York because $18,000,000 was reported missing from the assets. Evidence showed that some of the subsidiary companies which were supposed to be doing large volumes of trade existed in name only.

Then it was discovered that F. Donald Coster, president of this firm, who had lived for years in an estate home in New England, was a former criminal who had been going through his spectacular career under an assumed name, and when that information came to the surface the man promptly shot himself.

All that of course is known to newspaper readers, but the part which touches the public comes here: On December 7 notice was given that trading in shares of McKesson & Robbins had been suspended on the New York Stock Exchange pending the outcome of the investigation into company affairs. The last trading showed the common stock of the company selling at $7.50 per share.

Latest reports show that although trading is not taking place in the ordinary way, "over-the-counter" sales can and are being made and 75 cents is the prevailing price for these shares. Which means that nine-tenths of their market value has disappeared. And it also means that the people who in the past have been buying and selling these securities had no idea of their positive value apart from the price reflected in the market reports. And this in spite of the fact that never before has United States or our own country had more machinery and methods for the purpose of seeking to protect people against being swindled.

When Things Were "Big"

A court of appeals finding in Montreal based on the rental of a house which was secured some years ago as a home for Sir Henry Thornton when he was head of the C.N.R. serves as a reminder of the manner in which money was being spent at that time.

The house selected was priced at $185,000 but it did not become the outright property of the railway, but there was a rental of $15,725 a year paid for it. And the company was also to make all repairs and pay all the taxes.

It is safe enough to say that no such deal would be made today, but it was made and it indicates that we pass through stages where we do things which in the light of after years—and leaner ones—look like folly in its most extreme degree.

The late Sir Henry Thornton was a great railroader able to tackle a big problem in a big way. His failure came because he did not recognize the financial limitations which are affixed to the railroading business in Canada.

Where You Can Help

There was a letter in the Examiner recently dealing with the distribution of Christmas baskets. The plan which may not be generally known is for the Relief Department to hand its list of names to the ministers of the various churches for which these people have indicated a preference. Added to that there are those families who have managed to keep off relief and for whom it is desired to make provision.

The letter written to this paper states a situation which is undoubtedly accurate. That is that the church with the greater number of comparatively poor families would have the greatest demand made on it for the filling of these baskets, and it would also have the least available means for accomplishing its purpose.

It is something to which people in general can turn their minds and better still their active attention. The ministers of all the churches will have their list of names and they will want help in carrying out their work. So you need not pause to think how you can extend your Christmas efforts outside the famiy circle. There is one way right there waiting for your attention.

Those Senate Vacancies

Ottawa advices say there will be no haste shown in filling vacancies in the Senate of which there are now seven. It is anticipated there will be a Federal election in 1939 and Senate appointments will be made shortly before the election.

The story from Ottawa indicates that selecting members of the Upper House is not a simple matter. There are too many who press their claims for recognition and it is also necessary to keep in mind that the French-Canadian balance has to be maintained as well as the provinces from which members are named. The fact that a man might have all the qualifications for a first-class Senator is not sufficient; he must also be a faithful politician who has rendered acceptable service; he must also be of a certain racial strain to fit in with things as they exist at the moment. And above that he must be able to present his case in such a way that there appears to be no chance for heading him off or causing him to stand in line and wait indefinitely.

And yet nothing has happened because there are seven vacancies in the Senate and nothing would happen if there were 17 or 27 such vacancies. We would get along just as well and save some money.

The Bachelors Rebel

Fourteen bachelors in New York, described as being well-to-do and "eligible," admit they are "fed up" with the custom of the city which stages a great show when the daughter of a wealthy house reaches the standing of a debutante. They had reports that the party which was to formally launch the daughter of one wealthy home into what is called polite society was going to cost $100,000. It is quite likely that the 14 rebelling bachelors would have been on the invitation list.

So they decided to have a "coming out" party of their own, and plans were made to select a girl on whom they would shower the honors. The process of selection was free and easy but it was decided the girl they selected must be one who had to work for a living and who had no family connections which would be recognized in what is called polite society.

The young lady who received approval is Wilma Baard, and she admitted frankly she was born 19 years ago on a barge where her parents lived and where her father worked in the East River. She has been working and studying at the same time and her ambition is that she may become a dress designer. The bachelors admit openly their belief that there are girls outside the wealthy families who have more appearance, more brains and more character, and they are agreed that Wilma Baard has all these qualities in generous measure.

As though to show further defiance of the laws of accredited and recognized society the coming-out party is not going to be staged at one of the admittedly proper hotels, but rather in a humble enough night club which will be taken over for the evening. How far their rebellion against the old order will carry them we do not know, but for the moment they appear determined to show definitely and in an emphatic way that they are disgusted with the present vulgar splurge which accompanies the launching of the daughter of a wealthy home on a social career. We hope the girl who was born on a barge has a good time.

Too Many Operations

Dr. J. J. Golub, director of the Hospital for Joint Diseases, New York, protests against the number of surgical operations which are taking place in United States, and he has been making his views known in October, November and December issues of the official journal of the American Hospital Association.

A wide survey leads Dr. Golub to the conclusion that the number of operations is increasing faster than the population, and he says the increase in operations cannot possibly be due to increased accuracy in diagnosis. His charge is that the lure of high fees has much to do with it as well as the urge to operate; he believes also that a state of emergency is said to exist where none is actually present.

Dr. Golub suggests that in order to meet this situation there should be regional boards for purposes of consultation, and these he believes would protect the general public and also surgeons who desire to abide by the ethics of their profession. Apparently the New York doctor is certain the time is at hand when there is need to close down on the exploiters in the medical profession.

ALWAYS LIKE THIS

(By A. R. K.)

¶ My Cousin Archie's rather queer, when it comes on this time of year, for Archie's rather tight; when Christmas is a good three weeks off, he always starts to whine and scoff, that everything's not right.

¶ He has so many bills to pay, he's pinched for money day to day, he's nothing in the bank; he fears his creditors will come, and point at him a loaded gun, or sock him with a plank.

¶ His business too is not so good, and things don't run like how they should, he'll have to close up yet; he has such debts upon his books, he really doesn't like their looks, and cash is hard to get.

¶ And all the stocks he holds are punk, the whole thing's just a pile of junk, a dead loss so he'd say; he'd like to try and work a plan where he could meet some silly man, and give them all away.

¶ Donations bother Archie too, his brain will bubble and then stew, each day just means more loss; but Archie listens while they talk, and then begins to bolt and balk, but never comes across.

¶ But when the Christmas season's through, then Archie won't be half as blue, feel solid like a rock; before the next year has begun, he'll do what he has always done—put dollars in his sock.

What's Behind Liberal Break?

WHAT IS BEHIND it all? Only the principals really know. Our own guess is that it dates back to the time when Mr Hepburn was first sent to Ottawa. This was in 1926. He was only 30 at the time and he captured a seat which had elected Conservatives for 21 years. He was first elected as an Independent Liberal with the backing of the U.F.O. Ottawa did not take him very seriously, says A. R. Ford in the London Free Press, he was looked upon as just another backbender. He was a little radical in his views and even flirted with the idea of joining the C.C.F. Mr. King and the Liberal leaders tried on occasions to suppress the impulsive youthful member. Then in 1930 despite the Bennett landslide, he was re-elected by a huge majority and this same year the provincial Liberal party, searching for a Moses, picked on Mr. Hepburn. The Ottawa Liberals were amazed at the choice and not very favorable to the selection. Mr. Hepburn, may not have resembled very closely Moses, but he did lead the Liberal party after nearly 30 years of wandering in the desert, into the Promised Land. Ottawa was compelled to take notice of Mr. Hepburn. In the 1935 federal election Mr. Hepburn played a prominent part. He threw himself with all his vigor into the campaign. He toured the West and preached the doctrine that a Liberal party in power at Ottawa, with eight provincial Liberal governments, could best solve the problems of Canada.

* * *

THE LIBERALS swept the country and Mr. Hepburn, perhaps quite naturally, expected to have some say in the choice of Ontario ministers. He urged particularly that his friend, Arthur Slaght be given a Cabinet post. But Mr. King had his own views and he did not propose to take Mr. Hepburn's advice. Mr. Slaght was left out in the cold. That was the beginning of the rift. From that day to this feeling has been growing. When the C.I.O. arose as an issue Mr. Hepburn felt that Ottawa gave him no help. He did not hesitate to say so. Then Mr. Hepburn when he negotiated for additional Quebec power wanted the right to export the surplus to the United States again felt Ottawa let him down. Mr. Hepburn started saying things about Ottawa and its lack of co-operation. Mr. Hepburn chose a curious gathering to make his first open break. In the spring of 1937 addressing the annual meeting of the Life Underwriters' Association he announced he was no longer a Mackenzie King Liberal. Later on President Roosevelt joined with Premier King in opening the Ivy Lea bridge near Kingston. Mr. Hepburn did not attend. A speech was made by Mr. Roosevelt advocating the building of the St. Lawrence waterways scheme. Mr. Hepburn rushed into print with a letter, in which, in none too polite language, he demanded to know Mr. King's policy—"if any". Mr. King politely replied suggested a conference, but Mr. Hepburn was holding no conference with Mr. King.

* * *

THEN CAME the appointment of the Rowell Commission to find some solution for the financial and economic problems of Canada and to lighten the burden on the hard-pressed Western provinces. Mr. Hepburn ignored it and at the same time made several speeches in which he described Ontario as "the milch cow" of Canada and said some things which did not make for good feeling in the West. Mr. Hepburn lost no opportunity to snipe at Ottawa.

This was the situation when the harassed Ottawa ministers could stand it no more, they boiled over. Mr. Hepburn has hit back and now he is going to Australia for two months. We imagine that in Liberal political circles there will be a great sigh of relief. He cannot issue daily statements from the deck of Pacific liners. It will give him a chance to cool and think things over. The public will have time to forget his strange family quarrel and perhaps when he returns it will again be a happy Liberal party. But knowing "Mitch," we doubt it. He does not forget or forgive easily.

In the meantime in the Conservative camps there must be a lot of quiet chuckling. The Stevens quarrel at Ottawa and the rift between Hon. Earl Rowe and Col. George Drew was a heartbreak to the party and probably lost the Conservatives two elections. Now the shoe is on the other foot. Whether the Conservatives can capitalize on this curious and rather amusing situation time alone can tell.

THE ONLY HOPE.

(Manchester Guardian)

THERE is for the Jews no hope of a tolerable life except in escape from the country. It would be rash to assume that the Nazis will do anything to make that easier. From time to time their leaders say that they would be glad to see the last of all the Jews, but they do not act as though they meant it. The Jews, in Hitler's creed, are Germany's "misfortune." He rose to power partly by appealing to the lowest passions on this cry. Germany must have an "enemy" and the Jew is still immensely valuable to the Nazis so long as he remains in Germany. He can always be used, as now, to stimulate the very hatred of which he is the victim. Nevertheless, the one thing that will help is to get as many Jews as possible out of Germany. More than 100,000 have left since Hitler came to power; there remain, since Austria has been absorbed, about 550,000. Last week's events may, as the saying goes, have shocked the conscience of the civilized world, but shocked consciences will not by themselves rescue Jews. Nor will indignation nor protests, however justified; it takes much water to wear away a stone.

• Says Germany Spoiled Her Chance

A LONDON CORRESPONDENT writing in the Christian Science Monitor is of the opinion that Germany by her attack on the Jews has lost whatever chance she had of having other powers return some of the colonies lost by that country following the world war. The letter:

To The Christian Science Monitor:

It may or may not have been true that a little time ago Mr. Neville Chamberlain was preparing his mind to make considerable colonial concessions to Germany as part of a coming general settlement. It is certainly the case that many of his influential supporters were not averse from the idea of handing over British and French dependencies or mandated territories as a contribution to the so-called policy of appeasement.

But any movement in that direction received an abrupt setback from the moment when Germany began its latest frontal assault on its Jewish population. The cry of horror which went up from the whole world was accompanied by a decisive condemnation of the proposal to trust Germany with the care of black subject races.

Edouard Daladier, French Prime Minister, reiterated that France will oppose any inroads upon its colonial empire. Gen. Jan Christian Smuts in South Africa emphatically asserted the Union's determination to hold South West Africa. Meetings in Tanganyika of representative communities with representatives of the East African Indian National Congress, demanded an irrevocable declaration from the British Government that Tanganyika would remain under the British flag. The Joint East Africa Board specially alluded to "the recent events in Germany" as providing additional reasons why there should be no change in the administration.

In Britain it was apparent in the lobbies of the House of Commons that opinion, once favorable for the cession of colonies, was now hardening against it.

In happier circumstances there would be much to be said for giving Germany a share in the control of backward races. The settlement of the Peace Treaties which deprived it entirely of its overseas dependencies was not a wise one—it was one of many injustices which have rankled in the minds of Germans. But two wrongs do not make a right. If it was wrong to deprive Germany of colonies then, when it was preparing to pursue the path of democracy, it would be wrong today to hand them over when its government refuses to mete out elementary justice to its own citizens. What guarantee have we that a Germany which persecutes Jews and Christians, and suppresses all free speech, will refrain from committing similar injustices in Africa, or from raising compulsory levies of colored troops to reproduce in that continent the war atmosphere created in Europe.

THE UNBORN CLAIMED.

(St. Catharines Standard)

AN UNUSUAL CASE revealing, in all its cruel refinement, what the worship of the State means to individuals, is reported of a Canadian young woman who married a German national at Kitchener. By so doing, of course, she became a German citizen as well as the husband. The couple went last summer on a trip to visit the husband's folks in Germany. At the German border on their return, officials discovered that the wife was about to become a mother. Her departure was prevented, because if the child is a boy the State exercises its sovereign claim on him. If a girl, mother and infant will be allowed to leave Germany. The husband is back at work in Kitchener; the wife is still in Germany.

If there is any moral to this incident at all, it is that once out of Germany, a man should stay out. It is presumed that even this German national, resident in Canada finds it difficult to worship the Nazi State.

WELL PLAYED, SIR!

(Edmonton Journal)

THAT spreading murmur that might have been heard in Edmonton last night by a close listener was one of admiration and approval. It was caused by the story of Motorman Peter Packham's reaction to an attempt to hold him up at the point of a gun.

The two young would-be bandits were using a sawed-off .22 rifle. As the motorman went around the back of the car to replace the trolley, which may have been pulled off by his assailants, he saw one of them standing on the track, with the gun pointed at him. "Stick 'em up," said a voice.

"While I swung with my right, I knocked the rifle out of the way with my left."

The men ran away. Packham picked up the gun and let fly in the general direction of the chap who had pointed the gun at him. The gun went off, all right, proving that the hold-up men had meant business.

HIS CASH NO GOOD.

THE St. Marys Journal-Argus reports an unusual case of a man who does not know what to do with his money:

Andrew Woods, Great War veteran and hired man on the farm of Ernie Alderson near Kintore, has several large denomination Polish mark bills, which he is anxious to exchange into real money. He got the bills while serving with the British army in Constantinople after the Great War and at the time of the crisis caused by the late Kemal Ataturk seizing power and threatening to oust the victorious allies from the Dardanelles demilitarized zone. One of the Polish bills is for 50,000 marks and the rest for lesser amounts. It is probable, that Poland like European states has by this time, repudiated this money and thus the paper may now be worthless.

HEATING AND WOOL.

(Niagara Falls Review)

OFTEN we have suggested that nothing happens anywhere in the world without having its repercussions elsewhere. Thus it is interesting to note the plaint of the Australian wool grower that the extention and perfecion of central heating in Great Britain and the United States is reducing the demand for woollen clothing. Nowadays, people are using central heating instead of Australian wool to keep themselves warm, and Australians find it more difficult to sell their wool.

THE COUNTY COUNCIL.

(London Free Press)

COUNTY COUNCILS, like other legislative bodies, have their limitations. But on the whole they are representative of rural Ontario and bring to their tasks the common sense and frugality which distinguish the inhabitants of their communities. They are valuable training schools in the working of the democratic system and on the whole less expensive institutions than more centralized forms of government.

The centralizing influence has gone far in the economic and financial life of the county. The survival of the county council is a valuable check on it in the political field.

MIGHT WORK AGAIN.

THE OFFICE BOY was a smart lad, and recently when he did something particularly meritorious he was summoned before the head of the firm.

"You have done me a good service, my lad," said the great man. "In future your wages will be increased by five shillings weekly."

"Thank you, sir," said the bright little fellow. "I will do my best to be worth it, and to be a good servant to you."

The reply struck the chief almost as much as the lad's previous services had done.

"That's the right spirit, my lad," he said. "In all the years I have been in business no one has ever thanked me in that way. I will make the increase ten shillings. Now, what do you say to that?"

"Well, sir," said the boy, after a moment's hesitation. "would you mind if I said it again?"

CHRISTMAS GIVING.

(Hamilton Spectator)

THE SPIRIT of Christmas, thank God! still survives — even in countries which sternly disapprove of displays of sentiment. The human heart is not to be regimented and tortured out of existence at the behest of dictators, or the poetry of life destroyed in a brutal over-emphasis of racial patriotism. There will be greetings and gift-giving in Germany and Italy, and, if accounts are to be credited, in Russia the essential devotional instincts of the people are reasserting themselves with a return to appealing religious customs that no amount of dragooning have been able to stamp out. It is natural for humanity to feel and respond to the need for love and sympathy.

A PARADOX, ALL RIGHT

(Montreal Gazette)

An Ontario barber who ventured to cut a man's hair for 25 cents instead of the regulation 35c, has been sent to jail for 15 days. This may cause the victim to wonder why a shop may cut the price of a hat from $5 to $3.45 and receive public approval, while he is limited in his cutting to hair. It is a paradox.

To The Editor

A MAN'S RELIGION

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—The construction job on which I have been recently employed being near completion, I find myself again making the rounds in search of work. I was talking to a well known business man of the city for whom I have worked at different times, when a thought struck him and he asked me what my religion was. I mentioned that to which I was brought up, and he said, "That's too bad, because I believe I could have got a job for you if you had said something else."

During the time I have worked for this man the subject had never been mentioned before, which I believe is as it should be.

I begged him to give me more information, but he would say no more, because he thought I'd be disappointed. He didn't know how much a job ment to me and how disappointed I was already, and I left him feeling kind of sick.

I've lived in Peterborough for ten years and have taken the fact that jobs are scarce for granted, without kicking about it, and never getting, or asking for "relief" of any kind. Being single, with no relatives at all, (do you think I'm lucky?) When I work I eat, and when I am idle, well pretty soon I stop eating. At times I have gone without food for days. Of course it means nothing to me whether you believe that or not.

But I could have got steady work if it wasn't for my religion. This is not intended to be a sob story, because I know that there are plenty of people who need work just as badly. But why is the word "Religion" printed on the "application form?" Just why?

"PUZZLED."

Peterborough, Dec. 17.

RIGHT OUT LOUD.

(Ottawa Journal)

MR. BENNETT, evidently concluding that this Hepburn-Duplessis-King fight isn't a private one, wades right into it, and, as usual, with a pretty sharp thrust. "When the Minister of Labor makes a statement that a conspiracy exists," he says, "I expect him to produce the evidence of such a conspiracy at the earliest moment."

What Mr. Bennett means, of course (he has always been a stickler for accuracy), is that when Mr. Rogers used the word "conspiracy" he was guilty of what Mr. Churchill once called a "terminological inexactitude."

There was no conspiracy. A conspiracy means secrecy, subterranean plotting; a sort of private cabal. But there was nothing private or secret about Mr. Hepburn's antagonism towards Mr. King. He shouted it from the housetops; put it into letters and newspaper statements and interviews; once bellowed it into a radio microphone.

The whole business was about as private as the love-making of a gold fish.

THE VALUE OF CHORES.

(St. Marys Journal-Argus)

THE FARM chore was glorified by Dr. John Dearness, oldest living graduate of the University of Western Ontario, who addressed the assembly of students and faculty at the annual prize day exercises. Speaking on "Student Responsibilities," Dr. Dearness emphasized the fact that a sense of responsibility brought boys and girls from the little red school houses of Canada to prominent positions in public life. "From definition, observation and experience," Dr. Dearness said, "blessed be chores!"

Tweed Man Is Given Two Months Upon Charge Of Non-Support

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Dec. 19. — Frank Doran, Tweed, was sentenced on Thursday afternoon, in local Police Court, by Magistrate Lloyd, to two months in jail on a charge of non-support.

Convicted of Theft.

On his own admission while giving testimony as a Crown witness in another case, Lester Coul, cooper, was charged and convicted of the theft of eight chickens in County Police Court on Friday. Sentence was reserved until Monday, however.

Lester Coul, George Coul, and James Gifford, all of Cooper, appeared on the chicken stealing charge.

Gifford, who was represented by Frank Cushing, barrister, pleaded not guilty. After consulting police, Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., admitted that he had no evidence against Gifford. The charge was immediately dismissed against Gifford, who was called as a witness in the charge against George Coul, who also entered a plea of not guilty.

Crown Attorney Donnan requested a conviction of Lester Coul upon his own admission of guilt. Mr. Donnan urged severe punishment be handed down in his case. The matter was enlarged for sentence.

Safety Directors Told No Need For Many Mishaps

Local interest in safety and accident prevention was evidenced by the attendance of J. H. Vernor, Western Clock Co., Ltd., H. A. Cranfield, Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd., H. T. Cranford, Western Clock Co. Ltd., and J. J. Turner, J. J. Turner & Sons Ltd. at a recent meeting of directors of the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations in Toronto when nearly 100 leaders in industry from 21 Ontario towns and cities attended.

A report on the activities of the Central Ontario division of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association for the past quarter was read for W. L. Ferguson, Brinton-Peterborough Carpet Co. Ltd., who was unable to attend the meeting.

"All accidents in the industrial world are preventable, except those caused by lightning and tempest," Earl Hutchinson, vice-chairman of the Ontario Workmen's Compensation Board told the directors.

If those sincerely interested in accident prevention would search deeply enough, he said, the truth of this statement would be proved correct. He urged that industry build all its safety programs and educational work projects on the assumption that man could control all causes of accidents except those caused by lightening and other forces of nature.

John Harold, chairman of the Workmen's Compensation Board, told the meeting that in looking back over the ten months since he had taken over his duties, he regarded the Workmen's Compensation Act as one of the most important ever passed in the history of Ontario's legislature because of the well-planned program of protection to both worker and employer. Mr. Harold lauded the efforts of the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations as an important factor in the board's work.

During the meeting reprts were received on the work of the Central Ontario, Essex-Kent, Wentworth, Western Ontario and Ottawa-St. Lawrence divisions of the accident prevention associations.

Consideratio, was given during the meeting to sections of the Workmen's Compensation Act providing heavy penalties for industries that fail to maintain adequately safe working conditions for their workers. It is hoped that in the next session of the Ontario government, legislation will be introduced giving more authority to enforce proper provision of safety for workers in industry.

Preliminary announcements for the safety convention being held in Toronto next April stated that Mr. Harold would be chief speaker at the opening session and that a "safety exchange" would be conducted at which various officials and company representatives would exchange safety ideas which have proved successful in their industries.

Goodnight Story

By MAX TRELL

KNARF'S curiosity was always getting him in trouble, as I suppose you have discovered by this time. But yesterday he got into trouble in a stranger way than usual. This is how it came about.

Knarf and Hanid had followed the two children they belonged to (for Knarf and Hanid weren't children themselves but only the shadows of children) into the school auditorium where Miss Finch, the music teacher, was seated at the organ.

Now this was the very first time that Knarf had ever heard organ music, or had ever seen anyone play it.

"It's something like a piano, isn't it?" he whispered to Hanid as they walked down the aisle behind the children on their way to their seats.

"It's a little like a piano," the girl-shadow replied. "An organ is different, though. The music comes out of pipes. They're all over the auditorium. There! don't you see them?"

Knarf Sees Them

Knarf looked in the direction in which she was pointing. Sure enough, high up on the wall, in a sort of huge box, were a great many pipes.

"They're really like big wooden whistles," Hanid went on to explain. "You see, every time Miss Finch presses down one of the keys while she's playing, the electricity makes something blow and it blows right through one of those pipes. Then the sound comes out. If it's a little pipe, it makes a high sound."

"And if it's one of those great big pipes?"

"Then it's a deep, rumbling sound."

"Humph!" said the shadow-boy as he glanced at the pipes on the wall again. He didn't seem to believe

I'm going to blow it."

Hanid. The next minute he slipped away.

"Where are you going?" she called after him in alarm.

"I'm just going to take a look at those pipes—I mean, those whistles—myself." With that he hastened to the wall, slid right up it and then squeezed in under the last and biggest of the pipes.

"If this is really nothing but a big whistle," he said to himself, "I'm going to blow it."

He Finds Out!

So he got himself right next to the big pipe, and puffed out his cheeks and was all ready to blow when—my goodness! the air from the organ came rushing up from under the pipe. Before Knarf could catch hold of anything he was swept up. Away he went, higher and higher, turning and twisting head-over-heels, until out he shot at the top of the pipe with a great BO-OO-OM!

"Yes," he agreed when Hanid picked him up again and got him back to his place, "it certainly is a whistle. But what a whistle!"

ROMANCE INC.

BY OREN ARNOLD

CHAPTER 29

IT HAS BEEN said by some wise person that everybody ought to get mildy hurt or sick once a year. Just enough to spend a few days in bed, thinking.

The human animal dislikes to think. If we can be up and doing, physically, we think as little as possible. If we are forced to loll among the pillows with only a vase of flowers to stare at, we sometimes think to avoid boredom. Also, if we are not in actual pain, the thinking is likely to be of good quality.

Dr. Thornton Holgate was no longer in pain.

In fact, he wanted to get up. He had actually gotten out of bed at 7 a. m. this Thursday morning, and started dressing, before a nurse caught him. She put him back down at once.

"But I am all right," he protested.

"You will be all right when Dr. McGill says you are," the nurse countered, and that was that. History shows no tyrants worse than trained nurses.

There were fresh flowers, and so he opened the envelope that came with them.

The little note, with long, slender, slanting hand-writing, should have thrilled him deeply. But instead of that, he was impressed by the obvious fact that the script was affected, unnatural.

It enabled him to conjure up several mental pictures of Geraldine "Peaches" Pomeroy. He wondered how she got that name. "Peaches" sounds cute. Fresh, outdoorish and clean. But Geraldine—

He gave a lot of thought to her—serious, analytical thought. It shocked him some to realize that his ardor for her had cooled. He remembered her being drunk at the dance. He remembered her conversation on the way to Galveston Sunday afternoon—she had delighted in telling off-color jokes. He envisioned her lips, which could be so pretty, or could be so pouty. He wondered if it would be pleasurable to kiss them. Undoubtedly, he decided. Or probably. It was as if he were having a silent argument between himself and himself.

"I seem to have been infatuated by her presence at first," he told himself.

"But your judgment is improving now," his other self answered. "She is not what you thought. You have had a chance to know her more intimately."

"She is kind to me in the hospital, though. I must not be unfair in judging her."

His inner argument might have become more violent if a nurse had not popped in.

"You have a caller," She announced. "Mrs. Davis."

"Oh! Please—may I see her?" Dr. Holgate brightened precepti-bly.

"Surely. Probably you can even go home tomorrow. If you behave."

In her concern for him, Sara Sue assumed that he was still dangerously ill. She overlooked his brightness. Many people are awed by hospitals anyway, and by the fact of a patient's being in bed. She was half an hour learning that Thorny Holgate was practically well, but eventually they were able to converse naturally, without restraint.

"It surely is wonderful to see you getting well," she assured him, repeating it.

"Thank you again, madam. I mean—Sara Sue. I have forgotten my lessons, I fear, ha ha!"

She scowled at him in mock reproof. "You should be punished! But then, you were making progress, when the accident came. I'm real proud of you, Thorny. You actually took Peaches to Galveston! And now you are a hero, and so she thinks still more of you. You could hardly have done better. You are my star pupil."

"I do not wish to be referred to as a hero," he declared, simply.

"I'm very sorry, my dear professuh, but your wishes have nothing to do with that!"

"I beg pardon?"

"Haven't you seen the papers, Thorny? No. Probably they have kept you quiet, of course. Well, Mister Thornton Holgate, Ph. D. you're a hero whether you like it or not, so there! The newspapers—"

She told him all about it. And to verify it, she went into the hospital reading room and brought him recent copies of The Galveston News and of the Houston papers, showing him not only the details of the rescue, but the photographs as well.

He glanced at them with mounting concern, looking from one to the other.

"B-but this is most lamentable! What shall I do? Look!"

"Calm down, Thorny. I told you you were a hero, whether you like it or not."

"But my dear Mrs. Davis—"

"I am not your dear Mrs. Davis. I am Sara Sue. Just as I was before you became famous. You can't go high-hat on me now!"

She felt like bedeviling him. The poor man was truly indignant at the notoriety that had centered on him. He became so disturbed that Sara Sue felt concerned for his health, but she succeeded in convincing him that it would not be detrimental either to reputation or dignity. "After all, an accident is an accident, silly," she laughed at him, "and most people would be delighted to find themselves heroes. People will say you are being affected if you act this way, Thorny.

He hadn't thought of that. Sara Sue knew she had him whipped into line then. He would take his fame as befitted a modest gentleman, without too much ado about it. She, of course, knew he was honest; but a careless public might misunderstand.

"The best thing to do, Thorny, when people ask you about the accident, is to offer no protests, but talk as little as you can. Admit that you were badly frightened in the water, if you were, and—"

"I was! Indeed I was. I thought I should die, Sara Sue!"

"We are all so happy you didn't, Thorny! We—Peaches—will be proud of you. You should have no difficulty making love to her now. But remember that I am still willing to help you every way I can."

"Ah, yes, yes, to be sure. I appreciate what you have done." He said that with no enthusiasm, and was staring vacantly at a wall. "I shall, of course, want to—ah, resume my endeavors as quickly as possible."

"Of course, Thorny." Sara Sue barely murmured the agreement. She bit her lip, and arose to pull a wrinkled spread over him more smoothly. "Do you—find her—still wonderful, and everything?"

"I beg pardon?" He turned to look at her again.

"I mean, aren't you so happy that your romance is progressing as you had hoped? Peaches is—very lovely. Pretty. And I am sure you are worthy of her, too, Thorny!"

"Oh! Well—"

The conversation wasn't moving at all smoothly.

Thornton Holgate was still doing some deep thinking. Before Sara Sue had arrived he had begun to argue with himself about Peaches Pomeroy. And now, with Sara Sue here, the side that didn't like Peaches seemed to have gained strength with him. Notwithstanding the fact that Sara herself joined the argument in Peaches' favor.

It was all very confusing.

"My mind is entirely clear now, though," he stated, surprisingly. Then he caught himself and blushed. But Sara Sue missed the connotation of it. He had meant that the dullness following the accident had passed, and so any blamed on that. But Sara Sue thought he simply was more sure than ever of his love for Peaches Pomeroy.

Dr. McGill came soon, and said that Thornton could go home tomorrow. Sara Sue left, promising to meet him Friday noon when he arrived at Houston, and take him to the dormitories.

He hated to see her go. It left him alone again, to resume arguing with himself. He didn't like it. He missed the subtle perfume and freshness of Sara Sue. He missed the soft, sweet timbre of her voice—which made strangers know a pretty girl was coming even before they actually saw her—and he missed the delightful, fluffy, becoming little girl way she dressed.

"Damn it," he growled to himself, remembering to say "damn", "I am not at all sure that I want to marry Geraldine, or even continue the love making. But I cannot back down now. I cannot be disloyal to Sara Sue, who has helped me so much. She must not think me a quitter. I must see the courtship with Geraldine through."

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, December 20

A DAY of excellent promise for enduring good fortune and stability of the affairs is promised for this day by the mutual as well as the lunar aspects. This program for expansion, achievement and prosperity, following a lull or crystallization, may result from the intervention of an elderly friend or the recognition of sound judgment and industry by a large institution. Investments or stagnant securities may take a spurt, or it may be due to political or public honors.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be congratulated on the advent of a year of great promise for advancement, expanding interests, a stabilizing of the fortunes and the solid recognition and financial support of those in prestige and power. It is a peroid of reaping for past diligence, sagacity and responsibility, with investments increasing and perhaps public rewards for service. It is a time for pushing to such objectives.

A child born on this day may be diligent, dependable, versatile and ambitious, and its merit and sound judgment may win it affluence and public place.

Millbrook Clerk Hasn't Missed Meeting In 30 Years Except When Overseas

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Dec. 19.—An anniversary of peculiar interest, observed on Thursday marked the fact that it ended the twenty-fifth consecutive year during which J. N. McGill had been clerk of Cavan township.

Previous to his appointment as clerk, Mr. McGill had been for five years a member of Cavan Council, and in the entire thirty years, with the exception of four years' service overseas during the World War, he has the exceptional record of never having missed a single meeting of the township council.

Provincial auditors, who come in to go over the township books, have more than once declared that there are no better kept records in the whole province, and not many other books as well kept as those of Cavan municipal proceedings.

Ex-Warden Percy and Mrs. Stinson entertained the clerk at a dinner on Thursday in honor of Major McGill's quarter century anniversary in the clerkship, the other guests including Reeve W. A. Wood, Deputy - Reeve Garnet Shield, Councillors W. W. Brown, H. A. Fallis, and J. Smith, of the Cavan Council; Jas. H. Paul, and Lambert Gibson, township road superintendent.

The manager, Major R. E. Drope gave a report in detail of the year's business. Their manufactured 890,481 pounds of butter at a cost of 2.81 cents per pound, which included everything: gathering, making and marketing, which is considered a record for the province.

Individual Boycott Of Goods Made In Japan Recommended As Only Way Of Stopping War

An individual boycott of Japanese goods was the best way in which the people of friendly nations could move to stop the Sino-Japanese war, H. W. Lore, chinese medical student at the University of Toronto, told a large audience at the Men's Forum in George Street United Church Sunday afternoon in speaking on present day conditions in China. Mr. Lore is resident secretary of the Chinese Students Christian Association, director and secretary of the Toronto Chinese Young's Men Institute and an executive member of the Chinese Patriotic Federation of Ontario and is an eloquent speaker with a fine command of the English language.

Advocating a boycott as the best method to meet the situation the young Chinese student declared that such a plan might stop not only Japan but Germany and Italy in their predatory schemes. Both of those countries had been encouraged in their aggressive policies, he said, because Japan had been allowed to get away with her invasion of China. "Stop one of the three and you stop them all" declared Mr. Lore.

Friendly nations were protesting against the Japanese invasion of China and yet they were assisting the Japanese in their militaristic campaign by supplying them with the materials for making war and also by purchasing the things Japan had to sell.

Are Helping Japan.

Quoting figures that had been issued at Washington the speaker showed that the United States had furnished Japan with over six hundred million dollars worth of raw materials for making war, over 54.4 per cent of the total and the British Empire had contributed slightly over two hundred million dollars worth of 17.5 per cent of the total. At the same time those two countries had purchased 85 per cent of the goods Japan had to sell.

If the peoples of the countries wanted to stop the war, he said all they had to do was to stop buying Japanese goods and as a result the Japanese would have to stop buying the raw materials she needed for military purposes. In 1937 alone, he said, the Japanese had purchased $35,000,000 worth of scrap iron from the United States.

"We Chinese blame no one but ourselves," said Mr. Lore speaking of China's lack of preparedness for the Japanese invasion. "We asked for it in a way."

In explanation he said that China had had lots of warning since western civilization first came to the country and western nations started slicing a piece off here and there, and enforcing treaties and demanding indemnities.

Mr. Lore prefaced his address by remarking that he was not there for the purpose of spreading propaganda against the Japanese "Most countries of the world", he said with a smile, "think that Japan is wrong so there is no use in condemning some one that is already condemned".

A Peace-Loving People.

The speaker said that in spite of the civil wars that had occurred in recent years and that had altered in character since the arrival of western civilization and a realization on the part of the Chinese leaders that might and armaments were necessary the Chinese had always been a peace-loving people. That was partially because of the teaching of Confucius that to train one's son to be a soldier was to disgrace one's family and partially because the Chinese were largely an agricultural race, with a clan system in which all the members of the clan lived in the same district and made a common contribution for educational and other purposes.

Mr. Lore said that he was often asked as to the probable result of the war and in reply he pointed out that China was in better shape financially than was Japan and that the Japanese casualties in the 17 months of conflict had been very heavy, Japan had 700,000 soldiers in China and the speaker did not think that number would be able to hold some four hundred million in control very long.

The speaker was introduced to the meeting by R. J. Goring and was thanked after his interesting address by the chairman C. H. Elliott. In the audience that heard him were many members of the local Chinese colony.

The Far East Has Its Refugees, Too—

Misery is rampant in this photograph of Chinese refugees, made after they had poured by the thousand into the British colony of Hong Kong when word reached them that the Japanese invaders were nearby. More than 60,000 sought sanctuary in the colony in less than twelve hours. Included in the lot were many Chinese soldiers, dressed in civilian clothes, who wished to escape the horror of the war.

Inspector Being Shown Radio Tube Is Missing Also Finds That Transformer Is Still Warm

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 19 — Because a shrewd inspector found a radio transformer was still warm a Trent River merchant paid an extra dollar fine in court here Friday. The man allegedly told the inspector his set was not in use and just to prove it showed him his radio which was minus a tube. It was at this point the man from the department disagreed for he noticed the transformer was still warm. The gentleman paid $4.50 and costs.

In another instance it was pleaded that the radio reception was poor but this did not soften the magistrate's heart and the accused paid $3.00 and costs and was advised to take the matter of reception up with the department. He was assured that if Hydro lines were causing the interference there would be no trouble in having the matter rectified since the department had found all other public utilities willing to cooperate.

Of the others appearing, six were from Campbellford, two from Norham, two from Hastings, five from Trent River, two from Colborne and one each from Codrington, Brighton and Warkworth.

Five traffic cases were also dealt with by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., who presided in one of the busiest courts here in many weeks. It was the new stop sign located at the corner of Front and Mill streets which motorists failed to observe according to Constable G. S. Hardy who entered pleas of guilty on their behalf. Each one payed $2.00 and costs.

Three were charged under the L.C.A. by Provincial Constable D. G. Campbell. A Bonarlaw man paid $10 and costs for being intoxicated at a dance held in Minnie. Also pleading guilty to a charge of intoxication a Warkworth man paid a similar fine.

Man Lost Eye Fixing Furnace

Stooping to fix a furnace, Abraham Youngs, 145 London street, lost the sight from his right eye Saturday when he smashed into the protruding handle of the shaker. He is in St. Joseph's hospital, where his condition is regarded as satisfactory.

The 52-year-old man, member of the Salvation Army band, was employed looking after a number of furnaces throughout the city. On Saturday he went to one of those homes to do his work.

The dimness of the basement, as contrasted to the white glare from the snow outside, is believed to have impaired his vision temporarily. Before his eyes could adjust themselves to the new light, he went at his work, and in the course of it stooped over to empty the ashes, striking his eye with considerable force against the shaker.

Unassisted, he made his way to the Standard Medical and Surgical Clinic, where Dr. J. J. Cragg attended him. He was then taken to St. Joseph's hospital by his son.

Mrs. John Whitfield Heads Society

(Examiner Correspondence.)

SPRINGVILLE, Dec. 19.—The December meeting and annual election of officers for the Springville W.M.S. was held at the home of Miss J. Schaeffer on Wednesday.

Mrs. Hunter, for the worship period, chose the subject "Stars," developing the thought that our lives should be so lived that we may be stars unto the paths of others.

A letter from the relief headquarters in Calgary thanking the society for the bale which was recently sent, was read by the president, and a vote of appreciation from the society was extended to Mr. Melville Johnston, who had so kindly arranged the transportation of the bale to the local station.

The roll call was then taken and responded to by a Christmas verse by 22 ladies.

Mrs. H. Clarke extended an invitation to the society to have the January meeting at her home.

The members were asked to donate candy for the Christmas Tree.

The treasurer reported that the society had reached their allocation of $150 and this was greeted by hearty applause.

A report of the address given by Mrs. Nellie McClung on her recent visit to Peterborough was then given by Miss Schaeffer in a very interesting manner.

Mrs. Hunter gave a short talk on "Things We Should Be Thankful For."

Two tiny tots gave their Christmas recitations; Doreen Bowles' being "My Christmas Giving" and Irma Shaw's "Happy Christmas."

A Christmas poem, "Gifts" was read by Mrs. J. Whitfield. This was followed by a reading "Santa Claus —Who Is He?" by Mrs. M. Johnston.

A pleasing variation of the program was a duet by Mrs. J. Grandy and Miss M. Southam, "Behold the Open Door."

In the absence of Mrs. Brown, Rev. C. L. Brown gave some interesting facts about Christmas in India.

Mrs. Hunter, the retiring president, then spoke in appreciation of the support given her during her term of office and pledged her support to her successor.

Rev. Mr. Brown then took charge of the election of officers. He recommended that another year the society have a nominating committee previously appointed, who would bring in a slate of officers to be presented to the society. In this way those approached have had time to consider their decision and much time is saved.

The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. Jack Whitfield; Vice-President, Mrs. S. S. Staples; Rec. Secretary, Mrs. Oscar Dunford; Treasurer, Miss Jessie Schaeffer; Stewardship, Mrs. C. L. Brown; Literature, Mrs. Harold Rowan; Missionary Monthly, Mrs. Harold Cathcart; Citizenship and Temperance, Mrs. Melville Johnston; Community Friendship, Mrs. William Whitfield; Press Secretary, Mrs. George Whitfield; Superintendent of Mission Band, Miss Jessie Schaeffer; Pianist, Miss Annie Brown; Finance Committee, Mrs. J. Whitfield, Mrs. C. L. Brown, Miss J. Schaeffer; Auditors, Mrs. Harry Brown and Mrs. Albert Bowles.

MORE ABOUT—

French Organize

"no surrender" bloc was these:

First, Chamberlain's visit.

"He goes to negotiate, not just to shake hands," the well-informed commentator Pertinaux wrote, "and in negotiations these days it is the democracies which give, according to his (Prime Minister Chamberlain's) views."

Second, an editorial in the London Times Dec. 17 on Italian claims in French Somaliland declared "that there is certainly room for a new working agreement."

French observers pointed out a somewhat similar Times editorial appeared early in the Sudetenland crisis last fall saying in effect that perhaps Sudetenland should be ceded by Czechoslovakia to Germany.

The Sudeten article was disowned by the foreign office but at the Munich conference the Sudeten regions were ceded by Czechoslovakia and provision made for further territorial concessions to Poland and Hungary.

Third, Premier Daladier's government's insistence that contrary to custom there should be no foreign policy debate when the budget for that ministry is discussed in Parliament to-day.

Opposition members asked if that meant Parliament would have territorial cessions to approve when such debate finally takes place.

Beaver Are Plentiful Around Lindsay

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, Dec. 19.—Game Overseer Hodgson informed The Examiner Saturday that beaver seemed to be very prolific this year. At McLaren's Creek, quite close to the boundary of the town, a colony of beaver had erected their houses, but had later moved away to a new location. In the Killarney Bay district, on Balsam Lake, the animals were plentiful, while for fifteen miles north along Burnt River many colonies existed. Many trees have been felled by the industrious workers.

10 Days For Wine

A nineteen-year-old Peterborough youth faced Magistrate Gee in local police court Friday, and pleaded guilty to a charge of having a quantity of wine in a place other than his residence. The accused was fined $10 and costs or ten days in jail. The youth took the jail term, and requested a reduction in his term in order that he might spend Christmas at his home in the city. This was granted.

Driver Remanded

S. Collins was granted a further remand on two charges—reckless driving and driving while intoxicated. The accused is alleged to have driven his truck over a high embankment into the ditch on the Fenelon Highway, badly damaging the truck.

Ordered Up For Trial

A former county constable was charged with committing perjury at a recent trial of a Kinmount hotelkeeper. The accused was committed for trial. The former officer in his evidence in the case referred to, stated that a bottle of liquor purchased by the accused from the Kinmount hotel proprietor had remained unopened until it had been turned over to Provincial Constable Adair, and that the accused had not given a man named Trumble, who had told him where he could get some liquor, anything to drink. This evidence conflicted with that of Constable Hargrave, as the latter testified that Trumble had been given a drink.

quick to point out that Landon, the Republican Presidential nominee in 1936, did not give such assurances, but that he did give assurances the United States would continue the Monroe Doctrine which Argentina despises.

No Foreign Rule

Landon spoke in a world-wide broadcast last night. The speech was delivered outside the conference hall, but it generally was agreed it would have a definite effect on the conference.

He said the people of the Americas were "horrified and shocked" by the "incredible brutality" of the world on "both sides of us," asserting the United States, regardless of the party in power in Washington, would "not tolerate foreign government gaining a foothold on this continent."

"Agents of totalitarian powers are busy spreading propaganda all over Central America and South America to the effect that these countries cannot count on the continuity of the policy of the United States," Landon said.

"Let me say that there is one policy which the people of the United States have pursued for more than a century regardless of election results. That policy is that the United States will not tolerate any foreign government gaining a foothold on this continent."

The Old Lard Pail

DRESDEN, Ont., Dec. 19 — (CP) —School children hereabouts apparently are evenly divided on the question of carrying their noon lunches in a modern lunch box or the old-fashioned dinner pail made out of a lard pail. A survey discloses half the kids carry lunch boxes; the others lard-bucket pails.

Remorse Causes Suicide

BUCHAREST.—Colonel Vulturescue, chief of staff of the Second Rumanian Army Corps, killed himself in remorse over having caused a serious accident to a dancing companion. Dancing Saturday night with a young society woman in a night club, he accidentally set fire to Mme. Lahovary's cellophane dress.

Lunatics At Large

Car Hits Train Four Persons Have Close Call

Four persons had a narrow escape from death at four o'clock on Saturday afternoon when a car in which they were riding smashed into a southbound freight train at the Canadian National Railways crossing on McDonnel street at Betune.

The car driven by Harry Murray, 305 McDonnel was proceeding east and as he approached Bethune street the freight train started to cross McDonnel. He claimed he was unaware of its approach until he saw it on the crossing. He applied his brakes, but the car skidded into the train and he swung sharply to the right south on Bethune.

Mrs. Murray, a front seat passenger and Grace Alldred, who was in the back seat both received superficial injuries, cuts and bruises on the face and knees. The driver and Alton Manley both escaped uninjured. The two girls were taken into the home of Harold Hamilton on Bethune street and treated by Dr. R. J. Young.

Damage estimated at $200 was done to the car by the collision. The motor was shifted, both headlamps broken and the transmission cracked. The train was in charge of A. R. Hover, conductor and J. Bathgate, engineer.

McDonnel street was quite icy at the time of the accident and the driver of the car claims he did not hear the train bell ringing, although the trainmen report the bell was being sounded.

Chinese Care For Their Unemployed

Speaking at the Men's Forum in George Street United Church Sunday afternoon, H. W. Lore, Chinese medical student, told how the Chinese residents in Toronto looked after their own countrymen who were in need.

There are some 3,000 Chinese in Toronto," he said, "and about 1,000 of these are unemployed. How many do you suppose have sought help from the city relief department? Not more than a dozen."

Mr. Lore explained that the restaurant keepers and laundrymen, too, took care of their countrymen who found themselves without incomes because of the economical conditions.

An inquiry at the local relief office to-day revealed that the same thing applies in Peterborough. Since the depression nearly nine years ago started the distribution of relief on a large scale only one Chinese has been the recipient of public assistance and he only for a short period until he got a job on a highway project and was able to take care of himself again. Any Chinese who may have been in difficulties have been looked after by some of their fellow Chinese in better financial condition.

The Rambling REPORTERS

LIVE GEESE

When Mrs. James Bowen walked into her kitchen on Saturday evening she found a full grown goose doing the Lambeth walk around the room, and she immediately beat a retreat into the living-room where she found her son Fraser standing with a grin on his face and a gun under his arm. He had won the goose at a shooting match. This little scene was reenacted at the home of George Hewitt, who also copped a Christmas dinner at the shooting match. Two girls who telephoned the boys on Sunday expecting to be entertained were told that the boys were very sorry, but they had to take their pet geese out for a Sunday afternoon stroll. The geese will be introduced to the chopping block early this week. It was the first time either boy had tried his luck at a shooting match and both carried off prizes.—McG.

Carol Service Well Attended

The spirit of Christmas swept in waves over close to a thousand people on Sunday evening at the Collegiate auditorium, when the Y.M. C.A. Friendly Hour group staged their annual community carol service.

Every seat in the auditorium and balcony was taken by half-past eight and there was an excited bustle about the place, a gay camaradie. Here were people singing together the songs they love and that brought memories of carefree childhood flooding back to wip out all thought of financial worry, of insecurity, of war hazard. For the night at least they dismissed worry and got down to the business of enjoying life.

Supported by a capable orchestra from George Street Church, the singing took but a few minutes to reach full voice and long applause greeted the conclusion of each number. And there was just enough break in the whole thing to keep it from being monotonous, provided by Soloist Jack Gibson, a ladies' quartette from Murray Street Baptist Church, and an instrumental trio whose members were Stan. and Harry Northrop and Tom Smith. Their audience was an appreciative one to say the least, demanded encore after encore.

It was a wistful, nostalgic feeling that many a grown person experienced when the old familiar "First Noel" was flashed to a screen on the platform to be sung in full voice, with rich enjoyment, by a thousand voices. And the feeling remained when all the other old favorites, like "It Came Upon the Midnight Clear," "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing," "O Little Town of Bethlehem," "Silent Night," and many another, were all included in the program.

George Nicholls was leader of the singing, and he did a good job of it, keeping interest high by varying the singing from time to time, sometimes having the full orchestra accompany the huge choir, then eliminating all but the piano Chairman was Elmer Trethewey, who called upon Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church to pronounce benediction.

Prize Winning Havelock Students

Teachers and parents saw collegiate students march across the platform at Havelock Town Hall last week to end officially their student days in that town. It was the occasion of the High School's annual commencement exercises, with presentation of diplomas, medals and other awards to successful candidates. Howard Harnden (LOWER RIGHT) delivered the valedictory address. He obtained the highest aggregate of marks on graduation. Eileen Brisbin (UPPER RIGHT) won thunderous applause when she was presented with the Dr. J. D. Holdcroft shield for general proficiency. Marjorie Jamieson (LEFT) was presented with the trophy for senior sports championship.

1,400 Children Made Happy At C.G.E. Party

Happiness and safety went hand in hand at the 11th annual Christmas Tree Treat for children of employees in the C.G.E. Company held Saturday afternoon at the Collegiate auditorium. Approximately 1,400 children from babes in arms to husky fourteen year olds were on hand to greet Santa Claus who produced toys and favors for all, from his magic bag.

C. A. Salmonsen, works manager, greeted the crowd which jammed every bit of space in the auditorium, and he voiced a warm welcome to both parents and children.

With the thought of accident prevention ever in his mind he warned the children to exercise care when crossing roads and not to play on the city streets when they are icy. He explained that Christmas has no joy for a family if one of the children is lying in hospital or in bed maimed from a highway accident. To the parents he suggested the same care and foresight should be exercised in the home as in the factory to prevent accidents.

A Happy Gathering.

Happiness was the keynote of the entire proceedings but one could not help but marvel at the smooth-working organization composed of members of the Social and Athletic Club which distributed toys and candy to 1,400 children in a little over an hour, without the least bit of confusion.

The auditorium was carefully policed by a group of ushers and the children and parents moved up the aisle in a single file to the orchestra pit where another corps of 24 men handed out toys, including dolls, games, books and many other fun makers. As the line passed out through the side entrance into the wide connecting aisle, each child received a bag containing an orange, nuts and candies then each was given a chocolate bar and as the last item the boys received a hockey stick.

Ed Hardie, president of the Social and Athletic Club, kept an eye on the proceedings to see that everything was working smoothly, while Bill Bennett, chairman of the entertainment committee, who was directly responsible for the affair, did a fine job. He kept the kiddies informed of Santa's approach, reading several telegrams, and supervised the 50 men who had been recruited for the work. St. John Ambulance men were on hand and placed strategically throughout the crowd, prepared for any emergency.

Santa Claus drove his team of two reindeer drawing a bright red sleigh on to the stage shortly before two o'clock, and greeted the crowd in merry tones. He urged the children to be patient as the toys were being distributed because he had brought plenty for everyone.

Adam Sands and five assistants portrayed the story of the three little pigs and the big bad wolf, blowing down the two houses but failing when he came to the brick one. Later the pigs and the wolf went through a comedy skit with a huge policeman, and the children thoroughly enjoyed it.

Eddie Rowe led the audience in community singing, with Harry Northrop at the piano.

Polar Landscape.

The stage scenery was particularly attractive. It was a polar landscape with the midnight sun in bright hues as a background. Two igloos were shown on an ice field and in front of them several black penguins strutted around. On the left hand side of the stage was a huge Christmas tree loaded with presents.

N. E. Crowe, treasurer of the Association, William Hurrle, secretary, and H. A. Cranfield supervised the operation in a general way, and Mr. Crowe from time to time assured the impatient youngsters in the gallery that there was plenty of toys for everyone, while those downstairs obtained their supply.

Some idea of the amount of toys handed out on Saturday can be gained from the following which shows what was purchased for the occasion. The list included 1,400 bags of candy, 396 hockey sticks, 132 book and crayon sets 48 baby's rattles, 96 honey bears, 84 Scotty dogs, 96 stuffed dolls, 96 wetums dolls, 84 table tennis sets, 96 weaving sets, 72 atomizers, 96 books, 84 trapeze toys and approximately 1,400 chocolate bars.

Children of all employees in the Canadian General Electric Company were eligible from a baby to those of 14 years and under.

Tommy McCabe, supervisor of transportation in the plant had several men with cars to call for and bring back children living on the outskirts of the city, who perhaps would not have been able to attend had they had to walk to the Collegiate.

Dr. Sanderson Is Laid To Rest

TORONTO, Dec. 19.—Representatives of educational circles, insurance business and the board of governors of McMaster University paid tribute on Saturday to Dr. Frank Sanderson, well-known Ontario insurance actuary, at the funeral service held at his residence, 44 Delisle avenue. Lieutenant-Governor Albert Matthews attended by Capt. George Pangman, was among the many prominent citizens present.

Rev. Dr. H. H. Bingham, minister of Walmer Road Baptist Church, where Dr. Sanderson was a member for more than thirty years, referred to the service which he had rendered to the church, the community and to McMaster University as a senator and governor. Chancellor H. P. Whidden of McMaster University, and Rev. W. A. Cameron of Yorkminster Baptist Church assisted in the service.

Pallbearers were: Henry T. Ross, Dr. H. L. MacNeill, Prof. Walter McLay, Professor Fred Tracey, L. K. File and H. H. Blakeman of Kingston. Interment was at Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

Woman Aged 97 Dies In Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 19.—One of this district's oldest residents died in Campbellford on Sunday afternoon after an illness that lasted for the past three or four months. She was Mrs. Jane Gay, who marked her 97th birthday in September.

25 Helpers Are Given Work At Post Office

Twenty-five additional employees have been hired at the Post Office to handle the volume of Christmas mail, and will report for duty on Tuesday and Wednesday of next week, when the letter and parcel mail will have reached its peak in quantity.

Charles Lacheur, postmaster, reported to-day that the citizens are co-operating splendidly in the matter of early mailing and to date the mail has shown quite an increase over corresponding days of last year. He urges that every person mail early and thus avoid disappointment to those who are to receive the mail. No delivery will be made Christmas Day because it falls on Sunday, and any mail not delivered on Saturday will lie in the Post Office until the day after Christmas.

The extra men will be working along with the letter carriers and in the office assisting with the sorting and bundling. All help needed has been obtained, and the men have been notified when they should report.

All letters for delivery in the city should be mailed not later than December 21. next Wednesday.

Every year hundreds of letters find their way to the Dead Letter Office because people fail to put the return address on the envelope. It takes but a second to add your return address, and if this is done and for some reason the letter cannot be delivered, it is returned promptly to the sender.

Many people merely sign Christmas cards or letters with their first name, then forget to put a return address on the envelope. The person to whom it is addressed may have died, may have moved, or perhaps the sender did not address it properly. In any of these events the letter would come back at once to the sender if a return address is given. There is no charge made if a letter is returned.

Air Mail Service.

Air mail delivery is becoming increasingly popular each year, and with the new facilities offered, air mail will be a great help in assisting people in late mailing. Some time may be gained by using air mail if a letter is to reach a distant point before Christmas.

STORY OF CREATION.

"Is the Universe, Including Man, Evolved By Atomic Force?" was the subject of the lesson-sermon for First Church of Christ Scientist on Sunday. The golden text was, "Hearken unto me, O Jacob and Israel, my called; I am he; I am the first, I also am the last. Mine hand also hath laid the foundation of the earth, and my right hand hath spanned the heavens" (Isaiah 48: 12, 13). Selections from the Bible included the following from John 1: 1, 3: "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. All things were made by him; and without him was not any thing made that was made." Correlative citations from the Christian Science textbook included the following: "Spirit, God, has created all in and of Himself. Spirit never created matter. AN ENVIABLE RECORD

The 11th annual Christmas Tree was held by the C.G.E. Social and Athletic Club Saturday afternoon in the Collegiate with 1,400 children getting presents. There was not a hitch in the program, no confusion nor fuss and not even a minor accident. A veteran employee remarked that there had not been even one minor accident since the affairs were started 11 years ago, and during that time approximately 12,000 children have been entertained by the Association.

THREE LIVELY TILTS OPEN THE MEN'S SENIOR CAGE CIRCUIT

Dominions Beat C.G.E. 34-24 As St. John's Trim Hecla And Quakers Bow To St. Paul's

The Senior City Basketball League got off to a start Saturday evening in the Y.M.C.A gym with three exhibition games, showing this season's six teams in action before a good-sized gallery of fans. Hecla, Dominions and St. Paul's battled their way to victories in hard-fought games, rugged in spots, a couple of the wins being in the nature of upsets.

Several players were lost to their squads due to personal fouls in the close-checking and keen competition. Efficient whistle-tooting of Curly Krug kept the contests well in hand. Dominions knocked over the strong C.G.E. crew by a 34-24 count, with St. John's bowing to Hecla by a 30-24 score, and St. Paul's defeated a powerful Quaker gang by a 29-19 tally.

The first game was a lively fray with the score 10-9 for the winning Dominions at the halfway mark. They shaded their opponents the rest of the route but it was stiff going. Vince Holmes with 11 points and Csumrik with nine led the victors while Al Holmes and Cliff Cadd looked best for the Electrics. The teams:

C.G.E: Cadd, G. Hunter, Wilson, Archibald, A. Holmes.

Dominions: Rennie, Grose, V. Holmes, M. Hunter, Weese, Wolstenholme, Csumrik, Dundas.

Strong At Finish

The second session saw Hecla ride to victory on a last-period margin of 19-7, though outscored 17-11 the first part. The Saints lost their ace forward, Bob Dyer, in the second half and couldn't hold the fast-stepping Hecla crew. The scoring was well scattered among the rival players, both outfits showing a lot of class for so early in the season. The teams:

Hecla: Weir, Turner, West, Sedgewick, Dougherty.

St. John's: Dyer, Gillespie, Craig, Clarke, Marshall, Jeffries, Amys, Taylor.

In the final fixture of the night, St. Paul's, down 11-8 at the breathing spell, came on like a steamroller to notch the nod in the late stages with a neat showing. Both teams were strong and rugged, with McArthur getting the gate for four fouls and others having a couple. Joe Jakafby, league high scorer last season, was held to nine points while Thorburn topped the winners with 15. The teams:

Quakers: Thomas, Ellis, Kingdon, Ward, Jakafby, Gadd, Patterson, Ash, Galley.

St. Paul's: Marsh, McIntyre, Ascott, McArthur, McPherson, White, Thorburn, Gemmell.

Referee, W. Ferrie; umpire, Curly Krug; timer, R. Rogow.

Barons, Steam Up Defeat Ramblers

(By the Canadian Press.)

Cleveland Barons were slow in getting up steam, but underway now they apparently are not making any stops.

The Barons, who have not been beaten since December 3 when they lost 4-2 to Syracuse Stars, made it four victories in a row when they took the measure of Philadelphia Ramblers and Providence in International-American Hockey League games during the week-end. The victories sent the Barons into a first-place section tie with the Hershey Bears.

Best the Bears could do during the week-end was a 1-1 tie with Springfield Indians on Saturday. On the same night Pittsburgh Hornets defeated New Haven Eagles 3-2, while Cleveland walloped Ramblers 5-3. Last night the Bears lost 3-0 to New Haven. The Barons topped Providence 4-1, and Ramblers tied Syracuse 4-4.

The Barons defeated the Reds on two goals by Bob Blake, one each by Lorne Duguid and Phil Hergesheimer. The lone Providence tally went to Starr. The game against Ramblers went into overtime with the Barons scoring three in the extra period. Baron scorers were Earl Bartholome with two, and Bob Blake, Hergesheimer, and Harry Currie with one each. Allen scored two for Ramblers, with Barton getting the other.

Ogdensburg, Ottawa, Cornwall and Oswego will play their first home games on May 16 and 17. The completed schedule will be announced next month.

John Ward of Ogdensburg was re-elected treasurer of the circuit, and Judge Rodolphe Danis of Cornwall was chosen vice-president, a new office.

The owners adopted several amendments to the league's constitution, providing for the bonding of the president, placing official scoring under the jurisdiction of the president, and revising regulations governing suspensions and releases of players and managers.

To Play First

PHIL CAVARRETTA

Manager Gabby Hartnett of Chicago Cubs announces Phil Cavarretta, above, will play first base regularly for the Cubs next season, instead of Rip Collins. Phil is a fancy fielder but weak hitter and has in recent years alternated between the outfield, first base and the bench. Hartnett says nothing of his plans for Collins.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

Frank Buckland had a flock of puckists out to Omemee for a bit of a practice Saturday and they did okay, despite shelly ice due to mild weather. Some of the prospects have been skating several times and showed up well, while others will be a little slow hitting their stride. Two goalies worked, Earl McNabb and Whitey Dann—neither Harding nor Clarke being on deck. Red Creighton and Shrimp McDougall had to pass up the practice also. Among the defencemen present were Lorne Grey, Bill Flack, Archie Weir, Joe McNulty, Don Crowe and Cliff Cadd. Neither Shields nor Brady appeared. Forwards included Eddie Starr, Bun Kingdon, Honey Tompkins, Dot Nicholls, Ray Picard, Don Coughlin and Jerry Creighton. The names mentioned above, plus a few others (Jack Gardner will be out, for instance) will provide the material from which the 1939 Petes will be picked.

* * * * * *

The coach was quite pleased with this initial showing and feels he will learn a lot in the exhibition tilt tomorrow eve in Owen Sound. All the Peterborough prospects, who go on the trek, will get a tryout against the Trappers. Buckland learned a few things at the Omemee workout, and says he may be able to spare McNulty from the defence and use him on the wing. "I think we'll have plenty of good material to pick a strong squad from in another week or so," he stated after the drill. And it's beginning to look like some of the newcomers will make fans forget those players who left town.

* * * * * *

Bouncin' Bill Flack

Lorne Grey shapes up like an experienced defenceman, scaling about 170 pounds. He comes from the west and played a season in Germany. Bill Flack was something of a surprise, the 200-pound gridder showing promise on the rearguard. Don Crowe ought to do okay, and Archie Weir should start clicking shortly. Nicholls seems like a swell centre, the ex-Hamiltonian having experience and ability. Can't tell much about Picard for a time yet. Starr, Kingdon and Tompkins are sure bets up front again. Not forgetting Shrimp, Red, Jerry, Don and other good prospects. Only a dozen players are allowed in uniform, but the club can carry a few more in mufti for injury insurance.

* * * * * *

So all in all prospects for the Petes at this stage don't look too terrible. True, the gang may absorb a pasting in Owen Sound tomorrow—as they're playing a good team, which knocked Belleville goofy in 1938 intermediate "A" playdowns—and the Petes are far from in shape yet. But give the locals a couple of weeks stiff drilling and they'll start to roll. The Trenton Fliers are using newcomers this semester, too, and may not click any too well for a time, while the Redmen can't be any better than they think they are! So don't sell the senior "B" Petes short just yet—even with the loss of '38 stars like Calladine, Vitarelli, Barnes, Williamson and Brennan. The latter may turn out with the Petes, yet, too.

* * * * * *

Some Beefy Juniors

Can't say much of the junior prospects here for the time being, on account of they haven't been on ice so far. Though they hope to any day. But the management of both the Colts and Monarchs are hustling around trying to line up likely prospects, and they'll do when hockey time arrives, no doubt. Some sizeable lads will be seen in Monarchs' sweaters, while Bill Jackson figures on draping Colts' uniforms over plenty of beefy boys for their schedule. No Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs' motif! Several of the good P.C.I. team that copped the Junior City Puck Loop title last year will be worth a look when trials commence. And oodles of others, too.

* * * * * *

Here's the Belleville angle: "Frank Buckland, who guided the destinies of Peterborough hockey when it was necessary to develop players and was given the cold shoulder after he produced the material in the raw, was re-engaged as coach of the Petes once again. Buckland was chosen over such applicants as Lornie Rose, Bert McLeod and other veteran players. The only members of last year's group champions left available are Eddie Starr, Bun Kingdon, Honey Tompkins, Shrimp McDougall (the old man river of Peterborough hockey), Arch Weir and one other sub, which is not too impressive." Well, wait until some time elapses.

* * * * * *

Plenty Of Minors

While our three O.H.A. entries are getting straightened away for the season—which, goodness knows, is late enough starting!—many of the minor loops are beginning to square around again, too. Church League and Southend Circuits are lining up, while a district setup may find one or two local entries. School Loop will get going after New Year's, and a couple or three shop leagues will swing into action then, too. The Southend Intermediate League also has a meeting at eight this Wednesday e'en at the Sacred Heart. So some half a hundred hockey teams here will be playing soon.

* * * * * *

New puck rules this year don't seem to bother players, fans or referees much, in the centres where hockey is now being played. Not here, of course. The penalty-shot rule is a bit improved, and so is the order governing minor penalties. While no one but the poor goalie kicks on the smaller crease around the twine tepee. Naturally, the rink custodian, or his assistant, isn't too pleased about having to paint a much wider blue line at either end of the ice—but it's a nice bright daub to gaze upon and should even jolt short-sight puckists to a halt occasionally. The off-side rule is an improvement, too. The game is gradually becoming more and more streamlined and continues to be the fastest sport of 'em all.

North Bay Wins

NORTH BAY, Dec. 19—North Bay Trappers easily defeated Bert Corbeau's junior "B" team from Midland 7 to 0 here last night. Despite the fact that they had only two practices the current edition of the Trappers had too much class for the visitors. Slow ice slowed up the play but it had the opposite effect on the tempers of the players with several fist fights enlivening the proceedings.

With The Boy Scouts

St. Andrew's.

The troop and pack held a joint parents' night on Thursday, at which a good number were present. The evening opened in the usual scout way, after which the cubs put on a jungle dance. The Beaver patrol put on an amusing skit.

During the evening several games were played. Mr. Johnson winning the first; Mrs. Morrison taking the second in demonstrating how to build a box with boxing gloves on.

Mr. Gordon Hill and his scout team won an amusing relay race. Community singing filled up the gaps. Refreshments were served by the mothers' auxiliary. Gifts were bestowed upon Scouter Ingham and Akela Whelan.

A.D.C. E. Wolfe proved an excellent referee during a blindfold boxing contest.

D.C. J. T. Hornsby and Mrs. Hornsby; A.D.C. Lew Grant, and District Cubmaster Gordon Clegg were among those present.

All Saints'.

A new patrol was formed, taking its name from the terror of the north—the Wolves. This patrol is filled mainly by boys who this week entered the troop through the going up ceremony. After their sojourn in the jungle trial, and when their tenderfoot tests have been conquered and they are full invested scouts—Jackie Chambers, Ernie Darling, Walter Wheeler and Amerom Shannon will be able to wear the Leaping Wolf badge on their scout uniform.

The patrol leader of the Wolves is Bob Lacey, late of the Bulldog patrol, while his assistant came from the Eagles in the person of Dick Watkins.

With the strength and determination of the Bulldog and the quick eye of the Eagle this patrol should go ahead.

Rev. Canon Paterson, Rev. Capt. Robinson, and Rover Leader Mr. Cutmore were present and gave the boys a brief message.

With St. John's.

The rover crew heard a fine address from Rev. Mr. Brain, the first of a series of monthly talks. The crew started painting the den furniture, making sure to paint the chairs first, so that no one could sit down and rest.

Allan Hooper and George Green passed their second class first aid tests at which signalling, knotter's badge, and tenderfoot were taken up. At the camp fire the scouter entertained with a yarn.

Thursday night found some of the pack travelling to Port Hope on a goodwill visit. An enjoyable evening was held and new friendships formed.

Friday's meeting was delayed for a while, while the pack did a good turn, after which instruction and games filled the program until Red Flower, at which Akela finished the story of Rikkie-Tiovy-Tari.

Next Friday a Christmas treat will be held. All cubs are asked to be at the parish hall at 5.15 sharp, when supper will be served.

Rover Council

On Monday evening the annual meeting and election of officers of the council was held in the rover headquarters on Simcoe street. The minutes and aims of the council were read by Secretary Ken Brown and the work of the council reviewed by President Peter Dominick.

Skipper G. Groombridge was asked to take over during the election of officers at which Pete Dominick was again elected chairman for the second term.

Walter Dunford was voted secretary-treasurer.

Words of commendation were expressed by William C. English of the local association and District Commisioner J. T. Hornsby.

Soccer Shakeup By Rangers Brings Results

GLASGOW, Dec. 19.—(CP Cable). —Glasgow Rangers' strategy in making wholesale positional changes after their surprising 2 to 1 defeat by Hamilton Academicals last week brought results Saturday. The Scottish League leaders, host to Aberdeen, triumphed over that formidable team 5 to 2.

J. Piddess, moved from righ half to the extreme right-wing position, distinguished himself with a sparkling four-goal performance and Alec Venters, the circuit's leading sharpshotter, notched the other for his twenty-first goal in as many games.

Celtic, last year's champions, stayed in line with the light blues by defeating St. Mirren 3 to 2 at Parkhead. The Celts now trail by three points, two ahead of Hearts, powerful Edinburgh club, who were downed 3 to 2 by Hamilton.

Victorious in four of their last five matches, Partick Thistle held fourth position with a runaway 5 to 2 decision over Falkirk. Queen of South erstwhile leader shares fifth position with Kilmarnock and Hamilton. The Dumfries squad edged out a 3 to 2 verdict over Queen's Park and the Kilties fell 4 to 1 to Clyde.

Hamilton Academicals went into Hearts' lair and climaxed a strong advance with a final-minute tie-breaking goal. Tommy Walker gave Hearts an early lead but the Accies evened the count when McNeo scored. Kennedy put the Accies in front before the half-time whistle. Black scored Hearts' second goal and Wilson counted, seconds before the game ended.

J. Wallace, leading goal scorer on Partick's roster last season,, was the start of the Partick-Falkirk encounter. With the score tied 2 to 2 late in the second half, Wallace performed the hat trick to give his team maximum points. Carruthers and Dawson were Falkirk sharpshooters while McKennan added to the Thistles' total.

Latest In Putters Flashes Red When Off Line

London, Dec. 19 (AP)

ARCHIE COMPSTON has found a man with "the perfect putter."

He is Professor A. M. Low, whose putter is fitted with a delicate red light. When you swing the putter back or forward off the perfect pendulum line, on goes the red light.

Not even Proessor Low hopes that the royal and ancient implements committee will permit the club to be used in competition, but he does contend that it will be invaluable for practice putting.

The professor has also invented a trick pair of spectacles which elongates the ball so that, properly focused, it reaches the hole.

Bulgaria will exploit its iron-ore deposits.

RANGERS DEFEAT LEAFS 3-2 WHILE BRUINS BLANK RED WINGS

Five Shut Outs For Brimsek; Americans Win

By Robert Clarke
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

The rarest thing that can happen in the National Hockey League these days is to have the red light blink behind Goalie Frankie Brimsek of Boston Bruins. In fact, there have been vague murmurings that goal judges working behind Brimsek's cage are becoming slightly bored with the inactivity.

Undoubtedly it would be wide of the truth to lay the remarkable success of the Bruins at Brimsek's door completely, for the Boston team is functioning perfectly as a unit. But there is no gainsaying the fact that the main cog in the unit seems to be Brimsek, a rookie just 23 years old and playing only his second season of professional hockey.

Brought up as the regular net-minder for Bruins only a little more than two weeks ago when Tiny Thompson was sold to Detroit Red Wings, the silent Brimsek has scored five shutouts in the seven games he has goaled since. Six of the games were victories while one was a loss. The loss was one of the two Bruins have suffered this season in 14 games.

Brimsek gained his second straight shutout last night as Bruins downed the Wings 2-0 at Detroit. At the same time, Chicago Black Hawks whipped New York Rangers 5-0 at Chicago to give Mike Karakas his fourth shutout and New York Americans defeated Montreal Canadiens 5-2. In the only Saturday game, the Rangers came through with a 3-2 victory at Toronto over the Maple Leafs.

Last Period Spurt

The Boston victory over Detroit came on goals scored by Defenceman Dit Clapper in the 12th minute of the final period and a last-minute goal by Milt Schmidt. Schmidt's goal really was a gift, however, as the Wings had taken out Thompson with a half-minute to go and put on a forward. Schmidt wafted a long shot that found the Detroit net.

The Black Hawks who showed signs of slipping after a great spurt at the start of the season, smothered the Rangers on goals by Phil Besler, Mush March, Joffre Desilets, Paul Thompson, and Bob Gracie. Besler's goal was his first in the N.H.L. It also was the first goal of the season for Gracie, one of the best marksmen last year with the new disbanded Montreal Maroons.

Rangers, however, managed to remain in a second place tie with Americans six points behind the pace-setting Bruins through their Saturday victory over the Maple Leafs. A second-period goal by Cecil Dillon gave them their victory margin with Dutch Hiller and Alex Shibicky getting the other tallies. Gordon Drillon, league-leading scorer last year, but just back in action after a long lay-off this season because of an injury, scored the first Toronto goal, while Murph Chamberlain got the other.

Canadiens and Americans battled evenly through two periods, but the New Yorkers finally handed the Flying Frenchmen their third straight defeat with a three-goal rally in the last period that was featured by Art Jackson's two goals.

Nels Stewart, Sweeney Schriner, and Hooley Smith each had a goal for the Americans, while Rookie Bill Summerhill and Toe Blake counted for the Canadiens. The Flying Frenchmen and the Wings are deadlocked with nine points for sixth place in the standing, but the Detroiters have a game in hand.

Blind Jumper Hopes To Make Team

Striving gamely to overcome the handicap of blindness, William Kelly, a student at University of Pittsburg, is seen practising the high jump in the university gym. Kelly sustained an injury while playing football in high school that led to the loss of his sight, but, nothing daunted, he now hopes to gain a place on the Pitt track team. Pete Bennett, coaching him, sits at the side, while in the background is the "seeing-eye" dog that leads him around the campus. Kelly gauges his take-off for the jump by counting his steps from the starting point.

Leaders In 1938 Tennis Wars Were Budge, Budge And Budge

By CENTRAL PRESS CANADIAN

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—Two words—Don Budge—tell almost the whole story of international tennis in 1938. For the red-headed California was practically Mr. Tennis himself.

He completely dominated the game and with no more amateur worlds to conquer turned to the professional net and its $75,000 lure.

Budge became the first man in history to make the grand slam in tennis when he won the American, Australian, French and British national titles.

With Baron von Cramm, the German ace, lodged in a German jail, the Californian had soft pickings as he battled his way through a long year.

Not only did he win all the worthwhile titles in sight, but he was the big gun in the American defence of the Davis Cup in the finals against Australia, just as he had been the main factor in winning the cup from England the previous year.

The dramatic highlight of 1938, however, was provided by those two arch-rivals—Helen Wills Moody and Helen Jacobs, who clashed on Wimbledon's famous court in the all-England final, which the former finally won in a battle that ran to the pattern of the more famous duels between the two Beaten by Miss Jacobs at Forest Hill several years ago when she suddenly defaulted because of a back injury, "Queen Helen" capped a 1938 comeback by getting even for that against an opponent who likewise was stricken. Miss Jacobs limped on an injured leg through the final stages of the match, refusing to quit, unable to win and, according to the general impression, unsympathized with at the finish.

"Queen Helen" subsequently retired from tennis again, refusing to play in the American championships at Forest Hills, in which she was a pre-tournament favorite, and probably has been lost from the game for good.

Men's tennis, except for Budge, was considerably below the standard of former years. There were more tennis players than ever but most of the better ones have yet to prove their class as big time artists.

How true this is may be gleaned from the fact that Gene Mako, Budge's doubles partner, met Budge in the finals for the U.S. title. Mako is a great doubles player, but has never been classed as more than good in singles.

Mako and Budge, of course, won the Americans doubles title by beating the Australians, Adrian Quist and John Bromwich in the finals.

Women's tennis was on a par with previous years and there probably was more even competition among the girls than there was among the men.

In the championships over here Alice Marble beat Nancy Wynne of Australia to clinch the singles title, and the same pretty racquet-wielder paired with Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan to win the doubles from Rene Mathieu of France and Jadwiga Jedrzejowska of Poland.

Remember When—

Ernie Schaff defeated Max Baer in a 10-round heavyweight fight at New York eight years ago tonight. Three years later—Feb. 10, 1933—Schaff took a terrific beating from giant Primo Carnera and was carried to his corner while 20,000 fans yelled "fake." He died in hospital four days later.

SPORT SPICE

(By SID FEDER)

By DREW MIDDLETON
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Dec. 19—(AP).—Tommy Farr is still is in the beak-busting business. . . . He claimed a week ago he'd retire if Lou Nova beat him . . . But now he's thinking of touring South America, meeting all comers . . . Reason: 'He didn't beat me bad enough." . . . Joe Louis followed his observation that Nova looked "mighty good" by wondering whether the Californian always cocked his left. . . . "Looks like a good, sharp hitter might find a hole there," the champion opined . . . Qualified statisticians insist Sam Snead's money winnings this season—just short of $20,000—does not constitute a new one-year record for a pro golfer . . . They say Sarazen won more than $21,000 in 1930, the year Eugene Hauled down $10,000 for first prize in the Agua Caliente pen . . .

Arn Herber, the Green Bay Packers' back opened a men's clothing store at West De Pere, Mis., just before the football season started . . . Understand he sold his coach, Curly Lambeau, straight jacket just after the second Giant game . . . Don Budge claims his running backhand, his most unorthdox but also one of his strongest shots, is a holdover from his days as an indoor baseball player . . . "I was a lefty and I used to take a little run at the ball before I swung," said J. Donald . . . "This is practically the same effect as the backhand." . . .

Much moaning about town over Giants' infield . . . "That Myatt at third base ran halfway across the diamond to throw last year," said one of the abler experts. . . . "With Bonura on first he'll have to run all the way across and hand the ball to him." . . . Dick Metz, the handsome Chicago golf pro who recently completed a "short," is flirting with an offer to make a full length screen drama. . . .

Joe Louis is in town, and in A-1 shape—Been in the country for six weeks doing light work. . . . And scales only 207, plenty under the poundage he usually packs between fights. . . . Incidentally, Joe "scouted" Nova last night against Farr . . . . And got a great big eye-ful. . . . Looks like the Brownies are gonna have contract trouble with Buck Newsom. . . . He's howling for $20,000 for '39—and they're offering 15. . . .

There's a "Jimmy Dykes" on the Miami News sports staff. . . . Now if he smokes cigars, you won't know the difference between him and the White Sox boss. . . . The fight crowd can't understand why Tommy Loughran is campaigning Matt Raymond, the ex-Duke University lad, as a heavyweight — when he weighs only 164. . . .

Tiger Jack Fox is out of the hospital—and probably will tangle with Mello Bettina for the lightheavy crown (New York version) in January, just as soon as those knife wounds disappear. . . . Fred Bainbridge, who hails from Sweeny, Texas—"where the oil wells are 10,000 feet deep and we dig 'em in 45 days"—writes that Willie Lapalac on the little Belleville High grid team down that-a-away scored 245 points by himself this season. . . . Tie that, boys.

This Ex-Maroon Is Doing Well

Turning in a steady game at left wing for Canadiens in the National League is Herbie Cain (ABOVE). Herbie was a Maroon last year, and since that team folded has been one of the best of the players traded to other clubs in the loop. He is among the league's leading scorers and sank the goal that broke Frank Brimsek's recent shutout string.

Lou Nova Wants Baer Next,

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—(AP)—Sad but true, the heavyweight boxing situation once more is in the large, playful paws of Maxmilian Baer.

Max is the only heavyweight, outside of Champion Joe Louis, capable of making a good match for Lou Nova. Nova became the division's man of destiny Friday night when he whipped Tommy Farr.

If Lou beats Baer he will have cleaned up the field with the exception of the barrel-built Tony Galento and can move into a title bout with the best record of any challenger.

Should Baer win, Mike Jacobs' oratory and the silent but strong pull of a large wad of greenbacks will bring Baer and Louis together again. Nor is this too distant a possibility. Baer has beaten better men than Nova.

Lou is especially anxious to meet Baer. Before leaving for his home in California and Christmas dinner with his wife he pleaded with Jacobs, "Get Baer for me, I'm ready for him."

"Yeah, I know I haven't fought a hitter like him, but I'd make him miss," he continued. "I'd fight him like Louis did. Let him laugh and clown around. I'd keep jabbing him and I'd keep piling up points. I can beat him."

No Night Ball For Either Yanks Or Giants

NEW YORK, Dec. 19—(AP)— In this town which prides itself that everything does or can happen under its many Mazdas, night baseball has encountered two stubborn holdouts.

New York Yankees of the American League and New York Giants of the National League, emphasizing that each arrived at the decision independently, let it be known today they will not play under the lights next season.

The action of the Yankees, coming within a few days of the American League meeting which approved night ball, was a surprise because Manager Joe McCarthy had never expressed any opposition to it.

On the other hand Bill Terry had never let his Giants glow after dark and Major Domo Leland Stanford MacPhail of Brooklyn Dodgers already anticipated a continuance of this policy by giving Cincinnati two dates next season to fill the Giants' gap.

New American games will be introduced into Venezuela.

May Exchange Ball Uniforms

The major league baseball trading pot is simmering these days as managers and executives gather at various meetings, and one of the rumored trades involves Pete Fox (LEFT), outfielder with Detroit Tigers, and Odell Hale (RIGHT), Cleveland Indians' third-baseman. The two clubs were said to be considering a straight trade of the two players.

SUCEE.—In loving memory of our dear Mother, Mrs. R. Sucee, who passed away two years ago to-day, December 19, 1936.

As I gaze on your picture that hangs on the wall,
Your smile and your welcome I often recall;
I miss you and mourn you in silence unseen,
And dwell on the memories of days that have been.
Dear is the grave where Mother is laid,
Sweet is the memory that never will fade;
Flowers may wither, leaves fade and die;
If some do forget you, never will we.

Then, Oh Master, let me have her
And love her as I did before.

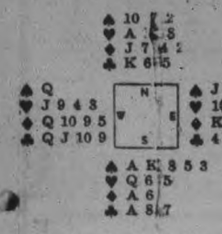
WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

FORSAKE YOUR HUNCH

HUNCHES ARE all right when you have nothing else to trust. But your guess regarding a situation should be disregarded if you have available some course of action which is bound to work no matter whether your idea is right or wrong. In other words, prefer a sure thing to a brilliant guess at all times.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

South bid 1-Spade on this deal, North went to 2-No Trump, South rebid Spades and North went to 4-Spades.

The club Q was led by West and when the dummy was exposed declarer realized he would have to lose a club and a diamond, so that he could afford to lose only one trick in trumps.

After winning the first trick with the club A, he laid down the spade A and when West dropped the Q, South, who knew him as an inverterate false-carder, figured he also held the J. He therefore played the K on the third trick and when he did he was set.

Declarer's safest play, even if West also held the J, was to have played low to the 10. That play would have disclosed that the remaining trumps were bunched in the East hand. When East then cashed the J, a finesse could have been taken through the 9-6.

Another Professor?

EVANSTON, Ill., Dec. 19—(AP)—They chalked up another mark against the mythical absent-minded professor today. A well-dressed, elderly man carefully deposited 200 stamped and addressed envelopes in the waste paper box in Fountain Square. Passerby notified policeman Lowell Peterson who retrived the envelopes, apparently containing Christmas cards. "Probably some absent minded Northwestern University professor," said Peterson as he stuffed the letters in a mail box.

Turkeys Plentiful On Market, Price Ranges From 22 to 30; Geese 20-25, Chickens 16-17

Saturday's market focussed its attention on turkeys and their price, immediate and prospective for the week of Yule. Buyers went to market wondering whether they should buy their Christmas bird at once or wait until next Wednesday or Saturday in the expectation of saving a thin dime or two at the expense of the farmers who have been watching the turkeys, and also the geese, grow big and fat for many weeks.

The producers on their part loaded the benches with as attractive a display of fowl as the market has ever seen. From the trend of prices Saturday, from 30 cents the pound down to 22 cents, the outlay for the Christmas dinner shouldn't strain the bank roll of those who can afford to buy turkeys, and it seems unlikely that there will be any substantial recovery in price this week. In brief, it is rather improbable that the quotations will move up toward the thirty cent level. They are likely to be weak and uncertain at the twenty-five cent figure.

The bulk of the turkeys that were sold on Saturday cost the consumer 25 cents a pound. A few had started at 30 cents, then dropped to 28 cents, next twenty-five where it found most strength, although at the noon hour sellers were conceding another two cents to the 23 cents level.

One buyer said he took the first turkey he priced, a thirteen pounder at 22 cents a pound, and hustled home with it.

Recalls Peak Prices.

George Mullen of Smith township recalled to the Examiner those golden and becoming olden days when he paid farmers 58 cents a pound for turkeys on which he had a commission for the Toronto market.

"One man drove up to the house with his turkeys in a small democrat," the former reeve of Smith said. "You wouldn't think he had anything of value on it, but he had brought me his flock of turkeys and I paid him $324 for the lot."

Those 58-cent turkeys probably acquired a delicate taste in the realization by the consumer that he was paying an all-time high, but next Sunday's "boids" will probably taste even sweeter at 25 cents or less. People collectively agree they would like to see the farmers getting higher prices, but the individual buyer in most instances subscribes not to sentiment but to basic economic principles such as the law of supply and demand.

Plump geese ranged from 20 cents a pound up to 25 cents, and from 11 to 12 you could buy the best looking goose on the boards at 20 cents. And they looked as if they had summered well on pleasent shallow streams, with attention to their final stage of filling out, eventually to be sold down the scale not so far above the current price of hamburger or bologna (boloney in the Hall of Wisdom).

Ducks held their heads up at 20 cents and didn't weaken. They were comparatively few, most of them going at around 90 cents a duck, and the morning's offering getting only slight attention. Chickens had receded from their price levels of recent Saturdays to 16 and 17 cents.

Butter Price Steady.

Butter sold at 23 to 25 cents and eggs from 27 to 35 cents, with ample supplies of both for the morning's requirements.

The holiday season produced a jester to fit into the scene of holly and evergreen trees, turkeys, cider, and so on, a stout chap with two tiny dolls dancing on a black fabricoid mat. It seemed to add a merry note to the market, goofy, too, when you think of grown up men and women standing around that circle for fifteen minutes or more interested in the surprising antics of the two miniature figures. That incongruous note at a busy corner of the market assumed a discordant tone when it was noticed that the cheap and gay little dolls were made in Japan.

Cobblers at $1.00.

On the outside market Harold Doig quoted Irish Cobbler potatoes at $1 a bag, a decline from the prices of the last month or two; he also had Northern Spy apples at $1.25 a hamper; parsnips at 60 cents a hamper and cabbage at 7 for 25 cents.

H. R. Gill made his first appearance on the market this season with a big display of meat, beef at 9 and 11 cents; pork at 13 and 15 cents; lamb at 16 and 18 cents.

George Mullen's prices were 13 and 15 cents for pork, and 15 and 18 cents for lamb.

The Norham Spies went quickly at $2 a hamper, Mrs. Isaac told the Examiner. Norham is below Warkworth on the northern fringe of the Northumberland apple country.

Norman Moncrief quoted for apples — McIntosh 45 cents a peck, Snows 40 cents, Talmans 40 cents, Greenings and Baxters 35 cents.

The Stinson vegetable prices included, turnips at 50 cents a bag, or three turnips for 10 cents; carrots, beets and parsnips at 20 cents a basket; onions 30 cents a peck; cabbage 5 cents; Hubbard squash 10 cents each.

Santa Visits Janetville Institute At Jolly Christmas Session

(Examiner Correspondence.)

JANETVILLE, Dec. 19 — The Christmas meeting of the Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Bert McMullen on Thursday afternoon with 39 members present out of a total membership of 46.

The president, Mrs. Charles Deyell, was in the chair, and after the opening exercises the minutes and correspondence was read by the secretary, Mrs. M. Armstrong. The treasurer, Mrs. G. Wilson, reported a balance on hand of $36, and the convener of the fruit and flower committee, Mrs. Hyland presented a gratifying report.

After the business session Mrs. P. Hamilton gave a splendid report of the second day's study of the course "Fruits for Food and Flavor," which was recently sponsored in Lindsay by the Department. She also thanked the society for sending her as a local leader.

Mrs. Hamilton and Mrs. H. Johnston will give a special demonstration at a later date of the various recipes studied in the above short course.

It was decided to have the annual social evening in January as usual when the husband and children of the members will be the guests of honor. The event will commence at 6.30 with a pot luck supper which will be followed by a short program and games of progressive euchre and crokinole. The committee named in charge of the evening's activities are Mrs. S. E. Bradburn, Mrs. Brunt, Mrs. Hamilton, Mrs. O. McGill, Mrs. Capstick and Mrs. W. Campbell.

It was moved by Mrs. Charles McNeil that the shut-ins be remembered with gifts at Christmas and this was left in charge of Mrs. B. Hyland.

The roll call was responded to by sidelights of the W. I. convention in Toronto. A bus had been chartered by the local branch and 27 members journeyed en mass to the convention on Thursday, November 17, and their brief replies to the roll call proved quite interesting. The venture proved so successful in every way that the members are unanimous in their desire to charter a bus again next year.

Sixteen visitors were present and with the members, enjoyed the Christmas spirit of "Peace on earth, good will to men" that pervaded the home which was seasonably decorated with Christmas colors, the centre of interest being a beautiful large Christmas tree.

During the program an address, "Etiquette for all Occasions" was ably given by Miss Isabel Marshall. Mrs. Bruce Heaslip and Mrs. Allan Suggitt, delegates to the W. I. convention, gave splendid reports particularly of the banquet session. The reports were interspesed with readings and Christmas carols.

At the close of the meeting lunch was served and included Christmas cake passed by the hostess, Mrs. McMullen. Santa arrived and distributed gifts to everyone and afterward a shower of clothing and gifts was assembled for a needy family. One gift, a good sized pair of mitts was knit during the meeting by Mrs. Maiers.

Mrs. R. J. Burn and Mrs. G. Wilson moved a vote of sincere thanks to the hostess, the delegates for their excellent reports as well as each one who had contributed to the program.

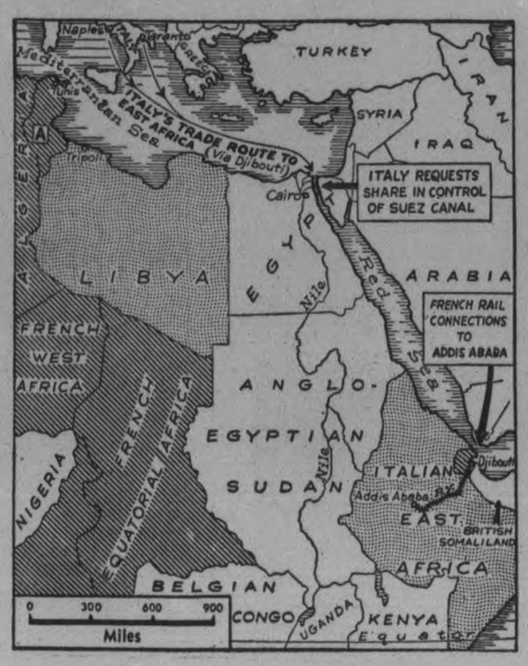
Italian Aspirations in Africa



Diplomatic relations between Italy and France continue to be strained as the Italian press continues agitation for revision of Franco-Italian relations in Africa. In Tunisia (A on map), Italy seeks annexation or greater autonomy for 94,000 Italians living there. To develop her trade route to East Africa and the East, Italy demands a greater share in control of the Suez Canal, and the annexation of Djibouti, French Somaliland, rail-port for the French-owned railroad to Addis Ababa, formerly Ethiopia, now Italian East Africa. Stripe-shaded areas are controlled by France, dotted portions by Italy.

To Marry Countess?

Rumor going the rounds of London's drawing rooms hath it that curly-haired and handsome Robert Sweeny (ABOVE), native San Franciscan, now resident of London, will be the next husband of Countess Court Haugwitz-Reventlow, better known as the former Barbara Hutton, heiress to the five-and-ten millions. Sweeny, who won the British amateur golf championship in 1937, recently requested British authorities to hold up final papers that would make him a British citizen. Lookers-behind-the-scenes-for-ulteriormotives point out that in the event Sweeny does wed the countess when she is freed from her Danish count, the marriage would restore her American citizenship —a goal now said to be one of her main ambitions.

With telephone wires strewn over the road, a second car was damaged when the driver failed to observe the blocked road.

Provincial Officer Gordon Campbell of Campbellford arrested the young man, involved in the first crash, on Thursday night about two hours after the accident.

Compromises Taboo For Ontario Chief Reported Ill Again

ST. THOMAS, Dec. 20.—(CP)—Premier Mitchell Hepburn, at his home near here to spend Christmas and to recuperate from the latest attack of a long ailment, was reluctant as ever today to seek a compromise between the Ontario Liberal Association which he heads and the Federal Liberal government of Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

"There will be no compromise whatsoever," Mr. Hepburn said last night when he learned a committee had been appointed by National Liberal party leaders at Ottawa to attempt to smooth out differences in Liberal ranks.

He branded untrue the accusation of Hon. Norman Rogers, Federal Minister of Labor, that Mr. Hepburn had conspired with Premier Maurice Duplessis of Quebec to oust Mr. Mackenzie King from the party leadership. The minister's statement, made in a public address, was endorsed by yesterday's party conference at Ottawa.

"Furthermore, the Ontario Liberal Association of which I am head will enter no affiliation whatsoever with this so-called committee," Mr. Hepburn said. "I will have nothing to do with them."

At the same time conjecture grew over Mr. Hepburn's physical strength to lead the Ontario Association in a protracted policy of isolation from the national party. At Toronto, the Globe and Mail said Mr Hepburn's retirement from public life "may come any time now unless the blood pressure and bronchial conditions from which he is suffering show an immediate and marked improvement, it was reliably reported last night."

A Few Kicks Left.

Speaking to the Canadian Press last night Mr. Hepburn said he was a "pretty tough individual" and "there are a few kicks left in the old horse yet." But party men close to him were known to be worried over the condition of Mr. Hepburn's health, which nearly forced him to relinquish the leadership about three years ago.

Mr. Hepburn would not reply directly to the newspaper report of his possible retirement, which said in part: "Physicians—and he has had a score of them in the past year—have for months been urging him to drop political harness and take things easy. Six months ago he pretty well made up his mind, it is reported, that the 1939 session of the Legislature would be his last."

The Globe and Mail stressed that "intra-party feud and warfare do not enter at all into the situation in which the Premier finds himself at the present time."

Mr. Hepburn carried along his split with the Federal Party by declaring "the issue is not being decided behind closed doors at Ottawa and never can be." He said the electorate would have a chance in a few months to decide if they approve of "drifting without any constructive policy for another five years." The alternative, he said, was a "constructive policy that will rehabilitate this country and place it at least on a parity with other countries which have inculcated in the minds of their people, whether rightly or wrongly, a national spirit."

Prisoners Make Night Raids Via Sawed Bars, Live In Luxury, As Culprits Sought Outside

HAMPTON, N.B., Dec. 20 (AP)—Apprehended as she stepped off a train at Saint John after visiting her husband in the Kings County jail here, Mrs. Irene Anderson, 26, was arrested by R.C.M.P. officers on charges of having stolen goods in her possession, knowing them to be stolen.

Police said that prisoners of the jail were responsible for three breaks into a local drug store in the last six weeks. The bars of a window in one of the cells had been sawed off in such a way that it was almost impossible to detect any flaw in them. Through this window, police say, the prisoners escaped made the store breaks and returned with such luxuries as cigars and cigarettes.

Nearly all the loot was found at the jail, the home of Mrs. Anderson in Saint John and on her person when she was arrested. No charges have been laid against any of the prisoners.

One prisoner, Joseph Boudreau, was missing. Two months ago he was sentenced to nine months for theft.

Father Gets 76 Shots In Back As He Tramps Country For Family Christmas Tree

Farmer Protests It Was Just An Accident, Never Saw Victim—Only Firing To Scare Away Trespassers, If Any

TORONTO, Dec. 20 (CP).—Searching the countryside for a Christmas tree for his children last night, Robert Brown, 39, Port Credit, was shot in the back. He was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, where doctors picked 76 shotgun pellets from the wounds.

Police said Brown was shot by a farmer on Indian Road, east of Port Credit. The farmer told Provincial Officer John McLean he had been firing the shotgun to scare away trespassers.

Brown had been looking around the area east of the village for a small evergreen tree to be used as a Christmas tree for his children, police said. He was crossing the farm when the shooting occurred.

The farmer told Constable McLean the shooting was an accident. He said he did not aim at anyone and did not know that Brown was in the vicinity.

"The accident occurred just before dark, about 5.30," Constable McLean said. "Brown had shotgun pellets from his neck to his hips, but none of the wounds seemed very serious."

Going Hard At Home.

An hour after assuring his four children that they were going to have a Christmas tree this year, Brown was brought home with the pellets in his back.

"The children had had a tree every other year, but things were pretty hard this year and it looked as though we were not going to have any," said Mrs. Brown.

"They have been asking every day for a tree, and last night he made up his mind to get one, even if he did not have the money. There are lots of evergreen trees growing around, and he went out just at dusk to cut one down."

Municipal Board Upholds Claim Trust Solicitor

Replying by letter to E. H. D. Hall, solicitor for the City Trust Commission, a copy of which was received by the council last night, the Ontario Municipal Board endorses the contention of the Commission that it would be improper to divert any of its surplus funds to be expended on projects suggested by the council, but intimates that it might be permissable in certain circumstances to use some of the surplus to be applied to the retirement of debentures for which the Commission collects interest and sinking fund from the city treasury

Presumbly this means that the Commission may use its discretion in retiring city debentures which it purchased and holds.

Incidentally, that was the only possibility Alderman Bradburn conceived during discussions throughout the year as a means the City Trust Commission might adopt in any relief which might be legally given to the council, and through that body to the taxpayers.

The correspondence between Mr. Hall and the Municipal Board was referred to the legal committee.

Reserve $330,000

Mr. Hall in his letter to the Municipal Board gave the information that the City Trust has invested $2,500,000 of its sinking funds in debentures of the city of Peterborough, and bonds of the Dominion and some of the province.

"The apparent reserve of the Commission over and above what is required to protect the debenture holders is about $330,000....I advised the City Trust that in my opinion it would be improper for them to pay any money for these purposes," recommended by the council, the construction of a foot-

Moors Soon End Women Troops

TORONTO, Dec. 20—(CP).—The Great War was child's play compared with the conflict in Spain, Daniel Roman of Port Arthur, said here today. Roman, a veteran of both wars, returned to Toronto last night with a bullet wound in his leg, received in Spain where he fought with government forces as a member of the Mackenzie-Papineau battalion.

Roman was one of eight battalion members returned from Spain in accordance with the agreement to strip the rival factions of foreign volunteers. He received his wound near Madrid and dressed it himself. After lying unconscious for a considerable time he crawled to a dressing station.

"I saw those women who were fighting in Spain," Roman said. "I saw them after the Moors were finished with them. I cannot hate the Moors for it. They are uncivilized people. It was the Italian officers who ordered these atrocities who should be blamed.

The women were good soldiers, Roman said, but the government finally ordered them out of the trenches.

Germany Joins Italy In Suez Demands

BERLIN, Dec. 20—(CP-Havas).—Italy's demands for reorganization of the control of the Suez Canal conform to the point of view of the German merchant marine, the official German news agency said today.

"Such a reorganization is in fact in the best interests of better economic cooperation among nations," the agency said. "It is to be noted that trade with the Far East and Africa is made appreciably more expensive b ythe canal tolls. For this reason many ships take the cape route.

"An institution such as the Suez Canal should not have the task of making great profits, mounting to hundreds of millions each year, to the detriment of the community. This method does not at all correspond to German economic ideas. It is believed here that the true commercial profit from the hazardous enterprise the canal was at the beginning has been largely paid in the dividends so often issued during many decades."

Elopers Honeymoon Hitch-Hiking Fearing Ottawa Parents' Wrath

TORONTO, Dec. 20 — (CP). — Somewhere on highway between Toronto and Windsor, or perhaps in the United States, is an Ontario couple hitch-hiking on their honeymoon. The pair, who will have to be described as the "mystery hitch-hikers," for they wouldn't tell their names, seemed as excited as if they were on a world cruise.

The happy-go-lucky couple, whose homes are in Ottawa, have been on the road more than a month. Their parents are unaware of their whereabouts or the fact they are married. They arived in Toronto yesterday. After getting a ride from Orillia. They didn't mind telling of their romance and flight but refused to give their names.

"We don't want our parents to find out," explained the 19-year-old hitch-hiking bride. "Not that we mind them finding out about our marriage for they will have to know eventually but because they would probably be shocked if they knew what we were doing and might try to stop us."

The hitch-hiking husband, who is 25 and the son of an Ottawa contractor, nodded assent. "Our parents opposed our marriage, and since we didn't think we could live without each other, we decided to run away and get married," the bride of a month said.

going to Montreal "to see the sights." going to oMntreal "to see the sights." The boy just ran away from the job with his father's concern. They married in Montreal. Then the hitch-hiking honeymoon began.

Up the Ottawa river they went, to Ottawa, to Mattawa, to Ville Marie and Kirkland Lake and Timmins.

Youth, Left To Die In Flames Of Wrecked Stolen Car, Saved By Passing Trucker

Pal Flees After Crash But Returns Later Only To Be Scared Off Again As Two Officers Arrive At Scene

BRAMPTON, Ont., Dec. 20 (CP).—One youth lay unconscious in Peel Memorial Hospital over night while police searched for his companion—a youth who left the first in the flaming wreckage of a stolen car to die.

The lad left behind was pulled from the car by Melville Nixon, Brampton trucker.

The patient regained consciousness at dawn, but would not talk to police. He gave four different names when questioned by hospital authorities.

The sedan was battered into a twisted mass of metal, then destroyed by flames when it took fire after rolling over three times. The driver failed to make a turn on the No. 7 highway at the Eighth Line of Toronto Gore.

Nixon noticed the flames and found a youth lying senseless in the car. He dragged the injured boy to his truck. He rushed the victim to hospital, where first aid was given by Dr. W. W. Bartlett, who thought the injured youth was suffering from severe concussion of the brain and possible skull fracture.

Pal Flees Again.

The other man, who ran away from the wreckage of the car, returned for a short time to see what had become of his companion, but took to his heels when Provincial Constable T. H. Owens and Traffic Officer Ray Hodgson, of Brampton, combing the district east of Brampton in a search for two men in an old model coupe who had held-up Arthur Hunter, Orangeville, appeared at the scene of the accident.

Ross Fawcett, who came from Weston when informed the car belonged to him, was unable to identify the injured youth. There were no identification marks in his clothing, or any letters or personal papers in his pockets to warrant a clue. Fawcett believed the car had been taken from his sales lot. The flames apparently started as a result of a broken gas line.

Simon Tightens Borrowings

LONDON, Dec. 20,—(CP Cable.)—Sir John Simon Chancellor of the Exchequer, today announced more stringent regulations for foreign borrowings in the British market. The reasons are understood to be the need to conserve British financial resources for re-armament and the recent fall in sterling.

Since April, 1936, applications for outside borrowings must be passed by the Foreign Transactions Advisory Committee.

At first the regulations were stringent, but in February, 1938, they were modified because of the strong position of the pound and the bounding position of British trade. The effect of to-day's announcement puts the regulations back where they were before they were relaxed in February.

Car, Fowl Stolen

GUELPH, Ont., Dec. 20 (CP). — Thirty turkeys, 30 chickens and an automobile were stolen from the garage of N. E. Nixon, of Milton, manager of Action Creamery, by thieves early today.

Last night Mr. Nixon loaded the 60 fowl in his car with the object of driving them to Toronto today to dispose of them. He locked the car and the turkeys and chickens in his garage.

Lindsay Main Street Mile Wide According To Signs

Lindsay, Dec. 20.

THIS TOWN has often been congratulated on the width of its main thoroughfare, Kent street, but citizens did not realize it was one mile wide until they were informed of the fact by no less an authority than the Ontario Department of Highways.

At the corners of William and Kent street, the department has placed signs indicating the way to Fenelon Falls. On the south side of Kent street the sign reads, "Fenelon Falls, 16 miles," while on the north side the legend says, "Fenelon Falls, 15 miles."

'Hounder' Jumps LaGuardia And Floors Him

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—(AP). — A heavy-set, gray-haired man leaped upon Mayor Laguardia from behind and knocked him down with a blow of his fist as the Mayor was mounting city hall steps to-day. The assailant was immediately set upon by police and bystanders and beaten insensible. The man was tentatively identified as J. Hagen.

The Mayor caught his attacker's feet to ward off kicks.

After the man was overpowered, he was carried into a secretary's office which adjoins the Mayor's suite. Laguardia superintended the removal.

"He's been hounding me for years," said the Mayor. He did not amplify but the remark led city hall employees to suppose that Hagen was a disappointed office seeker.

The attack occurred in the presence of hundreds of persons gathered in and near the city hall plaza to watch the demolition of the old federal building that stands there.

On Dec. 8 the Mayor announced the receipt of a bullet in an anonymous letter, signed with the symbol of a swastika, saying:

"You will get this if you continue to attack the Nazi party."

The note was signed with a swastika, drawn in reverse of the Nazi symbol.

British Cold Wave Holds In 4th Day

LONDON, Dec. 20—(CP Cable).—Great Britain's cold wave showed no sign of letting up as it went into its fourth day today.

The sun which broke through a powder of snow arrested the diving mercury at the record of 23 degrees above zero and caused a two-degree improvement.

Low temperatures were cited as the contributary cause of at least 15 deaths. Snow and frost disrupted transportation and burst unprotected English plumbing. There were many fires from overheated stovepipes and chimneys.

Even Big Ben felt the cold today. He gave forth a slight "ding" instead of the usual resounding "dong." It was first noted at nine o'lock when one of the chimes—first note of the second quarter—gave forth only a faint sound. Officials made a hurried investigation and explained. The intense cold had taken all the resilience out of the rubber buffer of the striking mechanism.

Street musicians were observed at one point trying to play "Good King Wenceslas," but scon gave up trying to blow their frozen instruments and sang instead. A corner news vendor displayed a poster bearing in large red type the words "Straight Off the Ice."

Tips, Girl's Property

MONTREAL, Dec. 20 (CP)—Tips given by customers to restaurant waitresses are strictly the girls' property and can not be taken from them or even considered part of the wages an employer must pay under the Quebec Fair Wage Act, Mr. Justice P. Demers ruled in Superior Court today.

In announcing his decision, the judge awarded Isabelle Jervais $129 from Frank De Rice Limited, operators of a Lachine roadside restaurant. The girl claimed she had worked from May to August without any wages and been forced to depend on tips from customers. Her employers, should have paid her at the rate of 20 cents an hour plus an allowance of one cent per hour for the cost of washing and cleaning uniforms."

Virginia Bed Does Jitterbug Dance Each Night As Lass 9, Retires–Grandma Says Its Witches

JONESVILLE, Va., Dec. 20 (AP)—Folks in this deep southwestern Virginia area looked today for some natural explanation to the riddle of nine-year-old Bertha Marie Sybert's "bouncing bed," a phenomenon her aged grandmother attributed to witchery.

People of substance hereabouts have gone to the three-room cabin and returned to tell of a scratching and bumping and violent quivering of the child's old wooden bed.

Mrs. Rebecca Sybert, the grandmother, says it started last month with a gentle scratching on the bed shortly after Bertha retired at her usual 9 p.m. bedtime. As nights passed, the scratching increased to a bumping and thumping and then the bed began to quiver and quake.

The Rev. Victor Sword, a Baptist minister, said he saw all that Mrs. Sybert described and added: "Such things are just beyond my knowledge."

Bertha says she isn't frightened, but it's "very uncomfortable."

Cabinet's Junior Ministers Startle Chamberlain, Charge Rearmament Lags

Hore-Belisha, Inskip Singled Out For Attack, Premier Upheld On House Vote Claims He Averted War With Four Nations

LONDON, Dec. 20 (CP).—Prime Minister Chamberlain, his foreign policy approved by a House of Commons vote, began an investigation today of alleged deficiencies in defence measures.

Almost simultaneously with yesterday's 340 to 143 vote for the government came reports that three junior Ministers had complained to the Prime Minister of lagging rearmament.

Singled out for attack were Leslie Hore-Belisha, Secretary for War; Sir Thomas Inskip, Minister for Coordination of Defence, and Earl Winterton, who until recently was Under-Secretary of the Air Ministry.

Reports were that the junior Ministers also criticized Lord Runciman, Lord President of the Council, who sought unsuccessfully last fall to mediate the Sudeten dispute in Czechoslovakia.

Criticisms were said to have been made by Robert Hudson, Under-Secretary for Overseas Trade; Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal, Under-Secretary of State for War, and the Marquess of Dufferin and Ava, Under-Secretary for Colonies.

Whatever action Mr. Chamberlain might take, however, was expected to await his return from talks with Premier Mussolini in January.

Mr. Hudson and the Marquess of Dufferin and Ava were reported to have told Mr. Chamberlain in private audience there was a lamentable lack of "drive" in the rearmament program and delay in production.

The board of directors of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce only yesterday adopted a resolution expressing "deep concern" over the rearmament situation.

Chamberlain Fights Back

A fighting speech by Prime Minister Chamberlain in which he outlined Great Britain's foreign policy in firm and unmistakable words led to resounding defeat for the Labor party's motion censuring the government's foreign policy. The division came after Mr. Chamberlain said German leaders would be mak-

Three Women Injured On Keene Road

Three women are in St. Joseph's Hospital with serious injuries as the result of an unusual accident which occurred on the Keene Road three miles west of Keene shortly before 6 o'clock on Monday afternoon.

They are: Mrs. Sarah Wood, fractured left thigh.

Mrs. Mary Wood, R R. 1, Keene, fractured left arm and facial lacerations.

The three injured women were passengers in an automobile driven by Alex. Hastie of R.R. 1, Keene, son-in-law of Mrs. Mary Wood whose home is in Manitoba.

The Hastie car was being driven west on the Keene Road and at a point a little east of the Hiawatha turn met an automobile being driven by Walter Rose R.R. 11, Peterborough, near a culvert where the road narrows considerably.

Both drivers swung as far over to their own side of the road as possible but the vehicles failed to clear other and the Rose car struck the running board of the Hasie machine, causing it to slew across the road and into a five-foot ditch where it struck a telephone pole breaking the latter off and shattering three of the glass doors and the windshield of the automobile, which turned on its side.

The three injured women, two of whom, Mrs. Mary and Mrs. Sarah Wood are in their seventies, were given first aid by Dr. Wright of Keene after Mrs. Rose, wife of the driver of the other car had telephoned from the farm of Earl Dorris for assistance. Later they were brought into St. Joseph's Hospital.

Mr. Hastie was not injured and Mr. and Mrs Rose also escaped unhurt.

Provincial Constable David Silvester investigated the accident. It is said that both cars were moving at a moderate rate of speed at the moment of impact.

European Cold Wave Toll Mounts To 45

LONDON, Dec 20.—(AP)—Winter rolled up a heavy toll of lives in many European countries today.

A ferry boat creeping through the icy Tagus River at Lisbon struck a dredge and sank. Twenty-five of the 70 ferry pasengers were believed drowned.

More than 20 deaths were attributed to the cold. It was 23 degrees above zero in England. A violent northeast wind foiled relief for three keepers at Fastnet Rock lighthouse, off the coast of County Cork, Ireland.

Paris and suburbs counted nine dead. Hundreds of barges were caught in frozen northern French canals. Railroad signals froze in Scandinavia, delaying continental expresses. Norway had the lowest temperature yesterday, 25 below zero. Sweden was second with 20 below.

In Hungary the cold snapped a rail and derailed a train, injuring six passengers. Several ships in the Black Sea radioed distress signals, and at least three sailors were believed lost.

Weather forecasts were continued cold.

Washed In Gas

OKEMAH, Okla., Dec. 20.—(AP)—Jasper Steel put on his socks, although they still were a little damp, and extended one foot toward an open gas stove to warm it. The fire that followed put Steel in a hospital with a badly burned foot. The socks had been washed in gasoline.

4 U.S. Medical Societies Are Indicted

Anti-Trust Breach Also Hits 21 Doctors, Many Noted

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20 — (A.P.). —The American Medical Association, three local medical societies, and 21 individual physicians were indicted to-day by a Federal Grand Jury for violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act.

The jury's action was unprecedented in the annals of medicine in this country, said Justice Department officials.

The societies named were the Medical Society of the District of Columbia, the Harris County (Texas) Medical Society, and the Washington (D.C.) Academy of Surgery.

Among the 21 physicians indicted were Dr. Olin West, secretary of the American Medical Association; Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the American Medical Association's Journal; Dr. Arthur C. Christie, prominent Washington radiologist, and Dr. Prentiss Willson, who recently co-operated in filing a suit against the Washington Group Health Association, charging that group health physicians had injured his practice in furnishing medical service through the association.

Others indicted are officials of the American Medical Association, or its affiliated societies.

The United States Department of Justice instituted proceedings against the American Medical Association last October, charging it was acting in restraint of trade, in violation of the Anti-Trust Act.

Speecifically it charged the association, some local societies, and individual physicians were preventing other physicians and co-operative medical organizations from supplying medical service by refusing membership in medical societies to individual physicians who joined such groups.

Year and $5,000 Fine.

Section Three of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act prohibits "every contract, combination in form of trust or otherwise, or conspiracy, in restraint of trade or commerce in any territory of the United States or of the District of Columbia. Every person who shall make any such contract or engage in any such combination or conspiracy, shall be deemed guilty of misdemeanor."

The law provides a penalty of one year imprisonment, payment of $5,000 fine, or both.

The indictment upheld the privilege of private physicians to treat their patients in well-equipped hospitals.

"Such privilege is desirable for all practicing doctors," the jury held. "Exclusion from hospitals of surgeons and physicians, including those engaged in group practice seriously restrains them in the pursuit of their callings."

The jury also upheld the right of one doctor to seek the advice of another in cases involving serious illness, saying "consultations between doctors are frequently advantageous, both to the patient and to the doctors. Doctors including doc-

New Papa Of Widow's 7 Children Asks Work To Ease Their Hunger

Commands Brigade

J. A. Dewart who has been promoted to the rank of colonel and will command the 9th Infantry Brigade.

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Dec 20. — (CP).—Desperate from lack of food and unable to obtain help from the city relief office, James Hart appeared last night before the city council and made an appeal for work.

With a wife and seven children to provide for, Hart declared he was unable to find enough work to buy food. "Work is all I want, not relief," he declared. "But last week I had to send my children back to school without any dinner. There just isn't enough work around this town for everybody. Believe me, I wouldn't come here and ask for help if I didn't need it."

Mr. Hart asserted he had been married last April to a widow with seven children.

"Wasn't that a risky undertaking when you didn't have a job even then?" an alderman asked.

"I guess it was," Mr. Hart replied, "but we were both willing to take a chance on it."

Last week, he continued, the relief administration had told his wife she shouldn't have married him because last April, she was on the point of receiving a mother's allowance pension for herself and children. Her marriage made her ineligible for the allowance.

A second man, William Hart, asked council for action toward saving a stove he had purchased on the installment plan for $59. He stated he had paid all but $15 on the account. But relief officials would not allow him to pay any more out of any money he earned, he declared. "Am I going to lose the stove and the money I've paid for it because the relief office says so?" he asked.

Both men were asked to meet Ald. Jesse Barlow to-day in an effort to straighten out their problems.

Peace Committee Formed By Federal Liberals For Survey Of Ontario

Delegates Vote Confidence In Premier King But Fail To Condemn Hepburn And Quarrel Remains Exactly As It Was

OTTAWA, Dec. 20 (CP).—Liberalism in Ontario remains united despite the continued clash between Prime Minister Mackenzie King and Premier Mitchell Hepburn. This was the confident assertion of Ontario Liberal Senators, members of parliament and candidates defeated in the 1935 general election who attended a caucus here yesterday.

The caucus unanimously voted confidence in Mr. Mackenzie King's leadership and set up a committee to consider the interests of the party in Ontario and report back. But so far as the King-Hepburn quarrel was concerned it remains exactly where it was. There was no express condemnation of Mr. Hepburn for his attacks on the Prime Minister which were the reasons for the caucus being called.

A suggestion that a gesture of appeasement was made or was about to be made to the Ontario Premier drew a denial from a spokesman for the caucus. At the same time he refused to say no such gesture would be made. He said the committee, with 17 members under the chairmanship of Trade Minister Euler, had a free hand.

Full Election Strength.

Unofficially it was understood the committee would make a survey of the position of the party in all constituencies and seek to work out machinery for co-operation between all Liberals in making their full strength felt at elections. The object is to prevent the dispute at the top spreading throughout the rank and file of the party in the provinces.

(Commenting on the caucus, Mr. Hepburn said last night in St. Thomas, Ont., that the Ontario Liberal Association will have no affiliation with the committee. He said "there will be no compromise whatsoever. Wish some of the Ontario Federal members had backbone enough to make an attack on me in the open and then face it before their own constituencies.")

Each man attending the meeting gave a brief report on conditions in his constituency. The consensus of these reports was said to disclose no signs of a split in the party ranks in all constituencies federal and provincial members were able to work together in harmony. Party workers, however, were disturbed by the dispute and regretted it.

Vindicated King

Asked if the meeting had made any change in the situation a spokesman said: "No, but it has vindicated the leadership of Mackenzie King before the whole country." It showed Liberals in other provinces that Ontario Liberals were solidly behind the federal prime minister.

Relations between Mr. Mackenzie King and Mr. Hepburn have been difficult for nearly two years. Until recently, however, the offensive has always been taken by Mr. Hepburn. He brought the condition sharply into public notice when he said he was "no longer a Mackenzie King Liberal."

Then about a year ago a clash occurred when Premier Hepburn said he would not support the King government in the event of a war with Britain as an ally.

Fire Hazards Are More Numerous Christmas Season

Fire Chief George Gimblett appealed today for extra precautions on the part of Peterborough citizens against fire hazards which attend the Christmas season.

DON'T use defective wiring for the Christmas tree lights.

DON'T leave tissue paper lying loose where perhaps sparks will ignite it.

DON'T give little children toy electric irons or other such toys which can cause fire.

DON'T string Christmas streamers too close to hot electric bulbs or to open fires.

DON'T overload wiring systems with too many lights.

DON'T keep the Christmas tree after it has become dry and highly inflammable.

Serious property damage will be avoided and lives may even be saved if these and other reasonable precautions are taken, the Chief urged.

Justice Godfrey Is Presiding Over Civil List

Eleven civil actions are entered for trial at the non-jury sittings of the Supreme Court before Mr. Justice Godfrey which started Monday afternoon.

Justice Godfrey was elevated to the Supreme Court last Spring and it is his first appearance in the local court. Alex L. Elliott, K.C., M.P.P., president of the Peterborough Bar Association, extended a welcome on behalf of the local lawyers and congratulated him on the appointment.

Mr. Justice Godfrey in replying said he was born twenty-five miles from this city near Hastings and always had a friendly feeling for Peterborough.

Two of the eleven cases are claims for damages arising out of auto accidents. In one Mrs. Stante of Peterborough is suing E. Guerin also of Peterborough for damages resulting from an accident on No. 7 highway just east of the Locks Bridge a year ago. At the time Mrs. Stante was walking along the highway when Guerin's car is alleged to have struck her. T. J. Carley, K.C., is acting for the plaintiff and A. L. Elliott for the defendent.

Robert Snelgrove, barber, is claiming damages from four persons as a result of an accident at the corner of London and Water streets in July of 1937 when he suffered a fractured leg. T. J. Carley is acting for Snelgrove and A. L. Elliott and W. B. Gordon for the defendants.

Robert White of Peterborough has entered an action against the City of Peterborough claiming damages from 'injuries received by his wife when she is said to have fallen on a city street during the Winter. T. J. Carley is appearing for White while the law firm of White, Ruel and Bristol of Toronto are acting for Peterborough.

In the case of Hayes versus McClelland et al, G. N. Gordon, K.C., is acting for Hayes with T. J. Carley, for the defendant, Hazel S. McClelland and E. F. Sheehy, one of the defendants, is appearing on his own behalf. Gerald D. McClelland, the other defendant is not represented by counsel. The case has been laid over for special hearing by the Judge of January 3, 1939.

Kinsmen Hosts To 28 Boys

Twenty-eight boys chosen from the city school by the school nurses were guests of the Kinsmen Club at a special banquet held last night in the Empress Hotel.

It was a merry party from start to finish and the boys did full justice to the turkey dinner, which included a dessert of ice cream and plum pudding. Howard Shimer, chairman of the dinner committee had a hockey stick, a puck and a large bag of candies ready for each boy and these were distributed after the meal, and a decorated Christmas trees stood in a corner of the dining room.

The idea was advanced at the last regular meeting and each member of the club volunteered to sponsor for a boy for the meeting, to bring him to the banquet and see to it that he arrived home safely. Following the dinner a draw was made and two boys each won half a cord of wood, while a third won a $5 order of groceries and a fourth was awarded an alarm clock.

Each boy stood up, gave his name, age, school and stated what he wished to be when he grew up. Ambitions ranged from farmers to sailors, with policemen and the professions well represented. Several voiced thanks for the entertainment.

Dr. Mark Crough, president of the club, spoke briefly in a valedictory speech, and urged the members to give the new president, Don Scott, their undivided support. He also thanked all the members for the assistance they had given him in every club venture during the year.

Old Picture Added To Denne Collection

Sixty-one years ago the congragation of the newly formed St. Luke's parish in Ashburnham held an excursion down the Otonabee River in the boat the "Golden Eye," and when the party reached the picnic ground a picture was taken which has been added to the Denne Collection.

The picture at the present time is on display in Simpson's store window on George Street and the names of many in the picture are listed below. Mr. Denne was unable to ascertain the names of the remainder shown and hopes that those who examine the picture may be able to supply more names. These will be listed on the back of the picture for posterity.

The picture was taken in 1877 and those identified are as follows: Rev. W. C. Bradshaw, Mrs. Bradshaw, George Rodgers, Miss Addie Calcutt, Mrs. John Burnham, Miss Susan Adams, Miss Emma Phillips, Mrs. Joseph Phillips, Miss Clementi, Mrs. Albert Hall, Miss Ferguson, Mrs. Hubbs, Mrs. Henry Denne and Miss C. Graham.

T. H. G. Denne, who is still working diligently on his collection of pictures, expressed regret today that he has been unable to obtain a picture of the first St. Luke's Church built in Ashburnham. Any person who has such a picture is asked to get in touch with Mr. Denne.

ing a "tragic blunder" if they mistook British love of peace and willingness to compromise for general weakness.

Mr. Chamberlain claimed his foreign policy had averted war with Germany, Italy, Japan and Insurgent Spain. He said that if he had to live his past 18 months over again he would not change his policy by "one jot." It is just 18 months since Mr. Chamberlain took office. He said the Labor demand for resistance of the German drive to the east "would have involved us in wars simultaneously with Japan, with Germany, with Italy and with (Insurgent) General Franco."

He was satisfied that the general public desires continuation of the appeasement policy. This was met by derisive cheers and cries of "nonsense" from the opposition.

Mr. Chamberlain said that keeping the dominions constantly informed of Britain's policies was a "continual source of satisfaction to His Majesty's government" since "it has been rewarded by a general absence of criticism on their party."

Lloyd George Strikes

Mr. Chamberlain's defence of his foreign policy moved David Lloyd George, war-time prime minister, to make the bitter declaration that "it is a dangerous state of obsession which he has got into."

Mr. Lloyd George said Chamberlain was "no match for these astute, crafty and unscrupulous dictators," adding that Chancellor Hitler and Premier Mussolini had treated the British and French premiers "with great contempt."

The veteran Welshman drew a bitter word picture of Mr. Chamberlain and Premier Daladier of France meeting in Paris and "congratulating themselves on the historic triumph."

Lloyd George described Mr. Chamberlain as "a very obstinate man and a very stubborn man." He added:

"He (Mr. Chamberlain) thinks it is enough to say 'I'm out for peace.' He probably has read Ivanhoe. The prime minister has got the idea of Wamba (The Jester) — that he could get through anywhere by simply shouted 'pax vobiscum' (peace be with you)."

Referring to charges that Italy has betrayed its Spanish non-intervention pledges, Mr. Chamberlain said that "to the best of my belief these accusations are not well-founded."

Amid protests from various members, the prime minister added that Italian "volunteers" dispatched to Spain since October numbered less than 200.

Mr. Chamberlain indicated, however, that he and Lord Halifax intend to use all their influence to find a means of bringing the Spanish conflict to an end, or to achieve an armistice.

Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer, defended the Munich agreement and the transfer to Germany of certain Czecho-Slovak territory.

No Financial Deals.

"What we were doing," he said, "was correcting one of the mistakes of the peace treaties."

Sir John said he had a brief personal interview with Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank, in which "no Government busines sand no financial business of any sort was discussed."

This was in reply to A. V. Alexander, Labor, who referred to reports Dr. Schacht came to London last week to discuss conditions under which Jews could be removed from Germany, with Britain paying the cost.

Commenting on the ministerial "revolt," The Daily Express (Independent) said nobody will be surprised if Mr. Hudson, Lord Dufferin and perhaps also Captain Harry Crookshank, Secretary for Mines, should resign.

"The possibility," it added, "that one or more of the Cabinet ministers against whom charges were made may also resign is not to be ruled out."

The Daily Herald (Labor) dwelt on the fact that Mr. Hore-Belisha and Lord Runciman, whose resignations are said to be asked by the "rebels," are National Liberals, which the paper said would seem to indicate that the young Tories desire to "purge" the National Government of its non-Conservative elements.

Copies of the resolution will be sent to the Dominion government, to the Polish government and to the government of each nation which signed a 1919 pact guaranteeing Ukranian liberties in Poland.

Poison Liquor Kills Four After Party

Woman Is Last To Die 2 Men Still Ill In Montreal Hospital

MONTREAL, Dec. 20 — (CP). — Toll from a week-end drinking party in a Montreal rooming house reached four with the death in hospital here early to-day of Mrs. Joseph Lapointe, 47. The three other victims were men. Tw other men are receiving treatment in hospital.

Police said they had been told by Mack Hedley, 53, one of the men being treated there, that those at the party had been drinking a mixture of rubbing alcohol and a wood alcohol compound. Several containers believed to have contained rubbing alcohol, police said, were found in the house.

The first two victims were Armand Doileau, 55, and Harry Hazel, 79. Doileau's body was found in bed yesterday, but it was not until last night that police learned of Hazel's death in the same rooming house. Early this morning, shortly before the death of Mrs. Lapointe, 60-year-old Adelard Gadbois died in hospital.

Mrs. Lapointe had been admitted to hospital, where she was given the last rites of the Roman Catholic Church, only shortly before the death of Gadbois. Also in hospital with Hedley is Alphonse Lapointe, 58. Authorities said last night they were seeking a sixth man said to have attended the party.

100 Burman Students Injured In Charge

RANGOON, Burma, Dec. 20—(AP) A hundred students, including small boys and girls, were injured today when police made two charges to disperse "sit-down" strikers protesting "British Imperialism." Many were taken to hospitals. Several girls were treated for injuries. Others fainted during the clash.

The strikers, launching a civil disobedience campaign against the British-guided Burmese government, held up traffic by squatting in streets and around government buildings.

Police said they tried conciliatory talks with the students before making their first charge. The students were said to have replied with a barrage of shoes, sticks and stones.

Reports from provincial towns, meanwhile, indicated similar manifestations there. The strikes are sponsored by the Myochit (patriotic) party whose slogan is "Burma for the Burmans."

Pageant Presented Campbellford Church

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 20.—An appreciative audience aided actors in presenting a finished performance when the pageant "The Greatest Gift," was presented under the energetic direction of Miss Winnifred Hay in St. Andrew's Presbyterian church on Sunday evening. The stage, artistically decorated in green and silver was especially constructed for the pageant in which Miss Hazell Atkinson enacted the roll of the Goddess Bountiful, a part which entailed considerable work and won for her high praise for her good delivery and painstaking effort. The goddess was supported by Peace (Mrs. Wesley Stevens) and Plenty (Mrs. John Storie) two characters who had but brief speeches but they were well done and their appearance in white ensembles was most appealing. Much credit should be given Leonard Beggs, the Herald, for his was a difficult role, tiresome to fulfill, but his performance was most creditable. The choir rendered the anthem "Emmanuel" as the first gift offered to the Goddess. This was done in splendid form with delicate shadings and technique Mr Raymond Wragg was the soloist and Mrs Cliff Vessey, Mrs. Frederick, Mr. E. Henson and Mr McDonald were the quartette. Walter Greenshield as "Labour" delivered his lengthy well memorized speech in a very talented manner and Miss Annie Parks gave an excellent impersonation of Friendship entering whole heartedly into the spirit of the role.

The church as the fifth gift to the Goddess Bountiful was represented by A. C. Connor who, although making his debut to the stage showed much promise and was highly rewarded for his efforts. Representing night with the gift of sleep, Miss Lillian Hay brought rest and showed quiet composure in her rendition of this small part. Mrs. P. MacMillan, as Florence Nightingale brought the gift of Healing and expressed in song and verse the good that is done by nurses. Mrs. Ray Phillips brought the gift of home making a splendid characterization of this gift and with her basket of home made bread she illustrated the least of the joys of the gift of home. Invention (Bill McEacherne) disclosed what science in man's hand and the gift of experiment might accomplish. Stuart Anderson brought the gift of prophecy, and the three shepherds (Bill Thompson, Hector MacMillan, and Jack Bell) were reverently impressive in their message, bringing the greatest gift, the news of the birth of Christ. Miss Mae Bell and Mr. Pierce were soloists of the evening and Mr. Albert Hazell who directed the musical interlude is to be congratulated on the effect of these numbers. Costumes were the work of Mrs A. Hazell, Mrs. C. Vessey, Mrs. Ed. Henson, Mrs Jesse Locke, and Mrs. Frederick.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Dec. 20 — (CP). — In one of the quietest trading sessions for several days Winnipeg wheat futures prices moved narrowly, remaining either unchanged or only fractionally lower. Final quotations were ¼ to ½ lower with December at 59¼, May 61 to 61⅛ and July 61½ cents.

Trading lagged at all times with operations at a minimum throughout and entirely uninteresting.

Export of Canadian wheat was confined to a few small loads out of Vancauver. Even this support was difficult to confirm in the pit.

Quotations at Liverpool closed ¼d lower to ⅜d higher and English traders appeared to be awaiting more definite news of reported damage to European crops from the cold wave now sweeping the Continent.

Christmas Is Day For Hoping Rotarians Told

A Christmas message from Rotarian Rev. George S. Easton, Christmas carols and a menu of roast turkey and plum pudding featured the annual Christmas party of the Peterboorugh Rotary Club held in the dining room of the Empress Hotel at noon Monday. Thanks to the hospitality of Rotarian Chris Graham the wives of the members were guests for this most enjoyable event, and a guest of honor who was given a special welcome by President James Dutton was Mrs. Dobbin, mother of Rotarian Ross L. Dobbin.

The community singing, led as usual by Rotarian John Smith, was confined to two favorite old Christmas carols, "Silent Night," and "Oh Come, All Ye Faithful."

Mrs. Dorothy Sager Goldie was guest soloist and her splendid soprano voice was most effectively displayed in the ever-popular "Holy City" and in the equally striking number, "The Birthday of a King," both numbers being heartily applauded. Harry Northrop was the accompanist. Rotary appreciation of Mrs. Goldie's singing was indicated in a tangible form by a presenation made by Rotarian E. L. Sackville.

Christmas Means More.

Christmas meant more as one grew older, Rev. Dr. Easton, who was introduced by Rotarian R. F. Downey, declared in beginning his message. There were, he pointed out, many changes as the years passed. Christmas meant nothing at all in babyhood, then came the happy period of childhood when the Christmas season meant freedom from school and a relaxation of some of the ordinary restraints, and then the time in our late teens when we knew more than our parents or our school teachers and ministers. Later on as people grew older, Christmas each year became dearer and more significant.

Rotarian Easton mentioned some of the things for which he believed Christmas stood. In the first place he stressed the fact that Christmas was a time for remembering. People were too busy usually to do much remembering and the day after Christmas they would be back in the same old rut, too much engaged in business and the ordinary affairs of life to look back and recall the things that had passed.

He recommended the prayer, "Lord keep our memory green" as particularly appropriate to the Yuletide season, and advised his hearers to do some remembering on Christmas Day.

A Day For Hoping.

Then, too, it was a day for hoping and a day on which people should not only look back but also look forward, a day for getting out one's old hopes and dusting them off.

So, too, was Christmas a time for giving and in this connection Rev. Easton urged that something of the giver should be put into the gift. It was not the value of the present but the amount of thought and care and patience that had been used in selecting it that really counted.

Christmas was likewise a day for receiving, a day for opening up the roads into the world of fancy and imagination and a day for merriment and happiness. The speaker suggested that grouches should be forgotten on that day, controversies abandoned and the Yuletide devoted to rejoicing, so that the boy that was in the man and the girl that was in the woman would have sway once again.

A vote of thanks to the speaker was proposed by Rotarian H. L. Garner, and Mrs. W. R. Morris expressed the appreciation of the women guests for the hospitality of Rotarian Graham.

In wishing the gathering the season's compliments, President Dutton reminded the Rotarians that there were 600 more people on relief this Christmas than a year ago, and suggested they get into touch with Relief Officer Metheral with a view to taking care of a family in the matter of Christmas cheer.

Night Coughs

Terribly wearing on the system is the cough that comes on at night and prevents sleep.

Sometimes it is the constant cough, cough that will not be quieted. Sometimes it is a choked-up, stuffed-up feeling that makes breathing difficult.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is the remedy you need to give you relief, for the reason that this preparation contains the healing virtues of the Norway pine tree with which is combined wild cherry bark, and the soothing, healing and expectorant properties of other excellent balsams, barks and herbs.

George Vernard, Canadian agent of the McKesson and Robbins Drug Co. who was sensationally identified as Arthur Musica, brother of Philip Musica, alias F. Donald Coster, is shown in the automobile in which he was taken to the Federal building in New York after his arrest in his Brooklyn home. His brother (Coster) shot himself to death in his Fairfield, Conn., home after learning he had been exposed.

Campbellford Water Rates Claimed Lowest In Province By Chairman J. O. Benor

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 20. — Thanking members of the Commission for their cooperation throughout the year chairman J. O. Benor told members that Campbellford had not only cheap electric power but also the cheapest water rates in the entire province of Ontario. It was the statutory meeting of the Water and Light Commission which brought to an end the fourth year in which the same three members have sat on the board. The financial statement indicated the total amount received for domestic and commercial light and power was $32,292.36; from the corporation, $4,363.00 making a total of $36,655.36 which was an increase of $7,000 from last year. Total received from water rates and miscellaneous water was $4,946.09 and for hydrant rental $1,602.00 making a total of $43,203.45. Payments made to the treasurer to date: From electric light and power, $31,641.64; from water works department, $6,521.40.

Mayor F. F. Long congratulated the manager of the commission on the installation of Christmas lights which had been placed on the streets in greater numbers than in previous years.

The Liberal Decision

Ontario Liberals are satisfied with Premier King. Those who gathered at Ottawa said so, and they included all the members of the Federal house from Ontario, the Liberal senators and the Liberal candidates who were defeated in the last election. So that made a representative gathering, and we are inclined to believe that the confidence voted in Hon. W. L. M. King will be shared by most of the Liberals in the province.

It was reported that a number of the Liberals had nothing particular against Premier Hepburn; personally they liked him and in many ways admired him for various stands he had taken. But they were not prepared to seriously consider following him if there had to be a break from Mr. King in order to do so.

Whether there will be two Liberal organizations come into being we do not know, but it looks doubtful. Mr. King has been in public life for many years, and he makes few mistakes, and for that reason he is regarded as being perfectly safe as a leader and a Prime Minister. If it were possible to make a composite man out of Mr. King and Mr. Hepburn it might be the Liberals would be more pleased. If they could incorporate some of Mr. King's sagacity and diplomacy in the same mind along with a share of Mr. Hepburn's dynamic personality and his utter fearlessness of results then we believe they would have the ideal leader for any party. It would produce a man who would meet the demand for "doing something" who would at the same time retain sufficient ballast to make certain that his radicalism did not run riot with the possible success of that which he proposed to do.

One is moved to doubt whether Mr. Hepburn would be able to split the Liberal party wide open in Ontario, nor do we believe Liberals generally believe such a thing could be done. Practical politics plays a large part in all such manoeuvres, and there will be a Federal election before another Ontario contest comes to pass. In that Federal contest the attitude of Mr. Hepburn may have a good deal to do with the amount of support which he himself will receive when it again comes time for him to appeal to the voters, and we doubt if Mr. Hepburn can afford to lose sight of that rather formidable fact.

He Should Get Along

Captain Angus Walters is skipper of the Bluenose, the Canadian schooner which won the International Fishermen's Race Trophy for 1938. Captain Angus was recently married in Halifax and with his bride set out for a honeymoon to Boston. Boston of course is all right for a honeymoon trip, but it appears that the Scottish skipper had something on his mind when he selected Boston.

With his Bluenose ship he won the race this year and was awarded the trophy, but that was all, and there are a couple of gentlemen in Boston with whom he would like to do a little dealing. He is seeking the chairman and vice-chairman of the race committee to see what has become of the $3,000 in prize money which was attached to the race. Angus suspects if it ever was attached it has since turned in the other direction and become detached.

So there's a thrifty man for you. Married to a fine girl, off on a honeymoon and at the same time heading directly toward the port where he thinks there should be $3,000 waiting for him. Somehow we figure a man like Captain Angus will be able to set up housekeeping and make a go of it.

How Our City Stands

A statement addressed to the ratepayers and signed by Mayor Hamilton appears in today's Examiner, and it can quite properly be regarded as an official message. It tells in a plain way what has been done by our City Council during the year 1938, and the figures used can be taken as correct because they all come from the official records.

If one desires to speak in terms of tax rates then it can be shown that while in 1930 Peterborough went to 39.2 mills, in 1938 the rate had diminished until it was 35 mills, and that is an actual decrease of 10.7 per cent., and it should be remembered that decrease has taken place in spite of the formidable amounts which have had to be found each year to meet our outlays for relief purposes.

In the year 1931 the per capita rate for paying taxes had attained its peak and the figure stood at $40.59, while in 1938 the figure had decreased to $36.86.

Tax collections have been satisfactory during the year and it is recorded as well that 47 per cent. of the uncollected taxes carried over into 1938 have now been paid. Our city council has—wisely we think—been building a reserve fund against tax loss, and that fund has now reached the rather substantial proportion of $65,000. There has been a full 50 per cent. reduction in bank loans during the year, and that is one certain way of cutting down on interest paid out. As a matter of fact the city of Peterborough had a credit balance at the bank during the greater part of the year.

Peterborough has discontinued the issuing of debentures. For a number of years all relief charges have been paid out of the current year's tax rate. Following out that policy has meant only one thing—the city since 1933 has been able to retire $971,827 of debenture debt and has not issued any more. This does not all affect the general tax rate, but in the case of local improvements it does decrease the special assessment against the properties affected.

It is anticipated that all departments of council, with the one exception of relief, will finish the year's work with a balance on the right side. The report makes pleasant reading and proves that the pressure on home owners is not as great as it was a few years ago. And the city's financial standing ranks high.

Driving Without Accident

Toronto finds it has already exceeded its traffic death toll of 1937. One lad of six years and a man of 61 died on the same day to take the figures into a new high standing, so traffic is no respector of age. The lad of six is supposed to have done what many others before him did—he was playing with other boys and stepped out on the road from behind a parked vehicle and was struck.

We can't see anything else to it but that drivers of cars will have to accept a greater degree of responsibility. There is no way of which we are aware to keep children of the age of six from running quickly off the sidewalk and on to the road. They cannot all the time be thinking and acting in terms of injury or safety. The adult drivers will have to do more of the thinking for them.

There were some awards distributed the other day to drivers of trucks and five drivers received the rather coveted distinction from the Legion of Safety. To qualify for membership a driver must travel at least 15,000 miles a year and he must do that for five years without as much as a scratched fender. If there was an accident of any sort in which the truck was damaged, the driver loses his standing no matter whose fault it might be. It means that a driver has to do a good deal of thinking at all times for the pedestrian or the driver of some other car who may be doing little or no thinking. One truck driver has done 688,000 in 14 years and he has never had an accident of any kind. Others have done from 445,000 to 663,000 in from 11 to 15 years and they have yet to have even a scratched fender. These drivers cannot look at the weather reports for the day and decide they will wait until tomorrow. They run on schedule regardless of weather or road conditions or anything else. They use the highways and they do a lot of calling in districts where traffic is thick, and yet they have no accidents. So it has been plainly demonstrated that driving without accidents is something which can be done and is being done. A driver in that class must watch out for himself and also for people and cars which are apt to come in his way. He also has to include the careless child of six years. Thinking for the child of six may be the only way of saving his life.

A Gap In The Street

The village of Thornbury had a big hole burned in its business district; a couple of stores, the telephone office, the public library and two barns all went. A newspaper clipping referring to a fire in another village several weeks ago causes one to wonder if Thornbury's business section will be rebuilt. This clipping states the view of the owner of one of the places which was burned:

"I came into possession of that building about 12 years ago, and I secured it for $2,300. It was built originally for a general store and above was the living quarters for the family. When I bought it the estate of the previous owner was being closed and I was shown old records to the effect that it had cost $17,000 to build the place. It was large because at that time storekeepers had to have plenty of storage room for stock, and that is quite different to the present time when we carry very little stock apart from that which is on the shelves because we can get anything we want on short notice.

"For my part I have rented space in another block which will give me all the room I need and I could not think of starting to restore that old building although I know it leaves a nasty gap in the main street. I could not rebuild it because it would cost too much and then I would have no use or need for all the extra space in it."

Possibly there is not a long-settled community in Ontario which does not possess similar buildings. They may be large, formidable in appearance and perhaps impressive for the business section to possess, but they are not indicative of the amount of business being done. They represent an age when it was taken for granted there was going to be increasing business and added importance in each community and at the time it was a wholesome enough outlook. People invested heavily and intended to remain right where they were. Today when fire visits these communities there is the experience of the man quoted above to be faced. The owner cannot possibly rebuild because the cost would be enormous, and besides he probably knows that good roads and motor cars and trucks have made it possible for much of the business to go away from him as well as come to him. Whether Thornbury will join other villages with a gap in its business district we do not know, but it may be the case.

Almost Too Shrewd

Plans "made in Germany" for releasing the Jewish residents from that country are so closely knit to business scheming that it is difficult to credit their cunning. The view was expressed in these columns weeks ago that it looked as though Hitler planned he would make money out of the Jews and it looks as though that is what is it his mind right now.

The plan which is proposed is admittedly complicated, but it is cunning to the point of being almost too barefaced. By way of illustration it would work something like this: A Jewish banker or merchant would be allowed to leave with 1,000 marks and with a credit note of 10,000 marks (from the Jew's own money) against German foreign commerce. These foreign trade marks would be good only for use in purchasing goods from Germany. The departing Jewish resident could, we suppose, sell them to another individual, but eventually they would have to make their way back to Germany to pay for export goods. It looks like a plan which means that when a Jew is exported with 1,000 marks Germany is planning to export another 10,000 marks worth of German goods. It is a pretty shrewd method and some may be inclined to refer to it as international blackmail.

Low In Funds, But—

A young mother with two children has been receiving assistance from the town of Gananoque for some time. Recently she received a £10 note from an uncle residing in Scotland. Apparently he had sent it for Christmas.

The lady in Gananoque took it to the relief officer and insisted he should take it—all of it. She appreciated the way in which assistance had been given to her and she felt the money belonged to the relief officer as part of her repayment.

The outcome was that the Relief Board considered the matter and decided to take $30 of the money and apply it to the rent account which is paid directly by the Board, and hand the other $20 to the mother with the suggestion that she should go out and do some Christmas shopping.

And that appears to be about the right solution. The report from Gananoque says this is the second case in the history of the Relief Board where a recipient has offered to pay back any of the money advanced. And that makes the action of the mother all the more noteworthy. Alone with two children to care for she may be low in funds but she has not run low in the spirit of fairness and independence and positive honesty.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Premier Hepburn says that Arthur W. Roebuck is to be read out of the Liberal party. Which one?

Another sign that it is getting close to Christmas is the fact that Premier Chamberlain has begun to talk turkey to Germany.

All the stock of an Alberta store was stolen over the weekend so there is at least one merchant in Canada who is not saying that goods are moving slowly.

Toronto district leads in the collection of income taxation but of course that is a contest in which the participants do not enter willingly.

Dominion Liberal members and candidates have endorsed Premier King, and Mr. Hepburn surely will not claim that they are all after judgeships.

Transient applied for a night's lodging at Brantford police station, but walked out when told there were 11 others in for the night. The rooms with bath attached had all been taken.

FRACTIONS

(By A. R. K.)

¶ Wee Angus brought a problem home, he tried to do the thing alone, he wore a nasty frown; he figured some at supper time, he wasn't through the thing by nine, I thought it had him down.

¶ Then I stepped in to show my skill, I'd also give the lad a thrill, a paper on my knees; I'd show him how the thing was done, 'twould be for me a little fun, I'd brush it off with ease.

¶ A man had bought a lot of stuff, with prices marked there plain enough; I know just how 'twas done; I had it clearly in my mind, but sighed a trifle there to find, a fraction in each one.

¶ The fractions roused in me hard words, they came in quarters and in thirds, a cent split up in eight; I put down figures row on row, suspecting I was wrong and slow, and singing hymns of hate.

¶ When I was whacky in the head, I sent Wee Angus off to bed, I'd lick his awkward sum; I said to take it off his mind, for in the morning he would find, I had the thing all done.

¶ My figures made up quite a heap, I worked there till I fell asleep and slept like weary men; I wish some new way might be found, to sell things at ten cents per pound—for I can count by ten.

Will Dominion Stay In Empire?

WE SUSPECT that none will be more surprised than Prof. Percy Corbett himself that he will be branded by many as a secessionist because of his suggestion that Canada's "material interests" might be better served by membership in the Pan-American Union rather than in the British Commonwealth of Nations. The McGill authority on international law was obviously not personally advocating secession in his address to the McGill International Relations Club. He was instead attempting to and succeeding in thinking clearly about a situation which consisted of facts that needed facing, not only by Canadians but by those shaping the course of both British and American international relations.

What Prof. Corbett said was that full membership in the Pan-American Union might result in Canadian secession from the British Empire. His statement that "material interests" might be better served by membership in he Union was qualified by the condition "unless a drastic change occurs in the European political picture." His speech, says the Kingston Whig-Standard, rather than being a brief for secession, was in effect a warning to those Canadians and Americans who have been urging that this country should take on the full obligations of membership in the Union. It can also be taken as a warning to those who formulate British foreign policy that Canada can be forced into a position, through the consequences of British relations in Europe, where secession might be almost inevitable in spite of the fact that Canadians would have no desire for it.

THE PAN-AMERICAN UNION is committed to a common policy of neutrality, which was adopted at the Buenos Aires conference of 1936. If Canada accepted full membership in the Union she would have to assume the obligations implied by this policy. Such obligations would be entirely inconsistent with any thought of active support for Great Britain if Great Britain becomes involved in a European war. Thus Great Britain herself might consider that Canada's acceptance of membership in the Union constituted a breach of the essential obligations of membership in the British Commonwealth of Nations. It would not be so much a question of Canada attempting to secede as of Great Britain pointing out to her that she had automatically detached herself from the Empire.

On the other hand Prof. Corbett was only expressing a fairly obvious truth when he said that there might be material benefits in Pan-American Union membership. No matter what happens in Europe or the rest of the world, the Pan-American Union is likely to be able to set up a mutual system of defence that could protect the two American continents from any aggression. No matter what happens also in the spheres of world trade, the two American continents could probably work out their own economic salvation. If the European situation does not change greatly to Great Britain's advantage there is no question that Canada's material considerations may be endangered through a continued close connection with Great Britain. There is practically no chance of them being endangered to the same possible extent by closer connection with the other North and South American countries. Prof. Corbett was merely pointing out these facts. He would take it for granted that his audience would realize that there are considerations which outweigh material ones.

His conclusions were that limited co-operation but not full membership in the Union is possible and advisable at the present time. This, it may be noted, is exactly what is occurring. Mainly it is occurring in an entirely informal way through the "good neighbor" relations between Canada and the United States. It might also be noted that there are numerous signs that the European situation is improving in Great Britain's favor, and that the improvement may soon be great enough to constitute a "drastic change."

JUSTLY PUNISHED.

(Brantford Expositor)

THE GATES of Portsmouth Penitentiary have closed for a long term of years on three of the prisoners convicted of perpetrating the robbery of the Royal Bank of Canada at Mount Brydges. One of the gang received ten years, another nine, and another seven, while the fourth man, who appealed his case, was given eight years. Thus these four men are condemned to serve 34 years in the penitentiary.

The sentences were none too severe considering the fact that the robbery was committed at the point of a gun. This crime is becoming altogether too frequent of late in the province of Ontario, and the only way to stop it is to impose heavy penalties. There are many who favor the use of the lash where these gangsters use guns, and they would get little sympathy if it were added to the prison term.

OUR MINE FATALITIES.

(Financial Post)

THIS WEEK a study by the International Labor Office revealed that Canada's record of fatal accidents in coal mines is one of the worst in the world.

Between 1927 and 1935, Canada followed behind only Japan and the United States in the number of fatalities per 1,000 man years of risk.

Canada was one of six countries in the world in which the fatal accident rate did not decrease during the period covered.

This week another very serious coal mine accident, fatal to about a score of workers, happened in Canada.

There is little reason for national pride in our record.

Letters To The Editor

Correspondents Discuss Various Topics

A HELPFUL HINT

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—May I use a little of your valuable space to give voice to a certain subject. Every now and then I read in the paper of how this and that factory gives its employees a bonus, or extra pay. How I envy those workers! I think if some plants can do such a nice thing to show their gratitude of their employees' efforts, there's no reason why the rest can't give a small bonus.

I have worked in a south-end factory for a long time, and all that time we have never received a bonus or any extra pay at all; only the foremen get a bonus, and they are able to buy a new car nearly every year. I don't think it would hurt any factory to give a small bonus to its employees. It would help a lot, considering how most employees just get enough to get by on and in these times especially.

FACTORY EMPLOYEE.

THE RIGHT NOTE

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—One of the most promising developments that comes to us on the eve of Christmas, in view of the increased intemperance at the festive season is the pastoral letter from His Eminence Cardinal Villeneuve, their excellencies the archbishops and bishops of the Roman Catholic Church in Quebec.

This pastoral has been read to the faithful in all the churches in that province; it was referred to in several Protestant churches in Peterborough on last Sunday. We give one paragraph which is well worth reading, and thinking over at this time.

"Among the social evils which have already wrought untold harm in our country, we wish especially to single out that of intemperance. Few are the vices more prolific in destructiveness than it is; none there are that open more surely and more rapidly the way to every abasement, physical, intellectual and moral. Alcohol is a poison whose awful property it is to attack at the same time both soul and body .... The Church, therefore, is not giving way to visionary fears, in calling upon her children, and in banding them together beneath the standard of the Cross, to organize an energetic campaign against one of the most dangerous enemies of religion and country."

It would be a great boon if the Catholic and Protestant churches in Ontario would co-operate to fight this great evil.

Yours sincerely,

M. C. PARR.

E. W. YOUNG.

BEVERAGE ROOMS

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—I think that it would be a very good idea if the beverage rooms would close New Year's Eve as well as Christmas Eve. Because there is more celebrating New Year's Eve than Christmas, and remain closed until the following Tuesday. I think it would help a good deal to keep the toll of accidents and drunken driving down. It wouldn't hurt the beverage rooms much for the extra closing, considering the big margin of profit they make. And also it would give the employees more time to themselves for the holiday season.

FAIR JUDGMENT.

• Is Thankful For These "Nots"

MANY BASIC REASONS for optimism are disclosed in a letter written by a member of the Department of Commerce to Scripps-Howard columnist Raymond Clapper, who said he was "sick of statistics." The D. of C. man gave him these "thanksgiving" figures.

Jobs: More than 43,000,000 Americans have NOT lost their regular jobs; they have NOT stopped buying food, clothing, cars, movie seats, and radios.

Automobiles: More than 30,000,000 Americans have NOT gone back to a horse-and-buggy, but still own and drive cars. They have NOT stopped buying about 60,000,000 gallons of gasoline a day, which is a lot more than they bought in 1937.

Entertainment: More than 10,000,000 people in America have NOT stopped going to the movies every day.

Holidays: More than 10,000,000 Americans did NOT decide to postpone that fishing trip until next year.

Optimism: American business men did NOT decide to spend less than $450,000,000 in 1938 on advertising products that they fully expect will be bought by the American people.

Vacations: The American people were NOT too gloomy to spend $4,000,000,000 on vacations in 1938. And more than ever are getting vacations "with pay."

Education: More than 27,000,000 young Americans have NOT decided to stay out of schools that are NOT goose-stepping to a dictator's orders.

Banks: Millions of Americans are NOT losing sleep over fear of losing $57,000,000,000 in bank deposits.

Homes: We did NOT fail to build more homes in June and July in 1938 than in 1937.

RADIO: More than 27,000,000 have NOT ceased to be equipped with radio sets over which Americans can hear programs that have NOT been packed with propaganda.

Newspapers: American newspapers have NOT stopped selling 114,000,000 papers a day, which have NOT ceased to present unbiased news to readers who do NOT fear to express their opinions on their Government.

Labor: More than 3,999,950 members of the 4,000,000 in the C.I.O., and more than 3,599,950 members of the 3,600,000 in the A. F. of L. do NOT want the strife within the ranks of Labor to continue a third year of civil war.

• Small Profit in Big Restaurants

COSTS, profits, and labor legislation were subjects of principal interest in Chicago when 12,000 restauranteurs, big and little, flocked to the Windy City's American Furniture Mart for the 20th annual convention of the National Restaurant Association.

A survey of the revenues and costs of 105 restaurants of various types in all parts of the country for the first six months of 1938, surprised some big-city restaurant proprietors in that restaurants in small cities make larger profits than those located in big cities.

Average profit of the restaurants surveyed was 4.4%. More encouraging to restaurant men was the fact that 72% of the restaurants studied showed profits; 43% had profits of more than 5%.

However, the $2,000,000,000 restaurant business is not a field in which it is easy to get rich, and Accountant George O. Podd, who made the survey, urged the eating place proprietors to keep down operating costs. He found that operating costs took 83.3% of every dollar of gross revenue received by the restaurants studied. Chief item was the cost of food, which ranged from 40 to 50%, and averaged 46.5% for the 105 restaurants. Next largest item was salaries and wages, up 5.1% from 1937, due chiefly to new minimum wage and hour laws in Illinois and other states. Rent took 5.9%. An average of 2.2% went for depreciation and amortization; old age insurance and other taxes took 1.2%; and advertising got 0.8%.

A drop of 11.9% in the cost of food, in the first six months of 1938 as compared with the corresponding period of 1937, kept many of the restaurants surveyed out of the red. The accountant also found that table turnover is faster and profits are greatest in self-service restaurants or cafeterias, and that restaurants of medium size make more money on the capital invested than either large or small eating places.

OUT OF CONTROL.

(Kingston Whig-Standard)

THE Liquor Control Act, including even the beverage room provisions, seems to have worked very well for a number of years, but lately either it is not working so well or law enforcement agencies are becoming slipshod in its enforcement. There is not the slightest doubt that drunkenness in public places has been increasing in Ontario. Neither is there any doubt that the people of the province generally have been noticing the increase and resenting it. Their interest in the problem provides encouragement for the propagandist.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

SO JESUS came again into Cana of Galilee, where he made the water wine. And there was a certain nobleman, whose son was sick at Capernaum. When he heard that Jesus was come out of Judaea into Galilee, he went unto him and besought him that he would come down, and heal his son: for he was at the point of death....Jesus saith unto him, Go thy way; thy son liveth. And the man believed the word that Jesus had spoken unto him, and he went his way.—John iv, 46, 47, 50.

SPOILED BALLOTS.

(Winnipeg Free Press)

THE ANNOUNCEMENT that more than 10,000 votes were found invalid in the civic elections is not nearly so bad as it looks at first sight. The actual number, according to the City Clerk's figures, was 11,247, but this is not to be compared with the 62,000 electors who voted for mayor.

The fact is that there were 11,247 ballots found to be invalid out of 186,000 ballots given to those who went to the polls. Every voter got three ballots—for mayor, aldermen and school trustees.

Moreover, of the ballots that did not count, 5,326 were not marked at all. Evidently they were purposely left unmarked. And 5,923 ballots were rejected because they were spoiled by being improperly marked so that the actual intention of the voter was not indicated.

COWS IN THE WORLD

(Department of Agriculture)

IT IS IMPOSSIBLE to estimate with any degree of accuracy the number of cattle, sheep, and pigs in the world, states the Imperial Economic Committee, for in many areas the figures are either incomplete or entirely lacking.

At a rough estimate, the number of cattle may be in the region of 600 millions, of which about two-fifths are in the British Empire.

Sheep may number about 750 millions, with between one-third and two-fifths in Empire, and pigs perhaps total about 250 millions, of which about 5 per cent are in Empire countries.

A Bit of Nonsense

Escape?

"Both Jack and Ted proposed to me yesterday."

"And you refused them both!"

"Yes, how did you know?"

"I saw them shaking hands over something in the street, this morning."

Dry Cleaners Find People Absent Minded

People are still very absent-minded and the dry cleaners in the city can supply plenty of evidence to support this statement.

When suits of clothes, dresses and coats arrive at the dry cleaning establishments, articles of every description are found in the pockets, from sets of false teeth to large sums of money, and some people not only leave their valuables in the clothes, but forget to call for the clothing or leave an address, and many articles have been held for more than a year without an owner appearing to claim them.

A few years ago the girl at Parker's Dye Works slipped her hand into the pocket of a man's trousers and found more than two hundred dollars in bills, and Tom Lanafield had the unusual experience of finding $625 in bills in a suit. Neither of the owners had missed the money until the finders telephoned them.

Some young men step out of their trousers, leave the summer underwear inside the garment, and send the trousers to the dry cleaners for cleaning and pressing.

Letters Forgot to Mail.

Money, teeth, cigarettes, love letters, bills payable, and receipts all are found in the pockets. Even letters that should have been mailed weeks before are discovered nestling in inside coat pockets.

Three months ago one of the girls at Grant's Cleaners yanked a roll of bills totalling $300 from a suit of clothes sent by a man staying at the Empress Hotel. When he was notified he was overjoyed because by then he was convinced that he had lost the money and would never see it again.

In another suit of clothes obviously belonging to a young man was found a marriage licence and a wedding ring nestling in a satin case. Photographs are found almost daily, some of them that have not passed the censor board. Key-tainers, jewellery, matches and even .22 cartridges all have been found at different times.

The dry cleaning people ticket the articles and return them to the clothing when the dry cleaning has been completed.

In larger cities so much unclaimed clothing and other articles have accumulated by the end of a year that an auction sale is held to dispose of the goods after the establishments have advertised seeking the real owners. This has not been done in Peterborough, but it has been necessary to dispose of some goods after they have been held for more than a year.

One dealer reports that occasionally some person comes in and seeks to buy any suit which will fit them if the suit is listed in the unclaimed column. Other business managers donate the clothing to church organizations for disposal at rummage sales.

However, local dealers have so little unclaimed goods and Peterborough is so small that very few articles fail to eventually reach the owners.

USE CARCASSES FOR RADIO

Whaling fleets from Capetown, South Africa, to the Antarctic are carrying wireless outfits, and catchers of whales will pump the mammals up with air and attach portable automatic wireless beacons to the carcasses.

Leader Of Arab Rebels In Palestine Poses

Located by an adventurous cameraman in one of his desert strongholds Abdul Razak, leader of the Arab rebel army that harasses British army posts and Jewish settlements in Palestine, had no objections to posing for this picture. In fact he produced the chair on which his foot is resting in order to produce a more imposing picture. He is flanked by his secretary and personal aide and members of his heavily-armed bodyguard.

OBITUARY

DAISY YOUMANS.
(Examiner Correspondence.)

CORDOVA MINES, Dec. 20.—The death occurred on Sunday of Daisy, second daughter of Mr. George Youmans of Cordova Mines. Daisy, who had been in ill-health for some time, was in her seventeenth year.

Surviving are, besides her father, are three sisters: Leona, Evelyn and Mable. Following the short prayer service at the home there was a service at the Free Methodist Church at which the Rev. J. S. Martin of Cordova officiated.

Pall-bearers were local young men — Messrs. Sam. Hornsby, Bert Rupert, Clifford Briggs, Clifford Hay, Fred Parcels and Cameron Vance. Interment took place in Rockdale Cemetery.

CORNELIUS HARRINGTON
(Examiner Correspondence.)

ENNISMORE, Dec. 20. — The funeral of the late Cornelius Harrington, which was held Monday morning, was largely attended by friends and neighbors, showing the high esteem in which he was held in the community where he had been a life-long resident.

The cortege left the home of his daughter, Mrs. John Smith, 470 Elm street, Peterborough, and proceeded to St. Martin's Church, Ennismore, where the funeral Mass was sung by Rev. Father Gillogly, parish priest, who also recited the last prayers at St. Martin's cemetery, where interment took place.

The following six grandsons acted as pall-bearers: James, William and Clare Scollard, Michael and John McGuire, and Arnold O'Heron.

Among those from a distance who attended the funeral—other than the late Mr. Harrington's immediate family—were Mrs. Irwin King, Mrs. Harold Crowley, Dan Harrington, Tom Hickson, all of Peterborough; Mr. and Mrs. William Curtin of Lindsay, and Miss Anna McGuire of Toronto.

MRS. ELIZABETH DE LA PLANTE

The funeral of the late Mrs. Elizabeth De La Plante, whose sudden death occurred recently, took place from the family residence.

At the Church of the Sacred Heart a solemn High Mass was celebrated by Rev. J. J. O'Brien, assisted by Rev. Father Moloney as deacon, and Rev. Father Welch as sub-deacon. Four grandsons served the mass, Messrs. Gordon, Gerard and Master Leo, sons of Edward De La Plante, and Master Armand, son of Armand La Plante. The children's choir, under the direction of Rev. Sister M. Augustine, sang the funeral mass.

In the sanctuary were present Rev. Dean O'Sullivan and Rev. P. P. Butler.

Rev. Father O'Brien delivered an inspiring sermon. He spoke of the late Mrs. De La Plante as a woman of high ideals, whose chief thought in life was to serve her Maker. She loved God above all things and was an example to her children.

Six grandchildren acted as pall-bearers, Gordon, Gerard, Raphael and Dorien De La Plante of Peterborough, and Joseph and Cleophus Rishea of Toronto.

Mrs. De La Plante leaves a family of nine children to mourn her passing, five sons, Edward, Armand, Henry of Peterborough, Thomas and Joseph of Iroquois Falls; three daughters, Mrs. Bellezmere Rishea, of Toronto, Mrs. Wm. Caverly of Buffalo and Miss Hermine at home. All were present for the funeral, also many nephews and nieces from Toronto.

Many spiritual and floral bouquets testified to the popularity of the deceased.

Lions Entertain Boys In Band

President Fred Cripps reviewed a year's activity by the Lion's Club at the last meeting of the year, held at the Kawartha Club last night, and found development of the boys' band the outstanding feature of many activities.

The entire band were guests of the club at the banquet and had a whale—or rather a lion—of a time. Themselves immune from fines that were collected by Tail Twister Tony Johnston, the youngsters took keen delight in the misfortune of their sponsors, found many an opportunity to call to the Tail Twister's attention breaches of the rules committed, and shrieked with delight at their victims' discomfort.

President Cripps announced that the club will have a Christmas tree for the band at South Central school on Thursday night. Chairman of the band committee, Keith Braund announced that plans are afoot to place the youngsters on tour early in 1939, playing concerts in towns within a 50-mile radius of Peterborough. The band will be supplemented by winners in the recent amateur contest sponsored by the club. Campbellford is slated for the first stop on the tour, sometime in the middle of January. President Cripps paid tribute to the work of Bandmaster Bill Stewart and Keith Braund.

A Lion's Carnival, to be staged by "Red" Foster and sponsored by the club, was announced by Lion Max Swanston, chairman. The date has been set for January 22 and the Brock street arena engaged. A suggestion made last night resulted in the probable appearance of the boys' band as active participants in the carnival.

Possibility that the club may enlarge its activities in 1939 was given by President Cripps. He said he hoped the club will be financially able to launch into sight conservation work.

Guests of the club were two tap dancers from the club's amateur show, Sylvia Duignan and Irvin Parnell, both of whom tapped solos and then a duet. Youngsters and Lions alike applauded wildly, gave them a reception seldom heard at banquets. Young Miss Duignan was the winner in the amateur contest.

Tribute Is Paid Vacation Edition

Reference to the Examiner's annual vacation number is made in a recent edition of the Cheboygan, Mich., Observer which ran across a copy through the kindness of a brother of Dr. Bannister of the Normal school. Says the Observer:

"George Bannister, who spent a part of the fall with a brother and friends in Peterborough, Ontario, favors us with a copy of the Annual Vacation Edition of the Peterborough Examiner. It is put up in tabloid form, eight pages are in rotagravure and a lot more pages in regular print. Every page contains a vacation scene and the rotagravure section contains a large map of the Trent Valley, Kawartha Lakes and Haliburton Highlands, showing a most enticing and entrancing lot of lakes and streams, big lakes and little lakes, and if we are to believe the stories and the pictures in the paper those waters teem with all kinds of game fish. We notice they play up the pretty girls with scant covering just as strong in Canada pictures as they do in Michigan. One outdoor inclined that loves the lakes and rivers, the roads and the woods and the game and fish therein, cannot help but being intrigued in reading through that Canadian coax."

LINDSAY

Hunt Continues For Wounded Cottage Raider

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, Dec. 20.—The police Monday evening had nothing new to report in connection with the shooting of an alleged thief at Ancona Point, Sturgeon Lake, on Friday night. All day Sunday wild rumors were in circulation concerning the affair. One report had it that the wounded man had been apprehended and was in Ross Hospital—another was to the effect tha two men with a truck stopped at a gasoline station in Whitby and asked for fifteen gallons of gas. They had a truck load of furniture and offered a lamp in payment. The story that two men dropped into a channel on Sturgeon Lake ad were drowned is discounted by the police. They contend that the pair only remained on the ice a short time and then retraced their steps towards shore. This appears to be borne out by the discovery of a bag saturated with blood in a clump of trees. Partieles of flesh, Provincial Constable Adair stated, were found when trailing the two men, and it is believed one of them is seriously injured. The opinion is expressed by some that the wounded man died in the bush, and that his companion made a getaway. The authorities, however, hold to the belief that both men are still in the lake district.

Jailed For Wild Driving.

S. Collins, town, was sentenced to six days Monday with payments of the costs of the court on the charge of reckless driving. The charge of driving while intoxicated was dismissed. The case followed an accident on the Fenelon Falls Highway when a truck driven by the accused, crashed into the ditch and was wrecked. Dr. Gorman, town, called by the Crown, stated he followed the truck a considerable distance and noticed it swerving from side to side. Its movements appeared to be very dangerous.

Ex-Pastor Dies.

The funeral took place Monday to Riverside cemetery of a former clergyman of the Bay of Quinte Conference,in the person of Rev. Thomas Brown. He was born in Enniskillen, Durham county, and was first ordained a minister of the old Bible Christian church. His last pastorated in the Bay of Quinte Conference was at Oakwood. He resigned the ministry because of broken health and embarked in business in Lindsay. Twelve years ago he retired. He is survived by five daughters and one son.

Chinese Reared In Ghost Town

QUESNEL FORKS, B.C., Dec. 20. (CP).—Wong Kuoy Kim, 40-year-old Chinese, was born and bred in a ghost town whose gold rush boom days had faded years before his birth.

To-day the population of Quesnel Forks is one Chinese and two white families. When Wong's father came in the 1860's, 5,000 persons lived here, attracted by the lure of Cariboo gold.

Buildings that housed early prospectors have fallen into ruins now and lush weeds grow in the streets. Only reminder of past glory is when the waters of the Quesnel river are turned muddy as the monitors of modern placer mining rip apart the hills farther upstream.

Living with Wong in the ghostly settlement 400 miles by road from Vancouver are his widowed mother, two brothers and several sisters. The latter were brought here from China recently "because things were so bad over there."

Held As Spy

George H. Miller, who describes himself as a member of the "international police," is the fourth spy suspect to be arrested in California in the past month. He was taken into custody when discovered in the cockpit of a newly-finished military bombing plane at the Vultee aircraft plant in Downey, Calif.

TO THE RATEPAYERS:

In order to inform ratepayers of the City of Peterborough of the city's financial affairs, your City Council, as your representatives, present herewith a statement for the year 1938.

TAX RATE—The tax rate for the year was 35 mills for Public School supporters and 37.25 mills for Separate School supporters. The rate in 1937 was 36.4 mills, and it has been steadily reduced since 1930 when it was 39.2 mills.

The reduction in taxation in Peterborough is indicated by a comparison of per capita taxation, which in 1931 reached the peak of $40.59 and which this year was $36.86.

CURRENT TAXES—Tax payments were on the whole met promptly. The improvement in tax payments during the past several years is believed due to the improved industrial activity and better business conditions prevailing generally in the city. Vigorous efforts are being made to collect unpaid tax balances.

The following table shows the improvement in tax payments:

	Total Amount on roll	% of Current Roll Collected	Total Collections % of Current Roll
1934	$909,524.11	93.9	95.5
1935	928,905.03	85.1	96.2
1936	923,791.42	87.0	99.8
1937	895,463.71	*89.42	102.0
1938	870,581.87	*89.5	*102.2

*—To December 15th.

ARREARS OF TAXES—Of the tax arrears of $229,679.88 which were brought forward on January 1st, 1938, it is gratifying to report that 47 percent were paid during the year.

Your Council during the difficult years has been setting up a reserve for loss on taxes. This year $10,000.00 was added to this reserve, bringing its total to $65,000.00 after allowing for losses.

BANKING—At the beginning of the year the city's bank loans totalled $148,216.00, as compared with $203,805.41 in bank loans in 1937. As tax payments were received these loans were steadily reduced and a credit balance was maintained during most of the year. It is estimated that the bank loans will total $125,000.00 at the close of this year. On December 31st, 1934, bank loans totalled $261,091.41, showing a reduction has been made of better than 50 percent in the past four years.

ASSESSED VALUATION—The annual assessment of real property which was completed in September, and since confirmed by the Court of Revision and County Judge, gave a total of $19,175,525 for taxable purposes, which is an increase of $128,212 over the assessment made in 1937. No increase in the basis of assessment was made, the increases being due to the construction of 57 new homes and other real improvements. In all 541 building permits were issued to a total value of $426,144.00. The highest since 1930.

The increase by wards was: South—$41,150; Centre—$24,427; West—$24,005; North—$17,220; East—$21,410.

To encourage the building of homes your Council co-operated fully with the National Housing Act, selling lots at moderate prices on the guarantee that purchasers would build homes within a year.

NET DEBENTURE DEBT—No debentures have been issued since 1933. The net debenture debt, that is the part affecting the tax rate, has been reduced $971,827.65 in the past four years. On December 31, 1933, this debt was $3,146,038.35, and it had been reduced to $2,174,210.70 by December 31, 1937.

During 1938, $190,789.81 in debentures were retired, but not all this affects the tax rate. However, more than $100,000.00 in pavement debentures were retired.

UNEMPLOYMENT RELIEF—Expenditures for unemployment relief will exceed appropriations this year. The amount spent in excess of appropriations can not be definitely stated, since the amount from the from the Provincial Government for the last three months of the year is not fully known. It is hoped that this Government will continue its fullest co-operation with our Council in this connection, as it is gratefully acknowledged it has done in the past.

Relief expenditures began to increase during the summer months, and were affected materially by the closing down of one of the city's factories. Relief expenditures for the past five years are:

1934	$158,769.78
1935	176,291.35
1936	153,389.50
1937	92,939.49
1938 (December amount estimated)	110,000.00

BOARD OF WORKS—During the year local improvement works, consisting of sewers, sidewalks, curbs and gutters, were built at a cost of $3,135.82. Made necessary by the change in road grades on Lansdowne street, nearly 1000 feet of five-foot walk was laid on this street, the Government paying the entire cost of this work.

The cost of cleaning paved roads was $9,500.00. New street flushing equipment, purchased at a cost of $4,452.50, was operated at night for this work and used 40,000 gallons of water. The new flusher was very satisfactory. Cleaning of unpaved roads cost $3,800.00, while cleaning of sewers cost $2,800.00 and their maintenance was $420.00. Storm drain maintenance was $2,140.00, and for catch basins $3,200.00. New sewer and storm drain connections numbered 81 and cost $1,580.00.

Operation and maintenance of the Sewage Disposal Plant was $8,500.00, of which $3,500 was for power.

Street oiling cost $7,148.00. This work was improved by the purchase of a small trailer oiler distributor at a cost of $1,463.00, replacing the antiquated horse-drawn outfit.

General repairs on unpaved streets cost $3,800.00. Work of laying retread road surfaces was continued at a cost of $10,700.00, this type having proved a splendid surface where traffic is not too heavy. Chiefly for this work, 3,900 cubic yards of crushed stone was taken from the city's quarry at a cost of $7,250.00.

Maintaining streets safe for pedestrians and motorists during winter cost the Department $10,600.00; snow removal being $4,900.00, sanding $3,300.00; and work to prevent flooding $2,400.00.

Work of improving Ashburnham Memorial Park was continued at a cost of $1,175.00, and $175.00 in building the new swimming pool in Jackson Park.

On miscellaneous work, including grass cutting, tree trimming, traffic signs, and general upkeep, etc., approximately $10,000.00 was spent.

GENERAL—Your Council continued its work to improve the city's industrial and business life by needed publicity work and by direct effort in Great Britain and the United States.

Much work was accomplished this year of a legal nature, primarily in consolidating and bringing By-laws up-to-date and in protecting the city's interests.

It is anticipated that when the year's accounts are fully completed it will be found that the various departments, with the exception of Unemployment Relief, will be within their respective appropriations, and a small surplus on the year's operations may be expected.

In conclusion your Council wishes to acknowledge the many expressions of appreciation received from citizens generally during the past year, and wishes for their successors in office the same spirit of sympathy and co-operation during the coming year.

A Merry Christmas and Happy and Prosperous New Year to all.

Yours faithfully,
JAMES HAMILTON,
Mayor.

December 20th, 1938.

Officials for boys' athletic contests must have graduated at least five years previously.

Each team must send to the secretary, before the season opens, a certificate of eligibility signed by the principal, for all players.

The coaches of the home teams are requested to send to the secretary (Mr. Moebus of Lindsay Collegiate) the results as soon as possible after each game. He will then send the results of all games in the group to each school concerned.

Only teachers may coach any of the school teams in this group.

Miami Maestro

Harold (Jug) McSpaden, above, one of the pro golfers who tour the continent in search of big purses, took care of a few winter fuel bills when he posted a score of 275 for 72 holes, good enough to capture high money in the annual Miami Open. He was one stroke up on Henry Picard and left the resort city with an extra $2,500 to his name.

Beach Players Dinner Guests

TORONTO, Dec. 20. — Balmy Beach players and club officials closed out the 1938 season last night with a gala get together at Club Esquire. It was strictly informal and the players who sported the gold and blue through an arduous O.R.F.U. campaign rallied round the banquet table to forget about signals, injuries and adhesive tape. It was a complete turnout with the exception of Earl Farley, star inside wing, who is now living in Sherbrooke, Que. In appreciation of the player's efforts in the past campaign, the club gave each player a generous money order against a local department store and a group picture of the team.

In the absence of E. Floyd Muirhead, club sponsor, Abbie Box, president of the Beaches, acted as chairman and on behalf of Mr. Muirhead thanked the team for their efforts during 1938. Alex Ponton, coach of the Bam Bam Balmies, was the only other speaker and spoke in similar vein. Frankie Seymour and Bert Haigh supplied the entertainment apart from the Esquire floor show.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

Bucko McDonald was on the bench, Jawn Adams says, because he has not been hitting rival puck carriers in his former whole-hearted manner. So Jack Stewart is being used in his place, and Bucko has been sold to Toronto. This brings a couple of thoughts to mind. One is that a defenceman in pro ranks who doesn't bounce rivals till their molars rattle like dice in a cup is N.G., and the other is that lacrosse the past summer for Orillia didn't do the Bucko any good. He went well at the gutted-stick game but has slipped plenty in hockey this year. And personally we can't waken up the same enthusiasm for McDonald that we had a couple of seasons ago, since Bucko let local lacrosse fans down badly here last summer. He came down with the Terriers for an exhibition tilt but looked just like some other guy named Joe. Didn't turn it on once enough to raise a sweat, and it was a warm evening. Nuts to Bucko!

* * * * * *

We saw the Red Wings several times the season they went through to the Stanley Cup to make it a sports' grand slam for the Dynamic City. And we used to thrill as much to Bucko's bashing tactics on the back fence as we did to Goodfellow's all-around brilliance and the jitter-bug work of Aurie in the front ranks. Bucko used to smear everyone that came near him with bone-bending abandon. But when the same gee came here with the Orillia outfits, we had to hold the nose. Yessir, McDonald coasted for four frames. Small boys chased him here for autographs, but personally (after his showing here) we'd swap seven Bucko autographs for one of Von Ribbentrop — and he's a tramp, in our book too.

Like A Wash Board

The Brock has a sheet of ice now, but it's bumpy as the road to Dublin. Still the foundation is there if the robins don't start snaring worms off the front lawn on Christmas eve. We suppose it is only natural now for natural ice to be a bit unnatural, and it is certainly natural for natural ice-makers to speak in unnatural tones when discussing natural ice! Not much use of writing Santa at this late date and asking him to stuff the civic stockings with artificial ice—but one can always hope that it'll come in time. After all, miracles still do happen once in a blue moon.

* * * * * *

Once in awhile someone asks if the Florida puck loop, where Jim Ellis and Mick Magee of this town are playing, has been okayed by the amachoor big shots. It was first definitely barred to Canadian lads as being more of an outlaw outfit than the Musica brothers—or haven't you any McKesson & Robbins stock? But the C.A.H.A. is okaying the loop down near the tropics for the time being, so long as the Florida gents put their house in order. Magee told us before they departed that he wouldn't risk his rugby and lacrosse standing (and Jimmy plays softball) except that he knew Sec. Hewitt of the O.H.A. said it was all right. You know the U.S. and Canadian amachoor—ha, ha!—authorities have a working agreement, now.

He Looks Streamlined

A word about Stew Williamson. Last year's husky defenceman is living in Lindsay now and expects to turn out with their intermediate "B" hockey squad. His work wouldn't permit him to play for the Petes this year. Stew was down the other night and he looks much better than a year ago. Just downright husky now, with no bulge around the middle. Stew is a swell puck defender but is frequently overlooked because he has no more color than a piece of ice. Reminds one of Charlie Gehringer. You'd look at Charlie and see nothing to rave about till you recalled that nothing ever got by him. Just efficient, with little color. Stew played a lot of fine hockey right here and we wish him well. He'll help us repay Lindsay for guys like Begley and Loucks in rugby.

Mucker Legros and Lornie Rose will be joint coaches of the Lakefield intermediate "B" hockey squad this winter, we are informed. And a schedule meeting is slated for tonight in Lindsay. The Lakefield lads feel assured of at least seven home games in their enlarged O.H.A. grouping and are quite enthused about the whole setup. They ought to ice a good team. The Northerners are in now with Whitby, Sutton, Oakwood, Beaverton, Lindsay, Bobcaygeon and Newmarket. And the Scugog squad, after much hesitation, seems set for the circuit also as uniforms have been purchased. Local fans can always motor 10 miles to Lakefield and see puck scraps if they don't get enough of 'em at home this coming frostly season. Both Legros and Rose have had plenty of hockey experience and should handle the coaching okay.

Ain't It The Truth?

We heard Sunday that Lindsay might be added to our junior group, but we were advised to say nothing till it was definite. So what happens? So the Lindsay Post breaks it ahead of us—isn't it always the way? The Post says Lindsay delegates came here Saturday prepared to battle for a place in this group but found both local teams and Port Hope and Cobourg quite willing to have Lindsay in this circuit. The O.H.A. was so notified and, unless Bowmanville—which hasn't a rink, anyway—squawks too loudly, we'll have a good five-team grouping. Lindsay, Port Hope, Cobough, Monarchs and Colts. Word should be received today, with a meeting here tonight to draw up a schedule again. Local junior delegates are getting so they can draw up schedules in their sleep now!

Plans are afoot for the C.G.E. Athletic Club's boxing show in the Armouries shortly. Tentative plans call for Nick Orlando to meet Joe Northmore of Kingston in the main event, Joe being city and district champ of Kingston and a Dominion finalist at 135 pounds. Leo Macdonald, 165, of Queen's U., is listed to tackle Dutch McIlmoyle in the semi-final. Leo is intercollegiate title-holder and a former Dominion high school middle and lightheavy champ. Several other prominent pugs from down that way will meet the pick of the C.G.E. Club crew, it is stated. Sounds all right, what?

Seedless Watermelon

EAST LANSING, Mich., Dec. 20—(C.P.). — A seedless watermelon has been developed at the Michigan State College here by Cheong-Yin Wong, 27-year-old Chinese graduate student.

Wong said the seedless watermelon has a reduced whitish section as well as no seeds. The new variety appears pear-shaped and weighs about eight pounds. The experimenter said field production of the new variety might be difficult, but it had decided advantages for greenhouse production.

171 Meter Cabs

QUEBEC, Dec. 20 — (C.P.). — Since the civic ordinance compelling taxi operators to install meters in their cabs went into effect on December 15, 171 owners have complied with the order, it was announced from City Hall yesterday.

The ordinance also makes accident insurance obligatory. Prior to the enforcement of the order, 352 cabs operated in the city.

Women of Dublin, Ireland, have started a "keep-fit" campaign.

Gottselig Stays At The Top Of N.H.L. Scorers

MONTREAL, Dec. 20 — (C.P.).— While New York Americans roll along comfortably in second place, the Old Men of Manhattan as individuals are holding down most of the choice berths in the race for scoring honors in the National Hockey League.

Chicago's astute Johnny Gottselig stays at the top of the list, according to last night's weekly official league statistics. But, apart from that, it's pretty much an All-American affair. Of the seven leaders, four wear the star-spangled livery.

Gottselig's nine goals and ten assists—he added two of each during the last week—put him five up on Tommy Anderson of Amerks, who has six and eight. Behind Anderson follow Toe Blake of Montreal Canadiens and two more Americans—Sweeny Schriner and Eddie Wiseman—all with thirteen apiece.

Old Nels Stewart is the fourth Amerk to hit the first seven, tied with Herbie Cain of Canadiens one point behind the three above.

The hard-working Blake, playing with a last-place team, has managed to plug in enough goals to tie with Gottselig for the league leadership at nine. High men in assists are Gottselig, Russ Blinco of Chicago, and Art Chapman of Americans, with ten each.

Red Horner's eight minutes in penalties on Saturday night at Toronto gave the big Maple Leaf defenceman the "bad man" honors with a total of twenty-eight minutes. He is just a minute up on Art Coulter of the New York Rangers.

Racer Suffers Broken Neck

TORONTO, Dec. 30.—Tragedy descended upon harness racing circles Monday afternoon at Dufferin Park when Cap Grattan, pacer, owned by H. Coulton, of Rochester, N.Y., died from a broken neck during the meet under the auspices of the Toronto Driving Club.

Cap Grattan sustained his fatal injury when Miss Peter Grattan fell passing the three-quarter mark in the first heat of the fourth race, causing a pile-up that involved Cap Grattan and Joe Patch. Cap Grattan suffered a broken neck and died shortly afterward.

A twenty-heat program was carded for yesterday, but only half that number were compelted. The rest will be run off today. The track was in excellent shape, well dried out but far from being frozen, but no exceptionally fast time were recorded. Jane Axworthy, winner of the second heat of the fourth race, a classified pace, turned in the best time of the afternoon, doing the mile in 2:15 flat.

Competition was unusually keen in all events, with the result that Victor Patch was the only horse to win both heats in his race, turning the trick in the third race. Another noteworthy performance was that of The Guy, the only trotter in the field of eight in the fifth race, who won in surprising fashion and paid off at 10 to 1.

It's a Bicycle Race, Folks

To look at this you wouldn't think it was a bicycle race, but honest, that's what it is! France is the scene of the unique event, a place called Choisy-Le-Roi to be exact. The race, a cross-country affair (as you might guess), is an annual affair and when the competitors run out of roads they simply take to the fields and hills, where, of course, it is sometimes necessary to reverse the order of things and let the bicycle ride the rider. The natives evidently enjoy it and they are seen at the top of the hill cheering their favorites on.

British Critics See '38 Ending Era Of Great Golfers From States

LONDON, Dec. 20 — (AP).—The reputation of United States amateur golfers declined in the United Kingdom this year despite the victory of Charlie Yates of Atlanta in the British amateur championship.

British critics from scholarly Bernard Darwin to Henry Cotton believe 1938 saw the end of the era of great swingers from the United States. This opinion is based on the play of the American Walker Cup team in the British amateur championship at Troon and in the Walker Cup matches at St. Andrew's.

Yates won the amateur by defeating Cecil Ewing of Ireland, three and two, but Britain won the Walker Cup for the first time since the competition started in 1922. The score was 7-4.

Nobody over here has anything but praise for Yates' accomplishments at Troon and St. Andrews. He has been credited generally with displaying the greatest putting exhibition in the recent history of British golf.

In 11 rounds of golf at Troon and St. Andrew's, he was only one over fours, Yates' accomplishment is, in the eyes of British critics, magnified by two other facts: on his way to the amateur title he beat John Fischer —considered over here the finest amateur golfer in the United States —and Hector Thomson, who is generally regarded as the finest swinger in British amateur golf.

But in spite of this liberal personal praise, the critics are disappointed in the baility of the American amateurs as a whole.

Runaway Caught

DETROIT, Dec. 20 — (C.P.). — Detroit immigration authorities today held Michael Merrick, 14, of Mimico, Ont., for entering the United States illegally. Immigration authorities said the boy admitted taking $50 from his father and spending the money in Toronto, Windsor, and Detroit, because "he was tired of school and wanted to see the world." Authorities said the boy's father, Daniel Merrick, had been notified.

Lynn Patrick Undergoes Knee Operation Out Of Game 10 Days

New York, Dec. 20 (CP) ANNOUNCEMENT Lynn Patrick would be lost to New York Rangers "for a week or 10 days" was made today after the wingman had undergone an operation on his injured knee. He was operated on for water on the knee. Dr. Johan Hannett said he extracted 26 ounces of fluid.

It also was disclosed that George Allen, high scoring left-winger from Kerrobert, Sask., had been brought up from Philadelphia Ramblers to fill in.

Clapper Pacing Defencemen As Goal-Getter

(By the Canadian Press.)

Like a good wine, Aubrey (Dit) Clapper seems to improve with age. The burly defenceman with the Boston Bruins is an object lesson of one of a goodly share of smart moves that have to be credited to Art Ross, the major-domo of the Boston National Hockey League Club.

It was Ross who turned Clapper from a forward into a rearguard several season ago and the move has paid dividends in a big way. Clapper was no mean shakes as a forward in his hey-day and as a defenceman he has been just as effective.

Big, and fairly fast, Clapper was a member of the famed Boston dynamite line which ran riot in the N.H.L.'s 1929-30 season. That was the year Clapper, Ralph (Cooney) Weiland and Dutch Gainor teamed to tally 183 scoring points, and 102 of them were goals. In that season Clapper scored 41 goals and only Weiland of all other N.H.L. players did better. Weiland potted 43.

But when Clapper started to slow down a bit up front Ross realized that the big fellow still had a good number of seasons of hockey left in him as a defenceman. Clapper made good immediately and has kept up his brillant play.

It's ths same Clapper who, with six goals in 14 games, is leading all other defencemen in goals scored this season. He has been one of the mainstays of a Boston machine that has been defeated only twice in those 14 games and is credited with 11 victories and a draw to lead the league.

The Bruins will be gunning for their seventh straight victory tonight when they tackle New York Americans in Boston, while Detroit Red Wings take on the Rangers at New York in the only other scheduled game of the night.

South Australia Wins By Innings

ADELAIDE, Dec. 20—(CP Cable) —A second-innings collapse by New South Wales gave South Australia victory by an innings and 55 runs in their Sheffield Shield cricekt match concluded here to-day. In reply to South Australia's record score of 600 for eight wickets, declared, the visiting team was dismissed for totals of 390 and 155.

A. G. Chipperfield, New South Wales all-rounder, added only six runs to his overnight first-innings score of 149. He batted nearly five hours, hitting 19 fours.

At Melbourne, Victoria defeated Queensland in a close game by three wickets. The Queenslanders made 184 and 510 for five, declared, the home team compiling 378 and 322 for seven wickets.

T. Allen hit up 136 in a dashing innings for the visitors. He gave a flawless display and obtained 18 fours in three hours at the wickets.

BUCKO McDONALD PURCHASED FROM DETROIT BY MAPLE LEAFS

Big Defenceman Costs $10,000 And Farmhand

TORONTO, Dec. 20. — Conny Smythe, manager of Toronto Maple Leafs, announced last night the purchase of Wilfred (Bucko) McDonald, experienced defenceman, from eDtroit Red Wings for "a lot of cash" and a minor league farmhand, Bill Thomson, Syracuse Club right-winger.

A despatch from Detroit said that the Leafs gave $10 000 and Thomson for McDonald, but Smythe said the figures did not go quite that high.

Bucko the Bouncer will report to the Leafs at once, and will be in a Toronto uniform this evening when Leafs play at St. Catharines against O.H.A. senior squads in the exhibition game that will officially open St. Kitt's new artificial ice rink.

The first N.H.L. game in which McDonald will wear a Toronto uniform will be staged here next Saturday, and the visiting team will be Detroit Red Wings, his recent mates.

Trying Long to Get Him.

The Leafs' management had been trying for a long time to secure McDonald, who starred for Detroit when Red Wings won the Stanley Cup in both 1936 and 1937. The burly rearguard was benched by Jack Adams last week for what the Detroit manager said was indifferent or careless play. Smythe, however, has abundant confidence in McDonald's ability to bolster the Leafs' defence staff.

Bucko tried out with the Leafs at their training camp in the autumn of 1933, but he was sent to Buffalo Bisons, whose property he soon became. Buffalo marketed him to Detroit in 1934-35. He thus is now returning to a club that once had him in his green rookie stage, when he had not learned to skate after turning pro as a lacrosse player here. The record books list him as being born at Fergus on October 31, 1911.

Or.llia Lacrosse Star.

During the past summer McDonald was well known in Ontario lacrosse circles as the playing-coach of Orillia Terriers, runners-up for the O.L.A. senior title.

In announcing the purchase of McDonald, the Maple Leaf Club management pointed out that they are not departing from their general policy of securing and developing youthful stars. Because of a lengthy epidemic of casualties, a real state of emergency existed on the club. There is no telling how long Kampman will be out of action, and if either Horner or Fowler got injured the Leafs' defense staff would be in an extremely bad way, since a very heavy part of the schedule will begin next week-end. An experienced defenceman had to be secured.

It is understood that Detroit intends to send Thomson, 25-year-old forward, to their Inter-Am. League farm club at Pittsburg. Toronto secured Thomson from amateur ranks at Port Arthur two seasons ago.

IDEAS FOR TESTS

MELBOURNE—(CP).—Dr. Alan Robertson, chairman of the Australian Cricket Board of Control, welcomes 30-hour cricket tests for England, but opposes the time-limit idea for games in Australia.

"Well, Fellows Here Is the System I Use—"

Baseball managers were here, there and everywhere at the major league meeting in New York and the cameraman caught this trio having a gabfest, one on LEFT, none other than Charles L. (Gabby) Hartnett himself. The manager of Chicago Cubs is driving home a point to Doc. Prothro, CENTRE, and Fred Haney, RIGHT, two newcomers to major league managerial ranks. "Win a pennant in your first year," is probably the gist of the talk that being the feat Gabby accomplished after taking over the reins of the Cubs last season from Charlie Grimm. Prothro will be guiding Philadelphia Phillies, perennial National League last-placers, when another season rolls round, while Haney will be looking after their American League counterparts, St. Louis Browns.

Interest Booms In Pro Sports Across America

NEW YORK, Dec. 20 — (AP). — The striking increase in attendance and interest in profesisonal sports, particularly pro football, was singled out to-day as the outstanding United States sports trend of 1938.

More than 50 separate trends were noted by the 70 sports editors participating in the eight annual Associated Press sports poll. The main emphasis was placed on the growth of professional attractions, with pro football as the bell-wether.

Better showmanship was credited with at lease a share in the upward move in attendance not only for football but also for baseball and racing.

Adams Refuses "Enormous" Offer For Abel

DETROIT, Dec. 20—(CP).—Manager Jack Adams revealed to-day he had just refused an "enormous" offer for Sid Abel, Red Wing centre, whom he terms the brightest front-line recruit of the season. Adams did not want to say who bid for Abel, but added that any club in the National Hockey League would be glad to get the Prairie meteor.

Red Dutton, New York Americans' manager, is the saddest of all the hockey experts over the player, for he missed getting him by 24 hours when Abel was an amateur playing in his home town of Melville, Sask.

"I hurried up there only to discover that the Red Wings had been there a day ahead of me," complained Dutton.

Norwegian Visitor Demonstrates

A young lady who seems to be very much in the news these days—the picture news at least—is Ella Gulbrandsen, 17-year-old Norwegian skier, now on this continent to compete in various events. If you're wondering why she makes the picture pages so frequently, glance ABOVE. Fair Ella was caught at the top of a hill, all set to go zooming down . . . and probably go into a jump. She has been credited with a leap of nearly 170 feet . . . which is good whether spelled feet or feat.

William C. Lee Cub Ace Leading Pitcher

NEW YORK, Dec. 20—(AP).—William Crutcher Lee, Jr., strong man of Chicago Cubs, was the leading pitcher of the National Baseball League last season, official figures released to-day showed.

The big righthander led both in percentages with .710 and in earned runs with an average of 2.66 per nine-inning game to dominate the circuit's mound corps as completely as Carl Hubbell of New York Giants formerly did.

Lee turned in the most victories, 22, against nine defeats, had the most shutouts, nine, and tied for starting the most games, 37.

Four of his shutouts came in succession between September 5 and 22 equalling a venerable league record held by Red Reulbach of Chicago and Grover Cleveland Alexander of Philadelphia.

Lee appeared in a relief role seven times and pitched a total of 291 innings, second biggest load of any pitcher. Of the 1,194 batters he faced, only 281 made hits, 74 received bases on balls, and 10 sacrificed.

Remember When—

Jerome (Dizzy) Dean, who managed to hit the sports pages from January until August, was voted sports biggest disappointment of 1937. The Associated Press annual poll result, published one year ago today, showed 20 of 53 writers voted the then St. Louis Cardinals pitcher the unenviable award.

Young Man Is Found Guilty On Assault Count

APSLEY, Dec. 20 — (Special). — Found guilty of assault occasioning actual bodily harm, David McDonald, 25, of Glenalda, was given one year suspended sentence by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., yesterday afternoon.

David McDonald, Sr., complainant declared that on the evening of December 8 last, he went to his son's house in Chandos Township to get some medicine for his cold.

He was about to leave the house, he said, when his son jumped up and asked about some traps. Complainant, who is deaf, testified, "he screamed in my ear and made my head ring, and when I shoved him away he struck me and loosened a tooth."

The blow knocked complainant to the ground and afterwards the accused held his father down.

Asked by Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., if he could open his mouth properly, complainant answered, "I can now, but when I do it goes crack, crack, crack." He said the cracking noise resulted from the blow he received.

County Constable Norman Lane, whose evidence closed the case for the prosecution, saw the accused, who admitted striking his father. Accused told the constable, "I didn't strike him hard."

Mrs. Martha Badgerow, who testified on her brother's behalf, said, "Father came and talked to my husband and me and as he went to the door to leave, Dave got up and says 'good-day' to him, because he hadn't spoken to him when he came in."

Witness explained her father expressed the intention of returning later for his clothing, and her brother Dave told him to bring the traps back first. "Dad called Dave a lot of names and wouldn't be reasonable. He hit Dave over his weak lung and my brother hit him back. He last his balance and fell backwards."

Mrs. Badgerow said when it was realized her father was hurt, Dave offered to get a doctor, but her father refused because he didn't want anyone to know about the matter. Dave gave some raw pork and applied it to the injured man's face. Afterwards the complainant stayed at the house all night, and had breakfast next morning before leaving.

A similar story was related by Mrs. Ruby McDonald, wife of the accused. Cross-examined, she said her father-in-law accused Dave of burning the saw mill, and had been spreading "lies" about her husband up and down the countryside.

She declared, "Dave was not really angry; he just wanted justice."

Testifying in his own defence, the accused said that while he was away in hospital his father had taken his traps. He declared he asked his father to return the traps on the night in question, when his father "dunned" him for $365 which he said was owing by accused.

Asserting he had struck his father in self-defence, McDonald said, "I hit him back because it was the only thing to do."

He swore that his father came at him with his two fingers outstretched in an attempt to "gouge" his eyes and, "I hit him again and he fell over the stairway."

Under cross-examination McDonald complained his father had often threatened "to split me with an axe." The son said his father accused him to setting the mill on fire, but he declared with reference to a fire marshal's inquiry last summer, "the court cleared me of that."

Deciding that the case was not as serious as the information first led him to believe, Magistrate Langley found while there was an assault committed the father had forced the issue when he either pushed or struck his son.

His Worship, deciding also that the accused was not entitled to acquittal on the ground of self-defence, declared the blow with which the accused retaliated was of greater severity than that permitted within the mean of the Statute.

curred over Mr. Hepburn's application to the federal government for permission to export electric power to the United States and to proceed with water diversion projects in Northwestern Ontario.

The two Governments have also been at odds over the St. Lawrence Deep Waterways proposal to which Mr. Hepburn is opposed.

A week ago last Saturday at Port Arthur the Federal Government took the offensive when Labor Minister Rogers and Transport Minister Howe attacked Mr. Hepburn, spoke of his "unnatural alliance" with Premier Maurice Duplessis and linked his name with a conspiracy to remove Mr. Mackenzie King from the Leadership and establish a Government at Ottawa under the control of the Quebec and Ontario administration.

Mr. Mackenzie King endorsed the statement made by the two ministers and after Mr. Hepburn replied with a new attack on the Federal Government and the Prime Minister in particular the Ontario caucus was called.

Howe, Rogers Report.

The caucus heard from Mr. Howe and Mr. Rogers an account of the circumstances leading up to their Port Arthur speeches and approved the utterances. Among these circumstances was a move to deprive Mr. Howe of the Liberal nomination for Port Arthur. The candidate put forward to oppose him was Charles Cox, a Hepburn supporter in the Ontario Legislature and a former member of the Hepburn Cabinet.

It is understood the caucus was told Mr. Cox had behind him a majority of the Port Arthur city delegates at the nominating convention. But when the country delegates came in an dit appeared they were nearly all for Mr. Howe, Mr. Cox did not offer himself as a candidate for the nomination.

The Prime Minister did not attend the caucus, but was present at a dinner held last night and extended his thanks to his followers for their declaration of confidence and support.

Earlier, the Prime Minister sent a letter to W. H. Taylor, M.P. for Norfolk and caucus chairman, in which he said: "I can only say that of the many evidences of loyalty, devotion, and support which have inspired and sustained me in the task of leadership of the Liberal Party in Canada, none has meant more to me than the resolution adopted at this morning's meeting."

So far as the Federal side of the affair is concerned no further action is likely until after Parliament meets on January 12. Whatever proposals the committee may recommend will not be dealt with until another caucus is held early in the New Year.

Christmas Concert At Lakefield United

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 20. — The annual Christmas concert of Lakefield United Church Sunday school was held here on Friday evening. A good turnout of parents and friends were treated to a most entertaining program. A number of dialogues and pageants complete with colorful costumes combined with a selection of humorous recitations and musical numbers in the Christmas vein, to provide a varied and delightful evening.

A. E. Higgins, superintendent of the Sunday school, acted as chairman.

The program was introduced with a Christmas hymn. Little Miss Shirley Pearson opened the concert with a recitation, after which Harlow Hunter gave a humorous selection.

A pageant, "The Glory of the Star," was presented with special lighting effects. An unseen choir provided a musical setting for the appearance on the stage of the shepherds, the wisemen, the angels and Mary, Joseph and the Baby. Eastern costumes in vivid colours lent considerably to this presentation.

Donald and Tom Milburn played a piano duet, after which a recitation by Jean Eagleton dealt with the popular theme of the evening —Santa Claus. Donna Edwards was next on the list with a recitation, after which Miss S. Grylls and Master John, David Grylls played a piano duet.

Evelyn Allen gave a Christmas recitation.

Mary Alice Renwick and Winifred Murphy presented a comic dialogue.

A solo by Mary Milburn was followed by a dialogue by the members of Mrs. Frank Darling's class, and Jean and David Spence played a piano duet.

Music by Ralph Darling on the piano accordion followed a recitation by Carolyn Ann Erskine. Mrs. Milburn's class gave a dialogue; Muereta and Jean Kelly played a piano duet and Mrs. Albert Darling's class was responsible for a skit.

Mary Northey and Grace Millage played a piano duet; Clarina Foster recited; Lois Yale and Helen Kelly played together on the piano, and recitations by Eileen Soles and Ruth Graham completed the program.

Treats of candy and fruit were distributed from the gaily decorated Christmas tree to member of the Sunday school.

Mrs. G. F. Kelly, Mrs. J. R. Hull and Mrs. Sam Grylls were responsible for training the children for the pageant and dialogues, etc. Miss Lois Yale acted as accompanist.

bridge over the Otonabee River, acquiring of property for public parking space, purchase of quarrying machinery to be used at the city's gravel pit, and also the purchase of a paving plant.

"The Trust is anxious to assist the council if it can do so without incurring liability to themselves so that the rate of taxes for next year might be as low as possible," Mr. Hall wrote.

Facts relating to the city's finances which he set out included the following: total assessment $24,693,995 of which $19,175,525 is taxable.

Total debt of the city, $4,316,947.95 of which $1,080,600 is general. Items in the debenture debt were: public schools, $442,150; collegiate institute, $300,800; Protestant Home, $10,000.

Utilities Commission: Waterworks, $724,860; Hydro power, $527,920; gas works, $276,000.

City's share of local improvements: pavements, $349,191.68; sewers, $94,516.72; sidewalks, $33,212.45; curbs, $5,177.12.

Frontage charges on local improvements; sewers, $179,380.21; sidewalks, $28,271.28; curbs, $28,803; pavements, $236,086.09.

The amount of instalment debentures is $612,000. Mr. Hall briefly outlined the history of the City Trust Commission which, he wrote, was authorized by an Act of the Legislature in 1861 to assume charge of the city's debts because monies were being diverted to current expenses instead of being retained for the purpose of paying interest and accumulating a sinking fund.

The reply of the Municipal Board affirms that the advice given to the City Trust by Mr. Hall is correct "in the opinion of the Board by reason of provisions of the Municipal Act. Clause 321 says that if there is a surplus in any year "it shall remain so until required in due course for the payment of interest, or for the sinking fund, or in payment of the principal."

Section 322 is quoted: "No money collected for the purpose of a sinking fund shall be applied towards paying any part of the current or other expenditures of the Corporation."

Section 323 provides a heavy penalty for a member of a council who purports to contravene sections 321-2.

Section 323, clause 1—If the council applies any money collected for a sinking fund in paying current or other expenditure, the members who vote for such application shall be personally liable for the amount so applied, which may be recovered in any court of competent jurisdiction.

Clause 2—If the council, upon the request in writing of a ratepayer, refuses or neglects for one month to bring an action therefore, the action may be brought by any ratepayer.

Clause 3—The members who vote for such application shall be disqualified from holding any municipal office for two years.

Referring to two suggestions from the council as to what use might be made of part of the Commission's surplus, the Board briefly reviews them. One was to divert part of the surplus to the retirement of debentures shortly to become due.

"It would appear that this may be done pursuant to the powers in section 327 of the Municipal Act which provides in effect that where an agreement is reached between the council and holders of debentures, part of the sinking fund may be applied in payment of the debentures which are selected by the Board, and the exercise of which power is subject to the Board's approval."

The other suggestion was to distribute part of the funds among all the separate sinking funds belonging to the various bylaws proportionate to the amounts of each and the number of years each has been accumulating. "The Board feels that might be open to serious doubt of its legality. It would appear to the Board that if such approval were followed it would in effect be repealing the levy clauses in the respective bylaws."

Burning Scrip

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J.—A $100,996 fire occurred yesterday in the City Hall at suburban Ventor—but no one tried to put it out. Scrip once worth that much was burned in the furnace by order of the City Council.

The Peterborough Examiner

VOL. LXXX, No. 296 — PETERBOROUGH, TUESDAY, DECEMBER 20, 1938 — PRICE THREE CENTS

To Speed Production

WELLINGTON, N.Z.—(CP).—The central executive of a bureau of industry has been formed to concentrate on working out plans for industrial expansion and establishment of new industries.

Eating House Bylaw Passes Council

The city council of 1938 closed its record last night with a special meeting called for the special purpose of passing two bylaws that have been long ajelling in committee. One of them was the victualling house and refreshment booth bylaw which brings within closer supervision the refreshment counter stands and booths which are outside the classification of the so-called eating house.

The other bylaw read by Alderman Gordon consolidated fourteen separate but kindred bylaws pertaining to the regulation of traffic. Most of the changes in both these new municipal canons have been published from time to time in the committee stages.

A third bylaw authorized the appointment of deputy returning officers and otherwise provided for the holding of the municipal elections on January 2.

A request from the Border Transit Company for continuance of their terminal space at Simcoe and George streets was referred to the Legal Committee.

Asks More Rip-Rap

A resolution by Alderman Glover, seconded by Alderman Wilson, appealed to the federal Department of Public Works to complete the rip-rapping of Little Lake from the tip of Point St. Charles to the George street wharf. On that north shore of the former McDonald property it is proposed by City Engineer Parsons that sheet piling be driven to be anchored to piles driven into the filling with which most of the water front will have to be built up. The piling could be cut off below the water line and capped with concrete. The slope of the bank from the concrete cap to the general level would be rip-rapped, and this shield would be broken at intervals of twenty feet for concrete steps, conforming with the design of the wharf.

It is unlikely that this work will be undertaken until spring. The extension of the rip-rap facing is to complete the whole lake front from the George street wharf to the Little Lake Cemetery, as part of the plan to beautification of the bank overlooking the lake.

Man Is Struck Down While Crossing Street

Crossing George Street on the south side at Simcoe Street on Tuesday night, John Atkinson, 146 Simcoe Street, was struck down by an automobile being driven south on George Street by Ray LaPlante. He sustained bruises and lacerations on the face and head and a possible fracture of one thumb. The injured man was removed to Payne's Drug Store, and medical assistance summoned, after which he was taken to his home.

Rev. Dr. Grant Addresses Club

ENNISMORE, Dec. 20. — The Young People's Club held their last meeting of the year on Friday evening with the president, Leo Scollard, in the chair.

Treasurer Joe Sullivan reported the financial statement for the year 1938.

Kenneth Crough, a very energetic members of the club, gave an interesting reading on "The Church." "The first churches or synagogues," he stated, "were meeting places for the purpose of offering sacrifice under the old law."

Miss Margaret Sullivan read a very instructive paper on co-operation, enlarging somewhat on the paper given on the same subject at the previous meeting. Miss Sullivan pointed out that there were four kinds of co-operatives, namely, consumers, distributors, producers and credit-co-operatives or credit unions. Discussion on co-operatives followed, led by Jas. A. Gifford.

"Current Topics" was the subject of an instructive paper given by Miss Margaret Mulvihill. It was learned that an apostolic delegation had been appointed to England for the first time in four hundred years.

Two very interesting motion pictures were shown by Rev. Father Gillogly.

The feature number of the program was an address given by Rev. Dr. Grant of the parish of the Sacred Heart, Peterborough, on his trip to Palestine. "From Palestine," stated the speaker, "had come the greatest influence to change the history of the world because of one man, and that man, Jesus Christ." Rev. Dr. Grant also revealed the customs in that country are very similar to-day to those in the time of our Lord.

Firemen Found Access To Fire Cut Off

The difficulty the fire department had in getting at the fire in the Pattenick store on the night of December 12 was described by Fire Chief George Gimblett in his evidence in police court this morning in the preliminary hearing of the arson charge against Robert Nathan Herman, manager of the store. Chief Gimblett said the firemen had been unable to reach the stairway and the only other entrance to the basement was a narrow coal chute. As a consequence the fire fighters had to crawl along the floor until they located the hottest spot and then cut a hole through. Then by means of a rotary nozzle they beat down the fire.

When he was arraigned last Friday Herman had elected to be tried by the magistrate. However this morning A. J. Skeans, formerly of Cobourg and now in Toronto, appeared in his behalf and informed Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., that he was junior counsel in the case, the senior defence counsel being Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., who was busy in the supreme court.

The case was accordingly adjourned to allow Mr. Skeans an opportunity to consult with Mr. Gordon and when the court re-opened he asked permission to have the first election withdrawn. Magistrate Langley consented and as the accused did not elect announced that the hearing would be regarded as a preliminary inquiry.

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., prosecuted and had the assistance of Inspector D. H. Saville of the Ontario Fire Marshall's department.

Roy Pitchford, photographer, the first witness, identified a photograph he had taken at the basement of the Pattenick store on George street on the night of December 15 and the picture was put in as an exhibit. It showed the north side of the cellar as photographed from the west end. Inspector Saville and Chief Gimblett were with him when the photograph was taken, he said. The picture showed the main burned area in the basement.

To Mr. Skeans witness said that he saw the south side of the cellar but that he was concentrating his lights on the north side. That was the part he was asked to photograph as the burned area and he did not see any other burned portion. He was not sure where the furnace was located.

"What was in the northwest corner of the basement?" asked Mr. Skeans.

Witness said the staircase came down there.

Did you make a close examination yourself as to what was in the parts of material you photographed?

I didn't make a close examination but I did notice some of them.

How did the cat keep quiet for 15 minutes while the picture was being taken? asked Magistrate Langley.

"I'm sorry your worship, but that's not a cat. It's a black hat," replied the witness.

"There's some excuse for the mistake," said Mr. Skeans. "It's one of those modern women's hats."

Chief Gimblett

Fire Chief George Gimblett said the alarm was turned in at 6.20 p.m. and the fire department reached the store in a minute. He arrived a half minute later and saw smoke pouring out of the store. Firemen had already forced the south door. The smoke was very dense. The other door was opened and water lines laid and an attempt made to reach the stairway. Three firemen were equipped with gas masks and several men were overcome with smoke, including several who wore the masks. Carbon monoxide gas was very thick in the smoke.

Chief Gimblett said two lines of hose were laid on the front. It was impossible to reach the stairway so the men crawled along the floor, found the hottest spot in the floor and cut a hole through. The hot spot was on the north aisle of the store, 4 or 5 feet south of the north wall. A rotary nozzle was put through the floor. This covered an area of about 20 feet and killed the fire for the time being.

"Flames shot up through the hole when we opened it," said Chief Gimblett.

The doorway at the top of the stairway was only about 15 inches wide and the only other entrance was a narrow coal chute. There was just a spot of fire here and there when the basement was reached. "They were what we call bull's eyes," said the chief.

The fire was absolutely out in two hours he said.

What was the extent of the fire when you got there?

"There was a good substantial fire there. From my experience judging from the rapidity with which the fire spread it must have been going some time. Unless something had been added to it to make it go faster I think that fire had been burning at least half an hour," said the witness.

Chief Gimblett named gasoline, benzol, turpentine and other accelerants.

There was no odor of gasoline or coal oil, he said, when the brigade arrived there.

Where It Started

I would say the fire started on the north side of the cellar approximately half way down," the witness said.

In another half hour the building would have been gutted, Chief Gimblett stated.

In the section where the fire started witness said there were packages of goods, towels, lingerie, etc., along the north wall. The fire had extended over the brick pillars in the centre and had spread in all directions.

The burned area, the chief estimated, had a diameter of about 10 feet and practically the whole cellar was scorched by the hot smoke.

In the centre of the basement there was a row of Christmas gift boxes. Behind them were boxes and cartons of different colored yarn, overshoes, etc. The boxes were the ordinary packing cases made of wood. Most of the material would not burn easily for wool, flannelette, etc. was slow burning material.

Not From Furnace

The furnace was approximately two thirds of the way down the cellar in the middle.

"It wasn't necessary to examine the furnace. There was no fire in it and the fire hadn't reached it," he added.

"What do you say to the fire originating from the furnace?"

"It could not because there was no fire in the furnace."

"Did you have any conversation with the accused as to the furnace?"

"I don't recollect any."

The witness said a considerable amount of material had been completely destroyed by fire. He was satisfied the furnace had nothing to do with the fire.

Chief Gimblett pointed out in the photograph the area that had been burned and the spot in which the fire started.

Ontario's Dairy Farmers Are Unable To Take Full Advantage Of New U.S. Trade Agreement

Objection to the effect of the testing of cattle for bovine tuberculosis in Peterborough county was expressed by a farmer who had lost his whole herd. On the other hand, The Examiner was informed this morning that Ontario dairy farmers were not in a position to take full advantage of the new trade agreement with the United States because the health laws of this country relating to cattle were not up to the standard established in the United States.

It was stated that American cream imports must carry the guarantee that herds have been tested for mastitis. That restriction applies to their own cattle, and it is now reaching out to dairy farms on this side of the border.

The Examiner was told that comparatively few herds in the province could show a clean bill of health if subjected to the mastitis test, and although the government has been trying to advance animal health the attitude of dairymen has not caught up with the official program, and further that it is still lagging behind the standards set up in the United States.

The federal government has obtained a trade agreement with the big neighbor to the south, a political instrument, but, it is stated, the provincial industry is generally not ready to avail itself in a large measure of the new opportunity afforded by this big market.

Federal Approval Is Awaited On Completion Of Highway

If it receives the approval of the federal government, the completion of Highway No. 36 from Buckhorn to Bobcaygeon will be begun in January, A. L. Elliott, M.P.P., told the Examiner today. Seven or eight miles of this section of the provincial highway from Bobcaygeon to Burleigh Falls by way of the Oregon Trail, now made straight, have already been improved by the provincial Department of Northern Development. It has recently been proposed that the federal and provincial governments each contribute $1,000,000 for the relief of unemployment especially of unmarried men this winter. Most of the money was to be spent in the northern part of the province, but this Buckhorn road has been suggested and the suggestion has provincial approval. If the Ottawa authorities give their endorsation to it, Mr. Elliott said, a group of men will be engaged next month.

MAIN STREET TOPICS

By an Examiner Reporter.

LARGEST TURKEY.

Largest turkey to be brought into Jopling Brothers' store on George street to date weighed 33 pounds. The firm starts shipping birds to-morrow to Toronto markets.

CHARGING THEATRE PEOPLE

E. T. Lush, market clerk, is charging at 70 cents a market day for the use of the strip at the rear of the Royal Theatre for the loading of trucks hauling away the old furnishings and other material that are being removed in the renovation of the building. His notice to the council was sent on as important business to the property committee.

FREE GEESE.

Ten employees at Grant's Cleaners will each receive a free goose for Christmas with the compliments of their employer. The manager had made arrangements to purchase ten turkeys from a farmer near Lakefield, but in the meantime burglars carried off the turkeys, so the farmer prevailed on the buyer to switch to geese. Ten plump geese will be delivered this week.

HIT BY CAR

The three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. D. Barclay, Hunter street east was slightly injured Monday afternoon when he was struck by a motor car driven by Frank Lockington, R.R. 9, Peterborough. Mr. Lockington was driving east on Hunter street when the child ran out into the street near the Marlin apartments and was hit. Fortunately he escaped from the accident with a bump on his head.

PET SQUIRREL KILLED.

There was mourning among Central School children this morning after a hit-and-run motorist had killed one of the favorite black squirrels that are such a common sight in the Water Street section. "The children are taught to treat these animals kindly and they do," said a citizen at the corner of Water and Murray Street as a group of little boys and girls gazed sadly at the mangled form of the squirrel, "and then we come along with our cars and kill the little things. This is about a dozen that have been caught along here in the last year."

ODDS AND ENDS.

If Santa Claus could tote a full-sized tractor as easily as those little ones the boys are hoping to find in their stockings next Sunday morning he could find one right at hand down in Hall and Andrew's store, a big shiny one that could do a lot of sod and stubble disturbing on any farmer's lot...A citizen's gift of $25 to the city's relief fund was reported this morning, but the quiet personality of the giver simply forbids making public mention of it... Advertisements in the New York papers indicate that the Sonja Henie costume is finding its way into general circulation in some spots. They look like mere flounces, and some of the lads are wondering when, if ever they are going to be adopted around here...Passing by windows these evenings discloses the large number of decorated Christmas trees that have already been set up in many homes...Something conflicting in an evergreen tree on the verandah, ready to be taken inside, and a man with a couple of sheets in the wind stumbling on the top step heading for the door.

Mickey Mouse, Ferdinand Bull, And 7 Dwarfs Have New York's Pro Santas Worried

NEW YORK, Dec. 20 (AP)—An unseasonal employment slump had members of the National Association of Professional Santa Clauses pulling their beards in worry today.

The second annual convention of Kris Kringles protested yesterday that jobs were being lost because of "unfair competition" from Mickey Mouse, Ferdinand the Bull and the Seven Dwarfs.

The convention decided against trying to remedy the situation by collective bargaining, however, because the 14 Santas present didn't want to picket.

"Children, if they saw us as every day human beings, indulging in everyday labor disputes, would be immediately disillusioned," explained William Lein, retiring president.

Lein urged a campaign against "uneducated" Santa Clauses.

"I refer to the Santa Clauses who refer to 'dese, dem and dose' to put across their ideas to children," he said.

"I believe we should make this profession a tried and strict one, not allowing just any one to come into it unless duly qualified by manner of speech, character and appearance."

Colonel Dewart Put In Command Of 9th Brigade

Lieutenant-Colonel J. A. Dewart has been promoted to the rank of colonel and to command of the 9th Infantry Brigade at Kingston, it was announced last night by the National Defense Department. He succeeds Colonel H. J. Smith, transferred to the reserve of officers.

Col. Dewart has been in command of the Prince of Wales Rangers here since its formation two years ago. He will be succeeded by Major R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne, second in command, whose promotion to the rank of lieutenant-colonel will be gazetted shortly.

The brigade over which Col. Dewart is now in command comprises the Princess of Wales Own Regiment, of Kingston; the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders of Cornwall; the Midland Regiment of Cobourg; the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment of Belleville; the Argyle Light Infantry of Belleville; and the Prince of Wales Rangers, Peterborough.

Associated with him on the staff will be Major J. W. Howard of the Argyle Light Infantry, as brigade major; and Captain E. W. Matthews of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, as staff captain.

Commanded 4th Battalion

In 1933 Col. Dewart assumed command of the 4th Machine Battalion, which had companies in Ottawa, Kingston and Peterborough. In the reorganization of militia in 1936, that unit was disbanded, "A" company becoming part of the Princess of Wales Own Regiment; "B" company, part of the Cameron Highlanders of Ottawa; and "C" company, part of the Prince of Wales Rangers. Col. Dewart was appointed commanding officer of the newly formed Prince of Wales Rangers, which post he has held since that time.

Building Lots Are In Demand

Six lots recently sold in the city by Ald. J. H. McCannan indicate a continuing interest in local real estate with a promise of renewed building activity in the spring. On two of these lots foundations for houses were immediately taken out, and construction is well under way.

M. Veneranda paid $1,200 for a property on Homewood avenue with a frontage of ninety-nine feet on which he is planning to build a house during the coming year.

A. Olin bought the lot at the south-west corner of McDonnel street and Monaghan Road, and has pushed along the work of building to the stage at which bricklayers began construction of the walls this morning.

A lot on Douglas avenue purchased from the Toronto General Trusts by A. J. Smith is already in the hands of builders. The foundation has been laid, and it is understood that the work of erecting the house will be proceeded with at once, without any interruption.

A Brock street property has been bought from the James Connal estate by Chris. Robson who is planning to build in the spring.

T. F. Matthews of Toronto, is reported to be the purchaser of the lot on Hunter street adjoining the Sunshine Dairy.

The city's rink lot at the corner of Charlotte and Monaghan Road is now owned by F. J. Hogan, who will also be a spring builder. Mr. Hogan's purchase lends color to a report several months ago that the Canadian General Electric Company had bought the Hogan house and land immediately west of their present fence limit on Albert street.

Pleads Not Guilty To Theft Of Wood

Arrested by Chief Hardie of Bobcaygeon on a warrant issued by Provincial Constable David Silvester, John Healey, 28, who said he is at present living in Peterborough was arraigned before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning on a charge of stealing three cords of maple hardwood from H. W. German, the alleged theft taking place in the township of Galway on November 23. Healey pleaded not guilty.

Crown Attorney McElderry, K.C., said the crown was not ready to go on and asked for a remand until next week.

"Are you going to keep this man in jail over Christmas?" asked Magistrate Langley.

It was finally arranged to remand the accused until Friday, bail being fixed at $200.

Legion Carnival Decided Success

Christmas dinners were won by fifteen lucky people at the Legion Carnival Monday night, which got under way in a blaze of excitement and color at the Legion Hall. Five turkeys, five geese and five chickens were given as main prizes, and six valuable door prizes were drawn for at thirty-minute intervals.

The hall was crowded from early in the evening until almost midnight, wheels of fortune were kept spinning, bingo tables were busy, and booths featuring articles suitable for Christmas gifts were well patronized by crowds in holiday mood. Every prize in the room was Canadian made and bought from local stores. Blankets and rugs made a particularly fine display at one booth, and were entirely of Peterborough manufacture. Hams and bacons were another attractive exhibit, and bore the mark of local concerns. Other booths featured dolls and children's toys of all kinds; men's wear; ladies' hosiery and silk goods; candies and cigarettes.

Much credit for the success of the affair, which was held under the auspices of Canadian Legion Branch 52, goes to its president, Chief George Gimblett, and to the chairman of the entertainment committee, Arthur Nokes. Proceeds from the Carnival will go for Christmas relief of indigent ex-service men.

The first door prize, a rug, was won by Mrs. Cross, Gladstone Avenue; second, Mrs. O'Halloran, 319 McDonnel Street, half a cord of wood; third, A. Minnicola, 175 Adeline street, a bag of flour; fourth, Robert McIlwain, a clock; fifth, T. Nash, McDonnel Street, bag of sugar; fifth, Bill White, 284 Parkhill Road, radio lamp.

Turkeys were won by Red Nelson, Alec Butcher, A. Sheldon, S. Hupple, Don Dinsdale; geese, A. R. Mitchell, S. Scott, Wm. Henry, Harold Cox, E. J. Ferguson; chickens, Arthurs, Peterborough, with ticket No. 5132 (not called for); Agnes Moore, ticket No. 3172 (not called for); E. Burrough; H. G. Gladhill, ticket No. 3017 (not called for); J. S. Cochrane, ticket No. 1922 (not called for).

RADIO IS STOLEN.

Sneak thieves broke into the home of Wm. M. McNott, Howden Avenue, North Monaghan, while the family was away from the house Saturday night and stole a number of articles, including a mantel radio. There has been a series of breakins in the township recently.

City Offices Be Closed On December 27

The offices at the city hall will be closed on the Tuesday after Christmas, the council decided last night. A motion by Aldermen Wilson and Stocker proposed that the day be declared a civic holiday, but an amendment by Aldermen Gordon and Cotton that the closing for the day apply only to the city hall and that it be voluntary elsewhere throughout the city, carried with the support of Aldermen Glover, Dutton and Bradburn.

Alderman Gordon's suggestion that an effort be made to organize a fund to be known as the Mayor's Fund, after the manner of the Lord Mayor's Fund in many of the cities of England, was later considered by Mayor Hamilton and Alderman Dutton, who decided to call a meeting of all those interested in welfare work for Wednesday at 7.30 p.m.

Alderman Gordon said he believed that many citizens would be happy to support the Mayor's Fund, which would be instituted solely for aiding persons in need of help during the festive season.

Alderman Dutton said that the relief department had still to make up forty baskets, and that the assistance of the public was needed to ensure a Christmas dinner in every home.

"We have one hundred more families on relief than at this time last year," Alderman Dutton said, "and we are worried about the filling of all the baskets we know are needed. I should like to have seen something extra included in the baskets, but with the increased demand and also that the city has to bear the entire cost, I can't see how it would be possible."

SLID PAST SIGN.

J. A. Young, R.R. 2, told the police that his car slid past the stop sign at King and Rubidge Streets Monday because of the icy road, and as a result came into collision with an automobile driven by Howard Rose, Ford Avenue, North Monaghan. Both machines were damaged.

ROMANCE INC.

BY OREN ARNOLD

CHAPTER 30

WHEN YOU advertise a tractor or a mouse trap or a cigaret or a soap or anything else in the United States of America, your product had better be up to its advertised claims. If it isn't, John Customer will discover that fact rather promptly, and send you into the business oblivion you unquestionably deserve. It is the American way, and it is a good way.

Mrs. Sara Sue Davis, Incorporated, was well aware of that. Not so much as a business principle—for she was none too experienced in business—but as a rather obvious American moral principle. In short, she believed it was dishonest, sneaking, mean, to advertise a product or a service which was not as advertised. And she had advertised expert counsel in romance.

One of her most enthusiastic customers had been Mr. Worthington Gurley, almost 18 years old. She had accepted his money and agreed to guide his heart affairs. When Fate diabolically caused Worthington to fall in love with Sara Sue herself, she still did not feel free of obligation.

"He's a cute boy," she admitted, in serious discussion with her Mother Davis one night. "I've got to stop him from seeing so much of me. I've got a plan, too."

"What, dear?" Mother Davis asked.

"Never mind. I'll tell you about it afterward—if it works. He thinks he's in love with me."

She chose as the scene for her nefarious frame-up the fashionable Montrose Plunge. This swimming pool, in a beautiful country club, is itself a work of art. It is outdoors in summer; indoors and heated in winter, with a glass roof. There are many beautiful tile pictures, many potted palms, pretty this and pretty that. Sara Sue agreed to go with Worthington for a "private" swim at 11 o'clock in the morning. It was a day when he had no classes from 10:30 to 1, and an hour when probably nobody else would be swimming. But—Sara Sue said she had to go down town first and would meet him at the Plunge. That was part of her nefarious plan.

Another nefarious move was to telephone Helen McKean, who was Sara Sue's friend and who weighed 212 pounds and who had a similarly adipose sister.

"Helen, be a pal, will you, honey?" Sara Sue pleaded. "You and Jane meet me for lunch at the Montrose club. And be there, in the pool, by 10:30. Will you? I'll tell you all about it then. Secret!"

The fat McKean girls were good friends of Sara Sue. They readily agreed.

Finally, Sara Sue Davis, Incorporated, telephoned Miss Marcia d'Alaine, of Baton Rouge, Louisiana, now a freshman at Rice institute.

"Marcia, this is Sara Sue Davis. Can you meet me for lunch in the Montrose club? Or better—can you come and swim with me at 10:30 and then have lunch?"

Sara Sue knew very well Marcia could, and would. She had already investigated Marcia's classroom schedule for the morning. She knew Marcia liked her, was in fact one of her most enthusiastic customers.

Now Miss Marcia d'Alaine was highly important to Sara Sue's scheme. Miss d'Alaine, 25 per cent French, 75 per cent southern, 100 per cent American, and perhaps 200 per cent beautiful, was in fact the real crux of Sara Sue's plan, although the little freshman didn't know it and never did learn it.

Marcia's height was five feet two, which was six inches shorter—for instance—than Worthington Gurley's height. Her weight was 108 pounds, which was 30 pounds less—for instance—than Worthington Gurley's weight. Her posture was the type whereby one can carry a book balanced on one's head, without appearing stiff or unnatural. Her figure was superb—the type that makes artists change from landscapes to figure painting—and her legs were of the classification glorified by the late Florenz Ziegfeld. All of these details, too, were rather essential to the frame-up. Another essential detail was the fact that Miss Marcia d'Alaine had the face that Shirley Temple probably will have when she grows up and a smile that reminds one instantly of Janet Gaynor.

At a quarter of 11, Sara Sue telephoned the Montrose Plunge.

"Oh, Worthington," she lamented into the transmitter. "I am terribly sorry, but I just can't get there yet. I had an emergency business call downtown, and I'm tied up. Please forgive me.. Go on and swim and wait for me."

"I'm already swimming," said he. She knew that. She ascertained it from the attendant, in fact, before calling him to the phone. She had even planned it.

And now let us—as they say—shift the scene.

Let us play some bright, transitory music a la radio style, then re-focus our attention on the beautiful Montrose Plunge.

You will know, of course, that contrast is a marvelous thing. You will have observed that a Negro's white teeth always flash against his ebony skin; that a diamond takes on added worth against purple velvet; that an elephant becomes more colossal and (get this, now) a doe more graceful, when the two stand side by side. This academic consideration is important to the new scene.

There, beside the pool, stand the McKean sisters, total tonnage, 418 pounds. They are good girls, good humored. But they're colossal—in solid bright red suits.

Out of the locker room, now, comes Miss Marcia d'Alaine.

Miss Marcia is willowy, slender, beautifully curved. She has on a dainty blue-and-white rubber cap from which half a dozen curls are peaking. The cap seems to make her great big eyes even bigger. She has a blue lastex suit, not too daring, but form fitting, without a wrinkle anywhere.

Miss Marcia does not plant her legs 24 feet apart—the knees leaning somewhat intimately together—as if they were supports for a heavy wharf. She does not plop both feet down flat-footed on the colored tile, and stand arms akimbo like an angry washwoman. No, she lets the McKean sisters do that. Quite unconsciously and naturally, Miss Marcia seems to flow forward, to stand daintily on one foot with the left knee bent slightly in front of the right, and to have her hands gracefully at work controlling the peeking curls—just so her pretty arms show off perfectly. This posture is not studied; it is absolutely natural, while Miss Marcia makes small talk with the fat McKean girls, with whom she is acquainted.

And across the pool, near the men's locker room, Mr. Worthington Gurley has been waiting. He is sitting on a springboard, a little disgusted. Mr. Gurley, along with every other man in Christendom, dislikes to wait for a lady with whom he has a date. It makes him a trifle angry with her. His attention is likely to wander to any thing in sight. Which fact was just ducky, Sara Sue Davis would have told you; and was, in fact, all a part of her nefarious plan.

Sara Sue doesn't come. Worthington is piqued with her, hates to be stood up. Across yonder is a perfectly lovely little girl, made more lovely by the extraordinary contrast offered by the McKean sisters. Worthington knows the McKean sisters. They see him. They introduce him to the perfectly lovely little girl. Gosh!

It turns out, remarkably, that the lovely little girl has much in common with Worthington. They both are freshmen at Rice, for instance. They are about the same age. They both swim. They both like football. They both like this and that and the other. They both dislike alcoholic liquor. And raw oysters. And Republicans. They both love to dance—isn't that a coincidence?

Remember, too, that Mr. Worthington Gurley is not only an aggressive young man, but could be called handsome, even if he is rather boyish yet. Most of the adolescent acne has disappeared from him, leaving him clean and bright. His shoulders are broadening; his arms are strong. He can do a good one-and-a-half dive—look, Marcia. You see, they are already calling each other by their first names.

The McKean sisters do some swimming of their own; or what they call swimming. But actually their mission for the day has been fulfilled. They are left somewhat alone, in the shallow end of the pool. Nobody else is swimming this early, on an autumn day. Marcia and Worthington have the entire deep end to themselves. You see, Marcia can outswim him under water, but he can outdistance her in a surface race. Do you want to learn the Australian crawl, Marcia? Look, you do like this— Say, you learn quickly, Marcia. Say, you're—gosh!

Mrs. Sara Sue Davis, Incorporated, had often said that love is the grandest thing in the world; is far too important a matter to be treated lightly or dismissed with a casual laugh.

SIZES 2-8

Hang these cunning little pyjamas right on the Christmas tree, tied in a gay Christmas box for brother or sister. Jane will love her name embroidered right on the pocket of these dainty, but cosy warm pale blue flannelette pyjamas, printed with pretty nosegay in pink. The feminine ruffling may be of washable blue satin ribbon or of self-material. Buttons right down the front will enable her to put them on herself without any aid from mummy. Note they have a drop seat. For "best" she could have them of washable satin or silk crepe. If she favors cottons....the percale prints and solid colored broadcloths are sturdy. Brother will feel quite grown-up in his pyjamas if they are made of wine colored flannelette.... with Peter Pan collar and long sleeves. Of course the nursery rhyme prints in flannelette or cotton are also fetching. Mummy will find them so simple and inexpensive to sew, she'll want to make several....for her own little tots.. ..and some for Christmas gifts.

Style No. 2148 is designed for sizes 2, 4, 6, and 8 years. Size 4 requires 2⅝ yards of 39-inch material with 2⅝ yards of ruffling.

"ake Your Wife Out Every Week, Even If Only For a Window-Shopping Tour—Don't Haggle With Her About Household Money—And Never Forget Anniversaries

TO THE list of rules for keeping your wife's love, which were presented yesterday, husbands should add these and assure greater happiness:

Sixth. Give your wife an evening out every week and a vacation once a year. Even the hired girl rates that. Don't delude yourself into thinking that all work and no play makes Jane a bright girl who enjoys working fourteen hours a day, with no Sundays or holidays off, and that she gets all the thrills she desires out of cooking and scrubbing and baby-tending.

Housework is dull and monotonous. Taking care of children is the most nerve-wearing job ever devised. Break the strain of it for your wife by making her doll herself up and go stepping with you to some place where she will eat a meal that she didn't prepare herself and see lights and gayety and get something new to think about. Take her out if you can't afford anything except to go window shopping. The big idea is that you show her that you are thinking about her happiness and want to do something that will give her pleasure.

Seventh. Give your wife a square deal about money matters. Treat her as you do your business partner instead of as a slave who works for her board and clothes. The woman who makes a man a comfortable home, who bears and rears his children, who nurses him when he is sick, who entertains his company and makes a social position for him, who pinches pennies to help him get a start in the world, works more hours than any other laborer on earth, and earns so much that it would bankrupt her husband to pay her. So don't begrudge her a minimum wage.

Don't fool yourself into thinking that your wife doesn't consider it a humiliation to have to come to you like a beggar for every penny. It crushes her into the ground every time she asks for a quarter and you demand to know what she did with the one you gave her last week. Don't excuse your being a tightwad by saying that everything you have is hers. Maybe so, but it doesn't make a wife love her husband any the better to have to wait until he dies to collect what is coming to her. Did you ever notice that most widows go on a spending spree as soon as they get their hands on their husbands' estates? It is because it is the first time in their lives they have ever had any financial independence and the exhilaration of it goes to their heads.

Eighth. Never throw other women, either past or present, in your wife's teeth. Before you are married, if you are a bachelor, burn all of the photographs and love letters of your former sweeties and blot the details of your previous romances out of your memory. Don't torture your wife with stories about your old flames. Don't brag about what a devil you used to be among the ladies, and if you have a past don't be cad enough to confess it and give her food for jealousy the balance of her days.

If you are a widower, never mention your first wife to your second wife, for a woman can be more jealous of a corpse than she can of any living woman. Don't tell No. 2 how perfect No. 1 was, nor what a great cook she was, or how she could run a house on air. Unless you have your departed Maria thoroughly entombed, stay single.

Ninth. Remember anniversaries. Heaven knows why women set such store about their husbands celebrating the day they met them, and when they became engaged, and got married, and the first baby was born, and so on, but they do, and you have to take 'em as God made 'em.

A 50-cent bunch of violets on an anniversary will go further toward smoothing your matrimonial pathway than an emerald bracelet that you have to buy as a peace offering for having forgotten it. If you can't remember anniversaries, hire a secretary who can.

Tenth. Never climb down off of your pedestal. Live up to your little tin godship. Every woman wants a husband to whom she can look up and at whose feet she can burn incense, and she is a miserable and disappointed, poor creature if she finds out that her idol has not only feet of clay, but is made of mud.

This is true even when a woman is of the dominant type and fights tooth and nail to be head of the house. The woman who runs roughshod over her husband and henpecks him to death is never a contented wife. In her heart she wants some one to boss her and is disappointed because she hasn't got it. But if you want to be the home dictator, you have to be some man and rule with justice wisdom and tenderness.

Up-to-the-Minute Tips on Successful Parties

What an uproarious party stunt—a harum-scarum relay race called All Aboard!

Girls race against men. Each girl, in turn, packs a suitcase with men's wearing apparel; each man fills a bag with girls' belongings Whatever they can't cram in the suitcases the contestants must wear as, bag in hand, they dash madly to a goal on the opposite side of the room and back again.

Follow this giddy contest with Blarney! Each person writes out and signs a compliment for It, who sits in the centre of the group. These are collected and read a ud to the blushing victim, who's asked to guess the author of each one. For example: "Someone says you have beautiful eyes!" "John?" hazards It, "No," you answer. "But someone says you are adorable!" When It guesses correctly, the one who paid the compliment takes her place.

You'll find our 32-page booklet brimful of gay ideas for your parties Sure-fire ice breakers. Lively games, stunts, contests. Fortunes, forfeits.

Send 15c in coins or stamps for your copy of DEVELOPING YOUR PERSONALITY to Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS and the NAME of booklet.

GOODNIGHT STORY

By MAX TRELL

"Why what's the matter with you to-day, Mr. Squirrel?" Hanid said.

"You look as if you had lost every peanut you ever owned," added Knarf.

The squirrel, who was sitting on his hind legs on the grass in the park, blinked his eyes sadly. "That's just it," he said to the two shadows.

"Just it? Just what?" Knarf asked in surprise.

"I've lost every peanut I ever owned."

"My goodness!" said Hanid. "What do you mean? Where did you lose them?"

Only Lost One.

"To tell the truth," he said, "I only lost one peanut. But it was the only one I had. And it was a very big one. A little girl gave it to me

"I'm not so sure it's the same one."

yesterday. The minute I picked it up I said to myself: 'Young man, you've had quite enough to eat today. You've had all the peanuts you want. You're not going to eat this peanut. You're going to save it until to-morrow'."

"And did you put it away?" Knarf inquired the next moment.

The squirrel nodded. "I buried it. But—"

"Yes?"

"—but I buried it so well that now I can't find it again. And now I'm hungry and I'd like to eat that peanut."

"Oh! isn't that too bad," Hanid said consolingly.

But Knarf said: "H'mm....let me see. Whereabouts did you hide that peanut?"

"In the park somewhere."

"That's not very exact. The park's a big place. Think harder. Didn't you bury it near anything?"

"I buried it near a tree."

"Which tree?"

The squirrel didn't answer. He just looked around at all the trees.

"Was it this tree, right alongside of us?" asked Hanid.

"Or that one right behind you?" said Knarf.

"Why—I think I buried it right between them. Yes, I'm quite sure of it."

"That's right on the spot where you're standing now!" the two shadows exclaimed in excitement. "Dig! You'll find it if you dig!"

The next instant the squirrel started digging. And what do you think? He dug up a peanut. "It's found! It's found!" the two shadows cried, dancing with joy.

The squirrel held the peanut in his paws. He gazed at it. "I'm not sure it's the same peanut I buried," he said doubtfully. "But," he added as he took a bite, "it tastes just as good—yes, every bit as good!"

Noted Wood Carver

MILVERTON, Ont., Dec. 20—(CP)—Wood carvings by Roy Jacobs, 25-year-old part-time farmer, are attracting attention here. Among pieces of his work is a model of a bucking broncho and a "cowboy pulling leather." Samples of Jacobs' work are in the Royal Ontario Museum at Toronto.

Old Photographer Dies

VANCOUVER, Dec. 20—(CP). — Harry T. Devine, 78, one-time photographer who took some of Vancouver's earliest pictures, died in hospital here on Saturday. The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday, December 21.

Surprising culminations to frustrating and perplexing conditions are promised by the prevailing planetary testimonies. There may be a harrowing situation, a bereavement or a grave anxiety coming to a head but with fortitude, patience, application and acumen, there are excellent prospects for the realization of long-awaited benefits or material accumulations. Some change or instability is indicated, although good friends are at hand with wise counsel and support. But be alert to subtleties and schemes.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared to enjoy the realization of long-hoped-for climaxes to events that have been held up by stubborn obstacles and impediments. However, this advantage and progress may be incident to a bereavement or other sorrowful circumstance. This may bring financial security or the friendly co-operation of friendly interests, but in all matters of importance be wary as to deception, intrigue, or underhanded transactions.

A child born on this day may have rather peculiar or mysterious trends of thought, with originality and independence, although not wanting in humane and social ideals and impulses.

4 Die In Plane Crash

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Dec. 20.—(AP).—A flaming United States coastguard plane crashed at Boerne, 30 miles northwest of here, killing four men, late last night.

The dead were identified as Lieut. P. S. Lyons, unit commander of the United States coastguard at El Paso; Rupert Germaine, coastguard; George Latham, enlisted man at Fort Bliss, El Paso, and C. H. Peague, naval ensign at El Paso.

A pear weighing 27 ounces was recently picked off a tree in England.

Concert Is Held At Zion School

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 20. — The annual school concert of S.S. No. 12, Otonabee, was held in Zion Hall on Wednesday evening, when the pupils put on an excellent performance under the direction of Miss Madeline Charlton, teacher.

The program which included a delightful variety of Christmas songs, recitations and stories was enthusiastically received by the audience. A number meriting special mention was the dramatization of the carol, "Good King Wenceslas." Costumes for this number were particularly colorful. Solo parts were taken by the king and page, and their rendering of the numbers were really good. Mr. Harle, music master, provided musical accompaniment.

The young people of the community presented a humorous playette, "The Fatal Quest."

During the evening, Miss Cora Charlton and Rev. G. F. Kelly of Lakefield gave the audience a special treat when they presented three vocal duets, to the delight of all present.

Errol Burns, secretary of the school board, acted as chairman for the occasion.

The program opened with a chorus by the school, "Merry, Merry Christmas." While the choristers remained on the platform, little Miss Dorothy Jackson stepped to the front of the stage and welcomed the audience with a short recitation, "My Gift To You."

Next, the pupils presented the "Evergreen Day," an acrostic in which they explained to the audience the significance of the large red letters which they held, and which spelled "Merry Christmas."

A humorous recitation by Barbara Stuart was entitled, "Mr. Smashum Uppe." It was followed by a short sketch by four boys entitled "Grandma's At Christmas." This sketch ended with a Christmas chorus by a number of the pupils.

A story, "Gold, Frankincense and Myrrh," was told by Miss Marion Beatty and following this, a pantomime entitled, "A Haircut And A Shave," was given by four boys to the extreme amusement of the crowd.

Songs By School

Christmas songs by the whole school included "Up On The Housetop," "Silent Night" and "Away In A Manger." These numbers were accompanied by Mr. Harle at the piano.

"A Telephone Call" was the title of an amusing reading by Doreen Graystock.

"The Seasons," a short operetta by five of the younger pupils gave each little girl an opportunity to sing alone, and the fine quality of their singing was quite a surprise to the audience.

Mr. Harle conducted a sing-song of Christmas carols while the stage was being arranged for the dramatization of "Good King Wenceslas." Joe Stuart took the role of the king and Robert Jackson was the page boy. The old man was Gordon McAdam. Choral singers included Dorothy and Louise Jackson, Audrey Sucee, Audrey Watkins, Barbara Stuart and Doreen Graystock, and Bobbie Stuart and John Sucee.

Miss Cora Charlton and Rev. G. F. Kelly of Lakefield presented the first of their duets, at this point. The audience showed their delighted approval by their enthusiastic applause.

"Watching And Waiting For Santa" was a motion song by five small girls attired in pyjamas.

The young people's playette, "The Fatal Quest," was presented by Misses Alma Robinson and Marion Beatty and Messrs. Harold Dixon and Gordon, Ray and John Robinson.

Other young people who helped with the concert were: Sadie Robinson, Evelyn Watkins and Clarence Swan.

At the conclusion of the program Miss Charlton expressed her appreciation of the splendid co-operation she had received while preparing for the concert. At this point, Santa Claus appeared and distributed gifts and candy from the gaily decorated Christmas tree.

NEW FIND AT ROSETTA

Four large pieces of basalt covered with ancient hieroglyphics in good condition have been found at Rosetta, Egypt, home of the famous Rosetta Stone, which gave the long-sought key to hieroglyphic writing.

Testifies

Shown here as he appeared before authorities probing the ramifications of the McKesson & Robbins Drug Company is John M. Kantor, who told investigators that two men claiming to represent the drug firm had attempted to sell him 250,000 Lee-Enfield rifles. Kantor, who is 60 and describes himself as a merchandise broker, is wanted in Stratford, Conn., on a charge of participating in an oil swindle. He was held in New York as a fugitive from justice.

A Look Into the Future

Mrs. Neville Chamberlain, wife of Britain's Prime Minister, took a peek into the future when she had her palm read by a fortune-teller at the annual Christmas bazaar which she opened in London recently. The bazaar is an annual affair for the benefit of the Greater London Fund for the Blind.

Install New Type Of Airport Light

VANCOUVER, Dec. 20.—(CP).—First of its kind in Canada, a new system of contact lighting is being installed for night flying at Sea Island airport here.

The contact or flush lights, which resemble corner buttons at some road intersections, are set in concrete along the extreme edges of the runways. They throw a bright circle of light on the runway which the pilot sees when approaching the field as a motorist sees a row of street lamps when approaching a valley from a hill.

No light goes straight up, the top of the fixture being protected by a metal plate. Thick holophane glass sides, about two inches high, permit the light to spread out on the surface of the runway. The lights show from the air as white circles about 30 feet in diameter.

The fixtures are strong enough to permit the heaviest airplane to taxi over them wihtout slightest damage.

Time clocks imported into Poland in 1938 weighed over seve ntons.

BREATH OF SPRING

By ALICE ALDEN

There's more than just a breath of spring wafting through the world of millinery. For city children there are lovely flower models to set off their furs And for those lucky ones bound for a sojourn south or a cruise, there are new and fascinating models. Harryson made these lovely models. Below is a white crepe turban shirred in folds to give the effect of cut velvet. A sheer black veil shadows the face. The lovely resort hat right, done in white toyo straw, is handled like fabric, as witness the smocking on the crown.

Impressive White Gift Service

At the White Gift Service in St. Andrew's church on Sunday afternoon, the cast of the play "No Room in the Inn" was as follows:

Boy, Mr. Jim Harris; Rich Man, Mr. Alec Young; Esther (his wife), Miss Frances Clark; Mary, Miss Dorothy Ridyard; Joseph, Mr. Hugh Abbott; the Three Wise Men, Miss Connie McArthur, Mr. Jack Ridyard, Miss Jean Stewart; Shepherd, Miss Jean Gillespie.

The play was directed by Mrs. J. A. McKone, with music by Mr. Gordon Harle, and lighting arrangements by Mr. Marry Vass and Mr. Hugh Kenner.

Dr. C. M. Scott, superintendent, presided at the close, when the manger scene was retailed while the children brought their white gifts and placed them in front of the manger. The play was very impressive and inspiring throughout, and each members of the cast performed his, or her, part remarkably well.

✧ ✧ ✧

Social Meeting Enjoyed By Club

The Bowling Club of St. Andrew's church held a social meeting on Friday evening, when supper was served at a table decked with gay Yuletide emblems. Arrangements for the supper were in charge of Mrs. R. W. Morrison, Mrs. R. Morrow and Mrs. Weir.

Best wishes for a happy Christmas were extended by the president, Mrs. R. M. Hardie, who presided at the business session which followed the supper hour. It was suggested by Mr. R. W. Morrison, the secretary, that the club should contribute five dollars for the Christmas baskets. This suggestion was passed on the motion of Mr. Hardy and Dr. A. H. Allen. Mr. Geo. Tremain reported that a new schedule of teams would be chosen for next session, with women as skips, and men as leading players. Play will be resumed on Friday, January 16. Mr. Arthur Belleghem was welcomed as a new member.

Thanks to the members for the parcels which they had brought for the needy, and which were later placed before the manger scene at the Sunday church service by Mr. Morrison as a gift from the Bowling Club, was expressed by the president.

We Noticed

....That an attractively wrapped gift, one that has taken time and thought to do, seems a very personal manner to convey a deep Christmas feeling, even if the gift itself is very small.

✧ ✧ ✧

....The wrappings needn't be expensive, just well chosen. There are all sorts of clever papers, smart ribbons and package decorations. You might use two different colored papers on one package, a plain and a figured for contrast, or two different colored ribbons.

✧ ✧ ✧

....Plaids, polka dots and starred papers are good and practically every color is used, not simply the traditional reds and greens. Slip under the knot a sprig of mistletoe, a spray of fir or a Christmas flower or two for extra atmosphere.

Santa Merrily Welcomed At Christmas Party

As Santa Claus, as jolly and fat as every, and with a huge red sock stuffed full of toys on his back, arrived last night by way of the fireplace in the centre of the stage at the Salvation Army Temple, he was greeted by a shower of snowballs flung by the excited children. Santa, being a good-natured and merry old gentleman, welcomed this diversion from mere gift giving, and joined in the bombardment with great gusto.

With nearly a thousand people in attendance, the party was by far the most successful in years, and though many of the youngsters had to sit two-deep in the seats, their faces reflected complete happiness and joy, and great was their enthusiasm when Santa finally appeared.

Mrs. R. G. Routley was convener of a Christmas program which opened with a pageant "Bells of Christmas" directed by the assistant leader of the singing company, Miss Dorothy French. A number entitled "Christmas Bells" was given by the Junior Band under the direction of its leader, Mr. Ernest Victor. The Primary department, wearing Salvation Army bonnets and hats, resembled a small rythm band as they sang "The Coming Army on the March," led by Mrs. S. J. Richardson. The Household Troop Band used kitchen utensils with splendid results for their numbed "The Band of Love," and were directed by Mrs. F. Grey.

A dialogue, "The Right Way and the Wrong" was given by the Corps Cadets, and directed by Sergeant Eleanor Bolam. "Brownies on Parade" by the small brownies was given under the leadership of Mrs. Gordon Kennedy. A sword and bell drill, given by the Girl Guards, was directed by Mrs. Wm. Jones. The final number was a pageant "Silent Night" impressively presented by the Young People's Legion under the direction of the leader, Mrs. Ronald Routley.

As each child left the hall to make his sleepy way homeward he was presented with a bag of candies.

Habitant Yule Celebration

There is probably no place where the feast of Christmas is celebrated with more picturesque charm than that among the French-Canadian habitants in the Laurentian Valley of the Province of Quebec.

Christmas Eve is spent quietly at home, with grandpere recounting, between puffs on his favorite pipe, the traditional Christmas legends of his people. As the evening wears on there is the solemn burning of "la buche de Noel"—Yule log—a custom which has long since disappeared from our scheme of Christmast activities. When the youngsters have gone to bed there is no row of stockings to be seen dangling from the mantel, but a line of brightly polished little shoes arranged before the hearth. Nor is it Santa Claus who will visit the homes in the quiet of the night but the Enfant Jesus Himself who will come to leave a gift for each good child.

The Midnight Mass is the climax of the occasion. All who are old enough tuck themselves into the sleigh and are whisked off to the village church. The Holy Mass is heard with a fervor and attention which could scarce be surpassed and afterwards all pay their respects to the Divine Infant in the altar crib. The feast of the Nativity is brought to a close by the Revelion—the early morning meal, partaken in the bosom of the family, and thus the "Canayens" Christmas is over for another year.

QUESTION: I enjoy your cookery page very much, and get so many new recipes and ideas. Now I am coming to you to ask if you can tell me where I can purchase kitchen scales and top-of-stove skillet and rack. I hope your page will continue to be printed and be of help for a long time yet to your many readers. —Mrs. W. T.

ANSWER: Thank you for your kind note.

Kitchen scales can be purchased in any large hardware store, so can skillets. T. Eaton Co. Ltd., have kitchen scales for $1.98 weighing up to 24 lbs. by the ounce. They also have skillets, but by skillets with racks I think you must be referring to Dutch Ovens, which can be purchased from $2.50 to $4.00 depending on whether they are nickelled or not.

QUESTION: This is the first time I have ever written to you. You have helped so many I think you can help me too.

I am one of the many who have to keep house on very little. Now it is only $8.00 a week, sometimes less, as we get paid only twice a month. However, this does not include milk, that is extra. What I would like to know is this: Would it be wise to buy my groceries all at once and keep enough for meat and bread or spend as I go along. I have tried both ways but seem to be short of everything the last few days. We are a family of six, the eldest boy is 12 years old, the youngest a girl of 6 years, all good eaters.

The eldest boy is a very fussy eater and does not care for carrots or cabbage. The second does not care for onions, but all insist on lots of desserts. I would be very glad and grateful for any suggestions. Your page has been a wonderful help to me.—Mrs. E. A. R.

ANSWER: Since fruits are the proper basis for desserts I lament their cost at this season. However, we still have prunes, apples, canned pears, cherries and plums in abundance, and apples should be used uncooked whenever possible, and raisins should b used extensively.

Molasses Cake

Mix together 1 cup each milk, molasses and sugar and beat very well. Then sift together 2 cups flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, and whenever possible ½ or 1 cup raisins. Pour into greased pan and bake 18 to 20 minutes at 400 deg. Fahr. (rather hot oven). Note that no eggs or butter are required. Desired spice may be added for variety, cinnamon, ginger, or cloves or allspice.

Whipped Jello

When making jello follow direction on package, and when it has just begun to set whip it well with rotary egg beater until it begins to stiffen, then add ½ cup chopped prunes, or ½ cup grated apple, or any fruit that is on hand. The whipping increases the volume of the dessert.

Economical Rice Pudding

Boil ½ cup rice in 1 quart water until tender, then drain. Add 1 cup evaporated milk and 1 cup water, ½ cup brown sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, some nutmeg, and if on hand 1 egg. Mix very well, turn into buttered baking dish and finish cooking in oven.

FASHIONABLE TO YOUR FINGER-TIPS

By ALICE ALDEN

Hands are getting a swell hand-out this season, what with all sorts of new gloves and glorious muffs. Muffs appear for general wear, for afternoon and for evening. As for gloves, there is something new under the sun—or in the muff. Merry Hull, young industrial designer, has invented the "Finger Free" glove. It has a three-dimensional palm, streamlined fourchettes, walled to follow the contours of the fingers, and extra length in the back to protect long nail tips. The gloves, shown right, are in pigskin with quilted suede thumbs. Barbara Stanwyck, left, wears an untrimmed black wool suit but makes up for it with the big muff of black fox, slung from a shoulder by a cord.

Happy Yuletide Beverages Are Here Offered

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

FIRST off, here are three happy holiday beverages that deserve a place of honor right through the winter social season.

The first is a coffee flip, which is a splendid thing to serve to someone who needs a physical build-up, since it is rich in cream, milk and eggs. It calls for two tablespoons heavy cream, one-half cup cold milk, two eggs, two cups strong, freshly-brewed coffee, one and one-half cups hot milk, few grains of salt and sugar to taste. These quantities will make from four to six servings. Add cold milk and cream to eggs and beat well. Combine coffee, milk, salt and sugar to taste. Stir carefully into egg mixture. Serve very hot.

Hot grapefruit toddy is stimulating, as good as any toddy we've ever tasted, and we mean toody and all that the drink usually implies! It requires two-thirds cup fresh grapefruit juice, one-third cup water, three teaspoons sugar, one-half teaspoon bitters and grapefruit slices stuck with cloves. Cut unpeeled grapefruit into thin slices; quarter each slice and stick with cloves. Heat all ingredients except slices. Before serving, garnish toddy with spiced grapefruit slices. It's good at the end of an evening after a very heavy meal because of the curative effect of the bitters.

Hot Orange Cup.

Hot orange cup requires one cup orange juice, two eggs, one-half cup sugar, one-quarter teaspoon nutmeg, one-half teagpoon grated orange rind and one cup milk. Combine orange juice and sugar and heat through slowly. Beat eggs. Add to the milk and heat. Combine with the orange juice and sugar, and add the nutmeg and grated peel. Pour from one large cup into the other till frothy and serve in smaller cups at once.

Miracle fruit cake is our name for this recipe. We have named it this because it is a perfectly delicious cake made without eggs. It requires one cup each sugar and hot water, chopped pasteurized dates, one-half cup shortening, two cups flour, one cup nut meats (sliced), teaspoon each soda, cinnamon, cloves, one-half teaspoon salt and one can mixed diced fruit and peels. Put sugar, hot water, dates and shortening into sauce pan and boil gently together for three minutes. Cool. Add canned mixed fruit and peels and nuts. Sift together the dry ingredients and stir into the first mixture. Bake one pound loaves two hours, larger loaves about three hours, at 250 F. It makes three and one-half pounds. This cake keeps three to four weeks. It can be heated over steam, and served with sauce for a delicious pudding dessert. So it is a miracle cake in more ways than one.

Holiday Fruit Cake.

A rich, dark and spicy holiday fruit cake that is "quick" and comparatively easy to make is always a welcome recipe. This formula calls for one package pasteurized dates, one-quarter pound figs, one package raisins, three packages (three ounces) mixed diced fruits, two and one-half cups flour, one-half teaspoon salt, teaspoon each soda and cinnamon, one-half teaspoon each nutmeg and allspice, one-quarter teaspoon cloves, one-half cup butter, one cup brown sugar, three eggs, one-half cup strong, freshly-made coffee and one-half cup molasses. Cut pitted dates in pieces. Put all fruit in bowl. Sift flour, salt, soda and spices over fruit and mix with hands. Cream butter, stir in sugar gradually, then beaten eggs. Add flour and fruit alternately with coffee and molasses. Pour batter into larger paper-lined loaf pan. Bake in slow oven (275 F.) for three hours. It makes four pounds. If contents appear dry, steaming for a few minutes will restore them to original condition.

Wife Preservers

Two Cherry desserts from one can cherries:

Steamed Cherry Pudding

Two cups flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 4 tablespoons sugar, ¼ cup finely chopped suet. Mix all these together and beat 1 egg and add ½ cup juice from canned cherries to it and add this to the dry ingredients. Turn into mould which is well greased and tie top with greased paper (or put on mould cover) and steam for 2 hours. Make a sauce to serve with it by mixing 2 tablespoons flour with 4 tablespoons sugar and moistening with remaining cherry juice in can made made up to 1 cup by adding boiling water. Stir this over low heat until it thickens and serve hot over pudding.

Cherry Desserts

1. Add cherries drained from syrup from 1 can to 1 bowl of jello dessert.

2. Add 2 tablespoons minute tapioca, two-thirds cup sugar, 1 cup water to cherries drained from 1 can and put in bottom of pie pan. Cover with 1 crust to make I crust cherry pie. Bake in very hot oven.

3. To cherries drained from syrup from 1 can cherries, add 2 tablespoons flour, ½ cup sugar, ½ cup water and stir over low heat until it thickens. Put in tart shells and bake.

We hope these suggestions will help you. Keep your eye on the cookery page for we strive to put in economical recipes every week.

QUESTION: Would you please send me a good recipe for "dad's cookies." I have some cocoanut oatmeal recipes which some people call that but I would like a recipe as much like those we buy as possible. —Mrs. C. M. C.

ANSWER: Thank you for your letter.

The recipe for the cookies you mention of course is the property of the people who created the cookie and all we can do is guess at the ingredients.

The following recipe makes a cookie somewhat similar:

Oatmeal Cocoanut Cookies

Mix 1½ cups brown sugar with 1 cup half-and-half butter and lard. Add 2 slightly beaten eggs, two-thirds cup sour milk, 1 teaspoon soda, 2 cups flour, ½ teaspoon cinnamon (or more of other spices if desired, we like mace), 2 cups fine cocoanut (not shredded), 2 cups fine rolled oats, 1 teaspon vanilla. Roll out, cut out with floured large cookie cutter and bake at 375 deg. Fahr. until golden.

We hope these suit your purpose and that we can help you again.

SYMPHONY WINTER

A brownish-toned orchid, or several of them, wouldn't be amiss with this costume, especially in holiday season.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

Because the costume suit invariably makes a new woman of you, and because it may be worn into spring, it's always a paying investment. The model sketched today wavers between fur and fabric, or wine-colored wool and dyed nutria, cut like mink. No more co-operative combination is imaginable. Strips of the fur trim the skirt of the slim, high-waisted dress and call attention to the matching, flat muff. The jacket features a new neckline, as smart as it is windbreaking and the popular bracelet-length sleeves. Meet them halfway with antique gold accents.

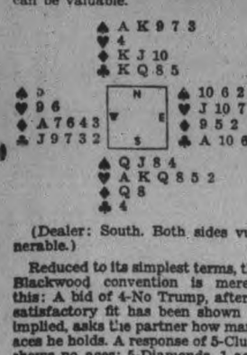
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER
By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

IMPORTANT TO KNOW

EVERY SERIOUS bridge player should familiarize himself with the "Blackwood Convention" devised by Easley Blackwood, of Cincinnati, to aid in slam bidding, which has been gaining widespread popularity. Even those who dislike artificial conventions ought to know what their opponents' bids mean. Both for those who expect to encounter it, and for those who wish to use the simplest efficient device for locating their partners' aces and kings, a presentation of its modus operandi can be valuable.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

Reduced to its simplest terms, the Blackwood convention is merely this: A bid of 4-No Trump, after a satisfactory fit has been shown or implied, asks the partner how many aces he holds. A response of 5-Clubs shows no aces; 5-Diamonds, 1 ace; 5-Hearts, 2; 5-Spades, 3; 5-No Trump, all four. After response about aces, a bid of 5-No Trump by the original questioner asks about the number of kings held. To this a response of 6-Clubs shows no kings; 6-Diamonds, 1 king; 6-Hearts, 2; 6-Spades, 3; 6-No Trump, all four. The questioner then chooses the final contract.

Perhaps the most valuable feature of such a convention is its prevention of unmakeable slam contracts. On the deal given above, South bid 1-Heart, North 1-Spade, South 3-Spades, then North the Blackwood 4-No Trump. South answered, with 5-Diamonds, that he had only one ace. o North, knowing that the opponents held two aces, signed off at 5-Spades.

Players using no special slam convention might easily have bid to six on this deal and taken a set when the opponents cashed their two aces.

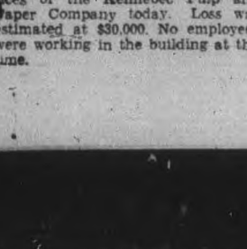
Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

How would you advise bidding this hand?

Farm Students Close Shop For Christmas

(Examiner Correspondence.)

KEENE, Dec. 20. — The short course closed for the Christmas holidays on Friday and will open on Tuesday, January 3. The boys did special work in beef cattle, feed and feeding, field crops, judging potatoes, and farm management.

On each Tuesday in January Dr. E. G. Reaman will give a lecture in the afternoon on rural sociology.

The girls finished the month with practical work by making the Christmas lunch. In their other classes they hooked a mat that they designed and prepared.

The closing day was in the form of a dinner and literary, which was greatly enjoyed and done in the Christmas spirit. The hall and tables were decorated with Christmas trees, place cards and candy bags.

A delicious dinner was ably prepared and served by the girls, after which a literary was enjoyed. A sing-song was followed by a short play. A number of boys sang "Old Black Joe," followed by a recital and selections by the Kitchen Orchestra, followed by a few words from F. C. Paterson, agricultural representative. Jack and Catherine Bolin favored the audience with a duet, "Harbor Lights." A talk on a favorite book was given by Miss Madeline Stark. A number of Christmas carols were sung by a chorus of girls. Santa Claus arrived and distributed gifts. Misses Isabel Short and Margaret Thompson played the accompaniments. About fifty guests were present for the literary.

Fear Palestine Holy Season One Of Terror

JERUSALEM, Dec. 20—(CP-Havas)—Assassination of an Arab moderate leader and the death of 62 Arabs in armed clashes today aroused concern that the coming holiday season might be marked by terror.

Men believed to be followers of the exiled grand mufti of Jerusalem, head of the extremist faction, shot and killed Sheik Said Al Khatib, a priest of the Mosque of Omar, in the old city of Jerusalem Sunday morning.

The killing of the sheik, a well known moderate, was linked with the exiled grand mufti's campaign to wipe out Arab opposition in the holy land. Another mosque official, Sheik Mahmoud Ansari, was killed early last week and Sheik Abdul Rahman El Khatib, a relative of the priest slain yesterday, was shot fatally a month ago.

At least 60 Arab rebels were killed Sunday when British troops and Royal Air Force units battled for three hours with a large band near Beni Naim, eight miles south of Hebron. A British aviator and a trooper were wounded in the engagement.

The clash took place while rival Arab factions held mass meetings in the Hebron region. When 3,000 Arab moderates headed by Fakhri Bey Nashashibi, mayor of Bethlehem, assembled for a pro-British rally in the village of Yatta, the supreme Arab committee countered with a huge gathering attended by more than 10,000 at Beni Naim.

Troops killed one Arab and wounded two others in raids on rebel hideouts in Samari. In northern Palestine, near Lake Tiberias, a British detachment surprised an Arab gathering and shot an Arab who refused to surrender. A British policeman was killed and two British policemen and an Arab terrorist were wounded when rebels attacked a British armored car on the acre-safed road.

Britain Seen Forcing Registration

Voluntary System Wasted Time Says London Press

By Guy Rhoades
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, Dec. 21—(CP-Havas).—Two newspapers predicted to-day Britain would have to abandon voluntary registration in favor of a compulsory system.

"The government will find that a voluntary register has been a useless compilation," said the Daily Express (Independent). "That is the discovery which the public have already made. What a pity that we are wasting all this time on partial and haphazard methods."

The Daily Telegraph (Conservative) said: "It may be confidently predicted that as soon as the people realize that their lives and homes are in jeopardy, thanks to the insistence on the voluntary scheme, they will not be slow to clamor for a compulsory one. But unhappily the conversion may come too late."

The News Chronicle (Liberal) said: "Where the country's defence is concerned, personal likes and dislikes have no place. The only principle is that the right man may be put in the right job, and the outcome of the present 'dust-up' will be that either Mr. Hore-Belisha and Sir Thomas Inskip, or the junior ministers, will be proved the wrong men. They can hardly all stay under the same umbrella."

The Daily Mail (Independent) said: "Mr. Chamberlain must get men who can swiftly fill the gaps and make good the lags which still accompany our efforts. Facile reassurances are not enough."

Woman Missing Father, Son Held

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 21 (AP). — The husband and son of Mrs. Rose Spinelli, missing 10 days, were held on suspicion of murder today while detectives examined fragments of bone and a stained hatchet for clues to her fate.

"What did you do with her body, pop?" shouted William Spinelli, Jr., 19, to his father, William, 58, as they faced each other during hours of questioning in the police homicide bureau.

Spinelli wearily shot back denials and counter accusations: "You know where she is. You probably killed her yourself."

Detective-Lieut. Ray Giese arrested the father after neighbors reported he had kept a fire burning in an incinerator for five hours on December 12, the day his wife, 48, disappeared.

Searching the Spinelli home, investigators discovered splotches of blood in a bedroom and bathroom, and pieces of bone, a gold ring, a woman's burned purse and a charred fragment of cloth among ashes on the driveway.

Young Spinelli identified the gold ring officers found as belonging to his mother.

Police chemists were ordered to make tests of the bones to determine if they were of human origin, while ashes from the incinerator also were subjected to analysis.

Hepburn Deciding His Leadership Plans Upon Return From Australia

St. Thomas, Ont., Dec. 21 (CP)

PREMIER Mitchell Hepburn at his South Yarmouth farm home near here said today that on his return from his impending Australian trip he will decide whether or not his health will permit him to continue as Ontario government leader.

It recently was intimated the premier would deliver his valedictory address at the 1939 session of the legislature because of poor health.

"I could not carry on in my present condition," he said, "but it all depends on whether there is sufficient improvement by the time of the session. I am not contemplating retirement at the moment, at least. And, if it is physically possible, I shall lead the house in the coming session."

R. S. Robertson Is Appointed New Chief Justice

Choice Of Well-Known Toronto Barrister Is Announced By Premier King

OTTAWA, Dec. 21 (CP).—Ontario's new Chief Justice is 68-year-old R. S. Robertson, K.C., well-known Toronto lawyer.

After a Cabinet meeting yesterday, Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced Mr Robertson's appointment, succeeding Hon. Newton W. Rowell of Toronto, who because of ill-health, resigned both from the Chief Justiceship and the chairmanship of the Royal Commission on Dominion-Provincial Relations.

The appointment filled the outstanding judicial vacancy in Canada. The Cabinet will meet again today and there is a possibility that the long-delayed diplomatic appointments may be announced.

Mr. Robertson first practised law with the late Mr. Justice John Idington, and when the latter was elevated to the Supreme Court of Canada formed the law firm of Robertson and Coughlin.

The firm later became Robertson, Riddell and Richardson, and in 1917 Mr. Robertson joined the firm of Fasken, Robertson, Aitchison, Pickup and Calvin with which he is associated with at present.

Mr. Robertson is a native of Goderich, Ont., and was educated at the public and high schools there. He studied law with the late Mr. Justice J. T. Garrow, and was called to the Ontario Bar in 1892. In 1921 he was made a King's Counsel.

An authority on constitutional law, he represented the Dominion Government before the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council in London on the reform legislation passed by the Bennett government in 1935.

He is father of four sons and a daughter, belongs to the United Church and is a Liberal.

Ex-Whitby Woman 100 On Christmas

CALGARY, Dec. 21—(CP).—The Christmas celebrations at Mrs. A. C. Jeffery's Calgary home will be a double affair for Mrs. Eleanor Kerr, little white-haired mother, who will be 100 years old Monday.

Born in Whitby, township, Ont., Mrs. Kerr was a resident in Meaford, Ont., until the death of her husband 21 years ago.

Detective Wins

NEW YORK, Dec. 21 — (CP). — Dapper Louis Herbert, a New York pickpocket known to police as "Chinatown Charlie," beat a hasty retreat from a busy Five Avenue store yesterday, when he saw Detective Mary Shanley among the Christmas shoppers.

But the policewoman spied Herbert, too, and the chase was on.

Drawing her gun, Detective Mary set out after Charlie, and weaving through surprised shoppers caught her quarry after a two-block chase.

Musica's Crony Of Early Days Latest Arrest

NEW YORK, Dec. 21—(AP).—Another crony out of the past of Philip Musica—a man who knew the masquerading super-swindler when he was a great war spy-hunter — was held today on a charge of conspiracy in the McKesson and Robbins drug mystery.

The arrest of Benjamin Simon, 49-year-old Bronx salesman with a police record, gave credence to a previously reported story of an old friend who met Musica one day when he was still "F. Donald Coster," respected president of McKesson and Robbins.

"Well, what are you going to do for me?" the man asked when Musica told him how high he had risen since the day of the infamous human hair swindle of 1913 and the dubious dealings in alcohol during prohibition.

"Why didn't you know?" Coster replied. "This very minute you became—" and he named a post in McKesson and Robbins.

Simon has been on the corporation's payroll at $6,000 a year and expenses for five years, and assistant U.S. attorney general Brien McMahon said last night:

"I assume he was drawing $6,000 a year for what he knew instead of what he did."

Vague About His Jobs

Simon himself said vaguely that he "did various jobs." What he knew, among other things, McMahon said, was that three men connected with McKesson and Robbins—all hiding behind aliases—were brothers of the shrewd, Italian-born master manipulator.

There was a question as to whether Simon knew the address of a now-existent midwife on the faked birth certificate filed for Coster-Musica in Washington in 1935 was his own address in the Bronx, 1840 Grand Concourse.

Before his arrest, Simon was questioned by securities commission investigators and yesterday his name was mentioned by Frederick Wingersky, Boston lawyer and a vice-president of McKesson and Robbins, in connection with an uncompleted arms sale.

Wingersky told a State Attorney General's inquiry that he drafted an arms and ammunition contract for Coster and was told to give the papers to "Ben Simon," but the deal was never consummated.

Other witnesses confirmed reports of armament negotiations — one, Thomas Amadeo Bruni, saying that an order of rifles was intended for the Chinese General, Chiang-Kai-Shek, though never delivered— but James Caffrey, regional securities commissioner administrator, scoffed at them. "It's a lot of ballyhoo over nothing," he said.

Furtherance of the investigation disclosed, McMahon said, that "the Musicas' ill-gotten gains are mostly gone." It was supposed that the 1929 crash stripped Coster and it was estimated that, in the first place, he and his brothers took little more than $3,000,000 from the pirated firm in 10 years.

Detroit Dog Team

THE PAS, Man., Dec. 21 — (CP). —The Pas folks have hollered goodbye to many mushers southward-bound, but it was probably the first time they ever greeted a dog team from the United States when Rudy and Carl Schubert of Detroit drove into town.

The two brothers spent the weekend here and then turned their dogs towards Chicago, carrying messages of goodwill from Mayor I. B. Dembinsky to Mayor Kelly of the Illinois Metropolis. They once lived at Prince Albert, Sask., where they learned to handle dogs.

Will Protect 20 Million Britons

British Government's Scheme Greatest Ever Tried In World

By J. F. Sanderson
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, Dec. 21.—(CP Cable.)—Sir John Anderson, Lord Privy Seal and Minister for Civilian Defence, to-day announced in the House of Commons that the government will spend £200,00,000 ($93,-175,000) on a system of private and public aid raid shelters designed to protect 20,000,000 Britons from bombs in time of war.

The plan, providing for half the population of the United Kingdom, is believed to be the largest shelter scheme ever attempted anywhere in the world. Legislation to provide money for the work will be introduced in the House in January.

The shelters will vary from cast underground caverns to ready-made steel huts which can be erected in gardens and yards alongside houses. The scheme will involve also the strengthening of basements, apartment blocks and tenements so people can congregate in them when they hear the air raid sirens.

Protection by Employers

At the same time Sir John announced tht government will introduce legislation shortly after the Christmas recess to force employers to provide protection for their working people while they are on the job.

The shelter program, he said, will consist of communal shelter for persons caught in streets during air raids and steel shelters in or near private houses.

"The government will accumulate the necessary stocks for these private shelters and will bear the whole cost of the material," he added. "Private shelters for 10,000,000 peonounced the government will intropole will be provided and material will be accumulated for strengthening private basements.

"Twenty millions (of pounds) will be required for this material and will be borne entirely by the exchequer."

He said "several million pounds" additional will be contributed by the government to local authorities for construction of public shelters.

"The measures described are designed to protect nearly 20,000,000 people," he said.

Fall Kills Skater

SIMCOE, Ont., Dec. 21 — (CP).—Elmer Coates, 17, injured in a fall while skating on Sutton's Pond last night, died here to-day. Dr. E. S. Copeman performed a head operation after the accident, but the boy failed to survive.

Coates, son of Earl Coates, collided with another boy and fell over backwards, striking his head on the ice. He was taken to his home suffering from concussion and possible skull fracture.

Britons Shiver Through New Snow As Water Pipes Freeze At Home

LONDON, Dec. 21 (CP Cable).—British teeth continued to rattle today as the coldest wave in 10 years entered its fourth day with a slight rise in temperature but no sign of a final letup.

Snow fell over London from early morning, creating a mess of slush through which citizens sloshed—most of them without rubbers. Mildenhall appeared to be the country's coldest spot with a temperature of 12 above.

London's temperature rose to 28 but inhabitants continued to suffer in the cold, drafty homes — many without water as pipes were frozen. Cold snaps are so rare in this country that no effort has been made to protect or insulate plumbing and even the Air Ministry's new $5,000,-000 building was partly flooded by a bursting pipe.

Plumbers did a rushing business in mending broken water services, but one Canadian residing in the suburbs, who asked his landlord to have the pipes thawed, was told "the plumbers won't come unless the pipes are burst."

Hundreds of skaters were disappointed when heavy snow covered ice in the Lincolnshire Fenlands. Some schools closed until after the Christmas holidays when rooms became too cold for classes.

News services ceased attempting to keep track of deaths from cold owing to the difficulty of separating them from heart attacks and the like.

Several small villages around Hastings were isolated as the roads became impassable and villagers who went to Hastings yesterday to do Christmas shopping were unable to return.

The Irish mail was four hours late into Euston Station. Trains from Scotland were 90 minutes late. Southend bakers and milkmen improvised sleighs, replacing handcarts. A snow storm reduced traffic on the Thames to a crawl.

Loyalty Of Hungary To The Nazi-Fascist Axis Is Pledged Italy's Count Ciano

BUDAPEST, Dec. 21 (CP-Havas)—Hungary pledges "unshakable loyalty" to the Nazi-Fascist axis of Germany and Italy, Foreign Minister Stephen Csaky said last night at a dinner in honor of the Italian foreign minister, Count Galeazzo Ciano.

"The Rome-Berlin axis is always inspired by the same objectives," the foreign minister said. "Hungary will strive for these goals through peaceful contact with other countries. It will maintain unshakable loyalty to the axis powers and will seek to develop amicable relations with nations friendly to the axis countries.

"Recent development show clearly that the co-operation of the axis powers is based on justice. The four-power conference at Munich created this sentiment. It constitutes a sound basis for all countries to achieve a peaceful solution of eventual conflicts."

Buffalo Strike Ties Food; Trouble Feared

BUFFALO, N.Y., Dec. 21—(AP).—A paralyzing food strike in New York's second largest city made itself felt in surrounding areas today as 400 policemen were placed on special strike duty call.

Inspector James Hyland ordered the policemen to be ready to report at a moment's notice after a member of the food industry of western New York, an employers group, announced an attempt would be made to bring deliveries through union picket lines.

Late last night, Canadian immigration officials at the international Peace Bridge reported they had turned back a car load of strikers who were following a Canadian truck which had come through the picket lines.

Buffalo's food terminals were being picketed by members of local 558, Warehouse and Producers' union, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor's international teamsters' union. The union went on strike after negotiations with the food industry group for a raise in wages collapsed.

The employer spokesman, who declined to be quoted by name, said 50 trucks were to run the picket blockade. He did not say when the attempt would be made.

Union leaders asserted their picket lines would be tightened and extended to retail stores that handled non-union deliveries. Edward Murphy, vice-president of the international teamsters union, arrived from Cleveland to take charge of the strike.

Welts On Back Of Girl Who Talked In Class Land Teacher In Court For Assault

LANCASTER, Pa., Dec. 21 (AP) —Harry Brubaker, 53-year-old country school teacher, was held in $399 bail today for his appearance in court to answer a charge he whipped 11-year-old Mary Coleman, one of his pupils, with a blackboard pointer.

Dr. W. F. Mylin testified at Brubaker's arraignment before a magistrate on assault and battery charges last night that he found welts on the back and arms of the child after the purported classroom whippnig last Thursday.

The girl said Brubaker whipped her after she removed a cardboard sign hung around her neck as punishment for talking to another pupil during class.

She said the sign said: "I love to talk to John Shufflebottom." Shufflebottom also is a pupil at the little one-room school in Pequea township.

Brubaker, a rural school teacher for 36 years, did not testify.

Snowfall On First Day Of Winter Promises White Christmas

TORONTO, Dec. 21 — (CP). — Light snow fell over most of Ontario to-day, the shortest day of the year, and looked as though it had come to stay. Its fall raised the hopes of Ontarians for a "white Christmas," though Meteorological Office forecasters would only go so far as to say prospects were "fair."

Predicting a "little colder" weather for to-night and to-morrow, the weatherman said he wouldn't be able to forecast accurately until to-morrow whether snow would be on the ground on Christmas Day. In the meantime, reports of just-below freezing temperatures from many points indicated the white blanket would harden.

The snowfall, which extended over western, northern, central, and parts of eastern Ontario, was comparatively light. Roads and highways were rendered slippery, and in several districts sanding crews were called out. First reports said no serious accidents occurred.

Mildest Fall In Years

The snowfall was the second general fall of the season in Ontario and came on the first day of winter after one of the mildest autumns in years. The sun rose at 7:48 a.m.—though little of it could be seen through low hanging clouds—and will set at 4:44 p.m.

Most western Ontario points reported snow with temperatures generally comparatively mild. Two inches fell at Kitchener and the ground at Galt was covered to a depth of three inches. Two inches of snow falling on Hamilton's pavements made walking sloppy while light to fairly heavy falls were reported from Owen Sound, Brantford, Stratford, Sarnia and other centres.

An all-night fall in Toronto left streets slippery. Light snowfall was reported from North Bay, Belleville, and Ottawa. A few stray flakes brought a touch of winter to Kingston.

Woman Ends Life Off Hamilton Span

HAMILTON, Ont., Dec. 21 — (CP). — An unidentified woman, believed to be about 35 years of age, leaped from the High Level Bridge at noon to-day and sank to her death in the waters of Desjardin's Canal beneath.

Her body was recovered about 10 minutes later, but life was extinct.

The bridge is nearly 100 feet above the level of the water, and the woman plunged from the north side, narrowly missing the railway span which crosses the canal beneath. The tragedy was witnessed by two persons who summoned police. Constables responded with an interne from the General Hospital and attempts were made to restore life, with no success.

Thousands Of Italian Boys Ordered Drafted For Flying

Rome, Dec. 21 (AP)

THE Fascist government today submitted to the senate an air force training bill to draft thousands of Italian youths into aviation. The chamber of deputies approved the measure at its closing session Dec. 14.

It requires all soldiers now attached to the air force to take flying instruction, authorizes the air force to select as many youths as needed from next year's conscription class, and provides that any Italian with desirable qualifications will be subject to conscription at any time for the air force.

They remained at the Premier's South Yarmouth home overnight and left to-day. No public statement was made concerning their discussions.

Premier Hepburn declined to comment on what messages they may have brought him.

Berlin Begins To Feel Trade Pinch

Imports Top Exports By $82,200,000; Funk Is Called In

By Louis P. Lochner
(Associated Press Foreign Staff.)

BERLIN, Dec. 21 — (AP). — Confronted by a serious foreign exchange situation, the German government has effected further concentration of economic power by appointing Walther Funk, minister of economics, director of the newly created "centre office for increasing production."

During the first 11 months of 1938 Germany had an import excess of 205,500,000 marks ($82,200,000). Halting of this drain on foreign exchange reserves is expected to be Funk's main task.

Announcement of the assignment last night seemed to indicate it was merely a matter of departmental coordination, but informed business men today told a different story. They asserted Germany's foreign exchange fund is so low that even when a near relative abroad is dying authorities withhold the foreign exchange necessary for a German to make a last visit.

Field Marshal Hermann Goering director of the four-year economic self-sufficiency plan, gave this explanation of Funk's new task:

"Execution of the four-year plan has led to the complete engrossment of German economy and full employment of all workers. An increase of Germany's economic power, however, can be achieved by improving industrial plants, means of production and methods of production, as well as by increasing the working capacity of those engaged in Germany's economic processes. Measures necessary for this purpose need unified, central direction."

Business men say Funk will try so to co-ordinate German industrial processes that a minmum of imported raw materials will be required. Use of substitute materials, standardizing of types and replacement of hand processes by machines are expected to be early results.

Collection of old iron and other materials which can be used again is expected to be intensified.

For the workers there is talk of a 10-hour day.

November figures for German foreign trade tell an eloquent story. Imports exceeded exports by 69,000,000 marks ($27,600,000), as compared with a 50,000,000-mark $20,000,000) export excess for November, 1937. Compared with returns for October, 1938, before the anti-Jewish campaign which began Nov. 10, November imports dropped 4,200,000 marks ($1,680,000) and exports 37,000,000 marks ($14,800,-000).

8,000 Italians Sent To Spain

LONDON, Dec. 21 (CP-Havas). — Ellen Wilkinson, Labor, last night told the House of Commons she had proof that fully 8,000 Italian "volunteers" have swelled the ranks of Insurgent General Franco's forces in Spain since October 15.

Contradicting Prime Minister Chamberlain's assertion that so far as he knew only about 200 volunteers from Italy have reached insurgent Spain since that date, Miss Wilkinson charged Italy is continuing its intervention in the Spanish civil war on a large scale.

She said that although Premier Mussolini of Italy withdrew 10,000 "volunteers" in an appeasement gesture last October, he almost immediately started shipping replacements.

Among the instances of which she said she had proof, Miss Wilkinson cited the following:

Nov. 9—400 men landed at Cadiz from the Italian ship Gradisca.

Nov. 28—170 Italians landed at Cadiz and Malaga from two ships.

Dec. 10—375 officers and soldiers landed from an Italian ship at Seville.

Doctor's Bill For Month Of Pneumonia Care Shocks Court Saves W. C. Fields $12,000

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif., Dec. 21 (AP)—Comedian W. C. Fields, charged $12,000 for a month's medical treatment, doesn't have to pay because the amount "shocks the conscience," the state appellate court ruled today.

The court reversed a $12,000 judgment granted by Superior Judge O. K. Morton of Riverside to Dr. Jesse Citron, who treated Fields when he was ill with pneumonia in 1936.

Judge Morton erred, the appellate court said, when he refused to hear cross-examination as to the Hemet, Calif., physician's earnings and his usual charges in such cases.

Dr. Citron contended that the strawberry-nosed actor's net income in 1936 was $82,000 and he was billed on his ability to pay and the value of services rendered.

"The measure of the value of services is not the value to the patient but the reasonable value of the services in the community where they are rendered, by the persons who rendered them," the court said.

"The very large judgment must shock the conscience until supported by more substantial evidence."

A new trial was ordered.

Isolated Isle S.O.S. Asks Aid For 48

Indian Ocean Colony Silent After Weak Plea For Coal

PARIS, Dec. 21 — (AP). — The French Government tried to-day to find a wireless channel to communicate with 48 stranded settlers, silent since they flashed an SOS from the isolated Isle of St. Paul in the Indian Ocean.

After a day of unsuccessful attempts to reach the settlers through French colonial wireless stations, the Government sent an urgent call to all ships flying the tri-color in the Indian Ocean to rush aid to the island. The Government also asked United States naval authorities to try to communicate with the settlers.

The plight of the settlers became known when a feeble SOS flashed half way around the world was picked up by an amateur radio operator, E. R. Gibson, in Bremerton, Wash. The message said:

"SOS St. Paul Island, Indian Ocean. Bad weather. Exhausted coal. Will Madagascar please call us. We hope for help. Confirm. We forty-eight aboard L'Isle Bourbon."

No further word has been received.

The closest French warship to the island was reported to be at Saigon, French Indo-China, about 3,000 miles away. Officials indicated the Government would probably hire a freighter by radio to change its course and go to the colony's aid.

The colonial saga began last May when 33 persons, including six women, set out from Saint Malo, France, on the 580-ton trawler L'Isle Bourbon to establish a lobster fishing colony on the island.

Dissension Splits Party.

Quarrels broke out before they reached Port Said and at Djibouti, the next port, the original members of the crew split. At least three of the six women, including the wives of the ship's doctor, wireless operator and engineer, remained ashore with their husbands. Other members of the crew also quit.

Whether the wife of Captain Hohn de Boers and the other two women continued the journey still was a mystery in Paris. One of them was Colette Mouradain, young blonde niece of the late Paul Cahabas, painter of "September Morn."

At Madagascar it was reported more members of the original crew quit, but confirmation was lacking. What happened after the vessel sailed from Madagascar on September 12 was not known.

New crew members were recruited at Djibouti and Madagascar. On the basis of the SOS message, it was presumed that these brought the expedition's personnel up to 48.

Captain de Boers, who was granted a 30-year monopoly on fishing in St. Paul's waters by the French Government, was reported to have spent 2,000,000 francs (about $52,000) preparing for the expedition. He planned to use the ship to market lobsters at Reunion Island and transport supplies to the colony.

St. Paul Island is a forbidding volcanic formation almost perfectly round save for its tiny harbor. Undersea volcanoes which made it, left a crater in the centre, which now is a lake.

Moose Jaw College To Be Home For Aged

MOOSE JAW, Sask., Dec. 21 — (CP).—Buildings of Moose Jaw college, closed since 1931 will be used as a home for aged people under care of the Roman Catholic Church. Sale of the $200,000 buildings constructed in 1913 was effected between Archbishop Monahan of the Archdiocese of Regina and Thomas Miller chairman of the college board.

Before opening the home next year an extensive remodelling program will modernize the buildings.

The institution was organized in 1911 by Dr. A. A. Graham as an affiliate of the Presbyterian Church. Later it was connected with the United church. The college was closed in 1931 when an agreement was entered into by the board of governors of Moose Jaw College and the board of Regina College to consolidate work of the two institutions.

Up to the end of the summer prior to its closing the institution had met all expenses as well as the interest of the mortgage out of fees alone and accumulated a surplus of $22,854, which was paid on the mortgage principal.

Harold Stevens Spends Hours In Witness Box

Cross-examination of Harold Stevens, assistant manager of the Pattenick store occupied the entire morning session of the preliminary hearing of the arson charge against Robert Nathan Herman before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning.

Stevens was in the witness box for over two hours and Defence Counsel A. J. Skeans had not completed his examination when the court adjourned for luncheon.

At the beginning of the session Mr. Skeans asked that the witnesses be excluded.

"Prior to the fire you were assistant manager of the store?" asked defence counsel when Stevens took the stand.

"Is that your preesnt position?"

"Yes."

"Has there been on change in your position?"

"I nave been told of none."

Witness said that Mr. Pattenick himself was at present in charge of the store.

Stevens said that when he and Herman left the store on the evening of the fire the clock struck six as tney reacned the corner of Hunter and George streets.

"That means that if you left the store at five minutes to six and stopped outside a minute as you said, it took three minutes for you to walk a block?" asked Mr. Skean.

Witness agreed.

Stevens said that it was five blocks from the Pettenick's store to Herman's home. It was a little slippery that night. Witness said they walked the first block faster than they did the others.

"Did Herman tell you what he was going to do that night?"

"We were both going to a bridge party. I was going to call for him at 7.45 o'clock."

"Was any one else connected with the store going to the bridge party?"

"I don't know of any one"

Witness did not remember Mr. Herman reprimanding two of the girls in the store for not going to the party after he had given them tickets.

When the store opened Monday morning, December 12, Herman was not there. Witness opened the door after geting the key from Herman ten minutes before.

"That was a regular practice?"

"Yes."

"Did you ever have the key overnight?"

"No."

Herman locked the door on the night of the fire.

"He gave you the key?"

"No, he locked the door and put the key in his pocket."

Told About Note

On Saturday morning before the fire Herman had said something about a note he had that he was going to ask Mr. Pattenick to sign for him.

"I think he showed me the note," said Stevens.

Saturday night Herman told the witness that he had been talking to Mr. Pattenick about the note and Mr. Pattenick was going to sign it. The note was for $200.

"Did you know what Mr. Herman was making deposits in the bank for?"

"Just to cover cheques."

Witness said he never saw the cheques but knew that cheques of Mr. Herman had gone in with the stores' bank account.

The object of these deposits was to cover cheques in Pattenick's deposit?"

"I did not know that."

Herman usually made up the deposit slips and witness took them to the bank.

In regard to the deposits made in Herman's account witness made out the deposit slips himself.

"We trusted one another," said the witness.

"Do you still trust him today?"

"I think so."

"Do you think Herman had anything to do with the fire?"

Mr. McElderry objected to the question and the objection was sustained.

"Do you still trust him as far as money affairs are concerned?"

"Yes."

"Did you ever sleep in the store?"

"Yes, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights after the fire."

Stevens said he was in the store at 9.30 on the morning after the fire. Herman, Fire Chief Gimblett was there and Inspector Saville came in later, about 11 o'clock he thought.

Witness was examined at length as to the staff of the store. Stevens explained that there were extra girls on Saturdays. He could not state just how many. "I'd rather not hazard a guess," he said.

"You are the assistant manager of the store; you should know," said Mr. McElderry.

"I suppose a week ago last Saturday afternoon we had a staff of about eight."

"In which direction did the door of the furnace face?"

"West," sai dthe witness, who added that when he lit the fire Monday morning all the drafts had been open. The bottom draft was open and the opening would face northwest. Witness said that there might be embers left from a wood fire in a furnace for about 12 hours.

"You said yesterday that in your opinion the fire did not originate from the furnace?"

"Yes."

"You don't say there were not embers in the furnace?"

"There may have been in the ashes."

Stevens was closely examined by Mr. Skeans on a number of points. He said that the floor in the Pattenick store was oiled from time to time and the oil was put on with a mop.

"Have you seen that mop since the fire?" asked Magistrate Langley.

"No," replied the witness.

Stevens told Mr. Skeans that it had been the regular custom to hide money in the basement because the vault upstairs could not be locked.

"Did you ever have any trouble remembering where you had hidden money there?"

"I always found it."

Witness said that on several occasions it had taken him perhaps ten minutes to locate money he had concealed.

Stevens, questioned on another point, was positive that there was nothing downstairs after the fire that had been upstairs before the fire.

He recalled that on the afternoon of the fire in the Pattenick store the girls had complained about 4.30 o'clock about the store being cold but he had told them there was no use doing anything about re-lighting the fire then as it was only an hour until closing time.

Stevens said that he had had several talks with Mr. Pattenick, owner of the store after the fire and Pattenick had asked him several times as to how he thought the fire started and witness had told him he was unable to account for it.

"He asked me if I thought Herman was guilty and I answered that I hardly thought so," said the witness.

"Did he ask you if you did it?"

"No."

"You didn't do it?"

"No."

Mayor Day May Get A Fight; Buck Out Again

TORONTO, Dec. 21 — (CP). — Ralph C. Day, Lewis Duncan, barrister, and Patrick Sullivan, former journalist, were nominated to-day for Toronto's 1939 Mayoralty contest with prospect that Duncan might contest the issue with Mayor Day at the New Year's Day election.

Duncan, prominent attorney, said he would consider whether he would allow his name to go before the voters. He has until to-morrow night to qualify. It was expected Day, seeking a second term, would qualify later to-day.

Sullivan, publisher of the weekly, "Thunderer," which ceased publication here several years ago, was described in official quarters as ineligible to be a candidate as his name is not on the voters' list.

Buck, secretary of the Canadian Communist Party, is making his third attempt at election to the Board of Control. A year ago he made a strong run, placing in fifth place, less than 500 votes below the total obtained by the fourth successful candidate.

Robert Harding was on hand to run for Mayor, but he couldn't find two men who would nominate him.

"If any two men are brave enough I'll run for Mayor," said Harding in the nomination room. There was no response.

Duchess To Give Chamberlain Real Vote Test

CRIEFF, Scotland, Dec. 21—(AP). —Prime Minister Chamberlain's foreign policy received an important by-election test today when Kinross and West Perth voters went to the polls in these snowbound highlands.

The Duchess of Atholl, who broke formally with the Conservatives after the Munich agreement, is running for the House of Commons as an independent against McNair Snadden, Conservative.

Hundreds of motorists skidded over frozen roads to the polls.

"I am fighting not only for a foreign policy of greater foresight and greater courage but also for a better state of preparation so urgently needed and which I feel sure is one of the best means of preventing war," the Duchess said.

Mr. Snadden, a farmer, places himself solidly behind Mr. Chamberlain's "appeasement" program. His election would be a big victory for the government.

The attitude of the Liberal party toward the contest was emphasized by the withdrawal of its candidate, Mrs. Coll Macdonald, who lost to the Duchess 10,069 to 15,238 in the 1935 general election. The Duchess resigned the seat in order to re-contest it on the basis of her opposition to the government.

The Duke of Atholl, who owns 200,000 acres in this part of Scotland and who has been one of the chief supporters of his wife in her political career, has been bedridden during the campaign.

Colonel J. C. Wedgwood, 66-year-old Labor member of the House who has been supporting the Duchess, collapsed yesterday of a heart attack.

Paint-Maker Hands Out Bonuses $400-$7500 Finds Satisfied, Debt-Free Workers Best

AMBLER, Pa., Dec. 21 (AP)— J. Harvey Gravell, a paint manufacturer, has given his employees in four United States and Canadian plants Christmas bonuses totalling $175,000 in two years and he's going to give them once again this year, but he's not bragging about it.

Gravell, who claims his 300 employees made possible the success he has attained in the business he started 24 years ago "with a bucket and a brush," didn't disclose that the gifts would be handed out two days before Christmas until a newsman queried him.

Even then, he said only that the bonuses would be "100 up." The gifts totalled $100,000 in 1936 and $75,000 last year. In addition, he gave $400 last year to the wife of each employee in his plants at Ambler, New Castle, Del., Detroit and Walkersville, Ont. Some veteran workers got as much as $7,500.

Gravell said he gives bonuses because "I have found that a satisfied employee and an employee free of debt is a more happy and efficient worker."

Snyder Pins Hope On 2 Women Jurors

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 21 (AP). — Martin Snyder, somber, limping, one-time Chicago newsboy, pinned his hope today of winning exoneration in the shooting of Myrl Alderman on two women jurors—"little ladies who can speak quite a piece."

The former husband and manager of songstress Ruth Etting, who was labelled a "kept man" by the prosecution and a "hunchback of Notre Dame" by his counsel, faces prison terms up to 90 years if he is found guilty of the five felony charges against him.

The jury of six men and six women deliberated 4½ hours before retiring last night, without indicating the trend of their views on the accusations that Snyder kidnapped Alderman from a radio station and, at the pianist's home, attempted to murder him. Miss Etting, and his own daughter, Edith Snyder. Alderman, with a bullet in the abdomen, was the only casualty.

There was a light of hope in Snyder's eyes as the jury filed out of the courtroom.

"I like the looks of a couple of those little ladies on that jury," he remarked. "I hope they will speak a piece for me. They look like little ladies who can speak quite a piece if they want to."

Oh, There Must Be a Santa—

500 Children Treated At Millbrook Following Santa Parade

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Dec. 21.—Santa Claus, "in person," arrived in Millbrook at 7.30 on Saturday evening, to the great delight of several scores of happily-excited boys and girls who voluntarily lined themselves up, two by two, behind the Citizens' Band, when it started out from the Armouries for the C.N.R. station to meet the distinguished visitor.

The jolly old saint looked hale and hearty as usual, in his suit of bright red, fur-trimmed in white, two spirited horses being attached to the large sleigh in which he was seated, with evergreens for decorations, and fur robes for comfort, the four attendants being typical Canadian girls, Eleanor Bigelow, Marian Harkness, Mary Sanderson, and Dorothy Sisco, wearing long blue trousers, red cardigans and red caps, trimmed with white fur, and all glistening with particles of snow.

Arrived at the Armouries, while the band played "Jingle Bells," Santa was welcomed by Reeve W. E. Ball, and escorted to the seat of honor on the platform. The building was crowded to capacity, many not being able to get inside at all, and the wonder was where all the children came from. Grown-ups, too, showed a lively interest in seeing Saint Nicholas (ex-Warden Percy Stinson) and taking part in what was going on. Leslie Unitt leading in community singing of Christmas carols, with the band, under Lieutenant Peryer, supplying the accompaniment.

Following the address of welcome by the reeve, and the introduction of Santa Claus, the latter made a special plea for remembrance of the old folk of the community at the Christmas season, and then, with the aid of his attendants, gave out nearly five hundred bags of candies and nuts.

The band played at intervals during the distribution of the candies, and the whole event was under the auspices of the Business Men's Association of Millbrook, with the idea of increasing the Christmas spirit, and bringing added Yuletide trade for the local merchants.

Also, as a spur to the Christmas atmosphere, Mr. F. S. Scott, local philanthropist who has done so much toward community welfare, recently gave to each business and professional man, the clerks, and other workers, a sprig of green with bright red holly berries, with the request that it be worn daily until the holiday is over.

1,000-Year-Old Tree Is Chopped Down

LADYSMITH, B.C., Nov. 9.—(CP).—The story of 1,000 years of growth is told by a section sliced from one of the largest fir trees ever cut in this Vancouver Island logging district. It is on display at the Comox Logging Company's office here.

Experts checking the hairline annular rings in the specimen reckon the tree was a seedling in 928 A.D. When cut it towered 250 feet high and contained more than 40,000 feet of commercial lumber—enough to build five or six small homes.

The section retained was cut 20 feet from the base of the tree and measures 74 inches in diameter. Its rings show no pronounced change in the weather here for 10 centuries except that every 100 years since 1638 there has been a three-year drought.

Public School Costs In Peterborough High While Secondary Costs Much Lower

TORONTO, Dec. 21.—The costs of education in Toronto's school system are far higher than elsewhere in Ontario. In 1936 the taxpayers provided public school education from one end of the province to the other at an average expenditure of $66 per pupil. It cost $83 to send a boy or girl to a public school in the cities of Ontario. The cost in Toronto was $93.

Each student in the average high school and collegiate of Ontario received a year's tuition for the public's expenditure of $125. In collegiates alone, throughout the province, the cost was $131 per pupil. In Toronto, according to Ontario Government figures, $171 was spent on each boy or girl going to a collegiate.

And the costs in Toronto for 1937 were even higher. The expenditures per pupil were up over 1936 for two reasons—because the amount spent on the schools system, both public and secondary, was increased and because the average attendance dropped off.

The province-wide figures for 1937 are now in the course of preparation by the Ontario Department of Education, and will show the jump in Toronto's costs. The 1936 figures, which will shortly be published in report form by the province, give startling contrasts between Toronto and other municipalities.

While Toronto spent $93 on each public school pupil the expenditures in Hamilton were $69. Peterborough expended $79 on each student and Kitchener $71. In Chatham this elementary education was provided for $65.

As for collegiates when Toronto was expending $171 on each student Ottawa spent $149, Peterborough $127, Kitchener $102, Kingston $99.

And it is a similar picture in the providing of education in the separate schools. In Toronto the gross costs in 1936 amounted to $57 for each pupil in the separate schools. In Ottawa they were $48, in Hamilton $38, in Chatham $25.

All these figures are the total expenditures, include the major cost carried by the municipality, and the minor portion is accounted for by government grants and credits.

Havelock Cuts Relief In Half For '38 Reduces Borrowings $3,300

HAVELOCK, Dec. 19.—Relief and current expenses in the village of Havelock for the current year have been reduced to just one half those of 1937, according to figures produced at the final meeting of the municipal council, Thursday evening in the local council chamber.

Comparison of relief costs from 1925 when they were at a high of $3,002.62; in 1936 at $1,432.33; in 1937 at $617.90; show a steady decrease, while this year they have reached a new low with the costs, up to the last of November, being $324.74.

Carrying charges on loans and costs of money borrowed from the bank have also taken quite a drop, being $95.35, so far, a decrease of $113.10 over last year's. Total amount of money borrowed this year was $4,200, while last year it was $7,500. In 1933 the borrowings were as high as $19,350.

During the meeting Reeve Ernest Seeney and Councillors Everard Chiles, James Wilde, James Squire, and D. A. Forde all announced their intention of seeking re-election on the merit of their year's record. The council as a whole, wish to continue in 1939 their policy of reducing expenses to a minimum.

Mr. Donald Kirk, vice-president of the Albion Club, was present on their behalf to ask for a reduction of the hall rent for their Christmas dance on Monday, December 26, due to the fact that since nominations is also on this evening the hall will be occupied for the period from 7.30 to 8.30 p.m. On motion of Councillors Forde and Chiles the hall rent was reduced to $5 for the evening, with the provision that should the speaking following the nominations be adjourned to Tuesday evening, that the full rental would be charged.

In response to a petition signed by the majority of the village merchants, the council will declare "Boxing Day" Tuesday, December 27, a public holiday.

Reeve Seeney was authorized to purchase a second-hand stove and some cooking utensils for use at Young's lumber camp.

The clerk was instructed, on motion of Councillors Chiles and Squire to arrange to have the piano in the town hall tuned.

Dr. Joseph Holdcroft requested a rebate on his business taxes for the years 1934, 35, 36, and the clerk was instructed to write the Municipal World for a ruling on this particular case.

Election Officers Named.

Appointments for the village election officers were made as follows: Poll No. 1—Deputy returning officer, Mrs. Rebecca Jones; poll clerk, Mrs. Lena Williams; Poll No. 2—Deputy returning officer, J. W. Stillman; poll clerk, Mrs. Edythe Johnson.

Reeve E. W. Seeney, addressing the members of the council for the last occasion this year, thanked them for the valuable part they had taken in municipal work during the past year, stating that their co-operation had been highly responsible for the amount of success obtained during 1938. On behalf of the council he also extended thanks to the assessor and relief officer for their efforts and assistance, and concluded by wishing the compliments of the season to all present.

The following accounts were passed and ordered paid, on motion of Councillors Chiles and Squire:

Mrs. A McLain, rent for dump ground, $10; Ontario Rock Co., crushed rock, $6.68; Attendance at meetings: E. W. Seeney, $45; D. A. Forde, $42.50; J. L. Squire, $40; E. Chiles, $40; Jas. Wilde, $40; Board of Health, expenses for 1938, $205.61; G. W. Chiles, supplies for hall, $1.28; T. P. Lancaster, advt., $10.60; J. W. Stillman, snow ploughing and cartage, $6.75; Hubble Hardware Co., cement and stove, $29.35; Arnold Keating, wood for hall, $25; H. B. Puffer, balance salary, 1938, $100; Grant & Loucks, wire and bulbs, $23.20; Thomas Paige, assisting street decorating, $2.50; Wm. Forsythe, engine to fire, $3; Robt. Buchanan, cartage streets, $4; Arnold Hill, sawing wood, town hall, $3.75; Herb. Davies, piling wood, $2.50.

Storm Has Moved Oyster Beds

BOSTON, Nov. 15 (CP) — The United States Bureau of Fisheries reports oyster beds in New England shifted their location during the hurricane which swept the area in September.

Action of the waves, the swift currents caused by the wind, and the rapid rise and fall of the tide during the hurricane brought about a general shifting of the oyster population from one farm to another, the Bureau states.

In many instances oysters were shifted to adjoining sub-area farms, which means they changed their owners in a cleaner sweep than is made by poachers, against whom oyster growers are constantly guarding. Many oystermen these days are inspecting their farms and finding quantities of oysters missing, while other growers are finding their sub-marine farms enriched by thousands of bushels of new oysters.

The involuntary journey of the bivalves caused no damage to the quality and taste of the oysters, the Bureau reports.

They Prefer To Fight

Another of those cases where two daughters cannot agree how to share the estate of their father. Justice Fisher in court at London, Ont., tried to smooth matters out so the trouble would not have to go to trial court. He said that would drive up the cost of administering the estate; he also remarked it did seem too bad there could not be a little more give and take in the settling of such affairs.

The father died two years ago and he was worth $20,000 and not long after the mother died. There was supposed to have been some agreement reached whereby the daughters were to share on a slightly different basis, but the one who was to get the lesser amount will have nothing to do with it, and the one who expected to receive more will not budge. So there they stand. Each has a lawyer now and when the case goes for trial the lawyers will be busy again, and they will have to be paid as well as other costs of court.

If the father during his working days had saved nothing at all there would have been no cause to take the case to court for there would have been no money about which to quarrel. But now one daughter who has a chance to take something better than $7,000 wants more, and the one who says she should receive about $12,000 will accept nothing less. Perhaps it is kind and merciful thing that both father and mother are out of the family picture before the daughters dragged their affairs into court and demonstrated that the spirit of compromise was not in them and showed that two sisters sharing the bounty of a father who had made provision for them can fight as bitterly as two strangers. Each is missing the great opportunity of doing the very thing of which this old world stands in need—an outward demonstration of an inward love which prefers to give rather than to grasp and grab.

Isaiah Comes Home

Isaiah McChesney of Yorkton, Sask., landed at Montreal and intends to keep on going until he gets back to Yorkton. For fifteen months he has been fighting in Spain with the government forces. Why Isaiah decided on such a course is more than we know, but he had something rather interesting to say when he landed. The equipment of war which is being used in Spain is up-to-date, and admittedly the conflict has been used as a testing ground for a number of the nations, particularly Italy and Germany and at times Russian planes have been seen in action.

Isaiah says the average tank is not effective because there are so many ways of stopping the thing now; it cannot go on rumbling over the country as it did when first introduced. Guns which fire steel bullets will penetrate a tank.

Nor is the airplane attack as bad as reported. The planes dare not come down low enough to use machine guns because they would be immediately shot down by anti-aircraft guns whose fire is very effective. That is why planes go and bomb civilian centres rather than make attacks on the army at the front. All of which is interesting and helps to explain why Isaiah McChesney is able to return to Canada. Now that he is here we hope he settles down and minds his own business.

Musical Indian Family

Our correspondent at Roseneath writes an unusual story about Mrs. Mary Ann Black, an Indian woman of 75 years who resides on the Alderville Reserve. She is a teacher of music and is busy helping to train public school pupils at Alderville for their annual concert. She is also superintendent of the Sunday School and is teacher of the Bible class.

We are informed by our correspondent that Mrs. Black's father was probably the only Mohawk Indian who became a teacher of music. He came from Kingston to Alderville and had a farm of 100 acres, but farming had no appeal for him. He secured a cornet and a white bandmaster taught him how to play, after which he proceeded to teach himself how to play the piano. Nor was there any guessing about it because it is related he learned how to read music well. As children were born into his family they were musically educated — piano, violin. With his family he toured many sections of United States and Canada, and Mrs. Black, the woman of 75 who teaches the piano at Alderville, was one of the members of that musical Indian troupe. Mrs. Black has never worn glasses and frequently walks the mile from her home to Roseneath. Whether many Indians are musical we do not know, but through this family music seems to have run like sap

A Man And His Stove

A relief recipient in Belleville put his case up to the City Council. Apparently there is a rule there that a man on relief is allowed to keep the cash he may get from occasional jobs without having that deducted from his relief allowance. This man had purchased a stove for $59 and was paying for it as best he could when he had earned some money. There is yet $15 to pay off on the stove, and the Belleville man says he is in danger of losing it now because the relief office will not allow him to pay any more on it out of what he is able to earn.

Possibly there are cases where it is necessary to make rules as to how much a man can make in occasional work and still remain qualified for relief, but the purchasing of a stove would appear to be something which it is necessary to have in the man's home, and it would be a positive hardship to have it taken from him now when he is so close to the point of having paid the account in full. We doubt very much if the officials in Belleville will put the man in the position where the stove will be taken from his house, and there is not much to be said for a system which would permit it to be done. The stove is three-quarters his property now.

Oh No! Let Them Run

Discussing the recent municipal election in its city the Ottawa Journal says:

> "Two candidates for the mayoralty of Ottawa together polled 334 votes—out of a total of above 36,000. And yet in the campaign they had to be treated as serious contenders, given as much speaking time as the mayor himself. An argument for a deposit system?"

We think not, and we doubt if the Journal does either. It is much better to keep the idea operative that any man in Ottawa or elsewhere who can qualify has a chance to be anything from mayor to reeve, alderman or councillar if he can secure enough votes to be elected. When the field is wide open there is no room or reason for the critic who dearly loves to see in the system something which is putting the blinkers and hobbles on him.

One might be moved to think that those who make a mighty poor showing would be better out of the race, but ruling them out by way of a deposit would never do. They would cry aloud then and there would be something about which to cry. Much better to leave the gate open, let them in on the track, allow them to run to their heart's content. If they can't win then perhaps the grandchildren will find satisfaction in relating that grandfather once ran for mayor of Ottawa.

Over The Billion Mark

Since the conclusion of the world war Canada has spent a total of $1,047,055,047 for all ex-soldiers services which come under the auspices of our federal government. That has nothing whatever to do with what was spent in the days of the war nor for what we have spent for interest on war indebtedness since.

Dr. R. E. Wodehouse, Deputy Minister of Pensions and National Health, has recently prepared figures which show the extent to which this work has been carried. He explains:

> "The federal government has 80,083 disability pensions at present, with 17,954 dependents. It has 15,192 veterans in receipt of war veterans' allowances with 226 dependent wives. It issues on the average $178,000 a month in unemployment assistance to small pensioners. It has 2,500 men and nursing sisters in hospital every day of each year. It has 803 cases requiring artificial eyes and approximately 3,000 glass eyes, either being worn or ready to replace breakages, already made to suit each eligible soldier.
>
> "A pensioner with a disability assessed at five per cent. may enter hospital and receive full treatment and compensation totalling 100 per cent. pension or more while there. The total amount spent for all ex-soldier services by the federal government since the war to March 31, 1938, is $1,047,055,047."

It is also explained that the pensioned soldier who reaches the age of 52 years has a longer life expectancy than the average individual, and this is credited to the fact that such a person has been released from financial worry. One might be inclined to dispute that but the figures which are accumulating in the department at Ottawa point in that direction, and they make evidence which it is difficult to deny.

Could a Council Do More?

"Why don't they do something about it?" In one way or another that has become a popular question and a popular demand. We are told we need leadership, we are informed we need to change our system, scrap the present one in its entirety and get a new one. Today we have a letter from a reader who asks why our City Council "does not do something about it?" The idea is best explained in these words from our letter:

> "For a good many years the City Council has paid relief and that is no good. What we want of our Council is that they should provide work for those who need it and if they will not do that, then we should get a council which will do so."

Of course there is a good deal more to the letter but that is actually the focal point of the whole epistle. It is about the same demand which is being made of our federal and provincial governments, but for the moment we will consider the City Council. In what we refer to as normal times the City Council would not be a very great employer of labor. It pays although it does not directly employ the police; its number of firemen is not great, and Board of Works would probably be the largest department in its personnel as far as workers go. The number needed would be determined by the amount of work to be done. The municipal council in a city the size of Peterborough would not be regarded as ranking among the senior employers of labor.

It started about the year 1930 when factories and other establishments found business slipping. They began then to lay off some of their men and as the same thing was becoming general there was not much opportunity for a man who was laid off in one place finding his services in demand elsewhere. The same thing was taking place in virtually all of our municipalities across the Dominion. Shortly after that the history of the movement will show that people began to approach the government body of the municipality in which they were located and ask that they be given something to do because they could not find work elsewhere. That was something entirely new for a city council, because its functions have to do chiefly with the management of facilities which people collectively have to have when they live in a community—roads, pavements, fire and police protection, and so on. A good many cities did try to provide work by initiating public improvements, but that in turn caused too great an outlay for material, and it was found that a number of the ratepayers who would have to bear these added costs in the way of increased taxation were out of work themselves and in no position to pay more. They were actually going through a period where in justice to them they should have been paying less.

So right there the ability of a municipality found its limitation; it could not become a large employer of labor. It was not like a factory which could make something which could be sold to produce revenue. Everything was expenditure and there were no receipts apart from taxes. Nor have we ever been able to see that a municipal council could do much more. If those who make suggestions would go the added distance and couple with them information showing what could be done and how it could be financed then there would be more value to their discussions.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The mayor of Owen Sound says he wants a second term because a new $150,000 gas plant has just started. Does the man mean that with this utility in operation he could get along easier?

Time was as many adults will remember when a lad thought he was doing fairly well when he got an orange in the toe of stocking on Christmas morning.

Bandit in Germany wounded a taxi-driver while trying to rob him and shortly after that went to the guillotine. Possibly a trifle hard on the bandit, but since then there have been no more bandits operating.

A young man from Manitoba looked for work in Toronto and finally advertised saying he was "lazy, dishonest and unreliable," but was considering going to work. He received 19 replies, but what the point or moral in the whole thing is we haven't the least idea.

Manitoba provincial treasurer reports a surplus of half a million, but it is worth noting that listed with the receipts is a special grant of $750,000 from the Dominion government. A little simple arithmetic leads us to suspect that without that there would have been a deficit.

A train hit a motor car at a Toronto crossing. The car went through the crossing gates spun around a few times and turned over in the ditch. Then six people got out unhurt. We saw a daredevil driving like that at a fall fair once, but it struck us as too hard a trick to learn particularly with a load of passengers.

TROUBLE

(By A. R. K.)

¶ Sweet Mary Jane began to knit, she seemed to grow quite fond of it, she'd never tried before; she didn't know just what to make, she wished no trouble or mistake.

¶ So mary Jane got all the rules, they sold her too a set of tools, so she knew how to shoot; ambition in her ran up high, the first thing off she'd go and try, to knit herself a suit.

¶ Of yarn she had a large amount, and they had told her how to count, so she got started soon; she kept right pegging at the thing, she'd even let the door bell ring, worked morning, night and noon.

¶ But friends dropped in to have a chat, and Mary Jane is keen on that, then gossip stuff will mount; and then her jaws will work so fast, she talks right on until the last, and she forgets to count.

¶ When she goes out to see a friend, she talks to her without an end, and keeps on knitting too; she clean forgets how much she'd done, but stitches put in one by one, will surely see her through.

¶ So Mary Jane's wool suit it grew, far longer than it ought to do, she found to her dismay; she has not learned to talk and knit, she won't curtail her tongue a bit—she has so much to say.

Dairy Farmer Always At Work

WE ARE now well into the Winter feeding season. Chores take up most of our time. Like Peter McArthur, "unashamed we stand with those who daily do their chores." There are cows to feed, calves, pigs, horses, and sheep to be fed and kept clean. Every one of those livestock need attention if they are to thrive, and it is a fact that some of them fail to properly respond, even with the best of care.

Along about the first of December we generally have quite a number of calves coming along. We like this time of year, because the cows freshening then can be given good care during the Winter months and will generally milk well during the best of the pasture season. On the other hand, cows coming into production in Spring milk well for a few months, but so far, we have not found a way to keep production up during the Fall months, when pasture seems to have lost its power to produce milk and weather conditions are often unfavorable.

Of course, there are a number of Spring freshening cows kept, too, but we believe that, given a decent chance, the Fall cow will produce at least fifty pounds more butterfat in ten months than the Spring or Summer freshening animal of equal producing ability. We are sometimes inclined to doubt if the extra production is profitable though because it certainly costs more to produce a pound of butter fat in the winter months. There was a time when the price of dairy produce advanced enough in price during the season of higher production costs to make Winter dairying profitable, but with the exception of the Winter season of 1937-38 this rule apparently no longer holds true.

✧ ✧ ✧

DAIRYING is a job for every day in the year, says Rusticus in the Stratford Beacon-Herald. There are no holidays or Sundays off for the dairy cow. There are feeding problems, breeding problems, and health problems. We think we have conquered some of these difficulties and then we learn that the very methods that have given us success suddenly fail to give results.

When our dairy herd was first started in a very small way some time ago, we had no difficulty in raising the wee calves. They came, they were of sex we desired, and they grew. This Fall most of the calves are of that sex not so popular in the dairy barn, and while they are strong they do not seem to properly respond to our care. That is one of the problems new to us, but one we must learn more about. Possibly one of these days some little thing will turn up and the juniors down at the barn will thrive as they formerly did.

We have often heard men declare that our farms should be larger. The argument is that the overhead would be lower on the larger unit, and we know of many large farms that seem to bear out this contention. On the other hand, we know that many of these larger farmers sometimes run into serious difficulties. For instance, a promising breeder of dairy cattle, explaining the lack of yearling and two-year-old heifers in his excellent herd, said that "shipping fever" had nearly cleaned him out. One year he lost every calf and four cows. The next year nearly all the calves died and a few more cows, and we believe that this is one of the penalties of the large herd.

Some time ago we read some figures regarding the losses in the large dairy herds in the U.S. We were surprised to learn of the high mortality rate; certainly a much greater percentage of losses than in the herds near this locality. The production of these American herds per cow was not exceptionally high, and they were under expert care. Then why the losses? Our contention is that the size of the herd has something to do with it.

SISTERS VANISHED.

(London Sunday Express)

EARLY one morning, forty years ago, Miss Louise Young and sister walked out of an eight-roomed villa in Alexandra-street, Airdrie, Lanarkshire, locked the door and, as far as their fellow townspeople were concerned, vanished.

Since then this house of solid red sandstone has remained empty.

No one in the town can say why the sisters left or where they went.

But every year the sum of £141 which includes assessed rental and rates, is paid by a firm of lawyers to Airdrie Town Council.

"The sisters were very reserved and nothing was known about them," said a neighbor.

"They walked out of the house one morning after breakfast.

"The remains of the breakfast are still on the table as they left them.

"It is said that the house was haunted, but no one knows why it should be.

"So far as is known no one has entered the house since the sisters left.

"The curtains on the windows are mere dusty shreds, and the windows have never been cleaned."

NOT A SOUR NOTE.

(St. Catharines Standard)

ANTHONY EDEN apparently got along well with everyobdy whom he met in the United States, from the President down. He received a boisterous farewell as he boarded the Queen Mary and his visit was of just one week's duration. Few men can ever claim to have crowded so much inside one week as did the British statesman and his consort. Or should we say British politician, because Anthony Eden certainly had the versatility and savoir faire, or what it takes to have made himself so much persona grata, without one sour note being sounded anywhere in the great free and unrestrained press of the United States.

THE NON-VOTER

(Christian Science Monitor)

A former immigrant, living in Syracuse, New York, is said to have voted forty-two years before he became a United States citizen. We wonder if his offense is as great as the man who has been a citizen for forty-two years but has not voted.

THE MESSAGE OF JOHN THE BAPTIST

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—I would like to give out a few thoughts relative to the above subject. We read in the gospel of Matthew, chap. 3: "In those days came John the Baptist, preaching in the wilderness of Judaea, and saying, repeat ye: for the kingdom of heaven is at hand." Now we are told in the gospel according to St. Luke, chap. 3; who were the rulers at that day, and subsequent events that followed showed us the characters of those men both in the church and out of it. John himself was beheaded by Herod; also Herod with his men of war set Jesus at nought, and mocked Him, and arranged Him in robes of mockery and returned Him to Pilate.

Annas the father-in-law to Caiaphas the high priest, he it was who gave council to the Jews that it was expedient that one man should die for the people and that man he wanted to be Jesus.

But to return to John—why was he preaching in the wilderness and not in the temple where his father had been a priest? It was because that church, was a representative church, all their ordinances represented something spiritual, hence a "wilderness" represented a state where there was no life, all was dead and barren as far as spiritual life was concerned and so the call went out—"Repent for the kingdom of Heaven is at hand."

Swedenborg informs us that the Lord never allows the church with man to perish. When it is about to perish another is raised up and so in this case the Lord Himself came and called out a few simple souls who would love Him and believe His word and let it rule in their life. And so at this day when the word is about perished in the lives of so many we pray "Revive Thy work oh Lord." Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, on earth as 'tis in Heaven."

It is most true that we do not live truly unless the "word" finds place in our hearts and we live according to it, because we delight in what delights the Lord. His will has become our will and we have to some extent become in tune with heaven. Only by truth applied can heaven come down to earth; nothing but the unrepenerate heart of man kinders the descent of the holy city (not taking this to mean a place), but a state of life and the river of water flowing from the throne. What is it but truth which we drink in and which yields fruits and the tree of life (the Lord Himself) from whence this river flows. Let us drink of these waters and live or we perish indeed.

"FIDEI DEFENSON."

RELIGION VERSUS JOBS

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—After reading the piece in to the editor column concerning a man's religion, it brings to my mind of the time when I was looking for work. I also was asked on one occasion what my religion was, and on some application forms it asks what religion a man has. I thought that narrow mindedness went out years ago. But it appears that there is still a certain amount of it around. There shouldn't be that bigotry these days. What's the difference what a man's religion is? There is good and bad in every religion. All the boss has to worry about is what kind of a worker he has, not his religion. It's hard enough to get a job these days without having another obstacle in the way. My idea, is every man to his own belief. Most fair-minded people think the same.

FAIR-MINDED.

Peterborough, Dec. 20.

• Unemployed Command the Vote

MR. HEPBURN says the unemployed have "come to look upon the present day as an era of paternalism," cites the case of men who "earned good money in the tobacco fields of Ontario, squandered or dissipated their wages and then had come to Toronto in search of relief." There are, of course, such cases—every relief official has encountered them. There are men who are wasteful, improvident, content with a poor living involving no work in preference to a good living they must work for, but we should be most unwilling to believe that they constitute a majority of relief recipients.

And if it is true, as Mr. Hepburn says, comments the Ottawa Journal, that the unemployed look upon this as "an era of paternalism" are they alone to blame? Naturally an unemployed man cannot receive from the government anything the government is unwilling to give him—and governments seemingly never can forget that the unemployed man, and his wife and his cousins and his aunts, all have votes!

The fault, it seems to us, rests in part upon governments, and upon the people who elect governments, if sometimes the individual has weakened under what appears to him the delightful novelty of living on the State, loses his ambition, his desire to work and save and realize, if he can, independence through his own efforts. And that because the problem of unemployment, and the relief of distress caused by unemployment, has never been attacked in any concerted or fearless way. We have permitted ourselves to drift, year after year—Dominion, province, municipality, sharing the costs, each party trying to persuade the other parties to pay more, passing the buck back and forth just as Mr. Hepburn now tries to absolve himself from any responsibility for the transients.

If in the process some have lost hope and ambition is it very surprising?

WHY NOT A BAN?

(Owen Sound Sun-Times)

HAS IT OCCURRED to the Dominion Government that some good might be done by prohibiting the importation or manufacture of pistols and revolvers except by special permit and for certain specified purpose? There would, admittedly, be some smuggling and some "bootlegging" done; but close watch at border customs offices and strict inspection of manufacturing plants would keep breaches of the law to a minimum.

Another precaution that would be useful would be in restriction of the sale of revolver and pistol ammunition. A gun is of no use without cartridges; so a law requiring registration of every sale and restricting sales to none but those in possession of permits—said permits to be produced at time of sale—would make it hard, if not impossible, for a crook to get supplies.

It is quite evident that the present law is not effective; stronger restrictive measures are imperative if there is to be any prospect of reducing the number of hold-ups and armed robberies.

READJUST WAGES.

(Letter in Globe and Mail)

TO THE EDITOR of The Globe and Mail: The late general manager of the T.T.C. received $25,000 yearly and his three assistants receive $15,000 yearly. In Detroit, where the transportation system carries three times as many passengers as the Toronto transportation system, they pay the chief director $15,000 and his two assistants $7,000 yearly. And the men running the busses and cars in Detroit receive 40 per cent higher wages than the Toronto men.

Now that the general manager of the T.T.C. has passed on, is it not a good time to adjust salaries so that the men operating our cars and busses may receive a more even distribution of the fares paid in?

NEXT SUMMER there will be opened to Manitoba motorists and to tourists the longest and scenically the most interesting highway in this province, Route No. 10. Running for 427 miles from the Peace Gardens to The Pas, the new highway leads through the Turtle Mountains, across the Souris and Assiniboine valleys and the Riding Mountain, past Clear Lake, and along the flanks of the Duck and Porcupine mountains and the northwestern shore of Lake Winnipegosis.

HIS MILLIONS.

IT IS INTERESTING to note that the late John D. Rockefeller left an estate valued at $26,410,837. It is even more interesting to note that his public benefections throughout his life time reached the staggering sum of $530,830,000. This is no attempt to canonize the Rockefeller memory. But the facts shown here indicate what can be accomplished by a man whose genius runs to the amassing of money.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

AND IT CAME TO PASS after these things, that the son of the woman, the mistress of the house, fell sick; and his sickness was so sore that there was no breath left in him. And he said to Elijah, What have I to do with thee, O thou man of God? art thou come unto me to call my sin to remembrance, and to slay my son?

And he said unto her, Give me thy son. And he took him out of her bosom, and carried him up into a loft, where he abode, and laid him upon his own bed....And the Lord heard the voice of Elijah; and the soul of the child came into him again, and he revived.

And Elijah took the child, and brought him down out of the chamber into the house, and delivered him unto his mother: and Elijah said, See, thy son liveth. And the woman said to Elijah, Now by this I know that thou art a man of God, and that the word of the Lord in thy mouth is truth.—I Kings, xvii, 17-19, 22-24.

IN Maine, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Rhode Island and Pennsylvania pineapple juice and tomato juice are beverages.

In Massachusetts, Delaware, North Carolina, Louisiana, Wisconsin and Oregon the two juices on the other hand, are not beverages.

In Michigan pineapple juice is a beverage, but tomato juice is not. In Maryland grape juice, pineapple juice and orange juice are beverages if they are found in glass containers, but not if they are found in tin cans; in the same State tomato juice and prune juice are never beverages.

In Nebraska a pure juice is never a beverage, but if sugar or water or anything else is added it becomes a beverage.

These "oddities and perplexities," discovered by Food Industries when it sought to digest and tabulate State regulations pertaining to foods, are not, as the publication points out, to be found in the laws or even in the regulations. Sometimes they are discovered only "after consulting the enforcing officers."

Emily Council Winds Up Year

The Emily Council met in the Farmers' Club Rooms, Omemee, on December 15. Members present: D. J. Guiry, reeve, in the chair, and Councillors Wilbert Fee, Paul J. McGuire, W. J. Patrick and D. W. Wilson.

Communications were read as follows:

From A. M. Fulton, writing on behalf of Mr. Gravestock to inquire if the township would sell the approach to the abandoned Pigeon River bridge.

From F. L. Weldon asking information as to residence and liability of a number of inmates in the hospitals.

From F. L. Weldon, informing council that the county had for sale a number of dump wagons and other road machinery.

From Miss J. A. Batten, Peterborough County clerk, informing council that the Peterborough county council had offered to snowplow the road from Fowler's Corners to Frankhill school house at a cost of $2.50 per hour.

From the Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough, voicing their dissatisfaction with the action of the Emily township officials in denying liability for the maintainance of a patient there, and asking for a reconsideration of the case.

Livestock valuers' reports were received from Ed. Best, D. M. Costello and George Collins.

Mr. Fee reported that he had visited an Emily township home, as instructed by council, where there was a young woman almost deaf and dumb, who had been born and lived most of her life in an adjoining township, without receiving any education, the parents are willing to have her sent to the institute at Belleville, but have not the means themselves to maintain her there. Mr. Fee further suggested that it might be well to have the young woman taken to the clinic before taking any steps towards having her sent to Belleville.

Mr. McGuire reported that the account of Ops township for gravel purchased and use of machinery amounted to $98.35, and delivered a cheque to the treasurer for that amount.

A tender for that portion of Lot 2, Con. 4 Emily, now owned by the township was received from Robert Calvert, Reaboro, offering to purchase the same at or for a price of $50.

The road accounts as presented by Lloyd Boate were approved and ordered paid by the treasurer.

Motions.

That the collector's time for collecting the 1938 taxes and returning the roll be extended until February 1, 1939.

That the clerk be instructed to write the A. E. Wilson Co. and urge payment of Sayward Switzer's claim for a broken car as the council feels that Mr. Switzer has a just claim.

That Mr. Fee be authorized to have Miss Pearl Moore taken to the clinic at Peterborough for an examination and that he pay any expenses in connection therewith, and forward his bill to the council.

That Mr. Fee be a committee to interview the Peterborough county council in the matter of snowplowing the east boundary with power to act.

That the tender of Robert Calvert of Reaboro for that part of Lot 2, Con. 4, now owned by the township be accepted and necessary bylaw passed.

Shadows Are Believed To Have Been Cause Of Thinking Hastings House Has Ghosts

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Dec. 21.—Secret investigations for almost a week at the talked of house in the north section of this town revealed but little. An investigator, acting for the Orr estate, owners of the property, is convinced the whole thing is a hoax and that the would-be ghosts are nothing more than reflections and shadows.

The first night of the investigation revealed a pair of would-be house-haunters who tried to scare the investigator, an Examiner reporter and Marvyn Preston off the premises. The trio were discussing the situation near the front of the house when a pair appeared in the shadows at the back of the building. They made a hasty retreat into the semi-darkness and disappeared when chased. They apparently sensed that an investigation was under way and never returned.

The house is not isolated from the residential section. It is a large white frame building in good state of repair.

Francis Kennedy, living across the road from the house, said he has never seen anything suspicious about the building at any time. He believes the mysterious lights came from street-light reflections.

Chief Constable William Wellman said he visited the house on two occasions but failed to see anything suspicious or spooky. He is also of the opinion the lights came from shadows.

OWEN SOUND TRAPPERS COP A 6-3 VICTORY OVER THE PETES

Few Practises Come Against The Visitors

The Petes opened their season with the short side of a 6-3 count last evening in Owen Sound, the strong Trappers copping the nod before a big crowd in an exhibition match. A three-goal splurge in the first frame gave the Northerners the edge in a fine fixture for so early in the season. It was fast, clean hockey all the way.

Lack of condition and practise on ice no doubt cost the Buckland boys —piloted last night by Manager Miller—the decision as they were plenty tired halfway through but still showed considerable class, while the nifty homsters were in the best of condition on their artificial ice and went to town early. The score for Owen Sound in the first period, 3-1 for them in the second and 6-3 at the finish.

Start Strong

P. Smith notched two tallies for the home crew in the initial inning, aided once by Small. McMeekin got the other on Dean's pass. In the second, Coughlin counted the only one, assisted by Gardner, Shears, Smith and Nicholls scored for the winners in the third, Campbell and Sutton having an assist each. Brady and Tompkins got the Petes' markers with Flack having an assist on each. Great work by Earl McNabb in the visitors' net kept down the count.

All the Petes looked good for so early in the season, the first forward line and starting defence seeming most effective. McNabb starred throughout while Gardner, Coughlin and Flack showed up well. F. Smith and Neath, the goalie, were individual standouts for the winners. The Petes were short several probable regulars, who failed to make the trip. The teams:

Petes: Goa., McNabb; defence, Crowe and Weir; centre, Starr; wings, Tompkins and McNulty; alternates, Flack, Brady, Gardner, McDougall, Coughlin, J. Creighton and Picard.

Trappers: Goal, Neath; defence, Small and Blair; centre, F. Smith; wings, McMeekin and Dean; alternates, Bleach, Shears, Campbell, Schnurr, Nicholls, Sutton and A. Smith.

Referee, Rev. Father Spratt of Owen Sound.

News Of Gene Hurtubise's Struggle Travels As Far As Florida—Hears From Tom Jenks

News of Eugene Hurtubise epic struggle with the large deer a month ago has reached Jacksonville, Florida and located an old friend of Hurtubise who played rugby for Hamilton Tigers at the same time as Gene was playing on local teams.

A local banker who visits Jaksonville ever winter sent the clipping from the Examiner to Tom Jenks, genial owner-manager of Jenks' Restaurant and received an answer today.

Jenks is a husky six footer and his hospitality is known to Canadians everywhere. He is in the habit of standing inside the revolving door of his business and greets everyone with a handshake and smile that is paying big dividends because the customers are made to feel at home immediately. The big fellow looks a little out of place in the Florida picture where relaxation is the byword. He would look impressive in the backfield on a gridiron or with an axe across his shoulder in the Canadian bush.

When the banker told him Hurtubise was still alive and well, his only comment was "Boy how that Frenchman could play rugby."

Left Substitute

Wilson investigated, discovered: Burglars had carted off the original with its $3,500 contents. Wilson was looking at a clever cardboard replica.

Farmers Need Him

DES MOINES, Ia., Dec. 21 — (A. P.). — Frank Loomis' skill as a veterinarian played a part in a State Board of Parole decision to release him from Fort Madison Penitentiary next February. Numerous neighbors and friends had petitioned the board for his release to help battle sleeping sickness among horses in South-west Iowa, board member E. R. Moore reported. Last March Loomis was given a three-year sentence for driving while intoxicated.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

Ought to be a jump in Tin Ear Inc. here shortly, according to the wise gees who watch the markets—and we don't mean the butter and eggs open-air display. Whilst Bill Horrocks, instructor of the boxers at the C.G.E. Athletic Club, adds a few more details of the sour science show being put on here in the near future. We trust Bill, who was quite a fighter himself, doesn't resent the "sour science" crack but it's all good clean fun and, after all, you can't pull that "manly art of self defence" all the time, can you? Not when the pugs are tearing in and pasting the ears off rivals, nossuh. We mentioned a couple of the headline bouts yesterday, in which Nick Orlando and Dutch McIlmoyle uphold the honor of Peterborough's palpitating populace—and these worthies ought to well uphold it.

* * * * * * *

Bill tells us that Bill Flint, rapidly rounding into a real battler, will meet a good Kingston gent; while Mal Packenham—most improved local toreador—tackles another. Six bozoes from Kingston will be brought up, and more info on the card no doubt will be forthcoming in time. Some inter-club bouts by Peterborough leather-traders are being lined up, too, says Mr. Horrocks. The latter is busy contacting Kingston, Regiopolis Collitch and Gananoque for these mitt matadors. It is high time sports fans here had some kind of entertainment, nothing stirring around town since the Orfuns gave up the ghost. But the boxing and rasslin' gentry always decide to come to life right smack in the middle of the hockey, lacrosse or baseball seasons—instead of tossing on a show or two in slack periods when the customers are anxious to peel a leaf from the bankroll.

Putting On The Weight

Ran into Bill Calladine yesterday, home for a couple of days from Baltimore. Bill looks the best we've seen him in several years and has gained weight. Likes the U.S. amachoor — tee, hee — brand of hockey muchly and seems to be doing well. He should as he was one of the best puckists developed here in recent years. He said the Orioles were going good but were weak on one scoring line, so Pick Hines is in Toronto shopping around for a couple more sniping forwards. Two Cornwall players were dropped by Hines as being useless. Calladine led the Petes in scoring last season during schedule games with 21 points, six ahead of his nearest rival.

'Despite some secrecy shrouding formation of a district puck loop out around Omemee, we sent an apprentice spy out disguised as a rural mail carrier and he found out that things were progressing fair. They are having a meeting there tonight, he thinks, and the loop is assured now of Lindsay, Omemee and one local squad, the southend gang. Other prospects are Millbrook, Keene and Westclox—so no doubt they'll line up a lively loop to replace the gory Blood and Thunder Circuit which kept an open 'phone line on several doctors' offices in the past few years. In fact, there is some talk around the Brock St. bump emporium now of trying to level off the indentations along the boards where many a Senior City Leaguer did a carom in the careless nights of hockey abandon perpetrated in that loop! Them was the days; yeah, them WAS the days.

* * * * * * *

So It's Six In Now

And now it's a six-team junior setup, of all things! Started out with an eight-team O.H.A. grouping in this district but soon switched over to 2 four-team bodies. Then Lindsay was substracted from one section and added to this one here, making it a five-team group. And last night Bowmanville came in to total six clubs. They are: Lindsay, Bowmanville, Port Hope, Cobourg, Peterborough Monarchs and Peterborough Colts. Leaving Whitby out, they're folding up, and Oshawa sitting idly by waiting for a bye into junior "B" playdowns. So we have a nice six-team setup here, though Bowmanville has no home ice. At this writing, the new schedule (3rd Revision, Vol. 6, Copywritten) hadn't been sent to us, but we may find it ere the paper goes to press.

* * * * * * *

The Petes journeyed to Owen Sound last eve and returned with the skinny side of a 6-3 count after an exhibition charity fray with the Owen Sound Trappers. A good game, fast and clean, with the classy Trappers earning the nod on an early spurt before the Petes got settled down. The locals lacked condition and practice, but showed definite promise. And such stalwarts as Lorne Grey, Dot Nicholls, Bun Kingdon and Red Creighton didn't make the trip. Owen Sound got three goals in the first period and it was a tight tussle from then on. Coughlin, Brady and Tompkins got our goals, with Gardner aiding on one and Flack having two assists. Earl McNabb was the real star with a brilliant showing in the Petes' cage. All the gang showed up well for so early in the season.

* * * * * * *

And Joe Gets Six

Joe McNulty was the only local casualty, getting a chipped elbow and a cut over the eye. Six stitches fixed both wounds up and he will be ready for action within a week, most likely. Joe was used on left wing with Starr in centre and Tompkins on the other boards. The line looked oke. Gardner and Coughlin teamed up well, too. The defencemen lacked practice but will come along okey-doke ere long. Father Spratt of Owen Sound was referee and Shrimp McDougall of the Petes played for him when the Greys won Dominion junior honors. The Trappers would like to come here next week for a game, but it's up in the air as yet. F. Smith scored three goals for the homesters in a fine showing and Goalie Neath had a four-star rating.

* * * * * * *

Who should we run into this morn but Doug Brennan of Havelock, ex-Ranger and ex-Petes' defenceman. Doug looks good. Said he didn't know if he would be mixed up in hockey this winter or not as coach, player or referee. "But I won't be playing for the Petes," he said, "as I feel I should have been appointed playing coach here this winter. I applied and asked only for a fair job, being out of work just now, but nothing came of it." Doug said he felt with his pro experience behind him he couldn't learn much from any but a professional coach—and he wasn't too particular about playing any more, anyway. Brennan thought some fans here might want to know why he wasn't coming out with the team, so that is the reason. He wanted the coaching job. Doug's defensive ability on the ice will be missed locally.

Grab-bag: Al Gratton may not be transferred to Toronto this winter, and should be available for the Petes again....The new junior puck schedule has arrived and is in elsewhere....Someone told us Ray Harding, Petes' goalie last winter, was married recently; our congrats....Southend intermediate meeting is tonight at eight....Executive gals' cage meeting tomorrow e'en at seven in the Y.W.C.A.....Jim Ellis played hockey in 76 degrees last week in Miami, even his shin pads being dripping wet at the finish....They're now saying Dit Clapper, the Hastings' husky, is like old wine and improves with age....An unique Xmas card comes from Prexy Dufton of Cobourg's Ghosts, the picture being an action shot of the Ghosts in a game....Owen Sound has a nice rink, fair seating accommodation with a big sheet of ice—it's a brand new artificial arena....First hockey scrap here will be a junior O.H.A. joust on Dec. 30th with Lindsay at Monarchs....So now we'd better put on that "Same to you" smirk and stroll brightly around.

Sterling Young Hurt

MIAMI, Dec. 21.—(CP).—Sterling Young, Canada's leading jockey this year, was injured yesterday in a spill just after the finish of the last race at Tropical Park.

Young's mount, Harry's Dream, stumbled and fell while being pulled up. Young was taken to a hospital where examination disclosed a broken right collarbone, dislocated left hip and possible leg fracture.

His mount, owned by W. Waterman, stumbled as it was being pulled up after finishing third to Silent Shot and Winged Flight.

Young, a native of San Gabriel, Calif., is well known on Eastern and Western Canada tracks.

G-Men Wallop Brants In 9-2 Victory

BRANTFORD, Ont., Dec. 21 — (CP). — Oshawa G-Men dropped their hockey sticks today and took pencil in hand to figure out just how they stood individually and collectively in the Senior "A" division of the Ontario Hockey Association.

The easterners walloped Brantford Redbirds 9-2 here last night to move into second place in the league standing behind the undefeated Toronto Goodyears. The one-sided win over the cellar occupants also boosted G-Men scoring averages mightily.

The Brants, who have lost nine games and won but one this season, couldn't get started last night. Both thir goals came in the first minute of the third period at the only time that Oshawa appeared a little careless.

The winners scored three goals in the first period, five in the second and one in the third. Leading the scoring parade was Lex Chisholm who gave an exhibition of high-class playmaking with five assists and a goal for six points.

Right behind Chisholm was Wee Winkie Smith who slipped through the perplexed opposition for three goals and two assists. Other marksmen were Doug Maundrell, with two, and Carl Maundrell and Scotty McAlpine, veteran rearguard, one each.

Hurst Does Great Job

Peg Hurst, formed Whitby netminder, was a great handicap to the losers and his great display of outguessing Brant marksmen, especially in the second period, ranked with the best seen here this season. Sixteen penalties, including a major to Carl Maundrell were issued throughout the tilt. The game was stopped several times after spectators threw paper on the ice in protest against decision of Referee Beef McKay of Hamilton.

Al Allan, formerly of University of Western Ontario, played a standout game for Brants and earned applause in gaining assists on both Brantford goals. George Cooper and Ab Conick, former Hamilton Tiger, scored the Redbird markers.

Meanwhile, over at St. Catharines, Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League beat three senior "A" teams by a total score of 8-2. The game, in which each team played a period against the professional Leafs, marked the opening of the new St. Catharines Arena — the Garden City Gardens.

Leafs defeated St. Catharines 2-0 in the first period, ousted Niagara Falls Chiefs 4-1 in the second, and eged out a 2-1 win over Port Colborne Sailors in the third. Amateur scorers were Tony Pavone of the Falls and Russ Waldriff of Port Colborne.

Heading for the west coast, after eloping from their Ottawa homes, these "honeymoon hitch-hikers" refused to divulge their identity because their parents are unaware of their whereabouts or even of the fact that they are married. Arriving in Toronto they said that they had been on the road for a month and five days and were going to continue until they reached the coast.

Hockey Soft Job So Thinks Muzz Patrick

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—(CP).—To the average sport fan professional hockey seems to be a tough occupation but Murray Patrick finds it a rather easy way to earn a living. Perhaps it's because the rookie defenceman of New York Rangers has tried boxing and bicycle racing that he find the ice pursuit a sinecure. Both ventures wound up in injuries.

Only mark on Murray's handsome face is a split left eyebrow suffered in a six-day bicycle race in Montreal in 1937. He was pedalling 35 miles an hour down the straightaway and leaning forward to give partner Gerard Debaets a starting shove when forced to swerve. That spill on the pine boards required nine stitches and held up the race for half an hour.

Victoria-born Murray earlier had decided to follow a boxing career and was on the verge of accepting one of several professional offers when he had his nose broken in an amateur bout. The grief and expense that ensued before this breathing apparatus was adjusted properly changed his mind and hockey caught his attention.

Former Canadian amateur heavyweight champion, Patrick looked a trifle wistful as he said boxing skill was useless when fights start on the ice. A 200-pounder who knows how to slug, Murray admitted he couldn't beat an egg when punching on skates. As if lack of traction wasn't enough handicap, somebody always wraps himself around you and down you go, he said.

Murray, who signs his Christmas cards Muzz, played two years' minor hockey with Philadelphia Ramblers before making the jump to National League company. His older brother Lynn, a Ranger forward, surprised the experts by reaching the big time in his first professional year. The brothers room together on road trips.

TORONTO MAPLE LEAFS DEFEAT THREE SENIOR O.H.A. TEAMS

New Arena Is Opened In St Catharines

ST. CATHARINES, Dec. 21. — Abcut 3,700 thrilled fans crowded last night into the splendid new hockey rink—the Garden City Gardens—and saw Toronto Maple Leafs win by 8-2 from three O.H.A. senior squads representing St. Catharines, Niagara Falls, and Port Colborne.

It was the first time that a National Hockey League team had been seen in action on St. Kitt's ice.

Last night in the exhibition game that opened the new arena, Leafs outscored St. Catharines Chiefs by 2-0 in the first period. The big Leaguers beat Niagara Falls Brights by 4-1 in the second session, and then shaded Port Colborne Sailors by 2-1 in the final period.

Little Body Checking.

Play was generally fast and open, and there was little heavy body-checking, as all four squads of puck-chasers provided a pleasing spectacle for St. Catharines' happy citizens.

Horner and Parsons scored for the Leafs in the first period, Chamberlain, Drillon, Hamilton and Romnes added goals for Toronto against the Falls team, whose goal was netted by Tony Favone. Parsons netted his second goal of the night in the closing period, and Heron also tallied for the Leafs before Russ Walldriff registered for the Sailors in the last half-minute of play.

Amateur Goalies Shine.

Bucko McDonald made his debut with the Leafs last night and played a very sound game on defence. He also did quite a bit of attacking, but was outlucked on his sniping chances. Phil Stein subbed for Turk Broda as Leafs' goal-tender for the third period. The work of the three amateur tems' twine-tenders—Gordon of St. Catharines, Mowers of Niagara Falls, and Marsh of Port Colborne—was a real feature of the game. They turned back the best efforts of some of the N.H.L.'s crack marksmen time after time. It was announced that Detroit Red Wings will play the same three amateur teams here in another exhibition game next Tuesday.

Mutuel Boostings To Hurt Racing

DETROIT, Dec. 21.—(AP).—Judge Joseph A. Murphy, who resigned recently as director of racing at the Detroit fair grounds, said today that excessive racing in some communities and ill advised publicity threaten the future of the sport.

Murphy, one of the best known United States' turf officials, said stockholders in race tracks and owners of breeding farms and racing stables should "start a campaign of public relations to convince the public their race tracks are part of the civic life of the communities in which they operate."

"Racing operations are seeking trouble," Murphy said, "by permitting mutuel managers to broadcast stories of huge mutuel handles. They do not realize that millions of people in the United States believe these figures to be profits and not a custodianship fund to be prorated back to the public with a reasonable sum deducted for purses and stakes. The flaunting in the face of the public of tremendous mutuel handles and profits while 10,000,000 are unemployed is not healthy publicity."

Life Of Goal-Tender Akin to That of Jitterbug At Times

What does your favorite minder of the twine look like in action? During the course of a game a goal-tender assumes all kinds of positions and goes through a good many contortions that would bring applause from a gymnastic squad or a vaudeville troupe. He dives to one side, falls to the ice, shouts directions to his teammates, shoots the puck down the ice or into the corner, and last, and with the least pleasure, looks around, at times, to see the little black disc denting the strings behind him. Here are presented some scenes from the heat of various National League battles, showing each of the league's seven goalies caught in poses vigorous, ludicrous, active, passive and miscellaneous. Starting at the top left and reading from LEFT to RIGHT, we have Earl Robertson, Americans; Walter (Turk) Broda, Maple Leafs; Mike Karakas, Black Hawks; Claude Bourque (or is it Burke?), rookie with Canadiens; Frank Brimsek, Tiny Thompson's replacement in Boston; Dave Kerr, Rangers; and the veteran, and possibly the best of the lot, Tiny Thompson, Detroit Red Wings.

Hershey's Bears Whip Indians 2-1

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Dec. 21—(CP).—One opportunity to work into third place in their section was counted as lost to-day by Springfield's International-American Hockey League Indians. But another chance presents itself to-night.

One point behind New Haven Eagles, presently in third place in the Eastern division, the Indians dropped a 2-1 decision last night to Hershey Bears.

Hershey's victory over the Indians came on a third period goal by blonde Sammy McManus, after Adelard Lafrance gave the Springfield outfit the lead with a goal in the first period and Frost tied it up with a tally in the second period.

Henie Gets Blame As U.S. Skaters Turn Show-off Susies, Fancy Dans

NEW YORK, Dec. 21 — (A.P.).—Sonja Henie is undoubtedly a pretty girl and an accomplished skater, but at the same time the fair-haired ice queen seems to have turned United States skaters into a lot of show-off Susies and fancy Dans.

Before the Norse maid showed up in her skimpy costumes to do splits and whirls to spotlights and soft music, the average sould regarded skating as fun—a means of skimming over the ice with a minimum of effort.

Now it is a serious business. On the Rockefeller Centre pond they are out there day and night cutting didoes, and dressed up fit to kill. None has yet been seen wearing plain, everyday ice skating clothes and simply skating around and around the place as though it was a pleasure.

The skaters, ranging in age from about five to 65, go at their school figures and dipsy-doos as though a movie scout lurked behind every foot of the hedge surrounding the pond.

Some performers look as though they could do with a lesson or two in plain round-and-round skating. They wobble badly on the fancy stuff. As they pirouette they leave something to be desired, and don't resemble Sonja Henie except in their earnestness of effort. Probably they never will.

Bruin Defence Beats Amerks 3-0 For Brimsek's 6th Shutout; Rangers Trim Detroit By 6-2

By Jack Calder
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

They may have to think up some excuse other than a strong supporting defence for what young Frankie Brimsek is doing to the sharpshooters of the National Hockey League.

Boston Bruins present a big, close-knit defence in front of sad-eyed Frankie, the rookie who was dropped into the difficult shoes of Tiny Thompson when the veteran goaltender was sold to Detroit. But it isn't a defence that tends strictly to its knitting either, and the kid from Minnesota has had something besides a big stick, big pads and big breaks.

Last night at Boston the defence did enough rushing to score all the goals when the Bruins defeated New York Yankees 3-0, bringing Brimsek his third straight shutout and his sixth in seven games. Because his protectors were out hunting, Brimsek had to be especially good, and about 10 of the 23 shots he stopped were conceded difficult. The crowd of 13,000 realizing finally that Thompson wasn't an immovable necessity in Boston's goal, gave the youngster a warm reception.

Detroit Loses 6-2.

Meanwhile Thompson had to weather another storm while the Rangers were trimming Detroit 6-2 at New York, rubbing it into the Red Wings from the time Mac Colville opened the scoring after a minute's play. The results left Boston six points ahead of the second-place Rangers, the Americans two points farther back and Detroit tied for last place with Montreal.

Brimsek was still 90 per cent of the news as he recorded his second sequence of three straight shutouts. Americans used five forwards through parts of every period and Brimsek turned back everything.

Crawford Starts It.

Johnny Crawford, recruit defenceman, started the Bruins on the way to their 12th victory in 15 starts by scoring in the first period. Cooney Weiland helped on the other goals, both in the third, the first by Busher Hollett, and the other by Eddie Shore, old warhorse of the blue-line, who scored for the first time this season.

George Allen, brought up from Rangers' International - American League farm club at Philadelphia, made good in his first big-league start by scoring twice before the 7,500 fans at Madison Square Garden. Mac Colville and Alex Shibicky had given the Blueshirts a 2-0 advantage when he got his first goal. After Alex. Motter had tallied for Detroit and Neil Colville for Rangers, he boosted the lead to 4-1 in the third, then helped in his club's final goal, by Cecil Dillon.

Syd Howe lessened the Red Wings' humiliation with a goal a minute from the finish. Detroit's defence, which lost Bucko McDonald through a sale to Toronto this week, was feeble throughout.

McDonald made his first appearance with the Leafs at St. Catharines, in an exhibition in which Toronto defeated three Ontario Hockey Association clubs 8-2 to open the new Garden City Gardens. The Leafs played St. Catharines, Niagara Falls, and Port Colborne for one period each.

Earning Salary Of $25 Week Store Manager In Month Banked To His Account $329

Evidence that during the period from November 15 to December 12 of this year while Robert Nathan Herman was earning a salary of $25 a week, as manager of the Pattenick store here, he had given Harold Stevens, assistant manager, sums ranging from $2 to $40 and totalling $329 to be deposited in Herman's personal account in the Bank of Toronto featured Tuesday afternoon's session of the preliminary inquiry before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., into the arson charge against Herman arising out of last week's fire in the Pattenick store.

When the court adjourned at 6 o'clock until Wednesday morning the crown's case had not been nearly completed. It looked for a moment or two late in the session as if the defence might consent to committal for trial on the evidence already heard but while A. J. Skeans, defence counsel, was willing to agree to his client being bailed for trial, he was not ready to consent to committal and Crown Attorney McElderry refused to consent to bailment for trial.

"I cannot do anything about it if you fail to agree," pointed out Magistrate Langley.

Chief Gimblett returned to the witness box when the afternoon session opened and Crown Attorney McElderry resumed his examination.

"When did you see Herman after the fire?" asked Mr. McElderry.

"About 10 or 15 minutes after. Herman told me he had some money down there. This conversation took place up in the store. I told him he couldn't go down in the basement then because I had just hawked out two or three firemen overcome by smoke," said the witness.

Looked For Money

Later, he said, Herman went down into the cellar and the Chief's son went with him to where he said the money was. Afterward Herman had told witness that the money had been burned. He didn't say how much money.

Sometime after he saw Herman and Stevens, the assistant manager, counting some money and said to Herman, "I though you told me that money was all burned," and Herman replied that that was not the money he had been talking about but that was Monday's receipts.

Said $306 Burned

The next day Herman said he had hidden Saturday's receipts downstairs on Saturday night. He mentioned $306 as the sum he had hidden.

Chief Gimblett said he inspected the place with Inspector Saville on the morning of Tuesday, December 14th about 9.30 o'clock. Herman was there.

They checked the thing and tried to find the origin of the fire. Later in the afternoon Herman had said that he had placed the money among the boxes on the north wall and that night the accused had pointed out the exact spot where he said the money had been hidden. Fireman Virgil Carr was present at the time.

Chief Gimblett said that at the spot where Herman had said the money had been put the boxes had only been burned over the ends. The fire was more pronounced in the centre.

The witness said there was no signs of any money or any burned money. Herman had said the money was in a bag but did not mention the denomination of the bills.

"What do you say as to any residue of money being there," asked Mr McElderry.

"I don't believe there was ever any money there," replied the witness, who explained that in his experience he had never known money to be entirely consumed by fire. Witness said there was very little debris on the shelf examined and no trace of money.

In your opinion as a fire chief how would you describe the origin of the fire?

That's pretty hard. I don't think that was an ordinary fire, one that broke out through some one's carelessness.

Do you think it was from accident?

No, I don't think it was from accident.

The fire couldn't spread in the time it did unless it had some outside agency to get it going as it did.

Familiar With Property

Cross-examined by Mr. Skeans, Chief Gimblett said he was familiar with the property and the present occupants had been there for two years. Before that the Peterborough Hardware Company had occupied the store.

"Would there be any oil in the basement when the Peterborough Hardware Company was there?

There was oil kept in the east end of the building, the Chief said.

Chief Gimblett said that he could not offhand say when he had made his last inspection of the store when the Peterborough Hardware Company were tenants.

Mr. Skeans asked as to paints, lacquer, turpentine and naptha kept in the cellar during the hardware company's regime and the Chief agreed that all but naptha was kept there.

"There is a possibility that some of that stuff had been spilled from time to time?" asked Mr. Skeans.

"Yes," replied the witness.

"What about the wiring?"

"From my knowledge the wiring there was in first class condition," replied the witness, who said the cards of the fire department inspectors would show any defects that had been found.

Mr. Skeans asked that these cards should be produced.

Chief Gimblett said that he had not discussed the possibility of defective wiring starting the fire with any one, because he did not think it was necessary.

"To what extent did you investigate the theory of spontaneous combustion?"

"I examined the debris."

Mr. Skeans asked the witness to discuss the nature of spontaneous combustion and Chief Gimblett said it was due to certain vegetable oils becoming over-heated. Linseed oil was mentioned as one of the oils that would cause spontaneous combustion. Turpentine would also do so under certain atmospheric conditions.

Long Cross Examination

Mr. Skeans put the witness through an exhaustive cross-examination, particularly in regard to some chalk near the foot of the stairs. Chief Gimblett said that he first noticed the chalk after he had stepped into it and saw it on his boot.

"I want you to be particular about this," said the defence counsel, "was the chalk in the same position when you last saw it as it was on the night of the fire?"

"Yes," replied the witness.

Chief Gimblett said that the goods shown in the picture put in as an exhibit were not arranged exactly the same way as they were on the night of the fire because in the meantime a complete inventory of the stock had been taken. The photograph, he said, had been taken in order to secure a record of the appearance of the basement after the fire.

Mr. Skeans questioned the witness closely as to his statement that carbon monoxide was present at the time of the fire.

Chief Gimblett said that carbon monoxide was present always in smoke and he judged of its volume by the effect upon the firemen.

Fire department inspection cards were produced by Chief Gimblett showing that the Pattenick store had been inspected periodically, the last inspection having been made in October of this year and that no defects in the wiring had been discovered.

Chief Gimblett was in the witness box for three hours.

Fail To Find Money.

George Gimblett, Jr., city fireman, said the fire brigade arrived at the scene of the blaze at approximately 6.21 o'clock and forced an entrance by breaking out the south door.

Witness said that Chief Gimblett told him to go down stairs with Herman while the latter got his money. When they had done so he accompanied Herman to the centre of the aisle on the north side. Herman said that the money had been hid near the wool. They had searched for some time and then Herman had said that posibly the money was burned. Herman also had said that perhaps his assistant would know better than he did where the money had been put.

Did you see any indication of money being burned there? asked the Crown Attorney.

"No, I did not," replied the witness.

"Had any one a chance to get down into the cellar before Herman went down?"

"I don't think so. Three or four of our fellows got down to the bottom of the stairs but could get no further."

To Mr. Skeans the witness said he did not see Stevens, Herman's assistant, at that time.

They found no money or any bags containing money, Firemen Gimblett stated.

Virgil Carr, member of fire department, visited the Pattenick store the night after the fire and Chief Gimblett, Herman and the witness had gone to the basement to look for some money and Herman had pointed to a spot on a shelf on the north wall as the place where he had the money. The goods there had not been burned and the witness said that if any money had been put there it would have still been there. Herman could not find any money there nor could the witness but accused had been positive that was where he had left the money.

Assistant Manager Testifies

Harold Stevens, assistant manager of the Pattenick store, said that he had looked after the furnace on the day of the fire. He had started a fire in the morning which had been allowed to die out by 10 o'clock and right after dinner he had followed the same procedure. The wood he had put in then would not last until closing time, witness said. He had taken no ashes out of the furnace that day.

Stevens told of the events that took place before the staff left on the evening of the fire. Herman had locked the store door from the inside at 5.35, the witness said. He, Stevens, had gone down into the basement twice after that. The first time was for the purpose of hiding the day's receipts which were handed him by Herman and which the witness said were put by him into a cardboard box in the basement containing woollen sweaters. This money, witness said, had been recovered the day after the fire where he had left it.

"Did Herman ever tell you about his putting money in the basement.

"I saw him take some down several times on the Saturday before the fire," witness replied.

Stevens said that he and Herman had left the store at four minutes to 6 o'clock, the girl employees leaving at the same time. Herman had locked the door and the two men had walked up George street together. It was striking 6 o'clock as they passed Hunter street, the witness said and it was about six minutes after 6 when Stevens had parted from Herman in front of Herman's home at 185 London street and had gone on to his own home on Dublin street. About 6.26 or 6.27 he was notified by telephone of the fire in the store and he had notified Herman and the two of them had gone down to the store together.

No Signs Of Fire

The witness said that before leaving the store he had made a second trip to the basement to carry down the store sweepings. There were no signs of fire then nor did he feel any heat from the furnace.

Stevens said that he had asked Herman about the money the accused had hid in the basement and Herman had said that the money was burned.

"What banking business did you do for Herman on his own account?" asked the Crown Attorney.

"He'd hand me several bills and ask me to take the money up to the Bank of Toronto and deposit it in his account," said the witness.

"How often would this happen?"

"At least twice a week."

Identifies Slips

Witness identified eleven deposit slips which he said he had filled out in depositing sums of money handed him by Herman. The first was made out on November 15 for $17 and the others were November 17—$24; November 19—$33; November 22—$27; November 25—$2; November 28—$36; November 30—$36; December 2—$30; December 6—$37; December 10—$12 and December 12—$35. In addition there was another deposit slip, dated December 5, for $40 which Stevens said he could not exactly remember but which must have been made by him as it contained his signature.

In every case the money had been given him by Herman in the form of cash.

"Where did he get that money?" asked Mr. McElderry.

"I don't think he ever took it out of the till to give to me," Stevens answered. "He either had the money in his hand or took it out of his pocket."

Wouldn't Look So Good

"Do you remember having a conversation with Herman on December 14 while you were having a cup of chocolate?"

"Yes."

"What did Herman say on that occasion?"

"He said things would not look so good for him when the books were looked over."

Crown Attorney McElderry questioned the witness as to a customer named Ralph Solerow and Stevens said that he bought goods regularly from the Pattenick store over a period of months. Solerow had transacted his business with witness on several occasions but usually saw Herman. Solerow paid by cheque on the Dominion Bank.

Cross-examination of Stevens by Mr. Skeans was left over until Wednesday morning's session.

Heroic Operator Saves Town

Refusing to leave her switchboard, despite the fact that she was being menaced by flames less than 10 feet away, Florence Andrews, 20-year-old telephone operator, of Thornbury, Ont., stuck to her post and put through call after call warning sleeping Thornbury residents that the town was in danger of being burned to the ground. The heroic action of Miss Andrews is credited with saving the town from the flames, which gutted six buildings, including the Bell Telephone office, shown ABOVE, in which Miss Andrews stayed until the last possible moment.

Havelock Sunday School Concert Proves Attractive Event

HAVELOCK, Dec. 21.—An attendance of close to one hundred were present Monday evening in the basement of St. John's Anglican Church for the annual Sunday school Christmas concert. Virgin Timber Being Cut Near Chemong

Some of the largest trees ever to be felled in this district are going down to the rolling cry of "T-I-M-B-E-R-R!" these days at Chemong.

Trees 80, 90, even a hundred feet high are being felled by workers from the Peterborough Fuel and Transfer company on property belonging to the Kelly estate at Chemong. One tree that contained 1,500 feet of lumber was brought to the ground the other day. Trees that will find use as telephone poles, and that are as high as 90 feet are falling to the axe.

Most of them are pine, cedar and hemlock, although there are a few scattered oaks among them. It is all part of a plan to thin out the extensive bush so that younger trees may grow better.

J. E. Gregson, manager of the Peterborough Fuel and Transfer company, in charge of operations, explained that the bush is becoming so thick young trees are in danger of becoming stunted because so little sunshine reaches them. When a tree reaches a certain age its roots are no longer able to supply it with enough nourishment to keep it sturdy and deterioration commences, he said. "Why I could show you trees there as big around as a dining room table that are lying on the ground, rotted," he said. When they do not get enough nourishment they become hollow and useless. Then again their extreme size hampers growth of new trees. For those reasons the lumber is being sold to the Peterborough Lumber company. "These are some of the finest pine ever to be taken from a bush in this district," said Mr. Gregson.

Month In Jail For Taking Car

One month in jail was the penalty imposed by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning on James Nicholson, who pleaded guilty to theft of the use of an automobile and John Woodcock who had previously entered a plea of guilty to a vagrancy charge.

The two cases arose out of the theft of Vincent Eastwood's motor car from in front of the city building on December 15th.

Chief Newhall told the court that the two boys had been together and had taken the Eastwood car and driven to Whitby. Near Brooklin, as they were on their way home by Highway No. 7 they ran the machine into the ditch. The car was not damaged.

"It was one of those crazy notions," Chief Newhall stated. He added that Nicholson is at present on parole.

Turkey Prices Take Drop

Prima donna turkeys primed for the Christmas trade lined up in long rows for inspection at this morning's mid-week market, and for all their trimness and plumpness they had little chance to high hat the buying public.

They monopolized the limelight at prices that opened around 28 and 29 cents, moved down to 25 cents, the general price, and were inclined to recede further to 24 cents and down even to 22 cents, depending largely on the element of quality.

Most of the producers were quoting 25 cents for hen turkeys and 23 cents for gobblers. One George Street merchant reported that he had bought twelve top grade birds from a Douro farmer at 24 cents a pound. Presumably they were for distribution among his employees.

Geese were mostly 20 cents a pound with some quotations at 19 cents. Some of them ranged in weight from 15 to 18 pounds. Chickens averaged 20 cents. A farmer from Port Hope area had an attractive showing of Barred Rock capons at 23 cents. Eggs were 30 to 33 cents. Nobody paid much attention to the general run of vegetables. Butter was omitted from the poultry-filled picture, eggs were just an afterthought, and potatoes were nowhere at all.

The weather was ideal for Christmas week, but business lacked the briskness which is probably tuning up for Saturday.

Alderman Bradburn Seeking Re-election

Alderman Herbert Bradburn told the Examiner to-day he would be a candidate for re-election to the Council when the nominations are listed on Friday night.

"If the people want me to carry on I shall be glad to do so," Alderman Bradburn said. "I didn't make up my mind until yesterday. I found the experience in the Council to be pleasant this year, and I feel like offering my services to the ratepayers again."

Alderman Bradburn was elected to one of the one-year terms that bloomed last year. Alderman McCannan was another. According to a remark by Alderman Gordon the other night he is going to get out of the chairmanship of the legal committee, and for next year he is going to nominate Ald. Bradburn if he is returned to the Council.

Trevor Kincaid Outstanding World Scientist

"Stop the presses, the President has been assasinated! Garfield has been shot." Those were the words which a small boy shouted excitedly along the dusty main street of Peterborough, Ontario, a long time ago. "The President is dead."

Today that small boy is the kindly unassuming professor that students know as Dr. Trevor Kincaid, third son of the late Dr. R. Kincaid, who was for many years a physician in Peterborough. Dr. Trevor Kincaid is now a world famous scientist and head of the zoology department of the University of Washington.

"Outstanding Alumnus"

Dr. Kincaid likes to lean back in his chair in Johnson hall and recall childhood memories of the days when he and his brothers and sisters installed a dilapidated hand press in an old red barn, and turned out a paper that was not only read but (and he emphasizes the word proudly) bought by 200 of Peterborough's leading citizens.

They called it the "Peterborough Star," and the price was one cent. The little paper's first big scoop was the story of President Garfield's assassination.

Proclaimed this year in a citation by the University Alumni association as "an outstanding living alumnus, distinguished for service over a period of years since his graduation," Dr. Kincaid has been interested in his life work, the study of natural history, since childhood. At the time he entered the University in 1894 he had a collection of 60,000 insects and he sent more than 100,000 specimens to Eastern scientists for classification.

Had $12 On Campus

Impressed by his industrious research, these scientists could not believe that their young colleague was a mere boy and often addressed their letters to him "professor." And it was this mistaken title of respect that gave the earnest young hobbyist his first inventive to become an educator.

He left his Olympia home (his family had moved from Ontario when he was 17) and arrived on the University campus with $12 in two separate pockets of his trousers. One lone dollar had been separated carefully from its fellows to pay his return boat fare to Olympia in case his University plans proved unsuccessful.

The young scientist soon was appointed to the University's faculty and promptly made the world his laboratory. He went "bug-hunting" to Alaska's Pribolof islands, to Bermuda, and to Russia and Japan.

"Father Of Oyster"

Today, his investigation of the Japanese oyster industry (which laid the foundation for that industry in this state) have earned him the title of the "father of the Washington oyster industry."

And yet after scientific adventures the world over, he likes to recall "the most thrilling moment of my life"—the day he ran breathlessly into a little red barn carrying to the waiting "presses" the sad but important news of a president's death.

J. Frank Heffernan Dies In New York

Old time hockey fans and his host of friends generally in Peterborough will be shocked to learn of the sudden death in New York this morning from a heart attack of J. Frank Heffernan, former Peterborough hockey star who made a name for himself both in amateur and professional hockey.

Mr. Heffernan had been living in Warren, Pa., and was in New York on business.

He began his hockey career with the Peterborough juniors and afterwards was a star with Ottawa College. Later he moved to Toronto where he starred on the defence of the T.R. and A.A. team when that aggregation won the senior honors in 1913-14. Afterward he was with the Toronto professionals and for a time was a part-owner of the Toronto franchise in the N.H.L.

He was the son of the late Patrick Heffernan and Mary Bolin of Peterborough. Surviving are his widow and two sons James Francis and Edward of Warren, Pa., two sisters, Mrs. John Carroll, Toronto and Miss Margaret Heffernan of Peterborough, and two brothers, W. Joseph Heffernan, Rochester, N.Y and Herbert Heffernan, New York.

The funeral will be held in Peterborough but the date has not yet been fixed.

Unusual Fox

In all his 35 years of hunting experience Roland McCauley, of Warsaw, has never before seen a fox to equal the one which he is holding up in this picture. It is the rare, expensive silver black cross fox, and it was shot last week by Mr. McCauley and Frank Lonsberry—their 17th for this season. Last year they bagged 37 of them. The unusual cross in black on the fur, running across the neck and down the back, is quite evident in the photograph.

Lack Of Consistency Board Is Told In Dealing With Health Bylaw

"I shall have to be a minority of one," said Alderman Dutton in his usually precise manner, in disagreeing with the other members of the Board of Health Tuesday afternoon on a question of compelling all farmers selling meat on the market to conform with the bylaw.

"It is a matter of consistency, and not that I have anything against the farmers," he continued. "We have just had a bylaw passed applying to restaurants and refreshment booths. You have new regulations regarding the pasteurizing of milk, you have inspection of bakeries, and certainly I approve of that if it were for no other reason than that it should be to our own credit to pass any municipal inspection. Here, you have regulations about the handling of meat by producers and you are closing your eye to the whole thing.

"I don't think it is fair to men like Mr. Gill and Mullen and Robert Dale and some others that they should comply with this regulation, but that others need not do so."

Sanitary Inspector MacPherson said there are twelve vendors of meat at the market and seven of them have complied with the bylaw requiring certain improvements to their premises where cattle, lambs and hogs are killed.

Alderman McCannan said that farmers killed livestock for the market only during the winter months, and Mayor Hamilton commented that he couldn't see his way clear to putting any more restrictions on farmers.

"All I am trying to say is that you are not consistent," Alderman Dutton added.

60TH ANNIVERSARY

Messrs. D. Belleghem and Sons, furniture dealers and funeral directors, 188-190 Hunter street west, are observing their 60th anniversary of continuous service. This business is nearly 100 years old, and was taken over by the late Daniel Belleghem in December, 1878, having been formerly operated by the late Charles Tanner. There have been many decided changes during that time as some old photographs in the possession of Walter T. Belleghem indicate.

SEVEN DWARFS

Gordon Munro of the Peterborough Lumber Company has completed a window display at the office on Hunter street that is stopping traffic. The window shows Dopey and his six fellow dwarfs in typical poses on a white ground, with Santa Claus in the background. Other small characters complete the picture. School children have paraded steadily to the window since it was prepared a few days ago.

A TRAFFIC MISHAP.

Attempting to avoid striking a garbage wagon on Water street near the Inverlea street intersection Tuesday evening, John Patte, 813 Water street, applied his brakes and his car slid into a parked automobile owned by Ford Turner and standing in front of the Turner residence. Both cars were damaged by the impact. The garbage wagon was in charge of Oliver Kelly, 714 Water street.

CHRISTMAS CAROLS

The Christmas spirit was a long time coming and it had merchants worried for a while, but it certainly has arrived in full force now. The newest wrinkle to business taking profits from Christmas sentiment is in the commercial electric victrolas that are in most restaurants in the city. For five cents you may hear any of your favorite Christmas carols, sung by your favorite tenor.

UNUSUAL DECORATION.

You can trust Reg. Turner to come out with a new idea even in the matter of Christmas decorations. On the lawn of the home at Water and McDonnel, occupied by Mr. Turner and his brother, J. J. Turner, there is at present a miniature ice palace, built with square blocks of ice and with a background of decorated Christmas trees. In front is an icy lady, and the whole effect is very striking, especially when the ice palace is illuminated at night by a spot light.

Light Fingered Gentry are Busy Helping Themselves In Stores

THE light-fingered gentry is with us again this Christmas season, merchants report. Gloves, stockings, toys, candies, even babies' shoes are disappearing from counters of nearly every store in town—although not with total success, for several have been caught in the act.

Every year at this time clerks are expected to keep an eagle eye for petty thieves who lessen profits considerably. "Variety" types of stores suffer greatest loss because of the large numbers of counters they contain and the small size of a majority of the articles they sell. For naturally it is the small article that is taken most often. In the toy departments children often take toys, according to Charles Saunders, manager of Richard Hall Company. He does not blame them entirely, says most are too young to know they are doing wrong.

Every year, and this year is no exception, casualties among the toys in stores are extremely high, Mr. Saunders said. Children and grown-ups too, pick up any toy that catches their fancy and try to find out just how it works. In such fashion are many broken, particularly among the mechanical toys. They are set to one side and at Christmas underprivileged children will reap the benefit. Because any day now those toys will be sent to the Fire Department for repair and distribution. Mr. Saunders said today he has more than two boxes full of slightly damaged toys ready to go to the firemen.

Liddell Given Clear Title To His Home

Elmer Liddell was given a clear title to his home on Armour Road Tuesday afternoon on the order of Mr. Justice Godfrey, to wind up an action that has been seesawing in and out of the courts since 1932.

"I have gone to a lot of trouble so that you would not lose your home," said His Lordship as he gave judgment at five o'clock. "The City of Peterborough has been generous with you, they do not ask for the taxes which the Court of Revision threw off but the taxes for 1934 to 38 must be paid."

Previously Emmett F. Sheehy, counsel for Liddell had paid into the court certain monies belonging to the plaintiff, and Liddell added more to make up the required total of $350. Mr. Sheehy also produced the deed.

Continuing to address Mr. and Mrs Liddell, Justice Godfrey said: "Mr. Sheehy has recognized that you are poor people and has done an excellent piece of work for you. I am setting his fees at $75 and if you have the money with you pay him at once." The sum was paid.

"I am endorsing this deed to Mr. and Mrs. Liddell and to Mary Jane Wood, mother of Mrs Liddell as joint owners, and I want you Mr. Huycke to get this deed out tomorrow without any charge for registration. There will be no costs in this case," he added.

"I think I am a better tax collector than the regular one," said the Justice.

"I must thank you Mr. Huycke and you Mr. Sheehy for the fine way you have cooperated in straightening out this case," said the Judge. He closed the case by remarking to the plaintiff Liddell: "Your taxes are now paid up to date including 1938, and you have your home back. Don't let those taxes get in arrears again."

Back in 1933 application was made by Liddell to the Court of Revision for remission of taxes due in 1932 and previous In 1934 the court gave judgment in his favor by remitting the 1932 taxes In the case yesterday the city solicitor, Wilfred Huycke, contended that the Court of Revision had exceeded its authority in granting the application, as application for any remission must be made the same year the levy is made.

Following the action of the Court in 1934, the City Council instructed the treasurer to return to the city records the taxes which had been wrongfully remitted, and in the course of time the property owned by Liddell was sold for non payment of taxes. Liddell did not vacate and the city has received no taxes or rent up to this month. Acting for Mr. Liddell Emmett F. Sheehy sought to have the sale set aside and the property returned to Liddell claiming that the city had no right to interfere with the decision of the Court of Revision.

Punch Board Racket Is In Full Swing Pre-Christmas Season

THE pre-Christmas punch board racket has arrived in the the city once more. If you want to get yourself a glass-wrapped bundle of Christmas cheer any number of downtown shops and stores will accommodate you, will lift a punch board from beneath the counter.

For these punch boards have a different prize than at other seasons in the year. Other times you pay your quarter, take your chance, pray for good luck, all for a box of chocolates or a sum of money. But there's a new twist to it now. You follow the same procedure and if you have been lucky or have prayed hard enough you come away with a bottle of liquor—it may be a pint or a quart. Not alone downtown are these Christmas punches—no pun intended — being offered. The larger factories all have in them two or three workers who will sell you a chance if you want it.

Matron-Nurse Is Suggested

"There is a growing discontent at the cost of nursing services," one of the members of the Board of Health remarked at Tuesday afternoon's meeting, "and in the long run that condition will take care of itself."

The Board is considering the appointment of a nurse who would be competent to act as matron, assume full charge of the institution. Dr. G. M. Fraser said that the nurse in charge of the one patient now at the Queen Mary Hospital was actually on duty 24 hours in the day, "and it won't be long that we can still get nurses to work 12-hour shifts when the practice is now the 8-hour shift."

Appointment of a matron-nurse will be dealt with at an early meeting of the Board.

Alderman Stocker presented a list of the names of persons who have not paid their Isolation Hospital bills for the last six years.

"I think the ratepayers expect us to see that some real effort is made to collect this money," Alderman Stocker said, "and I am recommending that we put these accounts in the hands of a collecting agency. Why should these people be able to get away with debt for necessary hospital treatment?"

The Board supported Alderman Stocker in this proposal, and a real effort is going to be made to "shake down" the delinquents who received hospital service from the city and have since declined to pay for it.

Struck By Bus Man Dies 3 Months Later

Almost three months after he had been crushed beneath the wheels of a city bus, Roland H. Ferguson, 543 Park street north, died in Nicholls Hospital this morning following an operation. An inquest will be held to-night, Dr. H. N. Young, coroner, said.

It was on September 30, late in the afternoon, that Ferguson came into collision with a bus at the corner of Aylmer and Brock streets. He wa sriding a bicycle east on Brock street and was pinned beneath the wheels of the bus when he attempted to turn on to Aylmer street. He was removed to Nicholls Hospital in a critical condition and has been there since that time.

Fifty-two years old, he had been a decorator in Peterborough for the past 26 years, having learned his trade with Herb Vance. He was born in Manvers township, son of the late John and Margaret Ferguson, and had lived in this district all his life, where he was well known and highly respected.

He leaves his wife and one daughter, Mrs. Elwood Doxsee, Hunter street. Four brothers, Lewis and Clarence Ferguson of Smith township, Harry of Otonabee and Vernon of Peterborough, also survive.

The funeral announcement will be made later.

Family Made Sick By Gas Fumes

Helen and Jean Dalgleish, 139 Romaine Street, aged 6 and 4 respectively, had completely recovered to-day from the effects of coke gas that came close to asphyxiating the entire family early on Monday morning.

Shortly after four o'clock on Monday morning Helen, the older of the two children, awoke and was very ill. Her cries aroused the other members of the family, who were all suffering from the effects of the gas. Both of the children were quite sick to their stomachs, and the house was filled with the deadly gas.

The father, Donald Dalgleish, a salesman for Stock's Bread, promptly aired the house and called Dr. Herbert N. Young, who treated the husband, his wife and the two children. The gas was found to be escaping from a coal heater, and the defect was soon corrected.

It is believed that if the child had not awakened from the illness, the entire family would have been overcome.

CHAPTER 31.

MR. WORTHINGTON GURLEY, almost 18, was terribly embarrassed with himself.

He was acutely happy because he felt—indeed, he knew, positively—that true love had come to him. But he was also embarrassed because of what he felt might be a sad act of disloyalty.

Sara Sue Davis had been so nice to him. She was so beautiful, or had been. He had fancied himself in love with Sara Sue. It simply had not occurred to him, he realized now, that Mrs. Davis was a matron, quite old. Twenty-three is well past maturity. People could even mistake her for his mother, maybe Well, maybe not hardly that, but almost.

Nevertheless he had paid serious court to her, True, he had not actually told Sara Sue of his love, nor asked to kiss her as he had wanted. But he had set out to lick big Bob Towne at the art of love making, and he hadn't been doing so badly either. He had taken Sara Sue to the freshman ball, which was something, yeah man!

But she had also stood him up this morning. Made a date to meet him in the Montrose Plunge, and then never showed up. That ought to absolve him of a lot of obligation to her, oughtn't it?

He decided to go over and see her any way. He owed her a chance to explain,

She greeted him cordially. "How are you, Worthington?" But she did not offe ra very explicit reason for failing to meet him at the Pluge. She did, however, mention something else that thrilled him. "Oh, I've got a compliment for you, Worthington! The nicest thing! Do you happen to remember that girl you swam with in the pool this morning, when I couldn't get there? The one Helen McKean introduced you to? Marcia d'Alaine? Well, Marcia was here this afternoon, and she said the nicest things about you! She was deeply impressed by you."

"Was she, Sara Sue? Honest?"

She was, honest, it seems. Sara Sue told him exactly what Marcia had said. He left the Davis cottage presently, whistling and dreaming It was nearly 8 p.m. He'd just go over to the dormitory office and 'phone Marcia d'Alaine and see what she was doing. Not ask her for a date, but just talk a little. Or maybe just ask if he could run by a few minutes and take her over to the drug store or something. Sara Sue, counsel in romance, had told him he ought to follow up a pleasant contact like that, because Marcia came from a fine old southern family and all.

He met big Bob Towne coming across the campus, yodelling. Bob stopped singing long enough to greet him.

"Button, slime, you low-down, contemptible—!"

Mr. Gurley gave the freshman salute. They understood each other.

"Say, Bob," Worthington then blurted, impulsively, "I was just going to look for you! Say I—gosh! Listen, Bob—you can have Sara Sue! I mean, I'm not forgetting the talk you gave me, but I'm withdrawing from the race."

Now this really was important to Mr. Robert Towne. He became serious, and talked with the freshman at some length. When they departed they shook hands like old soldiers meeting at Gettysburg, enmities forgotten. Yep, Bob had met the d'Alaine girl. "Sweet little number, slime; you are to be complimented on your choice. Lemme knew if I can help you any time." Whereupon Mr. Robert Towne proceeded on toward the Davis cottage, yodelling even louder than before.

On the inspiration of the moment, however, he cut by the Autry House and bought a two-pound box of chocolates. Not the cheap kind, but the kind that costs a dollar and a half a pound, and is in a box that looks like five dollars a pound. He went on to Sara Sue's with the box under his arm—and, lo, if Mr. T. J. Sanders wasn't just getting out of his car at the curb, and lo, if he, too, wasn't carrying a box!

But T. J.'s box was larger than Bob's. Bob made some effort to drop his down behind his leg casually, then realized it was too large to hide. Anyhow, he knew instantly that T. J.'s held flowers.

"How are you, Towne?" T. J. greeted. but didn't really wish to know, Bob felt.

"Tops. How're you doing?"

"Swell. Looks like we're headed for the same place," T. J. smiled.

"Looks like it. Well, come on."

Now the fact is, neither young man had an actual date, but neither would let the other suspect it. Each had just happened by, hoping for a chance to visit with Sara Sue and bringing a gift to soften her heart. Confidence brought them together outside. Coincidence in hour, in yearning, in desire. Neither could—or would—back down now. The conversational atmosphere was a bit chilly out here. "Come on in," suggested Bob, sensibly.

"Oh, boys!" Sara Sue greeted them together, with enthusiasm. "How ni-i-ice!"

How nice, indeed! Two rather handsome young men. Two young men aggressively in love with her. Two suitors bearing gifts. How nice, indeed—from her viewpoint!

For the life of him Bob Towne couldn't think of any way to get rid of T. J. Sanders. And T. J. couldn't think of a thing to do about Bob. One doesn't walk off a field of battle and let an enemy take charge—either in war or in love.

Some more students were there, several more in fact, so Sara Sue tactfully led her personal callers into her private office. It was cozy in there. And they wouldn't be disturbed by the singing, laughing and talking in the huge living room.

She put T.J.'s flowers in a big vase, admiring them as they deserved.

She talked brightly, with animation. She ate a piece or two of Bob's candy—"They're delicious, Bob! I'm so grateful To both of you. You are such thoughtful friends. And how nice that you came together. Let's play the new game, Ching Chow checkers. Want to? Three can play."

They didn't want to, but then you have to do something when you are stymied this way. You can't go off and leave your rival with your girl in her private office.

"Sure, Sara Sue, let's play the game!" T. J.'s humor began to take charge presently, and he managed to have a pretty good time.

For one thing, he accepted Sara Sue's offer of Bob's candy. It was good candy. The expensive kind, a dollar and a half a pound.

"I'm so sorry you are in training and can't eat any, Bob!" Sara Sue lamented. "I'll bet you are glad when football season is done."

"Yeah, shame you can't have a piece, Towne," T. J. agreed, taking a third caramel. The caramels were quite soft and chewy, deliciously flavored. "These creams are excellent, too. Did you try any of the creams, Sara Sue? Whose play?"

Time marched on, as they say. But it wasn't in any hurry this evening.

Bob Towne, normally the university's best conversationalist, seemed peculiarly to be without anything to say. His normal verve and good-natured outlook seemed to be dulled. He was (apparently) deeply concentrated in the new marble game. It seems that you move marbles from hole to hole over a small board. You jump your competitor's marbles. You move diagonally and—

But T. J. was having better luck at Ching Chow checkers. Or better skill.

"Wonderful! Marvelous, T. J.!" Sara Sue laughed gleefully when he made a sudden run of plays. "You are clever at games, aren't you?"

"Luck," mumbled T. J. modestly, reaching for more candy.

Now high-grade chocolate candy is rather heavy That is, it comes in concentrated form, so that a great bulk. There are now known statistics on just how much chocolate candy a young man can eat during one evening, but it would seem that a good-sized, healthy young man could consume quite a few pieces—conceivably more than a pound, with help from a girl.

Toward 10 o'clok T. J. realized he didn't actually want any more candy. But the matter had become a sort of secondary game with him by then. Flowers will last five or six days. And remand one of their giver. Nobody can eat flowers. But candy—he had another piece. He chuckled a little, Mr. T. J. Sanders appreciated the finer things of life. He chuckled again. The marshmallow-pecans are good, too.

When the box was down to two pieces, he held off. Interest in the checker game was rather high now, anyway. Sara Sue was bent over the board—her hair catches points like tiny stars, when she leans near you—and her soft voice was rather entrancing. Individually and privately the young men noted that the candy was virtually exhausted. "Whose move? It's an absorbing game, isn't it?"

DOROTHY DIX

Women Should Have The Right To Pick Their Own Husbands, And If They Did There Would Be More Happiness And Fewer Divorces

DEAR MISS DIX—What do you think of the wisdom of having women propose marriage to men? Some of the finest women I know are unmarried because they adhered to the old conventionality of waiting for men to ask them to be their wives. Sometimes men are bashful. Sometimes they are just stupid and don't see the charming women who are right under their eyes, and I believe that if women could do the proposing as well as men many fine people who are now single would be happily married. I am a man and I would like to hear a woman's reaction to this problem. C. E. K.

ANSWER:

There is no other one thing in the world that women crave so much as the privilege of selecting their husbands in a frank, honest, open and aboveboard manner instead of having to do it in the sneaky, underhanded way they do now.

But, courageous as they are about most things, women are cowards about breaking conventions and they are more afraid of Mrs. Grundy than they are of God or man. I know of nothing more ironic than that women battered at the doors of the commercial world until they broke them down; that they fought like tigers for political freedom until they got the ballot, but they have never even tried to scrap the silly old convention that refuses them the right to pop the question to the men they want to marry. Yet, heaven knows, the right to hold down a job or to vote is a poor thing compared with the privilege of picking out your husband and the father of your children.

I believe with all my heart that no other one thing would do so much to promote general happiness and to stop divorce and the breaking up of homes as for women to be just as free as men to select their mates. There is no doubt that a great part of the domestic misery that we see all about us is the result of women having to marry their opportunities instead of their preferences.

The woman who carries the man who is her heart's desire is a contented woman, a cheerful and happy woman, a good wife and mother. But the woman who married the man she could get instead of the one she wanted is dissatisfied, restless, continually seeking excitement, and she makes a bad wife, who takes out on her unfortunate husband her own disappointment.

I believe that women, who are wiser in matters of the heart than are men, would make better choices of mates than do men. They wouldn't be so carried away by externals as are men. They would look deeper into character and consider suitability more. And, anyway, if a woman got what she wanted in a husband, it wouldn't matter much what he was, since husbands are purely a matter of taste.

Why shouldn't a middle-aged old maid tell the widower with children with whom she has fallen in love how heart-hungry she is for children and what a good mother she would be to his brood? Why shouldn't an elderly woman, with a comfortable fortune and a good home, propose to some elderly man who is living around in boarding houses to come and share her comfort and add to her happiness by being a delightful companion? No reason at all, except that women are afraid of Mrs. Grundy.

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a girl of 20 in love with a boy of 19 who loves me. We are in doubt as to whether we should marry now, or wait until he has finished a four-years' college course. I have a steady job with a good salary, but my boy friend is out of work and owing to lack of money he was not able to enter college last Fall. We have thought it best for him to continue his schooling, but we fear for our love, as if he returns to college he cannot be true to me there. Can you advise us as to what we should do? M. A.

ANSWER:

My earnest advice to you is for you not to think of marrying until the boy grows up and is in a position to marry and support a wife.

It is a sad and unromantic thing that marriage has a practical as well as a sentimental side, and that unless the practical side rests on a good, solid foundation the sentimental side collapses. Alas and alack, in spite of the poets, love isn't enough to marry on. You have to have a house to shelter you, clothes to wear, food to eat. You find out that after marriage you are just as hungry as you were before: that, no matter how warm your love is it doesn't keep you from getting cold in blizzard weather. That kisses are a slim diet when your stomach craves roast beef and potatoes, and that you don't feel like talking love talk when you are wondering how you are going to stave off the landlady.

So what are you and your boy without a job going to live on if you marry now? What are you going to use for money? Are you going to take him and dump him down on your family, which is playing it pretty low on your poor parents? Or are you going to wish yourself on his people, who are having a struggle to live as they are, without any more mouths to feed?

You have a job, but are you making enough to support yourself and a husband? And what if a baby comes along and you have to give up your job? They do, you know, and the less people can afford them the more they have. Babies are such unreasonable creatures, never knowing when they are wanted.

Don't you see that every dictate of common sense tells you that you must wait to marry until you can afford it? Don't you know that if you can't trust your boy friend to be faithful to you while he is in college you can't trust him anywhere in life, for the world, as well as a college campus, is filled with pretty girls and nowhere is a man exempt from temptation?

• • • • • •

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a young man of 23 and would like to marry if I could find a wife who would be as indulgent and as careful of my comfort as my mother has always been. Where can I find such a girl? JAMES.

ANSWER:

Nowhere. There is no use in wasting your time seeking her. There is no such animal.

Easier to Talk Well If You Know Synonyms

"Pet" Words Make Talk Dull

Do you think of bright things to say after the party's over? Perhaps you use your pet words too much; they have your talk in a rut.

Do you say to your hostess, "What a FUNNY antique"? Tell your partner, "I had a FUNNY time getting here"? Then say to the crowd, "How FUNNY the new mystery movie is"? FUNNY's your pet; it pops out before you think, twists your meaning, gives your talk a deadly sameness.

If you wish to compliment your hostess, call hers an "unusual" antique. To interest your partner, speak of an "absurd," an "amusing" or a "diverting" time. To get your friends' attention call the movie "queer," "strange" or "preposterous."

Our 32-page booklet gives you 4,725 lively synonyms for everyday words. Let them put variety into your talk, keep you ready with right words.

GOODNIGHT STORY

By MAX TRELL

"Almost all the animals in the zoo have gone inside their warm houses," Frank remarked to his sister Dinah, as they walked past the rows of empty cages the other afternoon.

"That's because it's so cold," Dinah replied. "All the animals that come from warm countries hate winter."

At that moment Knarf and Hanid, who were the shadows of the two children and always followed in their footsteps (except when they sometimes ran ahead), exclaimed together in a loud voice: "But look at the polar bear in the cage on the other side of the path. He's staying outside!"

The two children didn't hear their shadows speaking. But, as it happened, they glanced across the path and saw the polar bear sitting outside in his cage. They hurried over.

"Hello there, Polar Bear!"

Talk to Him.

"I'm going to talk to him," Knarf said to Hanid.

"So am I," said Hanid.

"Hello there, Polar Bear!" they called in.

The polar bear slowly lifted his head. He spied the two shadows. He gave them a friendly smile and said: "I'm glad to see you. Won't you come inside? You can lie beside me on this nice cool rock."

"Br-r! It makes us cold just to think of it," Hanid said.

"Aren't you afraid of catching a cold?" asked Knarf.

"Catching a cold? Why! that's the silliest thing I ever heard of. Polar bears don't catch cold from lying on rocks."

"But look at the lions and tigers and giraffes—they're all gone inside their warm houses."

The polar bear stretched himself out on his cold rock. "Don't talk to me of them," he said. "They don't know how to enjoy the wintertime. They ought to learn from me. Why! even the children who come to visit me outside my cage have learned from me what to do to enjoy the cold weather. Just look at them! Do you see what they're wearing?"

"Overcoats," the shadows answered promptly.

"That's right. And that's what I've always worn. Of course, the children aren't quite as clever about their overcoats as I am. They have to buy thei rovercoats, while I let my overcoat grow on my back. There's no better way than that. It always fits snugly, there are never any buttons to button, and it can never fly open in the wind."

With that he nodded his head as if to say, "Good-day," and walked off to the back of the cage and went to sleep on another cold rock.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE —with Major Hoople

Only One Case Scarlet Fever Remains In City

A mild epidemic of chickenpox mostly in the southern section of the city was mentioned by Dr. J. M. Fraser, M O H, in his report for November at the meeting of the Board of Health Tuesday afternoon. The only remaining case of scarlet fever is a patient who has been confined to the Queen Mary Hospital since September 19. The longer period of isolation was caused by a complication requiring mastoidotomy which was performed on November 29. Dr. Fraser said he expected the condition to heal quickly.

The series of inoculation of toxoid was completed during the month, a total of 128 Separate School and pre-school children receiving three doses. The health record system is now installed in these schools. Miss E. Howey of the Ontario Department of Health spent two days instructing Miss Gainey, school nurse, in the methods of examination and record keeping.

A few of the inspections tabulated in the report of Sanitary Inspector R M MacPherson are quoted as follows: dairy farms 27, pasteurizing plants 23, pasteurized milk samples 34, raw milk samples 115, sediment tests 207, pounds of raw milk rejected 660, milk quality reports 117, butcher shops 1, grocery stores 7, refreshments booths 5, restaurants 19, bakeries 2, bread delivery rigs 2, abbatoirs 1.

There were also dwellings, yards, lanes, and the investigation of complaints.

Milk Control

Mr. MacPherson commented as follows: 'Results of the program of milk control inaugurated in January, 1938, are now becoming evident. This program consists in (1) farm inspection; (2) examination of raw milk as delivered to dairies; (3) inspection of processing in the plant; (4) examination of delivered product (butter fat, bacteriological analysis, phosphatase tests). One advantage that has been noted in regard to this program is the co-operation it has received from producers, dairies and distributors.

Sediment from one producer indicate dirty milk. Checking on the farms revealed that water from a dirty well was the cause of contaminating the utensils and milk. These conditions were rectified and subsequent tests showed an improved product. Several new producers were isued permits to send milk for city delivery. One producer was prohibited from shipping milk for city bottle trade due to the fact that he had not complied with a notice sent in May regarding the necessity of replacing a poorly constructed wooden floor with a cement one as required by the regulations.

The making of 207 sediment tests represents the examination of approximately 20,000 pounds of milk, of which 360 pounds were condemned on account of visible dirt. Of the 105 samples tested by the methylene blue reductase test, 89 per cent. graded No. 1; 10 per cent. graded No. 2 and only one sample graded No. 3. It may therefore be considered that 96 per cent. of the milk received at the plants was clean, cool and of good quality. This compares favorably with the report of July, 1938 in which only 40 per cent. of the milk was considered as clean, cool and of good quality."

Mr. MacPherson also reported the results of inspections at several local dairies and also at restaurants. An out-of-town bakery was inspected and found to be in satisfactory condition. One high standard certificate was issued to a local restaurant which had complied fully with all the requirements of the Public Health Act and the eating house by-law.

One house was closed as unfit for human habitation, and two notices were sent to owners of buildings in which pumbling defects were located. Both orders were complied with at once.

Miss Kearney's Report

Miss Zeta Kearney, Public Health Nurse, submitted a detailed report of her activities during November. The number of homes visited was 140, individuals visited 247, classified visits 215, office visits 3, unclassified visits 32.

Comunicable disease visits, cases 15, suspects 2, contacts 22. The Board of Education school nurses visited sixteen homes where there were suspected case of chickenpox.

Communicable diseases reported, chickenpox 41, whooping cough 1, measles 1, tuberculosis 2.

Tuberculosis. Admittance to sanitoria four of whom one was readmittance. Discharged from sanitoria 1; total number of residents receiving sanitoria care 29; total number of tuberculosis families visited 141. Active cases 8, arrested cases 15, suspects 14, contacts 100, childhood type 4.

Other topics discussed by Miss Kearney in her report were health supervision, mental health clinic, babies boarding home, chest clinic, and also her attendance at teachers' convention in the Prince of Wales School and at the provincial convention of the Local Council of Women in Toronto November 18.

Miss Helen Gainey reported 78 special physical inspections and 25 quick class room inspections, 20 home visits. She also mentioned the 128 inoculations of toxoid for the prevention of diphtheria.

Thirty Deaths

Of the thiry deaths during November 10 were caused by diseases of the heart, three from cancer, one influenza, two pneumonia and so on. There were 61 births and 23 marriages.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, December 22.

This day's astrological auguries are conflicting, judging by the lunar transits. While things may be particularly lively and full of excitement, with a very sudden benefit seeming to "drop from the sky," there also may be just as definite a setback or obstacle to reaping such heralded advantage. It might be a grave danger to an elder, illness or bereavement. A financial loss also is indicated. Nevertheless, new projects are greatly accelerated, with support from influential sources. Deal with the young rather than elders.

Those whose birthday it is may experience a year of conflict and contradictions. Important benefits accrue from initiative, determined effort and the aggressive attempt to launch new and important projects. At the same time, there may be a definite setback, due to illness, bereavement, grief or some other frustration. Safeguard funds against loss.

A child born on this day may be energetic and aggressive, and may attract the attention of important persons, et, it may suffer from an impetuous and over-strenuous nature.

Bob Snelgrove Claims Car Failed To Stop

Robert Snelgrove, 60-year-old George street barber, testified before Mr. Justice Godfrey in the Supreme Court yesterday that Mrs. Beatrice Cornell did not stop her car before entering Water street on the day he was injured in July of 1937.

Mr. Snelgrove is plaintiff in an action to collect damages arising out of a car accident at the intersection of London and Water streets on July 19, 1937, when one of the cars said to be driven by F. O'Connor jumped the curb, knocked Snelgrove down where he was standing on the sidewalk, fracturing his leg in three places. He entered the court room yesterday walking with the aid of a cane.

T. J. Carley, K C. is acting for Mr. Snelgrove while A. L. Elliott, K.C. is representing W. G. Cornell and his wife, Beatrice Cornell. Mr. and Mrs. O'Connor are not represented although named as defendants.

In the witness box Mr. Snelgrove explained that he had been walking south on Water on the west sidewalk when a car driven by O'Connor was proceeding north on Water and the Cornell car was going in an easterly direction on London street. Mrs. Cornell, he said, did not stop as she drove the car past the stop sign on London street, and because of her action the northbound car had to be turned sharply to the left. It struck the Cornell car on the rear then climbed the sidewalk striking Snelgrove.

He further testified that his right ankle had been crushed, his leg fractured between the knee and the ankle and the cartilage of his knee was injured. His right hip also gave him trouble

He said he had been unable to return to the barbering trade until October of 1938 and then was forced to rest often because the leg pained so much Dr. J. M. O'Brien described the injury as a permanent one, and he gave the opinion that Mr. Snelgrove would be very unlikely to show any further improvement. Justice Godfrey ordered that all bills in connection with the case be pinned together and entered as one exhibit.

He expressed a desire to see the scene of the accident and after the evidence of Dr O'Brien was in, cross examination of Snelgrove by Mr. Elliott was laid over until today, in order that the Judge might see where the accident had taken place. The case is proceeding.

Action Settled

An amicable settlement was reached in the case of White versus the City of Peterborough. Evidence of Mrs. Alice White, the female plaintiff, and medical evidence was heard and Judge Godfrey suggested the parties might get together and arrange a settlement that would suit everyone. T. J. Carley, K.C., was acting for Mr. and Mrs. White while Grant Gordon, of Toronto representing the law firm of White, Ruel and Bristol was looking after the City of Peterborough's interests. Mrs. White was claiming damages as the result of an accident on the city streets last winter.

DON'T LET A COUPLE OF SEALS OR POLAR BEARS WORRY YOU IF THEY ARRIVE IN CHRISTMAS MAIL

They Simply Represent the New Arctic Motif on Many 1938 Holiday Cards

Arctic motifs, with seals and polar bears playing prominent roles, provide new features for many of the 1938 Christmas cards.

By Central Press Canadian

TORONTO, Dec. 21.—If you get a couple of seals or maybe a polar bear in your morning mail along the latter part of December (or at least a picture of one), it is just one of the new and very smart 1938 Christmas cards.

Just by way of something different, Christmas cards this year, instead of coming out as usual with innumerable versions of Santa Claus and his reindeer, remind us of the genial Saint's polar abode by a variety of Arctic motifs, while the traditional snow and ice of the Christmas season are connoted by a whole tribe of intriguing snowmen. For example, a rollicking snowman with a high hat of orange beams from the branches of a bright green Christmas tree silhouetted against a background of bluish purple. Or again, a sartorially splendid snowman, sports a high hat, banded with a bit of bright silver, and holds a broom with a silver handle.

New Renderings.

Of course, the ever-popular Christmas motifs of candles and bells, poinsettia and holly still appear, but in renderings that are decidedly new. A poinsettia blossom in white, for example, with silver leaves is silhouetted against a panel of bright red framed with feathery white goya against a background of solid blue, thus achieving the rich white and blue color scheme which is one of the season's smartest innovations. A Christmas candle is done in white and silver and off-set by holly leaves of white outlined in silver, black-berried against red. The Christmas bell is tied with a lavishly dotted ribbon of red and white as it peals out "A Joyous Christmas" written in white script against a background of blue.

As for the Christmas carollers—this year they're apt to be three Basque sailors in striped jerseys, who dance a hornpipe as they sing a "Merrie, Merrie Christmas," or even a zylophone player. Many cards are aptly designed to suit the tastes of the recipient with various sports and hobbies supplying the motif. Just for example, if you have a friend who lives skiing, he'd probably appreciate one of the smart new skiing cards—for example, one on which a smartly clad skier dashes down a white and purple hill on skis of black.

For those who prefer more formal cards, there are exquisite etchings and mezzoprints and colored reproductions of famous paintings. Motifs of religious inspiration—the Madonna, the Three Wise Men, the Christmas angels—appear in markedly greater number and variety, with silhouette treatments in soft blues and silver and white especially favored. This effective use of white silhouette against soft blue, for example, is particularly smart this year, and is known as the "Wedgwood" treatment.

Few Wise Cracks.

On the other hand, the exaggerated comic cards and the pert wise-cracking variety have practically disappeared. Even on the informal and amusing cards, sentiments are worded with a simple sincerity. Typical, for instance, is a card which brings "Merry Christmas to My Extra-Special Sweetheart" showing a youth in up-to-date garb, with turns page by page to read with appropriate contemporary illustrations:

Like a tutti-frutti sundae,
Like a multi-millionaire;
Like a double-feature movie,
Like a car with class to spare,
Like a twenty-carat diamond
Just as brilliant as can be,
You're very "EXTRA-SPECIAL"
In the way you rate with me.
And I wish you an EXTRA SPECIAL Merry Christmas."

Enjoy Games At Christmas Party

A Christmas party was held by the Girls' Bible Club of St. John's Church in the Parish Hall Tuesday evening. A happy evening of games was enjoyed under the leadership of Eva Clark, Agnes Bowler, Elsie Smith and Edna Foster, and refreshments were served afterwards by the social committee.

Prizes were given for games, and winners included: Agnes Bowler, Eva Clark, Jean Lush, Kay Chivas, Aileen Sisson, Olive Nimmo, Mildred Chase and Edna Foster.

Grammar Versus Flying Hazards

WINNIPEG, Dec. 21 — (CP). — Trans-Canada Airlines' first stewardess, Miss Lucile Garner, told reporters on arrival here her chief worry was not the peril of fog, sleet or high wind, but proper use of English diction.

"Once a reported wrote something about me and he said that the pilot "learned" me. Can you imagine that? It was terrible—the amount of kidding I had to go through before it died down," Miss Garner said.

She is a registered nurse, graduated from the Royal Victoria hospital in Montreal. Her home is in Regina, but for the last five months she has lived in Vancouver between air mail trips from Vancouver to Seattle.

Miss Garner, who has been interviewing applicants for TCA stewardess positions, said applicants must be registered nurses, Canadian citizens, less than 66 inches in height, weigh less than 125 pounds, between 21 and 26 years of age and have perfect health and vision.

First and great consideration of a Trans-Canada Airlines hostess is the comfort of the passenger, she said.

"You tell then about their ears and chewing gum—you know, plug your ears with cotton and chewing gum to make you feel more comfortable while in flight.

"Then later we'll serve refreshments on the plane on the longer trips. We won't cook anything—it will be put on the plane at the air ports as we go along."

Although she signed the necessary pledge stating she is not contemplating matrimony, Miss Garner observed the most wonderful moon while crossing the Rockies on her trip from Vancouver to Winnipeg.

"Oh, it was wonderful," she sighed.

Princess Alice Buys Books For Children

Children's books are among Christmas presents that Princess Alice Countess of Athlone most enjoys buying.

This royal grandmother has spent a considerable time making her choice. She has a happy gift for selecting the right books.

Her endearing manner with children has made her very popular with her own three grandchildren, the younger generation of the royal family and her many godchildren. She bought numerous toys during shopping expeditions, many of them to disabled ex-service men's exhibitions in London.

Packing and despatching Christmas gifts will, however, be done from Brantridge, the Sussex home at which the Princess is now staying.

We Noticed

...Are you in a last minute fluster over what to get for that friends of yours who is forced to spend Christmas in a hospital?

✧ ✧ ✧

...Don't forget that beauty preparations make perfect gifts, and from the arresting array of new items and old favorites in new and gay wrappings it ought to be a fairly simple matter to pick something that will bring real holiday cheer to the invalid.

✧ ✧ ✧

...A set of bright-colored lipstick and a pot of paste rouge is sure to be appreciated, and how about a smart little beauty kit for the nails—hospital patients have lots of time on their hands, you know, and provided they are well enough, the slow hours might speed up a bit while they perform a neat little manicure for themselves.

Little Musicians' Club Entertained

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Searles of Lansdowne street entertained at a jolly Christmas party on Monday evening for the members of the Little Musicians Club. Games were enjoyed, and each pupil received a gift from his teacher.

A program was given, and consisted of piano solos by Gordon Thexton, Betty McIlwain, Jean Pirie, Elsie Chambers, Irene Dalliday, Wesley Ellis, David Potter, Doris Lee; violin solos by Joyce Wilson, Jack Harris, Cyril Robinson; recitations by Glen Hagerman, Ethelyn Gibson; readings by Dorothy Taylor; mouth organ selection by David Potter.

Mr. and Mrs. Strong Entertain Social Club

A delightful evening of card games and dancing was enjoyed by about forty young people when Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Strong were at-home to the Carmel Social Club members and their friends.

Music for dancing, which included many old-time numbers, was supplied by Mr. Fred Gilmour of Peterborough, Mr. A. Gilmour, Mr. Richard Gilmour, Mr. Austin Thorne and Mr. and Mrs. Strong. Mr. H. McMahon and Mr. Melville Strong were callers off for the square dances.

Santa's Visit Provides Happy Climax

A happy climax to the annual Christmas party and concert of St. Paul's Church Branch Sunday School was the visit of Santa Claus, who arrived at the close of the program laden with gifts of candy and oranges for the children, who greeted him with beaming faces and shouts of excited welcome.

The Ladies' Aid Group, under the leadership of Mrs. H. G. McKenzie, with Mrs. A. D. McLeish as convener, provided a delightful supper for the children.

Dr. A. T. Barr was chairman of a splendid program which was enjoyed by parents and friends. The program consisted of songs by the Primary Department under the leadership of Mrs. W. G. Chapin and Miss Jean Leach; recitations by Audrey Sturrock, Ruth Cheshire and Howard Sturrock; solo by Beth Melrose; duet by Shirley Jeffries and Jean Leach. The presentation of a pageant featuring in character and setting the Christmas story was an outstanding feature of the program, with Mrs. L. Monk presiding at the piano. A short playlet entitled "The Best Gift" was presented by Junior members of the Sunday school.

Mr. A. H. Sturrock and Miss Jean Macknes, in co-operation with the superintendent, Miss Elizabeth Walker, spared no effort in making the evening successful.

Fifty Children Enjoy Christmas Tree

Jolly St. Nick was welcomed by cheers and the singing of Jingle Bells when he arrived to distribute gifts and candy bags to the children who were entertained Monday evening in the Business Women's Club Rooms by the St. David's Society.

Fifty children and their parents and friends crowded the hall to capacity for the Christmas tree entertainment, which is held by the Society each year. Games preceded the children's program. The program included recitations by Bobby Davies, Muriel Davies, Gladys Lawson, Carmel Bartley and Diana Pearse; vocal duets by Margaret Jones and Kathleen Armstrong; Shirley Buller and Gwyneth Armstrong; song by Irene Davies; piano duets by Kathleen Armstrong and Thelma Howell; Dorothy Mills and Gladys Mills; piano solo by Bobby Siddall. The musical program closed with the singing of the Christmas Carols which heralded the coming of Santa Claus. Refreshments were later served by Mrs. V. Mills and her committee.

To crack Brazil nuts easily, warm them by placing in a moderate oven. The meat will come out whole when they are cracked and the skin is easily removed.

WOMEN'S WORK AND INTERESTS

Guild President Retires After 3 Years' Service

A successful year was brought to a close on Monday evening with the annual meeting of the Young Women's Guild of St. Paul's Church, held in the Guild Room. Very satisfactory annual reports were received an dadopted, and the election of officers for the ensuing year took place, the installation being carried out by Mrs. A. T. Barr.

Miss Mary Greer retired from the office of president after three successful years in the chair to be replaced by Miss Marjorie Nesbitt. The complete slate of officers is as follows: Hon. Pres., Miss Elizabeth Walker and Mrs. A. T. Barr; president, Miss Marjorie Nesbitt; vice-pres., Miss Margaret Morgan; sec., Mrs. Roy A. White; treas., Miss Mildred Bothwell; Glad Tidings sec., Miss A. Davidson; sewing committee, Miss Marojrie Best, Mrs. Middleton; social committee, Miss Margaret Duthie, Mrs. W. Perks, Miss Agnes Bell; telephone committee, Mrs. Whittington, Miss Marlie Vickers; visiting, Mrs. S. Hall; pianist, Miss Pearl Smith.

An appropriate Christmas program, under the capable direction of Miss Elizabeth Walker, was given. Its there was "On Earth—Peace." Lantern slides carried out this theme fittingly interspersed with the singing of Christmas carols by the group, and was completed by an interesting short playlet on the story of "Candle Lighting" done by members of the Girl's Guild.

Beauty Routine Will Rest Weary Shopper

You're sotired you just don't see how in the world you are going to be able to get through dinner. You wish had HAD done your Christmas shopping last month when you first thought about it. And you just can't imagine how you can face another shopping scramble tomorrow.

Well, how about piling your packages in a corner and forgetting about Christmas for half an hour? Just half an hour. During which time you can have a hot bath, use a cooling foot lotion, give yourself a quick facial, then put on some clean stockings and a lightweight dress.

If you have time for a short nap as well, so much the better. But if you have to make a choice between a simple beauty routine and a 20-minute nap, better take the former.

Clean your face and neck and cover them with your richest night cream. Now get into the tub of warm water, close your eyes and try to relax completely for five minutes. Then give your tired shoulders and back and weary feet a good massage with your long-handled bath brush.

Afterward, give yourself a good rubdown with cologne or an after-bath lotion, using it lavishly on your feet. Finish with bath powder. Apply your makeup, comb your hair and dress. Christmas shopping doesn't seem so dreadful now, does it?

Many Uses For Bound Squares

Bound squares have a variety of order-bestowing uses for drawer or bag. As shoe covers they are particularly handy. They take up no more room in a suitcase than tissue paper and do a more effective job of protecting one's dresses or undies from the soiled soles of one's shoes. Of course, these squares may be made in any desired size to cover anything from hankies to handbags.

A set of four, or six, or even two, will make an acceptable gift, and the choice of materials for the making is undies. You can think up many attractive color combinations. These squares are something that small daughter could easily make as her very own gift for mother or auntie.

To make two shoe covers one-half yard of any material is required, and one bolt of bias tape binding in a matching or contrasting color.

Fold over the material to make an 18-inch square. A larger or smaller square will answer for different purposes. Divide the tape in two. Leave 15 inches of the tape at one end to be used as a tie. Bind evenly around the square and leave remaining tape to complete the tie. When finished, knot the two ends of the tape together so the tape will go in opposite directions to tie around the case. The tape may, of course, be sewed on by machine, but looks much neater when sewed by hand. Slip stitch the two ends of the tape and finish off neatly.

Pieces left from the children's dresses or half-yard remnants of bright plaid, striped or figured silks will serve for inexpensive, appropriate, and acceptable gifts or for one's own personal use.

Wife Preservers

It is suggested that if you cover the stew in which dumplings are cooking with a glass casserole, you can see when the dumplings are done without taking the lid off the mixture. You can also see to regulate the boiling of the dish.

SIMPLE CLASSIC CRUISE

By PRUNELLA WOOD

Cruise clothes look more feminine in the new collections. It's no mean feat to hitch a swing skirt to a shirtwaist top, but Dorothy Cox has done it—admirably. The chambray frock sketched today shows how.

It shows that flat midriff again, achieved by extending bodice tucks into the skirt. Striped or plain chambray berets are being shown to accompany this type of dress.

You who didn't look too well in last summer's dirndl will be glad to know that it's also been improved. There's less fullness, and, consequently, less hippiness. Another change is noticeable in princesse dresses for cruise wear; they're cut with circular skirts.

Diphtheria Strikes

STE. ANNE DE LA POCATIERE, Que., Dec. 21.—(CP).—An outbreak of diphtheria among students of St. Anne De La Pocatiere College has led officials of the institution to close it a week in advance of the Christmas holidays.

The student body was dismissed for the holidays after 12 cases of the disease had broken out among undergraduates. Two other institutions here, the Agricultural College and Fisheries School, were not affected.

Christmas Dinner Menus That Fit The Pocketbook

(By MARY MOORE)

Most of the year this cooking job is work, and not so much fun but at Christmas I am always glad that I am what I laughingly call a cook.

The one hundred percent pleasure in taking golden fruit cakes from the oven; pressing my bare hands into the shortbread dough; tasting the mincemeat that is different every year, and adding a little extra herb or spice to the stuffing for the turkey.

Like the busman who takes a drive in his holidays Christmas is a cook's holiday to me.

This week's offering includes:

A Turkey Dinner.

A Goose Dinner.

An Egg Nog Party for Christmas or New Year's Eve or any evening in between.

We've tried to cover all the territory for rich and poor, frivolous and solemn celebrants of Christmas. We hope you will find your special favorite here.

Turkey Dinner

First course:
Tomato and Chicken Broth
OR
Almond Consomme (see note)
OR
Chilled Grapefruit and Cranberry Cocktail
Second and Main course:
Roast Stuffed Turkey
Giblet Gravy
Small Portions Mashed Potatoes or Scalloped Potatoes
Buttered midget green beans or Peas
Third, hors-d'oeuvres course:
Roquefort Stuffed Celery
Chilled Ripe Olives
Fourt hand Dessert Course:
Plum Pudding
Grandmother's Hard Sauce
Tidbits:
Salted Cashews
Candied Orange Peel
Paper Shell Walnuts or Pecans
Cafe Noir

Notes on Turkey Dinner

1. To make almond consomme use canned consomme and to it add at least 3 almonds sliced in 3 slices for each serving. If soup is boiling hot the almonds may be placed in the bouillon cups and soup poured over.

2. This recipe is such a favorite everywhere I have given it that I am repeating it. It appeared on this page last year.

Grandmother McCrimmon's Plum Pudding Sauce: One cup sugar, ½ cup butter, 2 eggs well beaten, 1 cup boiling water. Cream butter, add sugar and beat in well, then add beaten eggs and beat well. Add water slowly and keep hot in double boiler. Make as late as possible before serving.

Goose Dinner

(or Standing Ribs of Beef)
Clear Celery and Tomato Soup
OR
Tray of Hors d'oeuvres:
Shrimps on Toothpicks
Devilled Eggs
Miniature Sausages
Stuffed Olives
Anchovy Canapes
Roast Goose With Bread-Apples-and-Raisin Stuffing
Parsley Mashed Potatoes
Cauliflower with Hollandaise
OR
Asparagus with Hollandaise
Grape Relish
Apple and Cranberry Openface Pie with Vanilla Ice Cream
Salted Nuts Table Raisins
Cafe Noir. Mint Wafers

Notes On Goose Dinner

One of our readers wanted all the help she could get on preparing a goose dinner as much before Christmas day as possible: You would be wise to serve soup instead of an Hors d'oeuvres course—for it can be made a day ahead and serve either at the table—reheated in top of double boiler. The goose of course can be stuffed and trussed one or two days ahead of time if you have a large refrigerator to accommodate it. The cauliflower could be washed and left soaking in cold salt water overnight. Potatoes could be peeled and left in cold water overnight. If you use hollandaise all the ingredients but the eggs could be put together and it could be heated at the last minute and the yolks added. I think you should contact your husband to help you when it comes to mashing the potatoes—my husband always loves to do it on maid's-night-out—he seems to love working as hard as possible on them. All other things can be done day before—even the nuts, raisins and candies put on the plates they are to be served in. Then on Christmas day—get breakfast and dish washing over early, do the dusting and beds and set the table—and ask daddy to feed and take the baby for a walk. Sounds simple—hope it works out that way for our reader who plans so well.

Egg Nog Party

I can speak with authority only because I recently spent Thanksgiving Day in the States and went to an Egg Nog Party Thanksgiving Day night.

Now you temperate folk who think I should be rebuked for publishing this method should know I am just as temperate as you are—but even my father than whom there is no stricter teetotaler—grins at Christmas time when the brandy flames on the pudding!

The reader who initiated this idea asks for: "An egg nog party—I have not the faintest idea how to make the egg nog. I believe it contains rum—I want it to be an interesting and peppy concoction as there will be men present. I have a large punch bowl, but intend serving sherry to the ladies. Also how about a buffet in connection for those who want a snack..."

Christmas Egg Nog

Beat separately the yolks and whites of 6 very fresh eggs. To the whites add ½ cup sugar before starting to beat and beat them until stiff—it will take about 5 minutes. To the yolks add ¼ cup sugar after they are half beaten and beat until they are very thick. Combine yolks and whites when beaten. Heat 1 pint of rich cream and 1 pint of whole milk in top of double boiler until it is almost boiling. Add 15 oz. Jamaica rum (almost 2 measuring cups) to the eggs, and when ready to serve add the milk and cream to the egg mixture and stir. Pour into heated punch bowl and sprinkle top with freshly grated nutmeg. This may be served very cold of course, if desired—using exactly same proportions.

I think you might serve very thin slices of spiced ham and spiced beef—dainty cheese straws, cheese stuffed celery, chicken salad bouchees (tiny cream puff shells filled with chicken salad) but most important of all shortbread and light and dark Christmas cake to go with the egg nog Whole pecans (shelled) and (or) a variety of cheese and crackers would be other suggestions.

As one cook to another I hope to goodness you can plan a few hours of leisure for Christmas Day—the fun and spirit of the thing is so much more valuable if you can ponder your blessings and watch the young ones with their toys.

Well then—A Merry and Leisurely Christmas Day To You and To Your Loved Ones "Bless 'Em!"

BABY'S SLEEPING BAG.

If you have to travel with baby this Christmas, make a sleeping bag for him. Fasten his own small pillow to a soft full-sized one across the short way.

Wrap a folded cot blanket round this temporary mattress, securing the sides with safety pins but leaving space at the top for head and shoulders.

This is easy to carry with baby in it, and can be put down without disturbing him if he is asleep.

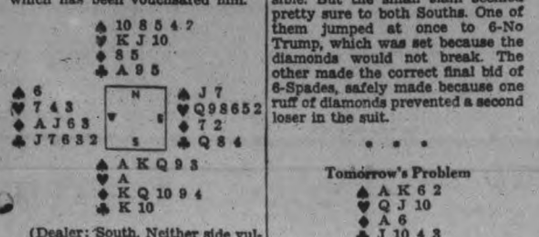
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER
By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

COMMON SENSE NEEDED

NO CONVENTION, no matter how well worked out, can ever be a substitute for plain ordinary common sense. A splendid device for locating aces and kings, which is just what the Blackwood convention is, can do nothing but furnish useful information. But a keen player will give careful thought to the way he will use the information which has been vouchsafed him.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

Two pairs in a duplicate game used the Blackwood convention perfectly on this deal. Then one of the South players made the correct use of his knowledge to pick the final contract, whereas the other went wrong.

In each case South started with 2-Spades, North bid 3-Spades, then South made the Blackwood artificial bid of 4-No Trump, which merely asks the partner how many aces he holds. To show none, North would say 5-Clubs; one, 5-Diamonds; two, 5-Hearts; three, 5-Spades; all four, 5-No Trump. North of course answered the 4-No Trump on this hand with 5-Diamonds, showing one ace.

This enabled the Souths to know that the opponents held an ace, so that a grand slam would be impossible. But the small slam seemed pretty sure to both Souths. One of them jumped at once to 6-No Trump, which was set because the diamonds would not break. The other made the correct final bid of 6-Spades, safely made because one ruff of diamonds prevented a second loser in the suit.

What is the soundest final contract on this deal?

HAVELOCK, Dec. 21.—Over one hundred children attended the annual Christmas concert at the Mission Hall, Havelock, on Thursday evening, when in addition to a fine program each child received a large bag of candy. Decorated in appropriate Christmas colors, the school presented an attractive appearance, a large Christmas tree occupying a prominent position in the front of the room. Candies were given to all the children and later in the evening Santa Claus appeared.

Taps City Gas Line To Warm Rich Wife Mother, 5 Children

London, Ont., Dec. 21 (CP).

ARTHUR CHILDS pleaded guilty court today to a charge of stealing gas from the city gas company tapping supply lines and using a rubber hose to carry fuel to his stove. He was remanded in custody for sentence.

"I'll admit I did it," Childs told Magistrate Donald Menzies. "But our house was cold. We needed heat for my sick wife, my 75-year-old mother and five kiddies.

"We get a quota of coal from the relief department but we have an extremely cold house and there wasn't enough fuel to heat it."

"Being on relief doesn't give you the right to steal," said Magistrate Menzies.

Proud Record Set By Beaver Factory

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 21.—To the Beaver Cheese and Butter Company goes the honor of having the fewest under grade (seven) cheese of any factory in the country, according to District Dairy Instructor J. A. Murray who addressed patrons at their annual meeting Monday. William Remington the maker and patrons were congratulated by the speaker. Alfred Merrill who was re-elected president for the coming year reviewed the season's operations before calling upon the secretary, Lee Isaac, also re-elected to give the financial statement. Mr. Merrill's report of the meeting of the National Dairy Council proved of considerable interest to the patrons. The Beaver Factory is one of the few to which milk is drawn by contract and not by the patrons themselves. The company paid patrons a total of $12,410.79 for their 111,262 pounds of cheese and 3,636 pounds of whey butter. 1,359,264 pounds of milk were delivered to the factory making an average of 12.2 pounds of milk per pound of cheese. They also received 29.73 cents per pound for butter fat. Average price received for cheese was 13½ cents. Milk average 12.2 pounds per pound of cheese and the average per pound of butter fat was 2.66 pounds.

Following a brief address by A. G. Thompson on matters pertaining to the dairy industry the directors were elected as follows: Messrs Walter Weir, Robert Bateson, Ed Duff, and Ray Petty. Miss Weir was appointed auditor.

Prince of Wales Factory

It was the changes which had been effected early in the season which mitigated the losses experienced during the first month of production according to J. A. Murray, district dairy instructor, in his address before members of the Prince of Wales cheese factory. John Billing, the was chairman of the meeting and the financial statement for the year was presented by Jesse Locke who was re-elected president for the coming year. Mr. Billings who recently returned from a trip to England gave an interesting account of cheese marketing there. The following officers were elected: President, and secretary, Pesse Locke; directors, John Billing, Alvin Pollock, and Fred Hay. The financial statement showed 1,427,548 pounds of milk delivered to the factory to produce 117,363 pounds of cheese and 43,615 pounds of butter fat. Patrons received a total of $14,261.88. Average price for cheese was 13.34 cents. Average milk per pound of cheese was 12.04. Average cheese per pound of butter fat 2.69 pounds. Patrons received an average of 32.07 cents per pound butter fat, and the average test was 3.1.

Goering Summons Refugee Official

LONDON, Dec. 21 — (AP). — Field-Marshal Hermann Goering today invited George Rublee, director of the International Aefugee Office, to visit Berlin to discuss the German financial plan for getting Jews out of Germany.

Mr. Rublee is the permanent executive in charge of the International Committee assisting refugees, a group whose principal efforts in the past months have been toward aiding German Jews.

The invitation from Goering, chief of the four-year economic self-sufficiency plan, came on the heels of the visit to London last week of Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank, on an unofficial mission attempting to arrange the financial end of Jewish emigration.

It also came after Prime Minister Chamberlain, in the House of Commons yesterday, said he was "still waiting for a sign from those who speak for the German people" that they are ready to make "their contribution" for European peace.

First Nazi Aircraft Carrier Launched

Latest addition to the German navy is the Graf Zeppelin, ABOVE, first aircraft carrier ever built for the Reich and named after the country's famous airship inventor. The new 18,300-ton craft is seen being towed across the Deutschewerke navy yard at Kiel, just after the launching ceremonies, which were attended by Hitler, Goering, and other high German officials. Countess Hella Brandenstein-Zeppelin, daughter of the airship pioneer, christened the new craft which carries 40 'planes, is equipped with 16 six-inch guns, 10 four-inch anti-aircraft guns and 22 lighter pieces. Her speed is given as 32 knots.

Guide Is Freed From Drunk's Cell To Help Save 16 Shipwrecked

JUNEAU, Alaska, Dec. 21 (AP).—A traper-guide, released from a city jail drunkenness charge because he knew the perilous Cape Fairweather country, led 16 shipwreck survivors toward Lituya Bay and ultimate rescue today.

The guide, Nels Ludwingson, had served six days of a 10-day sentence here when he was released so he could accompany Pilot Sheldon Simmons to the scene of the stranded motorship Patterson.

Simmons returned two survivors, who needed medical aid, here in his plane. He left Ludwingson with the others. Ludwingson organized the remaining survivors into a hiking party and the men set out on their 30 mile trek to Lituya Bay.

Today two United States navy planes from the Sitka base were to take a landing party of coast guardsmen from the cutter Cyane at Port Althorp to establish a camp at Lituya Bay.

The survivors brought here yesterday—Chief Engineer Clair McDowell of Seattle and Third Mate Steve Johnson of Ketchikan—told a graphic story of their hazardous adventure on the stormy, gale-swept beach.

They said the Patterson was wrecked at four minutes to midnight, Dec. 11. She struck the beach with engines under full steam while sailing blind in a heavy surf, strong wind and rain.

Chief Officer Gustaf Swanson was washed overboard by a heavy breaker as he tried to launch a lifeboat. His body was not found.

Seaman James Moore made shore with a life belt, but drowned attempting to cross the eight-knot current of Sea Otter Creek. His body was washed out to sea.

"Four men made shore safely in a lifeboat," McDowell said. "The others remained aboard the Patterson and reached shore when the bow went dry. Then began a week of torture.

"For the first two days and nights we camped on the gale-swept beach without food or shelter. On the third day two men managed to reach the ship's bow at low tide. They brought ashore tarpaulins with which we made shelters."

Havelock Institute Distributes Gifts

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Dec. 21.—Preparing for their annual distribution of Christmas cheer boxes, the members of the Belmont Branch Women's Institute responded liberally to the roll call at their meeting on Thursday afternoon, with a fine assortment of "white gifts." The meeting was exceptionally well attended and the president, Miss Iva Smith, occupied the chair.

During the last month the members held a quilting and pot-luck dinner in the Belmont town hall, when they finished two quilts which were donated to a family recently burned out in Belmont.

It was decided to hold another quilting and afternoon tea on January 5. Quilt tops were donated by two of the members for which a hearty vote of thanks was extended by Mrs. Wm. Seabrook. A shower in honor of a recent bride and groom will be held on Tuesday, December 20.

An interesting program presented during the afternoon included the memory time poem, "O Why Should the Spirit Mortal Be Proud," by Mrs. Robert Anderson; a Christmas carol, "O Little Town Of Bethlehem"; reading, "The Vacant Lot," by Mrs. George Hartin; vocal duets, "No Gal At All" and "Lamplighting Time In the Valley," by Misses Ruby and Eileen Cassan.

Report of the annual Women's Institute convention held recently in Toronto was given by Miss Iva Smith, local delegate, who said that there were 202 branches of institutes from all over Ontario present for the convention.

Lunch was served at the conclusion of the meeting by the refreshment committee composed of Mrs. Robert Anderson, Mrs. George Hartin, Mrs. Leonard Keene, and Miss A. Sexsmith.

Nazis Act To Clear U.S. Trade Problem

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21—(AP).—Germany took the first step today to clarify some problems disturbing German-American relations.

Dr. Hans Thomsen, charge d'affaires of the German embassy since ambassador Hans Dieckhoff was called to Berlin Nov. 22, made an appointment with Sumner Wells, acting secretary of state, to transact undisclosed business.

Speculation grew in diplomatic circles to the effect that no resumption of normal relations between the two countries could be expected unless Germany makes satisfactory reply soon to two United States notes seeking assurances that Germany would assume responsibility for Austrian debts and would not discriminate against American Jews in the Reich.

German-American relations were subjected to further tension as the state department completed its first reciprocal trade agreement in the near east, where the Reich has been making overtures.

The treaty, with Turkey, is expected to be signed in January, and American concessions in it will be extended to all countries except Germany. Germany is not included in its most-favored nation clause because, officials say, she discriminates against American trade.

Three Children Gassed Riding In Back Of Father's Sedan

Guelph, Ont., Dec. 21 (CP).

THREE West Luther Township children today were recovering from the effects of carbon monoxide poisoning from fumes which overpowered them while they were riding in the back of a car driven by Hugh Saunders, 8th concession of Luther, father of two of the children.

Jimmie Saunders, 10, was the most seriously affected. His sister, Eva, slightly older, was not as badly overcome. Least affected was a cousin, Keith Samuels. The three children were riding to Gordonville Church with Mr. Saunders. All except the father were in the back seat. When he reached the church, Mr. Saunders opened the door and the three children fell out unconscious. Russell McTavish rendered first aid. Dr. Park was summoned and gave treatment.

Costers' Rifles For Kai-Shek?

NEW YORK, Dec. 21—(AP). — Federal authorities, delving into the fantastic story that Philip Musica, as F. Alfred Coster, respected president of McKesson and Robbins, Incorporated, tried to sell 2,000,000 rifles and 100,000,000 rounds of ammunition to some unidentified nation, turned today to a report they might have been destined for the Chinese General, Chiang Kai-Shek.

Under questioning by Gregory Noonan, acting United States attorney and other federal officials, was Thomas Bruni, a promoter, and Frederick Wingersky, a vice-president in charge of law and labor relations for the $87,000,000 drug firm which Coster-Musica dominated.

The New York Post said Bruni told the federal authorities he was approached last spring by agents of the Chinese general and got in touch with Ben Simon of the Bronx, a promoter who worked at different times for McKesson and Robbins.

Simon's name was injected into the investigation yesterday by Wingersky who disclosed that Coster-Musica had asked him last May to draft a contract for the purchase of 2,000,000 new Lee-Enfield rifles and the cartridges.

The contract, Wingersky told assistant state attorney general Ambrose V. McCall of the securities bureau, was never consummated so far as he knew.

Tokyo Press Clamors For Hong Kong To Be Surrendered

TOKYO, Dec. 22 (AP).—Premier Fumimaro Konoye declared today that Japan is prepared to help China abolish foreign concessions and extraterritoriality, the system of special privileges enjoyed by some foreigners in China for nearly a century.

In a formal statement on the future of Japanese-Chinese relations the Premier concluded:

"Japan not only respects the sovereignty of China but is prepared to give positive consideration to the question of the abolition of extraterritoriality and of concessions and settlements, matters which are necessary for the full independence of China."

By China the Premier manifestly referred to the state Japan already has announced she expects to emerge from her current conquests, linked in a strong political, economic and cultural block with Japan and her protectorate, Manchoukuo.

Such a state, under Japanese direction, is expected by Japanese leaders to replace the Chinese government of General Chiang Kai-Shek, which now has its capital at Chungking.

Prince Konoye's statement was believed to embody decisions reached in November by the Imperial conference, super-government organ for prosecution of the China war, meeting in the presence of Emperor Hirohito.

Surrender Hong Kong?

The statement coincided with a press campaign for abolition of foreign concessions, including even the retrocession of Great Britain's colony of Hong Kong to the China of the "new order" of Japan's plans.

Discussing American and British loans to China, the newspaper Kokumin said, "They have demonstrated that there is no way to promote Asia diplomacy except by actual power."

"If Great Britain wants smooth relations with Japan, the return of Hong Kong to the new China government is necessary," Kokumin said.

The newspaper Hochi characterized the $25,000,000 credits recently granted by the United States as a "bluff" and reminded its readers that similar aid to the Allies in the Great War failed to crush Germany.

Most of the papers, advancing the opinion that Great Britain was manipulating the American attitude, directed most of their accusations at Britain. They said that the United States has a comparatively small stake in the Orient.

U.S. Refuses Apology To Germany For Ickes' Speech

Washington, Dec. 22 (AP)

SUMNER WELLES, acting secretary of state, disclosed today the United States had rejected Germany's demand for an official apology for Interior Secretary Ickes' speech in Cleveland last Sunday attacking dictatorship.

Welles told Dr. Hans Thomsen, German charge d'affaires, that the request came with singularly ill grace and impropriety from a government which had so persistently permitted its controlled press and officials to attack American leaders including Presidents Wilson and Roosevelt and present members of the cabinet.

Chamberlain Foe Duchess Loses At Polls

CRIEFF, Scotland, Dec. 22—(CP).—The Duchess of Atholl today was defeated by 1,313 votes in the Kinross and West Perth by-election.

The Duchess, who resigned her seat in the House of Commons in order to re-contest it as an independent in opposition to Prime Minister Chamberlain's foreign policy, lost to W. McNair Snadden, Conservative.

Mr. Snadden polled 11,808 votes against 10,495 for the Duchess. In the 1935 general election, when Her Grace stood as a Conservative, she polled 15,238 votes against 10,069 for Mrs. Coll MacDonald, Liberal.

Boost For Chamberlain

Snow covering the outlying constituency held down the vote.

Mr. Snadden, a Perthshire farmer, ran as a supporter of the Chamberlain government's foreign policy.

"The result will be great encouragement to Mr. Chamberlain as a vote of confidence from a representative division of the Scottish people," the victorious candidate declared.

"It is evident of a clear desire on their part that he should continue his splendid work of bringing the nations of Europe together in creation of lasting peace."

The Duchess, wearing a sprig of white heather in her hat, stood in the snow outside the building where the votes were counted. She shook her head sadly when the result was announced.

"I still think the government's foreign policy is leading us into grave danger," she said. "My letters from members of all parties throughout the United Kingdom and from many in the Empire and other countries in Europe and the United States show that many share my views.

"I think there will be a general election soon when I expect to stand again. Perhaps events between then and now will prove to the electors that I was right."

Duchess' Seat 15 Years.

The Duchess had held the seat for 15 years. In the Baldwin government, from 1924 to 1929, she was parliamentary secretary to the Board of Education, being one of the first women to hold Ministerial office.

Her differences with the Conservative party began with the

Million Guns Hidden For Export

N.Y. Cache Reported Canadian Made; Denied By Ottawa

BOSTON, Dec. 22 — (C.P.). — Assertions that 1,000,000 Canadian-made rifles lay hidden near New York for sale to foreign governments interested United States authorities here as they pressed an inquiry paralleling the New York investigation of F. Donald Coster-Musica, suicide head of the huge McKesson & Robbins drug firm.

John Canavan, United States attorney conducting an investigation of alleged attempted arms sales, said last night he had learned from C. R. Ekholm, a Boston broker, that a New York lawyer had offered to provide all the guns Ekholm could sell.

Ekholm was attempting to interest a Russian trade commission in the purchase of munitions when the offer was made a year ago, Canavan said the broker told him. The transaction fell through.

Canavan said Ekholm quoted the lawyer as saying that 1,000,000 Lee-Enfield rifles had been made in Canada and stored near New York, and a quarter of them already had been disposed of.

Thus far, the Federal attorney said, he had uncovered nothing to link the asserted arms transactions with Philip Musica, veteran swindler, who rose to head the McKesson & Robbins Company under the name of Coster, and shot himself to death when his real identity was disclosed.

German Countess Involved.

The United States attorney further related that he was told the New Yorker suggested that Ekholm try to sell the guns to Iatin-American nations, but the latter were not interested.

Canavan said Ekholm told him a German-born countess, now a New York resident, also attempted to interest him in commissions to be made from sale of arms, but she was unsuccessful.

(The Post, in a copyrighted story, said heads of metal goods manufacturing plants and wholesalers related that "Coster's agents" attempted unsuccessfully last April to interest them in creating "a chain of ammunition factories throughout Eastern Massachusetts."

(The paper said a Brockton shoe manufacturer was asked to produce 50,000,000 cartridge cases for overseas delivery within eight months, and a $1,000,000 contract was offered a Saugus, Mass., tool firm. The Post said the agents told manufacturers the business was government-licensed.)

No Canadian Guns Sold.

OTTAWA, Dec. 22.—(CP).—Canada never sold Lee-Enfield or other service rifles to anyone in the United States and Lee-Enfield rifles have never been made in Canada, Defence Department authorities here said to-day. United States' Attorney John Canavan was quoted in Boston as saying he had learned from C. R. Ekholm, a Boston broker, that a New York lawyer had said there were 1,000,000 Lee-Enfield rifles, made in Canada, stored near New York and a quarter of them had already been disposed of.

"The only rifles we have made in this country are the Ross rifles," a ranking officer of the department said. "These are all accounted for, and none has been sold or is stored in the United States."

The Canadian militia is equipped with the .303 Short Muzzle Lee-Enfield but there are not 1,000,000 of them in the whole country. These rifles are made in England to British government specifications and are the ordinary service rifle of the British forces.

Canada has not manufactured rifles since the war, during which the Ross rifle factory was closed down. When that weapon was discarded in 1916 Canada purchased all her small arms from the United Kingdom.

When the Canadian troops returned home during 1919 their rifles were turned in and stored at various depots throughout the country. They are still there, maintained in good working order by the Canadian Ordnance Corps.

From time to time, and particularly at the begining of the Spanish civil war, propositions were made to the government by the agents of foreign authorities to buy the Ross rifles. To all of them, however, the Canadian government turned a deaf ear. Its policy has been to hang on to the rifles, and that policy is still in force.

Piano Teacher

Mrs. Mary Ann Black, 75-year-old full-blooded Indian woman from Alderville Reserve, near Roseneath, is probably the only woman of her race to teach piano lessons. She is superintendent of the Alderville United Church Sunday School, lives alone in a little tar-papered shack and still teaches music lessons. She has taught more than a thousand pupils, she thinks, in the past fifty-five years. See page three for story.

Gifts Come In Summer Keep Barrow Guessing —For This Christmas, Or Last?

BARROW, Alaska, Dec. 22 (AP)—This farthest settlement on the North American continent made ready for its annual Christmas festival today, but there was one problem perplexing the few white settlers.

That was whether the Christmas packages they received by boat last summer were for this Christmas or last Christmas.

Packages can't get through at this time of year unless somebody charters a plane to fly here from Fairbanks. First class Christmas mail arrived a week ago last Friday, and no more is expected.

This year's Christmas will be a three-day event. Gifts will be presented at a school program Saturday. A church program will be held Sunday, and a feast at which muktuk—seal meat—will be the piece de resistance, will be held at the church Monday.

Most usual native gifts consist of sinew, boot soles, parka covers and spears. Occasionally, too, natives transfer their reindeer from one to another.

For the Christmas tree, the centre pole of the church is the trunk. Dry, aged branches are plugged into the centre pole, and heavily draped with Christmas tree decorations to cover the "tree's" nakedness.

Saskatchewan's "Night Mirages" Do Devil Dances In Alberta

VEGREVILLE, Alta., Dec. 22. — (CP).—Eerie blue lights that dance and dash across the prairie south of here were stirring renewed gossip and speculation today due to the publicity given recent appearance of similar goings-on near Esterhazy, Sask.

Residents of the district 100 miles east of Edmonton have seen the spectral lights so often in late years that general excitement over them had almost died down—until the Saskatchewan mystery became overnight a national curiosity.

The Esterhazy light is still an unanswered riddle, but "night mirage" are the words used by many persons in Vegreville area to explain the balls of fire that perform nocturnal devil-dances along the road here.

A Winnipeg University professor blames "mass hysteria" for the Saskatchewan apparition. But Vegreville farmers laugh heartily at this hifalutin diagnosis. They believe the ghostly lights are projected by automobile headlamps perhaps 20 miles away, their bobbing flames shot through space and changed in color like the day-time phantoms long familiar to desert-dwellers.

May Be Car Lights?

The "ghost lights," as children in the district still term them, often appear in pairs, and this strengthens the farmers' sturdy belief they are caused by the reflection of car lights.

But one light still reigns unchallenged as an out-and-out mystery. A single bluish flare, baleful and unwinking, it used to "hang" for hours, motionless, near a window in Frank Podalski's home before the bachelor farmer moved from the district a few years ago. Often the pale, spirit-like reflection lit up the entire interior of the house and did not vanish until dawn. It still reappears occasionally at various points.

The "ghost lights" have been sighted most frequently near Mayflower School, 11 miles south of Vegreville, but have been reported throughout the entire area between here and Bruce, 22 miles south.

The "night mirage" theory gained widespread credence because of the frequent appearance of daytime mirages in the district.

Condors cannot fly until they are six months old. Some species of birds are able to fly when they are out of the egg little more than a week.

Bathtub Singing Old, Indians Made It Four-Hour Session

Washington, Dec. 22 (CP).—SINGING in the bathtub is just an old Indian custom, the United States office of Indian affairs disclosed today. Research experts say the braves have been singing in their wickiups (bath shelters) as long as there is any record on the race. The white man has a big advantage with his tub singing, however.

Medicine men always are always crowding into the wickiup, the authorities say, and when a medicine man yodels with his ablutions, it's a four or five hour session. Custom demands that nobody leave until the medicine man leaves, so the other Indians have to stick it out and sing, no matter what they think of the songs.

80 Names Added On Liquor Vote

APSLEY, Dec. 22.—(Special.) — Around eighty names were added when His Honor Judge Sheldon Smoke sat here to-day under the Voters' List Act. His Honor heard complaints and appeals regarding the pending liquor vote which is to take place on January 2. The vote is to decide whether or not the beverage rooms will be allowed to remain in the townships of Burleigh and Anstruther. At present there are three beverage room permits in the townships, the hotels at Burleigh Falls and Viamede operating on the six months a year permit each while the hotel in Apsley has a beverage room open the year around.

Very few of those seeking to have their names on the list appeared in person and Judge Smoke ommitted all names of those where any questions as to qualifications was raised by the wet or dry representatives. Those whose names were omitted now must satisfy the deputy returning officer as to their qualifications if they wish to vote.

The temperature outside the little town hall where the meeting was held was said by Municipal Clerk C. A. G. Spence to be five below.

Store Manager Committed On Arson Count

Robert Nathan Herman, 32-year-old manager of Pattenick's store, was committed for trial by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court late Wednesday afternoon on a charge of arson in connection with the December 12 fire in the Pattenick establishment.

The committal came after one of the longest preliminary hearings in the history of the local police court, the case taking the greater part of two days.

As soon as the hearing in the arson charge had been completed Herman was arraigned on a second charge, namely that he, between August 12, 1938 and December 12, 1938, unlawfully did steal cash to the amount of $308 and goods to the value of $1,895 from the Pattenick store.

On this count Herman, through his counsel, A. J. Skeans, elected trial by judge and jury and was remanded for a week.

Also charged with stealing from the Pattenick store during September, October, November and part of December of this year, goods above the value of $25. Ralph Solerow pleaded not guilty and he too was remanded for a week, bail in his case being fived at $1,000. To secure bail Herman will have to make application to the county judge.

Wednesday afternoon's session had among its highlights the unusual incident of Crown Attorney McElderry, K.C., applying for and finally receiving the court's consent to treat one of the Crown witnesses as an adverse witness. This was Iva Tripp, a domestic employed by the Hermans.

Stevens Re-called

When the afternoon session opened Harold Stevens, assistant manager of the Pattenick store, who had been in the witness box all morning was recalled in order to allow A. J. Skeans, defence counsel, to complete his cross-examination.

"Do you recall any occasion when Mr. Herman was away for a weekend?" asked Mr. Skeans.

"He was away about four weeks

1,000 Arrests In Rebel Spain Follow Clues Found In British Consul's Shirt

Documents Said Plans Of Franco's Campaign; Official Cleared, Papers "Planted," Spy Hunt May Alter Entire Conflict

LONDON, Dec. 22 (AP).—Official reports reaching London today asserted that "approximately 1,000" arrests had occurred in insurgent Spain in a great spy hunt which authoritative persons here suggested might affect the entire course of the Spanish civil war.

The arrests were the sequel of what London informants called the "case of the dirty shirt."

The shirt in question was found in the baggage of H. Goodman, British Vice-Consul at San Sebastian, when he was stopped at Irun, on the French border, last Monday. Inside it was "incriminating information" which led to the arrests.

Military Secrets

An official statement from the insurgent foreign ministry at Burgos said documents found in Mr. Goodman's valise when he reached the border enroute to France were "designed to inform the enemies of Nationalist (insurgent) Spain about our future military operations."

For weeks reports from both sides in Spain have told of great Insurgent preparations for an offensive by which it is said General Franco hoped to end the war. The offensive has been unaccountably delayed, although bad weather has been cited as an explanation.

The Burgos foreign ministry said preliminary inquiries disclosed the existence of "a vast organization to communicate with the enemy." It added that British authorities were giving the Burgos government all possible assistance in the investigation. The statement charged that Insurgent military police had also found in the valise "a certain quantity" of Spanish money which "had not been declared."

Goodman Cleared

Informants here said Mr. Goodman had been absolved of guilt in the affair, but that several employees of British consulates in insurgent territory were "under suspicion."

Several Spanish nationals are employed in British consular offices in Spain, but it is not known whether all those arrested are Spanish.

Officials in London explained Mr. Goodman was carrying an "official bag" but not a "diplomatic bag" which would have been immune from search. An "official bag" is not immune.

British officials have conveyed their regrets to insurgent General Franco concerning the affair.

It was said the "dirty shirt" itself might prove to be a vital clue in the biggest espionage conspiracy of the Spanish war. British and Spanish insurgent officials are trying to determine whose shirt it was and who placed it and incriminating papers in Mr. Goodman's bag.

A communique issued at Burgos, the insurgent capital, declared that information destined for the Barcelona government was found in Mr. Goodman's bag when he reached the frontier to enter France.

Empire Is Urged To Boost Its Birthrate

LONDON, Dec. 21.—(CP).— The British government to-day urged its people to "increase the birth rate" to strengthen the Empire.

Malcolm MacDonald, Dominion secretary, told the House of Commons last night that Great Britain must find a policy to increase her falling birth rate for "the highest Imperial reasons."

"I confess I cannot do anything about it," the bachelor cabinet minister said amid laughter. He made no specific suggestions such as Premier Mussolini's bonuses for babies in Italy.

Mr. MacDonald spoke in support of a resolution urging increased migration from the United Kingdom to the Dominions, which the house adopted.

"An increasing population, increasing prosperity and increasing power in the Dominions is perhaps the best way of all of augmenting the strength of the United Kingdom herself," he said.

Mr. MacDonald said 'British blood ought to be going in all the time" to swell the population of the Dominions. The United Kingdom was ready to extend financial aid to migration movements to Canada and New Zealand—as it now is doing in Australia—when the Dominion authorities give the go ahead signal. He was not alarmed over foreigners entering the Dominions.

Not Too Many Aliens

"There are people who say that if you allow too many foreigners to settle in the dominions, it would alter the whole national character of those dominions," he said, "that is absolutely right if you allow too many to go.

"Take the case of Australia. The population of Australia is 90 per cent British. It would require an enormous flow of foreigners to reduce that percentage to a level at which the robust British character of the Australian nation is going to be seriously altered. The same is true of New Zealand.

"I admit that the position is different in Canada and South Africa. Different considerations come in there. But I certainly would not criticize the Australian government

Victim Of Wall Street, Blackmail Says Coster In Suicide Note

NEW YORK, Dec. 22—(AP).—F. Donald Coster, born Philip Musica, said in a suicide note made public today that "Bankers, lawyers, auditors, appraisers and incompetent high salaried executives have bled McKesso nand Robbins white."

The amazing swindler who shot himself to death in his Connecticut home when his activities were discovered said the McKesson and Robbins Drug Company which he headed "should have been in receivership at the time of the crash one year after its reorganization."

"I have tried to hold it up to stave off the inevitable," he wrote. "No man has ever worked harder or received less pay to make something work out for the interest of all.

"There has always been friction within the board of directors because the wholesale business is a rotten business at best—the wholesale part wrote off millions of bad debts and inventories. There was nothing said about that, just that the 1929 crash was responsible."

The note exonerated his brothers in masquerade and asserted he was "the victim of Wall Street plunder and blackmail in a struggle for honest existence."

Ruined By Intrigue.

The note was made public by Samuel Reich, Coster-Musica's attorney.

The note asked that "the world judge if bankers, lawyers, auditors and appraisers that got millions out of the company knew nothing."

Coster-Musica denied that narcotics or alcohol was involved in his deals and asserted that "I have not tried to ruin the company or the stockholders."

"If I did," Coster-Musica wrote, "I could have sold my holdings in 1928 for over $3,000,000. Instead, I am a ruined man through the

Antarctic Isle Stopover To Cut 1,000 Miles Off South Africa-Australia Air Route

LONDON, Dec. 22 (AP) — A "southern polar air route" which would cut an estimated 10,000 miles from the air journey between South Africa and Australia is under consideration, the government disclosed yesterday in a white paper—an official report.

To fly from Cape Town to Sydney now one must travel the length of Africa northward to Alexandria, and then follow the "empire route" via India and Singapore.

It is proposed to obtain permission from France to use the little-known Adelie Land, 1,400 miles from the South Pole, for a stop-off point. Planes from Africa would follow the southern polar circle route to Adelie Land then swing northeast to Australia, saving an estimated 10 days in flying time.

In return for French co-operation, the governments of the United Kingdom, Australia and New Zealand would give French aviation the right to use their south polar territories.

No Coal On Sale, Britons Go To Bed Till Cold Wave's Fuel Crisis Ends

LONDON, Dec. 22 (CP Cable)—A thaw swept across the British Isles today, ending a five-day frigid spell. But a coal crisis arrived simultaneously with mercury's climb above the freezing point.

Frenzied householders seeking to keep dampness from their homes were told coal dealers would not fill orders until after new year. One dealer said would-be customers told him they would have to spend the next fortnight in bed if fuel were unobtainable.

Some retailers promised to supply coal if the customers would carry it away himself but said they could not deliver any for two weeks.

Early trains ran late for the fifth day and subway lines were balked frequently when doors froze when open, cutting off the current.

Work For Shovellers

A heavy snowfall yesterday and last night brought work for thousands of shovellers but there will probably be no total gain in employment as the weather caused a suspension of work in the building trades.

London streets were covered with five inches of grimy slush through which traffic crawled, splashing pedestrians. The sky was heavily overcast by smoke, and fog enveloped some districts.

The coldest spots during the night were Wick, Dalwhinnie and Andergrove, where the temperature was 16.

The country was believed assured of a white Christmas for the first time in several years. The snow fell for 12 hours and covered England and Wales with a mantle nearly a foot deep.

In many sections of the country bus traffic was interrupted completely. The lines linking Dover, Canterbury, Folkestone, Deal and

Plague Of Trapline Hits B.C. Cariboo Country As Wolverine Turns Cabin-Wrecker

WILLIAMS LAKE, B.C., Dec. 22 (CP)—Dreaded plague of the trap-line, the Wolverine is again on the rampage among the trappers of British Columbia's interior cariboo.

Word received yesterday told of a Wolverine's depredations on the line of a trapper at Chezacut, 60 miles from here, when 17 traps were sprung, thrown into the bush and bait stolen.

The wolverine entered the cabin of the absent trapper, scattered most of the home-made furniture into the snow, destroyed his winter's supply of food and even tried to haul the cook stove through the door.

The animal cannot be trapped in the ordinary manner. It is considered the most cunning of all forest denizens but its downfall is its own curiosity. It cannot resist entering a building and trappers find that they can cage the beast by erecting a small shanty with a spring device on the door which locks itself when the intruder gets inside.

No Blame Attached To Driver In Death Of Roland Ferguson By Jury At Coroner's Inquest

No negligence whatsoever can be attributed to Sidney Middleton, veteran bus driver for the Border Transit Company in the accident which caused injuries and later the death of Roland Ferguson, was the rider attached to an open verdict of accidental death brought in by a coroner's jury Wednesday night.

Ferguson died at one o'clock on Wednesday morning in Nicholls Hospital and the inquest was held to enquire into the circumstances of the accident on September 29 which resulted in the deceased being taken to the hospital. County Coroner Dr. J. C. Smith of Lakefield, presided and V. J. McElderry, K.C., County Crown Attorney, examined the witnesses.

The jury returned after twenty minutes' deliberation to set something of a record in the time required to reach a verdict.

The accident occurred shortly after five o'clock on September 29 at the intersection of Brock and Aylmer streets. A bus operated by Sidney Middleton was proceeding south on Aylmer and Roland Ferguson was going east on Brock street on his bicycle, when he was struck by the bus.

Evidence of identification was given by the first witness, Vernon Ferguson, a brother of the deceased man. Dr. Raymore Scott was the next called and he testified that he was called to the scene of the accident and found Ferguson lying on Aylmer street alongside the bus. On examination he found a puncture wound behind the right ear, three fractured ribs on the left side, and numerous cuts and bruises. Ferguson he said was in a state of severe shock. He said further the man made steady progress toward recovery until December 13 when an operation was performed on his elbow by another doctor to facilitate drainage of pus, but the poison went through his system and eventually killed him. He said death was caused from heart failure, blood poison and kidney infection. He told the jury Ferguson developed pneumonia after being admitted to the hospital but recovered from this ailment some time ago.

Dr. Herbert N. Young, who with Dr. T. W. H. Young, performed a post mortem on the body agreed with Dr. Scott on the cause of death saying death was due to heart failure occasioned by an overdose of poison in the system. He said injuries received in the accident were directly responsible for the man's death. Dr. T. W. H. Young substantiated the medical evidence already given and said the operation on the arm was absolutely necessary and not a contributing factor in the death.

Repairing Car

George Watson, proprietor of a repair shop near the corner of Aylmer and Brock streets was the next witness. He said Ferguson had been with him all afternoon, because Ferguson's car was being repaired.

"I stood in the doorway and watched him ride his bicycle east towards Aylmer street. He slowed down at Aylmer street, then started across. A bus going south struck him, and he was carried under the front of the bus, all anarled up in his bicycle."

Did the wheels of the bus run over him?—No.

What condition was he in when he left you?

"He was perfectly normal, quite healthy and sober as I am now."

Clement Riley, a mechanic at Vincent Whittington's service station, told of going to the scene of the accident with a wrecking truck. He said: Ferguson was lying on Aylmer street about thirty feet south of Brock and on the east side of the street near the sidewalk.

"Then the bus must have gone to the wrong side of the road after the accident?"—Yes.

Passenger on Bus

Miss Kathleen Jones, a front seat passenger on the bus described the accident. She said Ferguson was about in the centre of the intersection when the accident occurred. Wm. McKnight, another passenger, said Ferguson came onto Aylmer without looking to either side and without stopping. He said the bus was just starting to cross Brock when Ferguson pedalled on to the intersection.

"The girls screamed and the bus driver swung to the left and pulled on the emergency brakes."

"What could the bus driver have done to prevent hitting him?"

"He couldn't do very much," replied McKnight.

Roy Murphy, the next witness, said he was walking north on the east side of Aylmer street. He was an eye-witness. Answering the questions of Mr. McElderry, he said Ferguson appeared to see the bus but tried to beat the bus across.

"If he had swung south on Aylmer street, he would be alive today." He further explained the front right wheel was halfway over Ferguson's chest. Frank Revere substantiated this evidence.

Sidney Middleton, the driver of the bus said he did not think he had time to stop, so he swung to the left hoping the man would turn to the right and go down Aylmer. "When I saw I couldn't avoid him I applied my brakes full, but the bus struck the bicycle." He said the bus weighed five tons and he estimated his speed at 15 miles an hour.

When the witness was called T. J. Carley, K.C., appearing for the Peterborough Bus Lines Limited, asked protection for the witness under the Canada Evidence Act, Dr. Smith, the coroner, said there was no charge laid against the driver, and Mr. McElderry remarked that no charge was contemplated. Mr. Middleton's evidence concluded the hearing.

Widow Claimed Double Benefits

At the non-jury sittings of the Supreme Court on Wednesday a point of considerable interest and importance to the general public was developed in one of the cases tried.

It appeared that a will had bequeathed moneys and other benefits to the deceased's widow, but there was nothing contained in the will requiring her to take same in satisfaction of her dower rights, and in consequence the widow claimed both the benefits under the will and her dower rights as well and this being contested by those to whom the lands were left by the will. A law suit resulted and the trial judge seeing it to be a matter of family dispute succeeded in arranging a settlement satisfactory to all concerned.

The widow's interests were upheld by W. J. A. Fair and E. F. Borbridge, B.A., conducted the case on behalf of the defendants.

It seemed from the remarks of Mr. Justice Godfrey that it is very important that a man in drawing his will wishing what he leaves to his wife to be in full satisfaction of any claim she may have to dower, should have a clause to that effect in his will, otherwise in many cases she may successfully contend both for the benefits under the will and in addition dower rights.

The case of Read Bros. of Bobcaygeon vs. Robbins stands over for hearing at the adjourned sittings of the court commencing January 3rd, 1939. This case involves a dispute between Read Bros., lumbermen, of Bobcaygeon, and Mrs. Helen Gill Robbins, the owner for many years of a considerable amount of lands and many islands at Jack's Lake in the County of Peterborough, the plaintiffs claiming to have purchased certain of the lands from Mrs. Robbins, Mrs. Robbins disputing the claim. F. D. Kerr, K.C., for Read Bros., the plaintiffs, and Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., for the defendant, Mrs. Robbins.

Spanish Civil War. She became a staunch champion of the Spanish government's cause, visiting Spain and pleading at home for a more friendly attitude on the part of Great Britain toward the Barcelona regime.

She felt the activities of Germany and Italy in Spain to be a menace to Great Britain. Germany's annexation of Austria and the Czechoslovak Sudetenland increased the scope of her criticism of the Chamberlain government.

She resigned the government whip in the House of Commons, announcing that henceforth she would follow an entirely independent line and not vote with the government majority as a matter of party discipline. The result was that the Conservative organization of her constituency repudiated her and selected a new candidate to represent it in the next general election.

The Duchess took the bull by the horns, applied for the Chiltern hundreds (the traditional way of resigning a parliamentary seat), and precipitated the by-election that resulted in her defeat today.

Critics Back Her.

In the by-election she had the general support of all the critics of the government's foreign policy, including Winston Churchill, the Tory rebel, and Sir Archibald Sinclair, Liberal leader.

Cut Work Hours To Aid City's Workless

A plan of reducing the week's time of employed men as a means of sharing available work with others who are on relief was proposed by Hugh Campbell, general manager of Canadian Marine and Manufacturing Company, at the public meeting in the city hall last night at which the Mayor's Welfare Fund was organized.

"If we have men working fifty hours a week, and cut their time to 40 hours you would add 3,000 or 4,000 hours a week for men who are unemployed," Mr. Campbell said. "A real man doesn't want relief, and I thought the manufacturers could be called together in a real effort to lick the relief problem."

"The city council would certainly welcome an opportunity of discussing that question with the manufacturers," Alderman Dutton commented, and Aldermen McIntyre, McCannan and Gordon said it sounded like the most constructive proposal that had been aimed at the relief list in a long time.

Mr. Campbell said every citizen was anxious to see some solution evolved that would take the heavy cost of unemployment off the taxpayers. The manufacturers were loyal to Peterborough, and if the plan were practical it might be possible to put it into effect.

Although he felt that the Canadian Marine and Manufacturing Company (formerly the Johnson Outboard Motor Company) was entitled to consideration of some extension of its fixed assessment, Mr. Campbell said that it had been decided, on account of conditions, not to ask for it. And that attitude, he added, was not because of anything Alderman Gordon had said.

Mr. Campbell's suggestion was not pursued last night, but it was apparently left in abeyance to be recalled to him some time after the festive season ends.

Mexico May Grab Sugar Mills Next

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 22.—(AP)—Prospect of further expropriation of private industries became evident here today.

The newspaper Excelsior reported that the Federal Chamber of Deputies passed a new sugar tax, its fourth industrial tax in three days, which President Cardenas said would be used "to construct and acquire" sugar mills that the government "shall consider necessary to expropriate or that in some other manner shall be acquired from their owners."

The tax is one cent per kilogram and is expected to yield more than 3,000,000 pesos (nominally around ($600,000) annually. The other taxes were upon electric utilities, banks and airlines.

They were considered of special significance, Excelsior said, because the legislature for the first time refused to permit publication of 1939 budget estimates by the president yesterday.

Mail Held Up

At Croydon airport it was announced regular flights to Berlin, Prague and Stockholm had been cancelled. Imperial Airways said service had been suspended between England and French Mediterranean airports and southeastern Europe. Thousands of pieces of Empire mail probably will be delayed as a result of the suspension.

Metropolitan trains which normally takes 36 minutes between Barking and Blackfriars took 85 minutes today and expreses between the metropolis and other parts of England were from 60 to 90 minutes late. Office workers living in London suburbs reported from 30 to 60 minutes late because of tansportation delays.

treachery of legal intrigue."

Regarding his concealment of his masquerade from his wife, Coster-Musica said he had "too much pride and regard for a lonely, devoted and sick wife to confide in her my inner heart."

He said any gifts or presents he made to his wife or members of his family was "not company money," and that his wife "had no knowledge of any nature or description of my situation or operations."

"My brothers-in-law both did as I asked them because they thought it was right and proper to do so and trusted me," he said. "They received no material reward and did so blindly—at my request."

Coster-Musica concluded his death-document with the statement that "as you shall deal with my poor, unfortunate wife, her family and mine, in like measure shall God reward you all."

Reich said the note was written the night before Coster-Musica shot himself, that it was addressed to Reich and found among the dead man's papers.

75-Year-Old Indian Woman Still Teaches Music Has Had Remarkable Career

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ROSENEATH, Dec. 22—A romantic tale is the life story of Mrs. Mary Ann Black, 75-year-old Indian woman who resides on the Alderville reserve. A teacher of music at 75—a fact in itself unusual enough—she is the child of a woman who started life wailing in the open forest beside her dead mother.

There is an old Indian custom that used to be followed a century and more ago by which an expectant mother, when the time arrived for her child to be born, went alone to the neighboring forest and suffered without help, without even the presence of her husband to help her. As soon as she was well enough, following the baby's birth, the mother would come back to her home, bringing the child with her

Mrs. Mary Ann Black was born Mary Ann Crowe, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Peter Crowe. Her mother was Mary Howard, whose mother followed the old custom, went off alone into the bush to bear her child. She failed to return and a search party was organized by her relatives to find her. The searchers came upon her dead body, her newborn child wailing beside her.

That was a hundred years ago, and the child grew up to give birth herself to a daughter who was to have a remarkable career. That daughter has travelled the country as a concert artist, and she is still accomplished. She plays the piano admirably, and her voice is still good. At present she is helping to train public school pupils at Alderville for their Christmas concert. She is the superintendent of the Sunday School and teaches the bible class.

Remarkable Career

Mrs. Black's parentage is no less remarkable than her career. Her father was perhaps the only Mohawk Indian who ever became a teacher of music. He came to Alderville from Kingston during his youth and married Mary Howard, a member of the Ojibway tribe. A farmer with about a hundred acres of land, Peter Crowe was more concerned about music. He took his first lessons from a white bandmaster, who taught him to play the cornet, and then he proceeded to teach himself how to play the piano as best he could. In time he became so proficient he was able to read music with ease, and he gave lessons and became known all through the district as a remarkable man. He passed on to his children an appreciation for music, taught them how to play piano and violin. Later Peter Crowe organized a concert troupe in which his own family played a major part. His two daughters, Mary Ann, who was then nineteen, and Charlotte, and Sampson Comego and Wesley Beaver comprised the troupe. They travelled for several months through Ohio, Pennsylvania, and New York states, giving concerts every night and matinees on Sunday afternoons, before crowded houses. Mr. Crowe's stage name was Tecumseh; Mary Ann was called Princess Viroque, and Charlotte was Little Fawn. Charlotte played the piano, Mary Ann the violin, and all of them sang. All were dressed in elaborate Indian costumes and their selections included sacred, secular, and comic music.

In later years, Mr. Crowe, accompanied by Charlotte and Mary Ann and another daughter, Sarah, now Mrs. Norman Marsden of Alderville, and his son, Albert, travelled through Ontario giving concerts under the auspices of the former Methodist church.

Studied In Peterborough

In her early twenties, Mary Ann, under the guardianship of an Anglican church clergyman named Rev. J. J. Johnson, travelled to Minnesota and played the organ in the Anglican church on the White Earth Indian reserve. There Mary Ann studied piano, staying about three years until she was called home by the death of her father. She studied the violin further, going to Peterborough once a week to a professional teacher.

Years after his wife's death Peter Crowe married again and five children were born of the second marriage. He died nearly twenty years ago, leaving descendants numbering more than sixty.

Mary Ann Crowe was herself twice married. Her first husband was Benjamin Loukes of Hiawatha, at which village she lived for seventeen years until his death. Seven years later she married Richard Black, who died in 1931.

She always preserved her interest in music, taught piano to pupils both white and Indian. She still plays and sings, has a delicate touch on the piano and a clear, firm, bell-like voice.

Knew The Famous

She has a memory that is keen to an extreme, can recount a hundred incidents that place her in a unique position. She knew Mrs. Moody, famed author of "Roughing It In The Bush," and recalls that literary woman as a person "very plain, pleasant and gracious." She often visited Dr. Oronoteka at Deseronto for years high chief ranger of the Independent Order of Foresters and himself an Indian. "His wife was father's cousin," she said.

A famous cook in her day, Mrs. Black still like to excell at that art. She said her most tasty dishes are of black rice soup, vegetables, meat, porridge and pudding.

Mrs. Black will be 76 years old on January 20. In full possession of all her faculties, she reads without glasses and often walks the mile to Roseneath. In her little home beside the highway, with her piano, her memories of the past, her activities of the present, she is rounding out a life that has been richly lived.

Cutting The Relief Lists

Hon. Eric Cross of the Department of Municipal Affairs claims that a re-adjustment of relief matters in the city of Ottawa cut the costs over a ten-month period to the extent of $369,904, and the city itself was saved $101,000 in that period. For the full year he estimates the saving at $129,000.

The reason why the Department of Municipal Affairs took a hand was that the provincial government has to help foot the relief bill and it was felt it was too great. The result has been that 1,000 families have been taken off the Ottawa relief list and that means 4,000 persons are not now receiving relief who were formerly drawing assistance.

Mr. Cross intimates the same methods will be used elsewhere, and taking 4,000 off the relief list in one good-sized city is sufficient to warrant an extension of the system by which such results were made possible.

A $3,500 Tree

Perhaps readers will say it is old stuff to keep on warning people about the danger of fire from a Christmas tree. It may be old but Christmas trees continue to burst into flame just as they have done before.

A policeman in Toronto had just finished trimming a tree in his home and was preparing to leave to go on duty. Then he took his pipe from his pocket, struck a match and there was a fire. Part of the match head chipped off and ignited some of the trimmings and the policeman had barely time to call the fire department because the flames were right after him as he stood at the telephone. That is how fast a tree fire works.

There was damage of $2,000 to the house and $1,500 to the contents and members of the family had to make their escape through the back door. The warning about fires in such trees is old. That is known and admitted but a $3,500 fire is sufficient evidence that the warning needs repeating.

Getting Loans In Britain

Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer in the British Government, has served notice that the hand of officialdom will deal in future with foreign loans made by British bankers. That is not a new development because the same thing has been in force before. It is probably felt too much of the nation's gold is getting out of the country, and there may be the feeling that Britain is going to keep a hand on its financial resources for its own use.

Back of it all there is undoubtedly the knowledge that Britain is preparing to meet the challenge now forced by Germany in the securing of export trade. Germany is and has been resorting to a system of industrial bonus by which German-made goods are entering even the British market at a price with which British industrialists cannot compete, and the same method is used to enter other markets in the British dominions. If a trade war develops one cannot predict with certainty where it will end or how it will terminate.

Much of the world has become so accustomed to turning to Britain when money is needed that it is now considered wise to have an explanation which will satisfy treasury officials as to who is getting it and the purpose for which it is going to be used. In the present state of the world an unrestricted policy of foreign loans in Britain might well result in the building up of schemes and organizations in other lands with which Britain would sooner or later be called upon to compete or contend. The present move should not be regarded as evidence of fear. Rather the opposite.

The Size Of Russia

A group of young men in this city were having a discussion the other evening when one of them made this rather unusual observation:

If two men started from Moscow, Russia, at the same time, one going east toward Vladivostok and the other going west toward Peterborough, the one coming to Peterborough would arrive first. He explained there was no catch in it, the only stipulation being that the traveller in Russia should go by the railway line leading from Moscow to Vladivostok on the Sea or Japan. The young man's claim was we thought of our country as being very large and failed to realize the size of Russia.

The railway line from Moscow to Vladivostok is not straight, but fairly so, although it dips quite well toward the south toward the end, and the distance between those points is 5,500 miles by railway.

From Quebec to Liverpool is 2,625 miles and from Peterborough to Quebec is approximately 400, making 3,035 miles from Peterborough to Liverpool. It was difficult to secure reliable information on the distance from Liverpool to Moscow, but finally F. de la Fosse of the library, who will eventually find the answer to anything, found it is 2,117 miles, making in all 5,142 miles from Peterborough, which falls far short of the distance from Moscow in the west of Russia to Vladivostok in the east of the same country. So the person starting from Moscow to Peterborough, on the basis of miles covered, would reach here sooner than the one who started from Moscow for Vladivostok.

A study of world maps shows that the east to west distance in Russia is sufficiently great that if the mileage were extended in our direction from the western boundary of Russia it would be sufficient to land well out in the Pacific Ocean on the other side of British Columbia.

Russia (or the Union of Soviet Socialistic Republics) is larger in extent than Canada, United States, Mexico and Alaska combined.

Part-Way Resolution

Men who are out of work in Pictou county, N.S., have decided to take the bull by the horns. They find it hard to get relief, and they have been told a good many times by government inspectors "if you would stay away from the liquor stores when you are working you would be better able to stand a period of unemployment without having to ask for help."

So they called a mass meeting at Stellarton where the situation was discussed from Dan to Beersheba, and it was decided to do something which would cause officials to notice their determination. The result was a resolution to the Nova Scotia legislature asking that all the liquor stores be closed while the present unemployment situation continues to exist. They want relief and consider that will help them get it. Whether they are prepared to continue or extend their resolution to cover the periods when they will again be working is something about which the report said nothing at all. Their attempts at resolutions would have carried more weight if they had been willing to curtail their spending on liquor when they had money. However they have at least made a start by declaring that relief money will not be spent on drink.

The Horse Would Suffer

In the latest report of the local Humane Society there is reference to a case where a farmer was found working horses with sore shoulders. Horses can have a good many ailments and still do a fair amount of light work, but when it comes to sore shoulders it's a different matter. It means that the sore is not going to have a chance to heal; the irritation of the collar will keep on making the shoulder worse and such a horse suffers.

When a horse is harnessed in the usual heavy working outfit he does his pulling against the shoulder. A bad-fitting collar or the absence of needed pads beneath it will bring on the soreness and it breaks through the skin and becomes raw. A man with a heart will take such horse out of work and dress the sore spot and give it a chance to heal. Keeping on working such an animal is one reason why it is necessary to have Humane Societies. That one case is sufficient to justify the existence of the local Society.

No Independence In Politics

It is being repeatedly urged that we have too much politics in our national life, and that we need more independent thought and action. Not for a moment are we disposed to question that theory on the ground of being desirable, but it rather falls to pieces when we come to the more serious business of giving it practical application.

For purpose of illustration we take it for granted we elected 245 members to our federal government on the basis of their independence; we had for the meantime done away with party lines entirely. The members need some sort of organization and they would have to select a leader or a prime minister and so on. After they had begun the transaction of national business they would have to deal with such matters as tariffs, trade agreements, the extent of taxation and the securing of revenue. We would not possibly send 245 men to Ottawa who would agree upon a tariff, and when a decision was made by the majority vote of the 245 independent members it would be found that those in favor of tariff would be voting together and those opposed would be faced in the other direction. And right there we would have our 245 independent people split into two parties.

And right then they would be into politics, and once that had taken place they would have forfeited their independence.

Experience shows that the man who is politically independent does not get far in public life. He may have a splendid idea as to how some national problem should be solved or redress given to some grievance, but if he wants to have it made effective he has to secure sufficient votes. In order to do that he must have a standing with the government of the day; he must be recognized as a fit and faithful person to be trusted in the meetings of the party caucus. Otherwise he will find he is headed up a blind alley. He may be as sincere as man can be and as honest as they turn them out, but he cannot walk alone.

There is much said in praise of independence in political matters but most of it fine theory and poor in practical substance. Admittedly it makes our political system weaker but our way of doing business in a democracy lends itself to party politics. There is no encouragement for the independent.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Fire in Acton is reported to have started in a hamburger store. Probably a hot dog got overheated.

Very expressive is the wordage of a London despatch telling of a fall of snow in that city: "Snow fell in London from early morning creating a mess of slush through which Londoners sloshed."

Farmer in Huron county found in his field a mangel which had grown in such a way that it was tied in a complete knot. Perhaps the farmer felt the same way when it came time to pay the taxes.

One man in Toronto who wanted to run for mayor could not get any persons to place his name in nomination. So whatever chance he had of being elected seemed to have halted right there.

A citywide strike of truck drivers in Detroit was called off a few minutes before it was to start, and that appears to us as being the right time to settle a strike.

Bruce county farmer says when driving along the road recently wolves came and kept biting at the tires on the car. In Jim Curran's Algoma district they climb up and sit in the front seat with the driver.

Harvey Gravell, paint manufacturer, gives bonuses to his employees because he says they have made his success possible. We take it that employees working under such conditions will give the firm about all they have in the way of brains and effort.

When Anthony Eden was speaking in New York recently he used a phrase which describes a good deal of the trouble in the world today: "We all want the same thing."

Britain is to spend $100,000,000 providing places where people may go in case of air raids. These hiding-away spots might look attractive too when a rather persistent creditor makes his appearance.

R. S. Robertson, K.C. who becomes Chief Justice of Ontario, will resign from the firm of Fasken, Robertson, Aitchison, Pickup and Calvin. Even with Mr. Robertson out there will be some person home when a client calls at the office.

Farmer from Embro tried to drive his car across a level crossing in Ingersoll and probably would have done so had there not been a standing freight train there. He says he never saw the train, and that seems possible as we didn't either.

W. C. Fields, the screen star, received a bill for $12,000 from a doctor who attended him when he had pneumonia. In court the doctor claimed the bill was based on the patient's ability to pay, but the patient contended it had been based on the doctor's ability to charge.

Premier Hepburn admits it would be physically impossible for him to lead a session of the Ontario Legislature in his present state of health, but hopes to feel better when he returns from Australia. When a man's health breaks the position of Premier of this province is not the proper place for a speedy recovery.

AH SHUCKS!

(By A. R. K.)

¶ When I go shopping in the store, I always like to find the floor, where they keep toys and things; unless they bid me go away, I like to pause a while and stay, and start and wind the springs.

¶ I joy to see the monkey climb, upon a piece of reddened twine, the smartest thing in town; way he goes up I like to see, and then again I laugh with glee, when he comes sliding down.

¶ I like the trains upon the track, I like to push the switches back, I like to fix the rails; when something's wrong then I depart, I cannot take the thing apart, and find just why it fails.

¶ I like the wound-up man who walks, like he could cover blocks and blocks, with other wooden men; I put him down upon the floor, and when he doesn't walk no more, I wind him up again.

¶ The rocking horse is gay indeed, a trusty looking sort of steed, the dogs of wool and fur; I don't think they would bite and snap, they don't appear a bit like that, no vicious kind of cur.

¶ Alas there came the dreaded time, for yesterday I read a sign, it spoiled my fun and poise; the words were printed there in red, and this is what the message said—"You Must Not Handle Toys."

SWISS LANGUAGE

THERE is no Swiss language, and the nearest approach is Romansch, nearly obsolete speech of the mountaineers in certain Grisons vallers, derived from Latin and admitted as a national language in 1937.

Of the four million citizens in Europe's oldest democracy, 73 per cent speak German, 20 per cent French, six per cent Italian, one per cent Romansch.

By last week it had become evident that many German-speaking Swiss want to stop using German and to make a separate tongue of their own.

As long as most Swiss people speak the German language, Nazi Propagandist Goebbels will show them on his maps as part of the "Greater Germany." With a language of their own, however, they could be considered as a separate nationality like the Dutch, also originally under German rule, but who later made their North German dialect into a language.

So different from Literary German is the South German dialect spoken by the Swiss among themselves that visitors from Berlin and Vienna arriving at Basle railway station have to converse with the porters in French.

Lately, several of Switzerland's cantons have permitted in parliamentary debates a Swiss dialect called Schwytzerdutsch (Swiss-Dutch).

Last week the parliament of Zug (pop. 35,000), one of the tiniest German-speaking cantons, went a step further and unanimously decided to make the use of Schwytzerdutsch compulsory, to the disgust of the National Front, unimportant Swiss Fascist movement which sympathises with the Nazis, in Germany.—News Review (London).

CHRISTMAS CAROL.

(St. Thomas Times-Journal)

THE EDITOR was looking for the latest developments in the most recent political feud to come in over the wire on The Canadian Press printers when the man at headquarters decided on a test of the system. And this is what was printed:

Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of their party.
Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of their party.
Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of their party.
Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of their party.

How would it do to set these famous words to music and have it sung as a Christmas carol by Messrs. King, Hepburn, Gardiner, Howe, Rogers et al?

• Hitler Once Cracked A Joke

HITLER PERMITS no one to smoke near him, and does not smoke himself. The reason is said to be the sensitiveness of his air-passages due to early lung trouble and later gas poisoning.

Hungry years in Vienna affected his digestion. In 1928 he complained of a gastric disorder, and now, while not an absolute vegetarian, he avoids meat dishes. For breakfast it is said he eats eggs, milk, bread and jam; for dinner and supper, eggs, salad, vegetables and preserves. A reporter once asked him if he ever tired of this diet. Hitler replied: "I vary it. One day I eat eggs and salad, and the next day salad and eggs." This is the only joke anybody has ever heard him make.

Hitler's father, a cobbler by trade, was born the illegitimate child of a poor peasant girl. Hitler himself was at one time a housepainter.

It has been estimated that the average German gives the Hitler salute about fifty times a day. In German schools, at the beginning of each lesson the teacher raises his right arm and says "Heil Hitler!" and the pupils rise and repeat the rite. The same ceremony follows each lesson. Hitler himself, when he gives the salute, cries "Heil Hitler!"

Hitler has made a fortune out of the royalties from his book, "Mein Kampf," which translated means "My Struggle." The book, part of which he wrote while in prison, has sold 1,890,000 copies and has been translated into 14 languages. It is required reading in German schools, and is presented to all German bridegrooms as a wedding gift from the government.

Hitler, so it is said, keeps a revolver ready in one of his desk drawers; should his power be swept away he will use it.

"Are you ready to take this woman as wife and live with her in marriage according to German customs?" the bridegroom is asked in the marriage ceremony of a new sect, the German People's Church. The groom responds, while giving the Hitler salute, "Jawohl! Heil Hitler!" The bride responds in the same manner to the question, "Are you ready to stand at the side of this man in the hard struggle in behalf of the German fatherland?"

When Hitler speaks from a pulpit he incorpates many of the technical devices which Nazi-banned Max Reinhardt gave to the German stage. In front of him, concealed from the audience, are rows of buttons. By means of these, Hitler manipulates the searchlights, now directing attention to the Nazi flag, now to the tremendous audience, frequently to himself, which is the signal for his black-shirts to begin shouting, stamping, and clapping. One of the more important of the buttons is that which gives the order to photographers to shoot; the camerman who shoots film at the wrong moment may be instantly sent to a concentration camp. At Karlsruhe, when Hitler delivered a speech, two miles of wire had to be laid down for the complicated device which is such a vital adjunct to the German Chancellor's flamboyant manner of presenting himself.

Hitler rarely or never reads books, but he sits for hours absorbed in music, particularly that of Wagner and Beethoven.

The Fuhrer is protected continually by an army of some 600 men carefully chosen for the honor. Police patrol his living quarters and offices in the Chancellery on Berlin's Wilhelmstrasse. When he addresses a meeting, 20 to 30 rows of guards occupy the area between him and the populace. Four armed cars precede and four follow his black Mercedes when he goes driving. Papers are forbidden to print his itineraries, and the people have been ordered to stop throwing flowers because of the danger of concealed bombs.

Hitler, unlike most of the leaders of European states, does not receive a regular salary. He is given a salary for the chancellorship of about $9,000 a year, and one for the presidency of $24,000, but the first is turned over to a special trust fund and the second he ordered withheld by the treasury. It is said, however, that he does accept the president's "entertainment fund" of $48,000. No one knows with any certainty whether Hitler, in spite of the vast royalties from his book, is a wealthy or a comparatively poor man.

• China Gets A Loan In U.S.

NEUTRALITY! thy name is Limbo! The extension of a $25,000,000 commercial credit to a Chinese trading company marks the first definite breach in American neutrality. America is now officially siding with Chiang Kai-shek's China.

The hole in neutrality has been made so cleverly that it is not observable to the naked eye. The credit is extended by an American Government instrumentality known as the Export-Import Bank. But it goes to a Chinese trading company that nobody has ever heard of hitherto. It sounds as if it were a dummy corporation set up for this specific purpose. At any rate, back of the company as the guarantor of repayment is the Bank of China. And this is as near to being a government bank as a bank can be that isn't wholly owned by a government. One might call it a quasi-government instrumentality. Missing out the trading company, therefore, one sees an unneutrality established at several removes between Washington and Chungking.

Of course, the goods for which the loan has been accorded are to be "purely commercial." This is another aspect of the camouflage. The goods happen to be of the kind that Chiang Kai-shek requires for his new "hit and run" campaign against the Japanese. There will be such goods as motor trucks and gasoline.

How the goods will get to Chiang may be something of a problem. Chiang Kai-shek's China is now cooped up in the southwest territory. And Japan controls all the seaports and the main lines of modern communication. Most of Chiang's scanty supplies, in consequence, have to come overland from Soviet Russia. Through Burma he is no doubt getting some, and there may be a trickle through French Indo-China. Otherwise the inlets are sealed up by a pretty effective Japanese blockade. However, that is a Chinese problem, and there are few people in the world who have more ingenuity in getting through a net than the Chinese. What they want in order to keep up their morale and their struggle are supplies f.o.b.

The new arrangement is, of course, no violation of the letter of the Neutrality Statute. There can be no violation as long as the President refrains from declaring the existence of a state of war. The statutory embargoes on loans (and munitions of war) are dependent upon such a declaration.

It might appear strange that the President has not called by the name of war the conflict which has been raging in the Far East. For there are few wars in history which have had a clearer title to the designation. The explanation is that this very reticence has been part of American unneutrality.

The President has not proclaimed that a war in fact exists because the invocation of the statutory embargoes on certain goods to both sides which would automatically follow such a proclamation would be hurtful to China.

LOVELY GIRLS.

(Lindsay Post)

THERE MAY BE plenty of beautiful girls in the South. There undoubtedly are, but those people who live in the South or who go down there each Winter, miss something really worth while. They miss the unequalled beauty of a Canadian girl's complexion after she comes in from a walk, skate or ski party in the crisp Winter air. We aren't an authority on beauty but we'll match our Canadian red-cheeked girls against the sun-tanned southern belles any day in the week and remain reasonable confident of the outcome. There's something about Winter winds that adds to the beauty of our women.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

IN THE BEGINNING was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God....All things were made by him; and without him was not any thing made that was made.—John 1; 1, 3.

✧ ✧ ✧

And God said, Let there be light: and there was light....And God said, Let there be a firmament in the midst of the waters, and let it divide the waters from the waters....And God said, Let the waters under the heaven be gathered together unto one place, and let the dry land appear: and it was so. And God called the dry land Earth; and the gathering together of the water called he Seas and God saw that it was good...

And God said, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness: and let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth. So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him; male and female created he them.—Gen. 1; 3, 6, 9, 10, 26, 27.

WHEN TO VOTE.

(Brantford Expositor)

DURING the voting on the first Monday in December the town of Waterloo had a ballot which asked the electors to choose which of three dates they favored for holding their election. These were the first Monday in December, the first Monday in January, and New Year's Day. The result of the vote was significant, because the town has held elections in past years on all three days.

More than 70 per cent of the voters favored the first Monday in December.

The jarring and political rancor during this happy festival are like "sweet bells jangled out of tune." It is no wonder that every year more municipalities are voting on the first Monday in December, leaving the entire season of Christmas and New Year's free from political strife.

Annual Concert Big Success On Dutch Line

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Dec. 22. — The annual community concert in connection with the Dutch Line School, under the direction of the teacher, Miss Donna Nelson, was held on Friday evening, the school being filled to capacity for the occasion.

Decorations included wreaths, streamers in red and green, bells, and a well-laden Christmas tree. Mr. Lewis Stinson was chairman, and extended a warm welcome to the audience, many coming from a distance.

The program opened with a welcome song by the school. Mr. Hazell of Campbellford was accompanist for all the numbers and Beatty's orchestra from Warkworth supplied music between numbers.

Outstanding numbers were the dialogues by the older young people of the section. All were most humorous and well received. Philip Convey, Gordon McGee, Wallace Stinson, Olive Varcoe, Fred Hand and Violet Dalnard were the characters in the play, "White Cabin." "Over the Back Fence" was an exceptionally humorous dialogue. Wallace Stinson as "Petunit" and W. Warren as "Mangolia" were dressed as two Alabama girls, and even their costumes created lots of laughter. Their second number was a song, "The Old Apple Tree." Mrs. Wallace Orr as Sally Grindstone and Wallace Orr as John Overall were well applauded following the play, "The Coon Crick Courtship." In the play, "The Kidnapping of Betty," the following took part: Geraldine Faux, Violet Dainard, Kathaleen Skinkle, Marguerite Faux, Angus Smith, Joseph Convey and W. Coveney.

The numbers by the school pupils included recitations by Billie Johnston, Arnold Thompson, Gordon Dunlay; duets, "John and Mary" and "The Girl on the Little Blue Plate," were by Mary Dunlay and Reta Barry; solos, "Tiny Little Finger Prints," by Rose Simpson, and "Santa's Express," Noreen Dunlay; trio, "Silver on the Sage," by Glen McMasters, Bernard and Martin Faux; choruses by the school; dance by Mr. Charles Deemey, and a folk dance by little girls.

The jingling of bells heralded the arrival of Santa Claus, and with the assistance of the teacher and others the tree was unloaded.

He Knew Him

BROCKTON, Mass., Dec. 22 — (AP).—A Lakeville man applying for citizenship was asked, "I suppose you know all the town officers in Lakeville?" The man pointed to Deputy Sheriff Fred Shockley: "That's him over there." He was right. Shockey is Lakeville's chairman of the board of selectmen, chairman of the board of health, chairman of the board of assessors, chairman of the board of registrars and town park commissioner.

FOWLER'S CORNERS, Dec. 22.—Pupils of S. S. No. 2, Smith, of which Miss Ruth Jones is the popular teacher, presented an interesting Christmas concert in Lakevale church on Friday evening, a large gathering being present. The children performed to good advantage on the larger platform. Homer Ouelette, teacher of singing at the school, acted as accompanist for the various exercises.

The program included the following numbers: Welcome, Isabel Moncrieff; chorus by the school, "Signs of Christmas" Wilma Darling, Orland Kidd, Ethelmae Johnston, Billie Murray, Wilfred Moncrieff; play, "Fowler's Corners Uplift Society," Ruby Kerr, Maxine Kidd, Margaret Westlake, Isabel and Merle Moncrieff, Hilda Darling, Eunice Moncrieff; Merry Christmas drill; rythmic exercises; dialogue, "More Than He Bargained For," Lily Kerr, Ronald Moncrieff, Russell Johnston, Eunice Moncrieff, Genevieve Eggleston; recitation, Margaret Westlake; "The Magic Hour" by whole school; reading, Maxine Kidd; dialogue, "The Unwilling Tramp," Emmeline Kerr, Merle Moncrieff, Joyce Deyell, Marjorie Millan; candle drill, Maxine Kidd, Margaret Westlake, Eunice Moncrieff, Isabel Moncrieff, Wilma Darling, Hilda Darling, Emmeline Kerr, Joyce Deyell, Ruby Kerr, Merle Moncrieff; remarks from K. Rev. J. M. Young acted as chairman and Santa Claus distributed the gifts at the close of the program.

BRITISH SWASTIKA

LONDON—(CP).—Photograph of a British plane with a swastika on the fuselage puzzled many until it was explained that the aircraft was for the Latvian army. Finnish planes for years also have used the swastika.

Trent Young People Hold Double Session

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TRENT RIVER, Dec. 22.—Owing to the Christmas tree and concert being held at Old Havelock School Friday night there was a small attendance at the Junior Young People's meeting. Rev. A. McLauchlin was in charge.

Jimmy Umphrey acted as secretary. Doris Waters read a Christmas story, "Star in the East." Jeryne Brown gave a reading, "Mother and Child" (E. Pratt). Rev. Mr. McLauchlin led in Prayer.

In the absence of Miss Doris Scott the Young People's meeting was held following the Junior meeting, in charge of Mrs. Harry Mann, convener. Miss B. French supplied as pianist. Three Christmas hymns were sung. Miss Florence Shearer read the scripture lesson. Rev. A. McLauchlin led in prayer. The meeting for Friday night, Dec. 23 will be withdrawn owing to the Christmas tree the night previous.

The secretary, Rena Chaplin, read a letter with an invitation from Havelock Y.P.S. to Trent River young people to a party Monday night at Havelock. The invitation was accepted. A reading, "Christmas Prayer," was given by Helen Hay. Mrs. Harry Mann read a lesson from the Pathfinder. Miss V. Chaplin gave a vocal number, "Star of the East."

The story of the great classic, Dickens' "Christmas Carol" by Henry VanDyke was given impressively by Rev. A. McLauchlin taking the first three parts—(1) The sign in the sky; (2) By the waters of Babylon; (2) For the sake of a little child. Mrs. McLauchlin gave the remainder: (4) A man of sorrows; (5) The Pearl of great price. The lesson from the story proves "some kind of failure is better than success." After the singing of "Hark the Herald Angels Sing," the meeting closed with the Mizpah Benediction.

Jam Town Hall For Concert Warsaw Church

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, Dec. 22.—A full house greeted the Presbyterian Sunday school in the Town Hall on Friday evening. The hall was pretty with Christmas decorations.

The opening chorus was sung by the children on the platform. Dr. Munro gave a short address. Other items included a motion song; a recitation by Dorothy Jackson; a recitation, "My Wish for You," by Vera Darrett; a step dance by tiny Max Dunford; Violet Darrett gave "Her Wish for You"; Jean Jackson recited "A Tattle-Tale"; Beatrice and Betty Jackson gave "As Tommy Was Walking"; Alvin Bell recited "Archie's Christmas"; eleven girls gave a star drill; Douglas Evans recited "Sunbeam Soap"; Willa and Bobby Wright sang "Billy Boy"; Rodney Douglas spoke of "Castor Oil"; June Bell recited "That's What I Want for Christmas"; Irene Sidey recited "What I Look Like"; five girls sang a hymn chorus, "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear"; Kennard Lonsberry recited "Greedy Jim"; an amusing playlet, "A Tempest in a Teapot," was given by members of the Junior Bible Class; Raymond Clements gave a violin selection, accompanied by Mrs Munroe at the piano; Mrs. Trevor Watts recited "The Last Hymn"; eight girls in white flowing robes and wearing silver head-pieces gave in pantomime "Calm on the Listening Ear," while Mrs. Munroe and Trevor Watts sang the hymn.

Santa Claus appeared and each member and a number of visitors received a box of candy from the school. Many other gifts were on the tree.

Miss Hendren, organist, played for most of the children's songs.

On Friday evening at 8 o'clock the W.I. will give candies, nuts and oranges to children under 12 who are at the cenotaph. Carols will be sung.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

From Knotty Lee comes a Christmas greeting. The venerable coach of the Ogdensburg Colts in the Can.-Am. class "D" pro ball loop — who used to coach the Petes in diamond warfare when the C.O.B.L. was something more than a set of initials—lives in Toronto during the off-season, but he never forgets baseball. He'll talk it the year 'round. Knotty adds this item: "Would you wish the baseball fans of Peterborough a merry Christmas for me? Yours truly, Knotty Lee." We will do that glady, Knotty, and we know that a lot of local followers of baseball will be glad you didn't forget 'em. The veteran pilot recently signed another contract to handle the Colts, which he piloted to a title the season before last.

* * * * * *

Jack Gardner turned in a good effort with the Petes in Owen Sound the other night, and he hopes to catch a place with the local senior 'B" squad this winter. We rather hope so, too. But, of course, that is up to Jawn himself—and the Petes' pilot is liable to have a tough time picking his squad as he has quite a raft of good puckists battling now for berths. Gardner was captain of the local intermediate Bees last season and looked okay. Before that he shone on local junior and intermediate O.H.A. teams for several seasons—and had a year with St. Mikes, on their invitation. A speedy skater and good hockeyist, Jack is noted as a real battler. And we have a weakness for fighting athletes. The average heart, we hear, is from eight to 10 ounces in weight, but we'll bet Jack's goes 12 ounces!

* * * * * *

An All-Around Athlete

Ere passing on to other subjects, we figure Gardner scales about 160 pounds and he is 24 years old. We know that as we went on a lot of trips with Jack when he and Bill Calladine were sparking our junior team along. And Jack is a real all-round athlete, though idle for the past year in sports. He had quite a rep in running races and in swimming and diving. He starred in hockey, football, boxing and wrestling. And he played a good game of baseball, softball and lacrosse. There are several hundred athletic guys in town that we'd rather have fight with us! We can recall last year's championship P.C.I. rugby banquet when H. R. H. Kenner spoke of all the athletes who had played for that school. He said of Jack Gardner: "Young Gardner was a fine all-around athlete," and that is certainly true. So we kinda hope he makes a place on the team. Jack (Smoke) Gardner adds a lotta color to a squad.

* * * * * *

Comes this letter from "J.L." today: "Dear Sir—I have been a follower of hockey in Peterborough for years and have seen two championships here. Yet the people of Peterborough have not bothered much about getting a decent arena for the boys to play so that they can get some good teams here. Why not put it up to the people to get a hockey rink by selling them stock at $2.00 pershare, payable in 10 years at three p.c. interest? Surely the people will buy the stock when they know what it is for. Then maybe we will see some good hockey games. P.S. It is about time Peterborough wakened up to the fact they are alive." Apparently, J.L. is something of a veteran fan as it's 1906 since we had our second last titular team—but he has the right idea; we really need a new arena.

* * * * * *

A Starry Old-Timer

Frank (Moose) Heffernan, who died yesterday in New York, was an oldtime junior star in hockey here, around about 1910. One of the best who ever left here in hockey circles. Played in Ottawa and on a senior champion team in Toronto before signing for the old pro St. Pat's in that city—now the Maple Leafs. He was a big guy and a real puck-chaser and also a rugby player. Born in Peterborough, he made his name in hockey in other centres but oldtimers here will recall him. The funeral is to be held here.

* * * * * *

Like old man river, Doc Rowden of Oshawa just keeps rolling along. He don't plant 'taters, but he does plant that squat frame of his in front of a lot of senior forwards on the ice and he gives 'em the old heave-ho, and he is one of the main scorers with the General Motors gang again this winter. Relieved of his coaching worries this year, Rowden is playing fine hockey once more. And he led the GM-men in loop hitting on the diamond last summer, though he committed matrimony in the playoffs and was lost to his team—a rather sore point with some of the players. They felt that, after all, you can get a wife any time but ya can't always win a title in sports! There are two schools of thought on this subject—and no doubt one is a girls' school....

* * * * * *

The Main Marksmen

Speedy St. Louis and Clayt Jackson are leading the Belleville Redmen in scoring in the VanHorne Cup series now, with five points each, while Bill Jackson has four. Bentley and Storms are next with three each and Cy Barriage has two assists. Other Quinte players—whom local fans will soon get to know—are Leary, Prevost, McElrath and McCreary. The Trenton Fliers' lineup lately is: Goal, Gibson; defence, Olekevis and Jamieson; centre, Lecompte; wings, Eric McNeeley and Legris; subs, Todd, Richardson, Brackenbury, McNab and Baldwin. We will get to know this outfit soon, too.

* * * * * *

With Whitby dropping out of junior puck ranks, the Oshawa scribe says: "No club can be always pleased with the grouping they get. Some years there is bound to be dissatisfaction and it seems a shame that the Whitby club is going to fold up. The folding up attitude is always the easiest way out of an unpleasant situation but sometimes it is worth while to stick it out and see what happens. The real sportsman is the fellow who keeps lending his support, even when things are not so pleasant. After all, the young boys who are being given a chance to play hockey are not to blame for the grouping—and they are the ones who will suffer in Whitby." Very commendable, fellow, and we hope you continue to feel this way when you learn that the Oshawa junior "B" team has been denuded of a grouping this winter!

* * * * * *

Hither and yawn: Local Lock Works is organizing an athletic club now for employees; good stuff....Executive girls' basketball meeting tonight in the Y.W. at seven bells....Les Reeves, manager of the Oshawa GM-men's ball club in '36, has died in Delaware....Longest puck clash was that playoff between Wings and Maroons in Montreal which lasted 176½ minutes....City outdoor rinks are being flooded these days....And the ice at the Brock St. rink is beginning to look pretty respectable....Likely no cage contests at the "Y" this week-end, due to the Xmas rush ....One of the Petes' pucksters said yesterday: "I'd hate to be picking the team this year—several good players will have to be overlooked"....Hope the Orfuns' officials are asking Santa for half a dozen star grid imports....Bill Prindible says it's a shame the Junior City Puck Loop isn't operating this winter, ice being unavailable—and we agree....Prospective Petes are invited to a workout at nine tonight in the Brock....We hear Frank Scully, star infielder with the Petes till a bean-ball finished him, is living up around Kirkland Lake now; and he's married....Barnes is playing for Lethbridge 'way out west this winter....We warned ya in August to do your Christmas shopping early.

Coach Hines In Toronto For A Visit

(Vern DeGeer, in Toronto Globe and Mail.)

Featuring a Baltimore hair-cut, an Atlantic City fedora, a Broadway shirt, a Hershey necktie, but still wearing a Merton Street grin, he invaded the sports department late in the evening. He was none other than William Oliver (Pick) Hines, the former cigar purveyor of Ontario, who recently sailed off for the Chesepeake Bay region that beats the drums for its thoroughbred racehorses, its Navy football teams—and now, its Eastern States Amateur Hockey League team. On the recommendation of Lester Patrick of the New York Rangers, Hines was installed as coach of the Baltimore Orioles several weeks ago. His assignment was a big one. For four prevous seasons the Orioles had been sunk in the basement of one of the most powerful amateur hockey organizations in United States or Canada.

Combining his own intimate knowledge of Ontario amateur hockey talent with the recommendation of Toronto friends, Hines recruited new timber for the rejuvenation of the Orioles before skipping off to Baltimore. Experienced campaigners of other Eastern League teams and a couple of hold-overs from the 1937-38 Baltimore roster were added to the new machine. The team dropped four games in a row in early season campaigning, before rounding into shape. Then came a spectacular rally which saw the Orioles win eight out of nine games. Today the club is second in the league, five points back of the powerful New York Rovers. The league record shows the Orioles with eight wins, seven losses and one tie. They have won two games, lost two in engagements with Lester Patrick's classy New York Rovers, coached by Frank Boucher.

All Well Known

The current Baltimore club is comprised of puckchasing timber well known to fans of this province. In the nets William Oliver has Bob Forster, the official janitor for Oshawa juniors last winter. For the defense he features a brother-combination as one patrolling combination, Aud Tuten and Jack Tuten. Aud was with Hershey last winter, Jack with Muskegon in the Michigan-Ontario League. Jack was a teammate of Gord Drillon and Frank Brimsek with Pittsburg Yellow Jackets 3 years ago. The other defense combine is made up of George Boll, brother of "Buzz" of the Leafs, and last winter with Atlantic City; and Pat Wilson, another Atlantic City performer last season, who worked out with Toronto Goodyears early this year.

Of his forward-line material, Coach Hines is proudest of Doug Greig (Brantford seniors in 1937-38), Bill Calladine (Peterborough seniors), and Johnny Squarebriggs (Charlottetown, N.B., boy, with Baltimore four seasons). Greig is setting the scoring pace in the Eastern States League with 19 points, Calladine and Squarebriggs are tied for second place, 17 points apiece. A second forward line is comprised of Carl and Frank Ripley, Amherst, Nova Scotia, lads who joined the club last season, and Creighton Lowther, another Amherst contribution. The Ripley boys are twins. Russell Spenceley, late of Toronto Native Sons, Johnny Lapointe (Verdun, Quebec) and Ned Vitarelli (Peterborough seniors), complete the squad.

A nine-foot earthworm was found in Australia, where four to six-foot specimens are not uncommon.

"If the Cap Fits, Wear It"

"It fits. Guess maybe I ought to wear it," might be what Lou Nova, latest heavyweight hope, is saying as he tries on a crown, which, in this case, we'll call symbolic of the world's heavyweight boxing title. Of course, to get out of the theoretical stage and earn the actual bauble there's the matter of beating Joe Louis to be taken into consideration, but if any one is going to accomplish that feat in the near or distant future, young Mr. Nova seems likely to be the man...or so say most of the critics.

SPORT SPICE

NEW YORK, Dec. 22—(AP)—Now that the "listen, the wind" session of the baseball magnates is over the ballplayers are moving in . . . Lefty Gomez, discovered window shopping in the roaring '40s, proclaimed he'd win 20 games for the Yanks in 1939. . . . The Gomezs expect the stork in June . . . "Hope it's a boy so I can teach him to hit," said Lefty without batting an eye . . . Hank Greenberg is aiming at the highest salary in baseball this year . . . "I hit 58 homers last year and think I'll do better next season," said Hank . . . "The Babe pulled down 80 grand for doing that, why shouldn't I?" . . .

Burgess Whitehead, New York's Giants' second baseman who spent most of the 1938 season batting the flies off cows and running bases with a milk pail, is drinking two quarts of milk a day and chasing deer to get in shape for the coming pennant chase . . . He expects to be doing business at the old stand, which will be a relief to Colonel Will Terry, who had everyone but Grover Whalen in there last season.

Al Weill, Lou Ambers' circular manager, bleats that Luigi cannot get a fight with Henry Armstrong, who knocked the lightweight crown off his noggin, because Eddie Mead, Armstrong's master mind, won't put the title up . . . "He wants them to fight for the welterweight title," hollered Alphonse . . . "That's fooling the fans, they want a lightweight fight" . . . Donald Budge is practicing for his opening tennis match with Elly Vines by day and shaking a slick hoof on the night club dance floors in the evening . . .

Reidar Andersen, the Norwegian ski jumper, figures the boys won't jump any farther than about 247 feet . . . Kindly pass the liniment, doctor . . . The National Hockey League has more new stars than you could shake a stick at with George Allen, the New York Rangers' attack star, the latest to make good . . . Frankie Brimsek, the Boston goalie, is the big first year star . . . He stops more pucks than Tommy Farr does gloves.

Five Teams In Southend Loop

Five teams entered the Intermediate Southend Hockey League last night at a meeting held in the Sacred Heart club rooms, and a sixth squad is expected to round out this circuit shortly. The teams now in are: Maple Leafs, managed by Jim Riel; Clippers, handled by Doug Callan; Brintons, piloted by Harry Adams; Maroons, coached by Tom Busby; and the Canucks, whose manager is Bill Grady. The sixth team is expected to be under Ken Fleming.

Officers elected for the coming season include: President, Jim Fleming and Secretary Tom McCarthy. O.H.A. rules will prevail in this loop with the exception of the penalty shot, which is deleted. Play is for the Scarfe Cup, won last year by the Clippers. The schedule will open on Tuesday, Jan. 3rd, all games being at the Sacred Heart rink.

Berger Swapped For McNair In Sox Shakeup

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—(AP). — Disillusioned and dispirited, young Tom Yawkey appear sto be taking a delight in tearing apart the Boston Red Sox team on which he spent upward of $1,000,000 a few years ago, and finally rewarded him with second place in the American League last season.

The trade which sent Infielder Eric McNair to Chicago White Sox in exchange for Boze Berger lopped off one more of the galaxy of stars for whom Yawkey handed old Connie Mack an estimated $500,000. The members of "Yawkey's Folly" are being replaced by inexpensive youngsters.

Yawkey said last spring he would give his "millionaires" one more fling, and thenceforward would develop his own players. The past season must have convinced him a young and great team would be needed to overhaul the Yankees.

Of three expensive pitchers purchased from Conie Mack, Rube Walberg and Johnny Marcum have disappeared from the big show, and Lefty Grove probably pitched his final nine-inning game last season. Wes Ferrell, another prize of the biggest spending spree in baseball history, is winding up as a relief pitcher for the Yankees.

Yawkey bought four of Mack's infielders, and the only one left is the veteran Jimmy Foxx, who made a sensational comeback the past campaign to win the American League batting crown. McNair has gone to the White Sox, Third-Baseman Pinky Higgins recently was traded to Detroit, and Max Bishop retired.

Outfielder Ben Chapman, obtained from Washington to round out the slugging Red Sox outfield last season, has been traded to Cleveland for a pitcher, Denny Galehouse, and his place probably will be filled by young Ted Williams, who was with Minneapolis last year.

A Quiet Winter

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Dec. 22 — (CP). — Jacob Dreive and James McKenna, snugly ensconced on Main Ducks Island in Lake Ontario off Prince Edward County, face four months of isolation. They left here for the island this week to care for 15 head of stock., property of the island's owner. There is no communication with the mainland during the winter.

Halifax Town Wins Replay For Football Cup

Manchester, Dec. 22 (CP Cable)

IT TOOK four games and 7½ hours playing time for Halifax Town to defeat Mansfield Town in the second round of the English Football Cup competition. On Manchester United's ground Wednesday, Halifax won the third replay, 2-1, in overtime and the right to oppose Birmingham in the third round.

Petes Practise In Brock Arena

Coach Frank Buckland and Manager Tommy Miller of the Petes are calling a practise for tonight (Thursday) at nine o'clock in the Brock St. Rink. All prospective local O.H.A. senior "B" players — who want a tryout—are invited. The team has not yet been picked for the 1939 campaign and everyone will be given an even chance of making a berth. Despite the loss of half a dozen good players of last year's group champions, there is plenty of puck material here this season—including several imports. So a strong senior "B" squad will be picked in the near future to represent Peterborough in hockey warfare this winter.

GOODYEARS REMAIN UNDEFEATED IN THE SENIOR O.H.A. RACE

Goodyears Gang Up On Falls Squad For 10-2 Triumph In Smoothest Game Of Season

TORONTO, Dec. 22 — (CP). — Toronto Goodyears set a furious pace in the early part of the Senior A Ontario Hockey Association schedule, but Coach Joe Primeau wasn't satisfied. Now he's added a power play to the bag of tricks carried by the league leaders and the move is bound to bring more grief to the worried opposition.

Goodyears used the ganging play on Niagara Falls Brights last night for a 10-2 victory and their smoothest game of the season. It was also their highest-scoring tilt so far. They've defeated every team in the league at least once and have been tied once by Oshawa.

Nineteen minor penalties and a 10-minute misconduct sentence were served as Goodyears, getting "hotter" as the game grew older, shot two goals in the first period, three in the second, and five in the last. The Falls scored a goal in the second and another in the third.

Four of the winners' goals came as a direct result of power plays, while the opposition was shorthanded through penalties. Just to vary things a bit, Goodyears scored twice while one of their own men was serving penitence.

One Casualty.

Only casualty of the battle was Frankie O'Brien, veteran Toronto forward and one of the cleanest players in amateur hockey, who suffered a two-stitch gash in his forehead near the end of the middle session.

The win gave Goodyears a total of 15 points, six more than the second-place Oshawa G-Men. Niagara Falls were left stranded in fifth place with six points.

Whip Shortt tallied Brights' first goal and passed to Swat Mason for the second. The misconduct penalty went to George Grigor, Falls forward and former Toronto performer, for talking back to Referee Dinty Moore towards the end of the final period.

Toronto players' scoring averages soared with the win. Lanky Hank Goldup scored twice and gained three assists. Don Metz, who may soon be signed by Toronto Maple Leafs of the National League, scored three times, as did Peanuts O'Flaherty. O'Brien had a goal and two assists and George Imlach a goal and three assists.

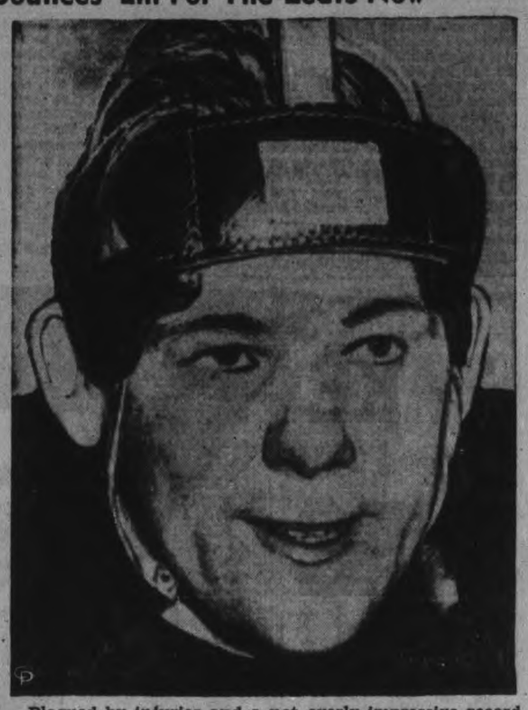
Abel To Pep Up Hornet Squad

DETROIT, Dec. 22 — (CP). — Sid Abel, promising pivot from Melville, Sask., has been sent to Pittsburgh Hornets, International-American League farm club of Detroit Red Wings, Manager Jack Adams revealed to-day.

Earlier this week Adams praised the ability of Abel and waxed enthusiastic over the future in store for the youngster in the National Hockey League. Adams claimed another major league outfit had offered him an "enormous sum" for Abel.

Asked if he had changed his opinion regarding Abel the Wing coach said he still considered the rookie one of the brightest front-line prospects in the league, but that some time spent with the Hornets would do the farm club and the player lots of good. He may prove just the spark the faltering Hornets need, added Adams, and at the same time the recruit will be able to polish up his playing.

Bounces 'Em For The Leafs Now



Plagued by injuries and a not overly-impressive record of wins and losses so far this season, Toronto Maple Leafs made another of the many purchases featuring the present hockey campaign when they secured Wilfred (Bucko) McDonald, ABOVE, from Detroit Red Wings. Bucko, a scrappy, bruising defenceman, who played lacrosse with Orillia Terriers this past summer, was one of the key men in the Red Wings' drive to two successive Stanley Cups in 1935-36 and '36-'37, but like the rest of the team, slumped badly last season. Conny Smythe, Leafian buyer and seller of hockey goods, is hopeful that the deal, which sent an unannounced amount of cash and Bill Thomson, Leaf rookie with Syracuse, to Detroit, will solve his team's problems on defence.

Calder Trophy Seen Hovering Over Brimsek As Year's Best Rookie

By Willia mH. Dumsday
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

TORONTO, Dec. 22 — (CP). — Tribute to United States athletes, early-season indications are that an American-born player may be named outstanding rookie of the National Hockey League for the fourth time in seven seasons. The promising young contender for the Calder Trophy is Frankie (Shutout) Brimsek, new goalie of Boston Bruins.

President Frank Calder donated the prize in 1936-37 with Sly Apps, Toronto Maple Leafs centre, being the first winner. But since 1932-33 sports writers have been naming their favorite freshman in the annual poll of The Canadian Press.

It's early to predict a winner in view of the exceptionally fine crop of first-year men, but the brilliant net work of Brimsek who assumed the puck-blocking job for Boston when Tiny Thompson was sold to Detroit Red Wings, is undoubtedly the bright spot of the campaign to date.

If he heads the poll, the 23-year-old player who is a native of Eveleth, Minn., will succeed another American-born player, Cully Dahlstrom of the champion Chicago Black Hawks. He would be the second goalie to earn the honors, duplicating the feat of another Eveleth boy, Mike Karakas, Chicago netminder, who led the freshies in 1935-36.

Voss the First

Carl Voss, a member of the Hawks now on the injured list, was the first American-born player to earn rookie honors. He topped the 1932-33 crop while with Detroit. Sweeney Schriner of New York Americans won in 1934-35 and Russ Blinco of the Hawks, won as a member of the now-defunct Montreal Maroons in 1933-34.

Four of the six rookie champions to date are on the Chicago roster but this year the champions are relying on experience with no first year men to compete for the award. Contenders are listed from five of the seven clubs.

Besides Brimsek, manager Art Ross has two former Toronto amteurs, Jack Crawford, Burly defenceman, and winger Roy Conacher, brother of the famous Lionel and Charlie. If the Rangers retain George Allen, left winger brought up from the minors, the Kerrobert, Sask. lad should rate attention.

Adding a touch of youth to his old men of Manhattan, Red Dutton has one promising rookie, Wilfie Field. The former Pacific coast league star is making a fine job of filling the gap on the Americans' defence caused by the exit of the veterans Happy Day and Ching Johnson.

Toughest Job

Breaking in as a goalie has always seemed the toughest of N.H.L. assignments but this season Claude Bourque, a Moncton, N.B., boy, stopped up from Montreal amateur ranks to shine with the Canadiens. Pee Wee Summerhill, speedy Toronto forward Cecil Hart plucked from the minors, is another promising yannigan on the list of the fly ing Frenchmen.

Last but not least come the contenders of jolly Jack Adams. The detroit boss is gambling with two freshmen in his effort to revive the championship form of his big Red machine. Syd Abel from Melville, Sask., rates highly as a centre and Jack Stewart, defenceman from Pilot Mound, Man., can not be overlooked.

Big Time Boxing Never Rosier Says Donovan

NEW YORK, Dec. 22 — (CP). — In the face of talk that big time boxing is not what it was during those lush Jack Dempsey days, no les sa perso nthan Arthur Donovan to-day reported the game has never been healthier and designed as the only source of a heavyweight white hope those boys who are "born tough, live tough, and love to fight."

That, for Arthur, is quite a statement because the fight business—a game of wits as well as fists—harbors few forthright men and Donovan, most forthright of them all and probably the most ringwise, says the least.

There is good reason. Arthur is one of the ring's best-known "third men." He handled most of champion Joe Louis' bouts. He watched the good ones and the bad ones come and go since the Great War. As a good referee, he fought shy of praise or criticism of individuals.

Arthur would not say aye, yes or no in regard to Louis' prospects of remaining champ for some time to come, but he shared the general view that it must be a "hungry man" who comes forth to topple Dusky Joe.

"Anyone who would some day be champion must come up the hard way," said Donovan in regard to a white hope. "He must be born tough, live tough, and love to fight. He must come by the fundamentals of fighting naturally and not taste the good things of life too young. He must be a hungry man."

Louis Good for the Game.

No one, perhaps, could better take the pulse of the fight world than Donovan, and, paradoxical as it may seem, he reported it healthy in spite of Louis and because of him. To have a champion towering over all challengers seems, on the face of it, none too good for the industry. Actually, Louis has done the other fellows more good than harm because of elimination tournaments to determine his opponents.

"There are challengers all around" said Donovan. "Some may be better than others, but they are all getting fights and making money. That sounds like a healthy industry."

Donovan also pointed out that Louis' phenomenal jaunt to the heavyweight throne and his doings as champion have needled boxing interest everywhere. For stimulation of interest he bracketted Louis with Mike Jacobs, the little fellow with the lickety-clack store teeth who turned from ticket speculating to fight promotion and almost overnight became a virtual czar in the industry.

"Look at the money the boys are drawing now," said Arthur. "Jacobs makes the bouts and the crowds pour out to see them. Since he got his start with Louis' contract it seems Jacobs has done more than anybody else to stimulate boxing."

Might Pitch Minus A Leg

CHICAGO, Dec. 22—Monte Stratton's statement he could return to the big leagues as a pitcher despite amputation of his right leg was seconded today by Joseph Berodin, president of a Chicago artificial limb manufacturing company.

There is no possibility of Monty getting back into action, however, before 1940, Berodin contends.

Although Berodin believes Stratton has a 50-50 chance to return as a pitcher, there is one hitch—Monte never will be fast enough again to run big league bases, Berodin explained:

"I understand Stratton's right leg was amputated at the knee. If this is true, he will have perfect control over an artificial leg. He is a right-handed pitcher and uses his right leg merely as a pivot. The left leg is the important one to right-handed pitchers."

With an artificial leg properly aligned and fitted, Stratton will be able to pitch as well as ever, field bunts and bat, too, Berodin said, but he won't be able to run the bases. He went on:

"In recent years we have made great progress in the development of artificial limbs, which today are constructed of light, seamless and durable metal."

Documents Signed For Heavyweight Fight

Pals for years, Joe Louis, world's heavyweight champion, and John Henry Lewis, ruler of the light-heavies, sign to cuff each other about in Madison Square Garden, N.Y., come January 25. Heavyweight contenders for Dead-pan Joe's crown that possess much more than a pair of boxing gloves, have become scarcer and scarcer, so "Uncle Mike" Jacobs, who controls almost all the marketable goods in the cauliflower industry, signed John Henry to hook up with the champ. J. H. was rapidly outgrowing his class anyway. Everybody... except cool, calm and collected Joe...seems anxious to get a good look as Lewis wields the pen in this picture. General John Phelan, New York boxing commissioner, is the gent between the dusky punch-throwers, while along the back, LEFT to RIGHT, are Julian Black, one of the Louis masterminds, Lew Beck, "Uncle Mike," and Commissioner McOwen.

Ramblers Fall To Barons 5-1

Much to the sorrow of the rest of the International-American Hockey League, the Cleveland Barons are whirling along like a first-class blizzard and leaving just about as much damage in their wake.

From a team that less than a month ago lost three straight games, the Barons have emerged into world beaters that now have gone seven successive games without a loss.

The Barons trounced Philadelphia Ramblers 5-1 last night. New Haven Eagles toppled Providence Reds 6-2 and Pittsburgh Hornets trounced Springfield Indians 4-2. The Eagles now are only three points away from the second place Reds in the Eastern grouping.

Cleveland's victory came on goals by Paul Runge, Cunningham, Phil Hergersheimer, Hanson and Foster. Butch Keeling scored the only Philadelphia goal. Hap Emms, Thompson, Wally Kilrea and Brown were the Pittsburgh scorers, while Tommy Filmore tallied both Springfield goals.

Eddie Ambois sparked New Haven's attack with three goals. Des Smith, Don Willson and Marcel Tremblay added the other Eagles' counters. Art Lesier and Demarco tallied for Providence.

Remember When—

Jake Kilrain, famous fighter in the 80's, died a Quincey, Mass., one year ago today from old age—he was 78—and diabetes. During 16 years in the ring he faced 150 men but the high spot of his life was his fight with John L. Sullivan in the ring's last bare-knuckle championship bout in 1889. He lost in the 75th round.

Mrs. C. M. Baker Elected Head Hastings Circle

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Dec. 22—The annual meeting for the election of officers for Trinity United Mission Circle girls was held at the home of Mrs. C. M. Baker previous to the Christmas concert which they sponsored for the Sunday school pupils held on Friday evening in the church basement. Miss Margery Scriver gave an account of the chapter in the study book on "Planting the Church," relating in an interesting way the story of the pioneers past and present. The following officers were then elected:

President, Mrs. C. M. Baker; vice-president, Miss Claudine Hoard; recording secretary, Mrs. D. Pollock; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Wallace Orr, treasurer, Miss Jessie Lamb; supply secretary, Miss Margery Scriver; finance committee, the executive, with Misses Helen Collins and Carrie Doxsee! Christian Stewardship, Miss Irene Oliver; temperance and peace, Mrs. H. Edwards.

Roseneath Hunter Bags Two Red Foxes Who Were Walking Fence With One Shot

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Dec. 22.—Alex Spiers of Roseneath killed the proverbial two birds with one stone while fox hunting on the property of Wilfred Carew, near Roseneath, this week. Two fine specimens of fox, worth about $5 each, were brought down with a single shot from a shotgun, much to his surprise.

His two hounds had chased a pair of foxes for some time before the pursued animals appeared a few feet apart about 35 yards from Spiers, who stood in hiding. As the barking of hounds drew closer both foxes leaped up on the zig-zag fence and began walking the rails towards Spiers.

He took careful aim at the first fox and fired, intending to shoot the second animal, seconds later. To his amazement, both animals dropped off the fence, dead, the second fox 20 feet behind its mate.

Mr. Spiers has shot four foxes this week, and said they seem to be much more plentiful throughout the district than last year.

Eden Church Honors Two Of Its Members

MOUNT JULIAN, Dec. 22. — A presentation was made from the Eden United church choir to Mrs. Charles Lauder, in appreciation of the many years' service she has given to the church as secretary-treasurer. The purse was presented by Edward Bronson, following the regular Sunday afternoon service, while the address was read by Roy Dunford.

Miss Carol Thompson, on behalf of the choir, also presented a gift to Miss Isabel Reid, in appreciation of her services as organist.

In the absence of the Rev. Mr. McMullen, who was called away by the death of his father, Mr. S. Carr of Apsley took charge of the service on Sunday afternoon.

The United Church Christmas service is to be at the usual time, 2.30, in the afternoon, on Christmas Day.

for doing what they are doing today—giving facilities for the right type of foreigners to go and settle in Australia, Let them try to get some of the best specimens of the best agricultural populations in Europe."

But at the same time he agreed that "we have got to give the best facilities that we can for our own British emigrants to join that movement of population to the dominions."

Sir Henry Page Croft, Conservative, told the House of his plan—previously announced—for filling British Columbia's empty spaces with 10,000 British families, the plan to be financed by the British government through a settlement company.

He spoke in seconding a motion by J. E. Crowder, Conservative, that Britain should resume the movement of population within the Empire by every suitable means, in concert with the Dominion governments. The motion was adopted and a Labor amendment calling for an imperial conference in 1940 for the purpose of "consolidating the commonwealth and securing improvement of the standard of living of the people" was defeated.

Sir Henry's plan will be referred to the Empire settlement board. Mr. Macdonald said the government had not rejected the plan. He understood it was to be considered by Canadian authorities.

Sir Henry said the migrants under his plan would be backed by British capital at £1,000 ($4,670) a family. When he explained this feature to authorities during his long stay in Canada last year, he said, they heartily approved.

"Yes."

"Why didn't you tell us that this morning?"

"If I had recalled that fact I would have told you," replied the witness.

Questioned as to events on the evening of the fire Stevens estimated that it was eight minutes after 6 o'clock when he had left Herman in front of the accused's home on London street. A friend of his who had seen the fire reels stop in front of Pattenick's store had telephoned to him before 6.30 o'clock to tell him about the fire.

Girl Testifies

Iva Tripp who said she was employed in housework at the Herman residence testified that Mr. Herman came home around 6 o'clock on the night of the fire and went out again immediately after. He was away some fifteen minutes before he came back again and went down to the furnace. It was after that that Stevens came in to tell about the fire.

Cross-examined by Mr. Skeans the witness said that she did not see Mr. Herman come in the first time because she was in the kitchen but she heard him come in and go out again. She first saw him when he came back and went down to the furnace.

"I am instructed that he went out to bring in the baby clothes off the line," said Mr. Skeans.

"Yes," said the witness hesitatingly while the court room sat up in sudden interest

Pressed further along the same line Miss Tripp said she did not know whether or not Herman had brought in the clothes.

"They were brought in?" asked Mr. Skeans.

"Yes."

"You didn't bring them in?"

"No."

"Did Mrs. Herman?"

"No."

"Well who was there?"

"There was Mr. and Mrs. Herman and myself," said the witness, who added that Mr. Herman had also brought in a sled belonging to one of the children.

Made Several Trips

Miss Tripp was re-examined vigorously by Crown Attorney McElderry and almost at once she caused further excitement by declaring that she had seen Herman coming in the back door with the clothes and that he had made several trips.

"You didn't tell us that before?" said the Crown Attorney severely.

"You didn't ask me about it," was the reply

At this stage Mr. McElderry made his application to have the witness treated as an adverse witness and that was finally ordered by Magistrate Langley.

Miss Tripp estimated that it would take 10 minutes or more to bring in the clothes stating there were two lines.

"I am going to call witnesses who will say that they saw Herman on George streeet at the time you say you saw him at home.

"What do you say as to that?"

Witness replied that she was telling the truth.

To the magistrate she said she was still working for the Hermans and living in their home.

Seen On Street

Harry Emmerson, employed at Zeller's store, swore that while driving north on George street at 6.10 o'clock on the evening of December 10, in company with Mr. Fitzgerald, manager of Zeller's and Maurice Howlett, also employed there, he saw Herman near the corner of George and Brock streets. He was walking south and was on the east side of George street. Herman was bareheaded, the witness said.

Maurice Howlett corroborated this evidence, fixing the time at which he saw Herman walking south as between 6.05 and 6.10—"closer to 6.10" he put it.

Cross-examination by Mr. Skeans failed to change the testimony of these two witnesess in any material respect.

Herbert E. Stenson who said that his shoe store was on the same side of George street as the Pattenick store and two doors south of it, swore that on the night of the fire he saw Herman pass his store going south at around 6.10 o'clock Witness said that he and a woman member of the staff were standing inside the door of the store waiting for the 6.10 buses to come into the corner when he saw Herman going past.

"To go past your store going south," said Mr. Skeans, "Herman must also have gone past his own store."

"I don't know where he came from. I only know he passed my place and he was going south."

"Perhaps he came out of the store" suggested Magistrate Langley.

Owner Gives Evidence

Wm. Pattenick, owner of the local and eight other Pattenick stores, was the last crown witness called. He was asked to describe the banking arrangements and the orders issued in regard to them and he stated that the instructions were that the receipts from each day should be deposited as early as possible the following day. Herman had not always done that and he had been warned several times about it.

Witness said that Herman had been manager of the Peterborough store since it opened on October 3, 1936

"How does Herman stand with you in a financial way?" asked Mr. McElderry.

Pattenick said there was a shortage of goods of around $2,109 and there was the $308, Saturday's receipts, which was supposed to have been burned He said that the stock in the store before the fire was around $22,000, and the insurance investigators had estimated the amount of goods consumed by fire at $600.

Herman's reason for not banking Saturday's receipts on Monday, witness explained, was that the girl had not had the slips ready on time.

"That was no reason for his not putting the money in the bank?"

"None whatever."

Pattenick was cross-examined by Mr. Skeans as to the business practices followed in his store system. He stated that although some of the stores had safes they were never used, the managers prefering to hide the money overnight.

Didn't Ask Them

Mr. Pattenick said that he had not asked either Herman or Stevens if they had had anything to do with the fire.

At the conclusion of Pattenick's evidence the crown rested its case and Mr. Skeans for the defence stated that he did not propose to put in any evidence.

Counsel was arguing that there was not enough evidence to justify committal when his client suddenly informed him that he wanted to give defence testimony and Mr. Skeans notified the court to that effect.

"He cannot do so now," Magistrate Langley replied. "The time for that is passed. He had his opportunity to testify if he had desired to do so. In any event, no matter what his evidence might be I would still be obliged to commit him on the strength of the evidence that has been heard.

Magistrate Langley said that there was much suspicion and while the time factor was very close he was satisfied there was enough to warrant committal.

MAYOR'S FUND FOR WELFARE PURPOSES IN CITY IS ORGANIZED

WorkSuspended Of Rip-Rapping Shore Of Lake

Extension of the rip-rapping of the bank on the west shore of Little Lake was suspended for the winter today at the tip of Point St. Charles. About 600 feet of the shore line from the end of Lake street has been completed, leaving fifty feet of the authorized work to be finished from the Point towards the George street wharf.

Monday night the city council passed a resolution requesting the federal Department of Public Works to approve the final stretch of water front from the Point to the George street wharf for similar permanent facing next year. It is believed that this work will be undertaken, thereby completing the lake frontage from the George street wharf around to the Little Lake cemetery. The remaining link is about six hundred feet long, and it has been suggested to the Hon. P. J. A. Cardin that this strip be constructed to conform with the southerly wing of the George street wharf. J. J. Duffus, M.P., is interesting himself in this proposed extension, and it is expected that official sanction will be received early in the year.

W. H. L. Mellis has been in charge of the rip-rapping since it was first begun, and he also supervised the construction of the new dock that was completed in the lake off Romaine street during the fall. Thirty-five men have been employed on the rip-rap job since October 28, and with the renewal of the project in the Spring further work will be available.

Permanent Aspects

This permanent facing of the south and west banks of the lake may be considered in direct conjunction with the city's purchase of the McDonald property at Point St. Charles and the improvement that has been planned for Crescent street from Lake street to Haggart street at the entrance to the cemetery.

Fifty trees, nearly all of them elms, comprising the inner row along the north side of Crescent street were recently removed by the parks committee of the council, the Bell Telephone is being asked to transfer a row of telephone poles from the lakeside of the street, and next spring Alderman Stocker's committee will resume the program that is designed to transform Crescent street into the most beautiful avenue in Peterborough.

This project has been discussed by succesive councils of recent years, has always been heartily endorsed, and was finally crystallized by the Duffus plan of helping to provide employment by the extensive rip-rapping of the bank, now halted on its fast lap to the George street wharf.

Top soil and leaf mulch dressing will be drawn to Crescent street and spread to sufficient depth from the edge of the paved roadway to the top of the bank. Some of the remaining outer row of trees that are decaying in spots will be cut out, other

Peterborough Stands Second In Loans Issued Under Home Improvement Plan

Within the urban brackets of from 20,000 to 40,000 population, Peterborough holds second place for the number of Home Improvement Loans issued up to October 31 last, according to a summary just issued by the Hon. Charles A. Dunning, Federal Minister of Finance.

Peterborough with 422 loans is second to Oshawa with 564, St. Catharines 351, Kitchener 323, Sault Ste. Marie 239, Fort William 219, Brantford 204, Kingston 200, and so on.

For the total amount of the loans Oshawa is still in first place with $138,389.06, Kitchener is second with $137,717.02, and Peterborough is in third place with $129,222.35.

Up to the end of October Peterborough had put through 422 Home Improvement loans for a total sum of $129,222.35, and modest bankers who requested not to be quoted, informed the Examiner to-day that these loans have all been "clean business," "haven't caused us any worry," and otherwise have rounded out the success of the Home Improvement Loan effort that landed Peterborough almost at the top of the heap in its classification.

It may be recalled that Roland Denne accepted the chairmanship of the local Home Improvement Loan committee, that local tradesmen representing every branch of the building industry helped in promoting it, R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne and D. B. Faulkner assisted in explaining its clauses and especially in helping correct an erroneous impression relating to the interest charge. F. J. Overend, G. A. Macdonald, and other citizens gave their co-operation, and the net result was that the sum of $129,222.35 has been expended up to the end of October on the improvement of homes owned by Peterborough people, the average loan being somewhat in excess of $300.

This service is still available under the terms which have manifestly proved by experience satisfactory to the borrowers.

Boy Gashes Leg While Cutting Christmas Tree

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Dec. 22.—Suffering a self-inflicted cut on his leg from the blow of an axe, Jim Petticrew, 12, was assisted from a wood one mile north of here, in a weakened condition from loss of blood, Tuesday afternoon.

Jim and a group of school chums had been sent to the woods for a Christmas tree. It was to be used in the school for their Christmas concert. The boys had cut the top off the tree and had commenced to chop at its base when the accident occurred. A glancing blow struck the boy's leg just below the knee and inflicted a deep gash into the bone.

Leo Crowley, 17, of Hastings, had been hunting in the woods and was with the group when the boy was injured. Quick thinking and presence of mind on the part of Crowley may have been responsible for saving the boy's life. With strips torn from a handkerchief, he made a tourniquet and bound it securely about the injured limb to eliminate further loss of blood.

Might Have Bled To Death.

"He was bleeding quite badly when I bound up the cut," Crowley said. "His face was pale and he was very weak. His chums kept telling him to run home as fast as he could. If he had, I think he might have bled to death."

Following the emergency treatment in the woods, Jimmie Herrington, 12, assisted young Petticrew as he hobbled home.

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Petticrew, parents of the boy, had become anxious as to his whereabouts when he failed to return home at twelve noon for dinner. He arrived more than two hours later.

He was treated at home under supervision of a trained nurse. His condition was reported as good late Tuesday night.

Aid Being Given 540 Families This Christmas

Organization of the Mayor's Fund for welfare purposes, similar to the Lord Mayor's Funds established many years in English cities, was organized at a public meeting in the city hall last night with Mayor Hamilton as president, Alderman Dutton vice-president, and Alderman H. I. Bradburn, secretary-treasurer.

The following nominating committee was also appointed to extend the executive for reference to the next meeting which is likely to be called early in the year,—Mrs. Joseph Mills, Thos. Dawson, Rev. Dr. Kelly, Adjutant Warrander, Hugh Campbell, and Aldermen Stocker, McIntyre and McCannan.

In urging the formation of the Mayor's Fund, Alderman Gordon said it had been a successful agency of social help in the Old Country, attracting the interest of many citizens of public spirit who acted as patrons and patronesses with the Mayor.

"Such a fund could be of great assistance to persons who are not on relief, who have been struggling against that form of help, but who are near the border line," Ald. Gordon said.

Helping 540 Families

Alderman Dutton said that unfortunately there had been an increase in the number of Peterborough families on relief as compared with the Christmas of 1937.

"Thanks to the generosity of individuals and the help of some of our large companies, and the co-operation of the churches, we have arranged to take care of 540 families up to today," Ald. Dutton said. "As far as we know tonight all our needy families are going to get baskets at Christmas, but there may be other appeals to us tomorrow and the next day, and there are also those on the border line that has been mentioned which could come under the care of this proposed Mayor's Fund."

Alderman Dutton praised the effective work of A. G. Metheral, relief officer, and his staff, especially Miss Beavis, and added that the holiday effort by the Department had been well handled. "But, there are border line families with sick persons who should have little delicacies, children who need milk and so on. In such cases the city of Peterborough has never been niggardly We have provided such extras, and usually have followed the recommendations of attending physicians. But, in spite of all that there is a place for the Mayor's Fund to assist families who are not on relief, and how they have kept off is a mystery to all of us."

Some of the Assistance

It was reported that Purity Bread Company has offered to deliver fifty fruit loaves prior to Christmas, that Merrett's Dairy will contribute two hundred quarts of milk, that one factory alone is taking care of fifty-five families and so on, all evidence Mayor Hamilton said that there is a general desire among the people of Peterborough to help others at this season.

Adjutant Warrander commented that the relief department in this city works harder than in any other place where he has lived.

Alderman Stocker made the rounds of the council yesterday and had $60 assured up to last night.

The Fund idea was generally commended by the meeting, and the preliminaries of organization were proceeded with.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Dec. 22.—Susan Amelia Tate, beloved wife of Taylor L. Huycke, passed peacefully away at her late residence in Hastings, on Tuesday evening, following a lingering illness.

Wounded In Leg

James Petticrew, 12, of Hastings, went out to the bush on Tuesday to secure a tree with several other boys from the school for their Christmas concert. While chopping the tree he cut a bad gash in his leg and would have bled to death only for the timely assistance given by Leo Crowley (RIGHT) who was hunting near by. Petticrew is shown on the LEFT.

Schools Are Closed Christmas Holiday

Toboggans and skis are being waxed, skates are being sharpened, and last year's hockey sticks are coming down from attics, in all the hundreds of homes where school students eat their meals and sleep. For to-day Public and Separate school and the Collegiate will close doors until after the New Year. Christmas concerts were held in many of the rooms, but lower form pupils at the Collegiate are not so fortunate — they had to write examinations.

The Rambling REPORTERS

ABSENT MINDED HUSBAND.

One poor husband in the city is cracking under the strain of the Christmas shopping. A few nights ago his wife explained that she had made a list of everyone to whom she would send a Christmas card and that they must be out by Tuesday night. That night she went out to a euchre party leaving the tired hubby at home. A short time later he noticed the list of names on the table so proceeded to the drug store, purchased 24 cards and set to work. He dropped the lot in the nearest mail box after properly addressing them from the list.

When she returned near the midnight hour, she happened to mention that she had mailed all the Christmas cards Tuesday afternoon. The hubby is keeping quiet but there will be 24 people in this city who will receive a card this morning from Mr. and Mrs. and perhaps this afternoon will receive another the same.—McG.

Mild For Christmas Thinks Weatherman

TORONTO, Dec. 22.— (CP). — Forecaster Frank O'Donnell of the Dominion Meteorlogical Bureau won't say definitely, but he thinks it's going to be a green Christmas in Ontario this year.

"It doesn't look as though it's going to be very cold," he said to-day concerning weather prospects for the coming week-end. "I can say that without fear of being wrong, but I wouldn't care to go any farther right now. It will be moderately cold to-night but milder to-morrow and Saturday.

Hitching Of Dogs To Sleighs Is Frowned Upon By Officials Of Humane Society

Most boys who own dogs at some time or other hitch the dogs to a sleigh or a wagon and enjoy a ride. This practise is frowned on by the Humane Society if the boys attach the tugs to the dog's small collar instead of securing a regular dog harness. The society is opposed to having small dogs hitched to sleighs as the dog in many cases is not strong enough for the task given.

During the month of December one small boy was called on the carpet by Dr. Thomas Johnston, veterinarian, because the youngster had hitched a fox terrier to a large sleigh and was forcing the small dog to work.

The report of the society for the month reveals that many dogs and cats have been killed or maimed in recent weeks by highway traffic, several of the accidents being unavoidable because of ice. Motorists are warned by the society that every care must be taken to avoid running down animals which might be crossing the road or street.

Stern measures will be taken in the near future in all cases of cruelty to horses. This month the Inspector was called on to investigate cases near Bailieboro and Apsley, and at both places it was necessary to destroy an animal. At Oak Lake a case was reported where a farmer was found to be working a horse that had sore shoulders, and he was reprimanded.

The summary of activities for the month is as follows:

Horses examined	35
Horses destroyed	2
Dogs brought to Shelter	8
Dogs destroyed	7
Dogs placed in homes	1
Cats brought to Shelter	23
Cats destroyed	20

Five Cases Involved In Traffic Accidents

Two somewhat unusual traffic accidents caused damages to five motor cars here Thursday.

George Peoples of Cavan was driving south on George street behind a car owned by W. H. Magee and driven by Edgar Turner, 11 Brown street. The green light was showing as the vehicles reached the Hunter street intersection, but when a pedestrian strolled out into the stream of traffic and in front of the car driven by Turner the latter had to slam on his brakes and stop suddenly and Peoples following him over the intersection was unable to stop his machine in time to avert a crash. Damage estimated at $60 was done to Peoples' car, chiefly to the grill and the left front fender. The rear bumper was broken off the Magee automobile.

Three cars were involved in an accident at Water and Dublin streets. Mrs. S. Wainright, Park street, was driving north on Water street and stopped at Dublin street, pulling into the east curb, to allow a car to cross Water street. Roy Green of Millbrook, driving north behind Mrs. Wainright also slowed down suddenly and a third machine, following the other two and driven by Jack Sackville, 204 Birdsall street, was unable to stop in time to avoid hitting Green's car and it in turn was shoved forward into the rear of Mrs. Wainwright's automobile. All three vehicles were damaged to some extent but none of the drivers were injured.

With Nowhere To Go Boy Wants To Spend Christmas In Jail

Telling Magistrate Langley that he had nowhere to go on Christmas or New Year's Day and that he would just as soon be in jail, Ernest Travies, who pleaded guilty some time ago to the theft of an automobile belonging to Thomas Hughes, North Monaghan, was remanded at Wednesday afternoon's session of the police court for another week.

This is the boy whose case has aroused considerable sympathy in court circles here and on whose behalf Crown Attorney McElderry has made representations to the Attorney-General.

Magistrate Langley assured the accused that there was some hope of special consideration in his case.

Travies said he had no home, although he had a step father and his mother living here.

FICTION AND FEATURES

ROMANCE INC.

BY OREN ARNOLD

CHAPTER 32

To keep training, Bob had to leave by 10:30, and Sara Sue tactfully sent T. J. home at the same time. The good nights were cordial. A good time had been enjoyed by all, it appeared. The young men shook hands.

And then, walking alone—"Hell and damn!" growled big Bob Towne, who was not given to profanity at all.

THE SUNDAY edition of The Houston Chronicle carried a full-page presentation of Sara Sue Davis, Inc., Counsel in Romance.

"Look! Look at that, mamma!" Nathan Epstein barked at his wife over the breakfast table. "This voman she gets 160 column inches free publicity. She never does advertise. Me, I advertise my clothing store six thousand dollars a year. Do I get 160 inches free? Do I get even six inches free? Look at this!"

Mrs. Epstein, however, was a sensible women. And a calm one, with a touch of humor.

"Look at the picture, too, Nathan. Look at her. Then look at you. Maybe better you develop slim svelte figure, and pose yourself in bathinging suit, too, hah?" She chuckled at her husband.

The Chronicle art department had developed acute enthusiasm when the photographer put a 14-inch print of Sara Sue before them. They had, therefore, suggested a page built around that bathing suit pose, which showed not only a model figure, but a million-dollar smile. The editor in turn had found the enthusiasm contagious, and so the layout showed Sara Sue's lovely form extending the full length of the page. Inset photos showed her cottage, her sign, and three more views of Sara Sue herself. The headline read:

"CAMPUS LOVE GUIDED BY LOVELY EXPERT"

Mr. Summers, the feature writer, had outdone himself. He had written an excellent story, and had shown a proofsheet of it to the paper's editorial writer. That serious-minded gentleman had forthwith written a Sunday editorial on the "Importance of Love at College Age", pointing out that a young Houston girl had set a precedent which the wise but stodgy college professors everywhere might well follow.

"The extra-curricular course which Mrs. Davis offers a select few at Rice Institute," the editor worte, "is worth more in guiding youth toward life happiness than all the mathematics, all the biology, and all the philosophy combined. It is to be hoped that universities everywhere will in the near future realize that romance is not something to be scoffed at, but is a genuine influence in molding the careers of—" He had a great deal to say, in two columns by 11 inches of space, his lead editorial for the day.

Before noon a swarm of Houstonians had started driving out South Main boulevard to see the romance cottage. Just to see it. And a stream of pests began knocking at Sara Sue's door wanting autographs. A lot of intrusive but well-meaning folk just wanted to meet her, talk with her, see if she really was as pretty as she appeared in the newspaper.

All of these were received by a beaming Negress, Cleopatra Jones, and her equally happy husband, Calculus.

"No'm, no suh. Miss Sara Sue's at church. She be sorry she miss you."

"She at church, ma'am. Yes'm, she even prettier'n that picture make her out. She sign yo' book, I betcha."

"No'm, she ain't here, ma'm. She at church with Mr. Bob Towne, the end man."

It was just as well that Bob had taken Sara Sue to church. He had slipped in ahead of T. J. Sanders on that detail, and had by luck enabled Sara Sue to escape the press of early callers. They went to the Baptist church, and Thornton Holgate saw them there.

"Great to see you up and about, Dr. Holgate," Bob assured him. "But Sara Sue's stealing your thunder today?"

"I beg pardon?"

Bob laughed. "She's in bigger headlines than you were. See the paper?"

"Oh, yes, yes, to be sure. Such untoward publicity is most lamentable, isn't it?"

"I don't know. What harm can it do? Might as well advertise her business."

Sara Sue expressed herself there. "I think you are quite right, Thornton. The paper wrote me up out of all proportion to my importance. I'm afraid Bob—"

"No, no, madam—Ah, Sara Sue. Not that. I mean—well, the bathing pose and all, would seem—" Dr. Holgate was floundering.

"I get it, Doctor," said Bob. "Sara Sue's too sweet to be ballyhooed in that particular way."

"Quite! Yes, indeed"!

"You boys hush," Sara Sue ordered. But she blushed pink as a peach, something she didn't often do any more. "Come on in the church, the organ's starting."

All told, the day was busy for Sara Sue. And distracting.

She was pleased with the generous attention given her by the paper, but embarrassed by it, too. She was no stage or movie star; she wasn't used to publicity's spotlight.

Therefore, she welcomed the rain that put a halt to most of her callers toward sundown—she was glad that Thornton Holgate came quietly over, under his green umbrella, to visit for a half hour at 9:30 p. m. Mother Davis retired, leaving them alone.

"It is time for coffee and cakes," the girl declared, serving them. "How is your love affair progressing? Seen Peaches any more?"

"I—ah—no."

"No? Why? Don't let your modesty interfere now, Thorny! You made a grand impression at Galveston. You are the campus hero. Follow it up."

"Um, the fact is—"

The fact was that Dr. Holgate had thought of the matter a great deal. He had done almost nothing else but think about it, since he regained consciousness in John Sealy hospital. In that interim he had managed to minimize Peaches' shortcomings, and to idealize her again. But he hadn't dared seek too much contact with her in person, lest his ideal vanish!

"—the fact is, I am unworthy of her. That is—well, she likes to drink. And to smoke. And even gamble a bit, I fear. And I—I have been reared with conflicting moral standards. If I could convince her—"

Sara Sue understood. Or thought she did.

"Yes, Thorny," she nodded, speaking gently, sympathetically. "I realized that you two hadn't a great deal in common. But isn't there some law somewhere, in science, saying that opposites attract each other? I think there is. You were attracted to her. Maybe she is now attracted to you. I think you should assume so, since you want her so much." This last was spoken wistfully.

"Perhaps," he agreed, without much enthusiasm.

"Thorny, you must be prepared to do some changing, however. Even though you are attracted to each other, you must remember that only one standard can exist between you. Peaches undoubtedly is a little bit wild. But you have been a little bit tame, too. Remember I told you that you used to act like a sissy?"

He nodded, gazing at the blaze in her fireplace. Nightmare, the dog, was sleeping nearby.

"Well, then, don't you think you should give as well as take? Don't ever be mean, of course. But don't be too strict. Be—broad. Broad-minded. Try to be gay and happy with her. And not too scholarly. She would appreciate that."

It seemed like sound doctrine. The morning paper had emphasized that Mrs. Davis operated no gigolo service, no "date bureau" save in a remote, respectable sense, but that she sought to give individual guidance to young men and women about their heart affairs. Thornton was impressed again with her general acumen. Verily, Mrs. Davis was a remarkable woman, as the paper had said.

"You have developed your personality wonderfully since you first came here," she went on. "You look smart, fashionable, distinguished. And still young. You don't stare owl-eyed at people any more. You learn fast, Thorny. You were already a brilliant conversationalist, when you were at ease. All you need now is to develop a little more gaiety. Laugh and sing a lot. Make small talk. Be sociable. See!"

"Yes. Thank you. Thank you truly, Sara Sue!"

He left her cottage much happier for the call. Always a visit with her seemed to stimulate him, he realized. He respected her not for her personal charm, but for her keen mentality as well. He would take her counsel, as originally agreed.

If Peaches Pomeroy was of a gayer, faster social world, then he would try to adapt himself to that. He wasn't sure exactly how—he would give it some detailed thought—but he would do it. He would impress Peaches.

He had been an old stick-in-the-mud, as Sara Sue told him, but as soon as opportunity with Peaches presented again, he would consciously go a little bit wild. A little bit wild.

Or maybe a considerable bit!

Mothers And Fathers Must Use Judgment And Diplomacy In Seeing To It Their Children Meet The Right Kind Of Prospective Mates

THE question of how much parents should interfere with their children in the selection of their mates is one over which fathers and mothers, sons and daughters have fought ever since Cain and Abel went a-courting. Dad and Mom have felt that their superior wisdom and experience, and the fact that they were not blinded by passion, made them much better able to choose a suitable wife for John and a good husband for Mary than they could for themselves. John and Mary retorted that inasmuch as they were the ones who had to live with their wife and husband they had a right to do the picking.

Outwardly, in this day of emancipated youth, this is an academic discussion in which parents seldom have any way of enforcing their views. If all Father has to look forward to is his old-age pension he obviously can't keep John from marrying Myrtle by threatening to disinherit him. Nor can he terrorize Mary into marrying the rich old widower he has picked out for her husband by telling her that he will turn her out of house and home if she doesn't. For Mary, who is self-supporting, would like nothing better than being able to set up her own little bachelor apartment.

But, while, on the face of it, it may not seem to matter to the cocksure youngsters who are head over heels in love, whether they have the parental blessing or not, or whether Mother and Father are going to receive the new daughter or son who has just been wished upon them with open arms or give them a welcome with icicles hanging on it, in reality it does make all the difference in the world.

Because family relationships do not end at the altar, and nothing else causes more heartbreak or more divorces than Mother not liking John's wife, or Father disapproving of Mary's husband. On the contrary, nothing does more to make marriage a grand sweet song than for in-laws to belong to the same class and sing harmoniously in the same key.

Of course, primarily marriage is the children's business. It is John who has to work his fingers to the bone if he marries a spender, or have his spirit crushed if he marries a nagger. It is Mary who has to fish a souse out of the gutter if she marries a drunkard, or take in boarders to support a lazy loafer. But when these catastrophies occur it is not the children who suffer alone. The parents agonize with them.

When John's wife runs him in debt and Mary has to leave her good-for-nothing husband and come back home with the children, it is Father and Mother who have to pay the bill for their ill-advised marriages. So fathers and mothers DO have some right to a say-so in the marriage of their children because they have to underwrite them.

But the difficulty lies in how to do this, for it is true that the one who is undertaking to live with another person for forty or fifty years has a right to choose his companionship. It is also true that the success of a marriage depends not so much upon the intrinsic worth of the wife or husband a man and woman get, as upon him and her suiting the tastes of those who marry them. Unfortunately, parents seldom like the same dish in individuals any more than they do in food. Father thinks of marriage in terms of roast beef and domesticity, while son craves caviar and romance.

Nor are parents infallible in their judgments of mates for their children. All of us know mothers and fathers who have kept their daughters from marrying poor men who became millionaires, and who forced them into marriage with rich men who became paupers. We have seen mothers who broke off their sons' marriages to splendid girls because they were not in the social register. And other mothers who inveigled their sons into marriages with spoiled society debutantes who broke their hearts. This has made us feel that marriage is one of the things whose results are so unpredictable and so fraught with weal and woe that we dare not meddle in it.

Hence about the only thing that parents can do with safety in influencing their children's marriages is to try to surround them, as far as possible, only with boys and girls whom they would not object to them marrying if it came to the pinch. For to let drunkards and rogues, addle-pated little flappers and hard-boiled little gold-diggers and shiftless, lazy ne'er-do-wells have the run of your house and play around with your children, and then try to keep John or Mary from marrying one of them is folly.

People Judge You by Your Table Manners

Easy to Do Correct Thing

Jim won't be seen again with Bertha, that's sure. It's a safe bet that any girl who talks with her mouth full has other embarrassing manners, too.

If she can't even eat a hot dog properly, she might crumble crackers in her soup. Or prop her silverware against the edge of her plate when she's done instead of laying it neatly across. Or grasp her water goblet around the top rather than by stem and lower part of bowl.

Too bad she ruined this promising friendship just by eating her hot dog incorrectly. Maybe you, too, are misjudged for small etiquette errors. Brush up with the help of our 32-page booklet. Tells how to eat, what implements to use, what to say and do wherever you are—at home parties, restaurants, clubs, dining cars, other public places.

GOODNIGHT STORY

By MAX TRELL

"Suppose," little Frank was saying to his father, "suppose Santa Claus comes to a house and there isn't any chimney—how does he get in to leave any presents?"

"I was wondering about that, too," his sister, Dinah, added.

Knarf and Hanid, the shadows of the two children, who were sitting comfortably on the floor, were glad that the two children had asked this question. It had always puzzled them just as much as it did the children. They waited for father to answer.

Finds a Way.

Father smiled. "Santa always finds a way to get in a house no matter whether there is a chimney or not."

"But how does he?"

"You'll see."

"Christmas night is different."

Later Knarf said to Hanid: "I'm going to find out exactly how Santa gets into houses without chimneys."

"Yes, but how?"

"Just come with me and you'll see what I mean."

So Hanid slipped off with Knarf. Together they glided through the house, quite noiselessly and without attracting any attention. Finally, they reached the kitchen. Then Knarf crawled under the oven. There, against the warm back wall, lay Mrs. Cat, sleepily purring. Knarf tugged at her whiskers gently and she opened her eyes.

"Ah! hello. I was just taking a little cat-nap. Lie down a moment and rest. It's very pleasant back here, isn't it?"

"We have not time to rest," Knarf said promptly.

"We came to ask you a very important question," said Hanid.

"Indeed! What do you want to know? I'll be glad to answer it if I can."

"You stay up all night, don't you?" Knarf said.

Mrs. Cat purred, which was as much as saying that she did.

"Then you'll be able to tell us this: How does Santa Claus manage to get into houses with his big bag of toys when there aren't any chimneys for him to slide down?"

"Christmas night is different," she said. "I don't know why it is, but it is just the same. Try as I will to keep awake, I can't do it. You see, everything is so peaceful about the house on Christmas Eve. It is so warm and pleasant and I've had so many good things to eat during the da ythat there just isn't any use in staying up. So even though I try, I really don't try very hard."

"Oh!" said the shadows.

"I just curl myself up in a snug place and don't stir until Christmas morning. And do you know what I've heard?"

"What?"

"That on the night before Christmas not a single creature in the whole house stirs, not even a mouse. So I really can't tell you how Santa Claus gets in. But he does — and that's the important thing, isn't it?"

OUR BOARDING HOUSE —with Major Hoople

Looking Back
On This Date

Fifty years ago today, on Dec. 22, 1888, there was a wild time at Winnipeg. The province of Manitoba had been fighting the monopoly clause in the C. P. R. contract and had asked the Northern Pacific to build a line into the province. This was opposed by the C. P. R. Public feeling had grown to a high pitch; threats were made by certain firebrands that they would cause serious trouble; but meanwhile better counsels prevailed and the dispute was referred to the supreme court of Canada.

Late in the afternoon of Dec. 22 a telegram from Ottawa brought word that the supreme court had given its decision against the railway and that no monopoly existed. (As a matter of fact Mr. Van Horne had abandoned the claim before, but this was not publicly known.) Immediately upon the bulletin being posted at a newspaper office the people of Winnipeg went wild with delight. Business was largely abandoned. People left their offices and stores to parade up and down Main St., cheering and singing, and as night fell bonfires were lit, burning holes in the wooden roadway, which afterwards had to be repaired, cheering the leaders of the anti-monopoly crusade and "hanging Van Horne to his old apple tree."

It was a bitter night according to the thermometer; but it was a hot one in Winnipeg. Hotels did a great business, and long into the night the demonstration went on. Who cared for frozen ears or noses so long as the "people had won their victory!"

Violin Made From Wood Taken Out Of House Built Nearly 100 Years AgoGiven Try Out

John Morden, who repairs musical instruments in a little workshop in the Greene building, was a proud man last night as he listened to Roy Rome, well known Peterborough violinist, fill the tiny shop with a hundred melodies drawn from a new violin.

For it was Mr. Morden who fashioned the instrument bit by bit over a period of six months, from wood a hundred years old. Mr. Rome pronounced the violin excellent, asked permission to use it in a concert engagement during the holiday season. He has played on extremely expensive violins, yet none of them has he ever seen wood to compare with that on Mr. Morden's new vilon. That wood was taken from one of Peterborough's oldest houses when it was dismantled, has been seasoned for nearly a century.

Well seasoned wood is highly important if a violin is to have good tone, both explained. They told how violin makers who sell their instruments for huge sums of money, have agents touring countries in search of old wood that has been properly seasoned. To find such wood is rare luck. Mr. Rome said the violin Mr. Morden has made is one that "responds beautifully" even though it is still brand new. "And it will improve the more it is played," he said.

Another important feature of a good violin, the men explained, is the use of proper varnish Ordinary spirit varnish is used in all cheap violins because it is inexpensive and dries in an hour or so but will chip off in time. Mr. Morden uses oil varnish which takes several days to dry. It must be rubbed down after drying and then a new coat applied, and the same procedure followed once more. In all there are five coats of oil varnish on Mr. Morden's violins. Such procedure eliminates little variations in the wood, fills them level until the entire surface is like a pane of glass. He uses no shellac because it is brittle, and will chip off in time. Proper varnish improves the tone of the violin in some way, is always a concern of a good violin maker. Stradivarius is said to have used as many as fifteen coats of shellac on his instruments, and no chemist has ever been able to analyze its ingredients.

Mr. Morden has made two violins during 1938 from the old wood he found. In the accompanying picture Mr. Rome is playing one of them while the other is in Mr. Morden's hand. Some idea of the beauty of the grain and polish of the back of the violin, held by Mr. Morden, fashioned from the century-old curly maple, can be gained.

trees will be planted, probably with shrubs and occasional flower beds. It will be seeded in grass and the final effect of beautification can be readily imagined.

This Crescent street plan will naturally harmonize with the beauty of the lake and the cemetery, and although it will be some years in becoming established it will eventually result in civic exploitation of the scenic background of the lake that has been largely neglected. Members of the council have virtually placed themselves in the position of visitors to Peterborough, visualizing the possibilities of enhancing Crescent street's beauty for a future generation that will realize more than do the taxpayers of today the foresight that has actuated this fairly broad program.

Mayor Hamilton and his immediate predecesosrs, George A. Macdonald and Roland Deene, have never hesitated in promoting this beautification scheme which in its actual inception probably owes a great deal to the federal department's readiness to undertake the rip-rapping of the lake bank as a practical improvement in Peterborough that lay outside the ordinary civic undertakings and expenditure involving a maximum of manual labor. Those were the primary considerations as reported to the council several years ago by Mr. Duffus. So far the cost of the Crescent street work to the city has been comparatively light. The stone that has been used was an asset obtained incidentally from the new quarry bought by the city in Smith township, and the benefits from the federal investment in employment extend far beyond that immediate end into the future when the lake project along Crescent street will be one of the show place of Central Ontario.

The council's purchase of the Point St. Charles property for $1,500 embraces a larger area of land than was realized by an Examiner reporter who visited the place yesterday afternoon with Mayor Hamilton. Its western limit can be conceived from the extension of Crescent street through the old lumber yards northerly to the water front, and from that line easterly to the lake A considerable part of the property that was filled in with sawdust from the McDonald mill will be built probably with ashes and such suitable material, a process of further reclamation that will necessarily be slow, and again belongs to the future rather than today.

Any citizen looking over the ground out to the Point is bound to be impressed with the short span of the river across to Burnham's Point. That was a secondary consideration in the collective mind of the council for the acquiring of the property for the city. Members believe that some day a bridge will have to be built connecting the south end of Ashburnham with the south end of the city. They do not assert that there is any immediate need of that crossing of the river, but their investment in the future was based on the belief that Peterborough will continue its growth and expansion, that a south bridge will become a necessity, and that the time to provide for it at cost of only $1,500 was in this year when the opportunity offered and the outlay was reasonable.

A spelling bee and a boxing contest were included in the interesting program of games and contests which All Saints' Choir arranged for its annual Christmas party on Tuesday evening.

Dinner was served from tables decorated with streamers in Christmas colors by the Ladies' Bible Class and afterwards a sing-song was enjoyed. Gifts were presented to the members from a gaily decorated Christmas tree by the president, Mr L. Cavalier, and Mr. F. Roberts. The singing of "Auld Lang Syne" and the National Anthem brought a delightful evening to a close.

We Noticed

. . . That jewelry counters are simply mobbed during these pre-Christmas shopping days, and no wonder. The extravagant splendor and enormous quantities of gold, silver, semi-precious stones and novelty beads defy description. One can't stop at pairs, it's more likely to be three of a kind, or a full house, for this season.

. . . We've noticed ever so many men shopping the jewelry counters for costume accessories in those lovely colored stones and dangling bracelets. The coin-bangles in necklaces and bracelets are smart sellers, and mate up to excellent advantage with pigskin belts and natural wool frocks.

. . . Ostrich-tipped combs, with which you give a set of six small colored chiffon handkerchiefs for evening, would make another delightful gift. . . and all the rest we leave to your imagination—you'll find it more fun to shop, and infinitely more fun to give a package of gift-mates.

Do You Know?

The safe cooking rule for Brussels sprouts is to boil in salted water until just tender? Overlong cooking spoils color and flavor. For extra special occasions try serving them with cooked chestnuts. Pour a browned butter sauce over the whole.

✧ ✧ ✧

A little kerosene on the floor mop and furniture dusters acts as both cleaner and polisher?

✧ ✧ ✧

Tart apples added to red cabbage when it is cooking helps to preserve its rich red color? A little vinegar or lemon juice added at serving time helps to restore color lost during the cooking process.

Wife Preservers

In a large family it was found that the family combs could be cleaned satisfactorily by putting them in the washing machine like the rest of the laundry. Be sure you don't absent-mindedly put them through the wringer, however.

WOMEN'S WORK AND INTERESTS

Pudding Heads Every List Of Good Recipes

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

You don't need any preamble or excuse for these recipes, not when a delectable holiday pudding starts the procession.

Steamed holiday pudding calls for three-quarters cup butter, one and one-half cups brown sugar, three eggs, two cups flour, one-half teaspoon soda, one teaspoon baking powder, one-half cup milk, teaspoon cinnamon, teaspoon allspice, teaspoon cloves, cup crystalized cherries, one-half cup crystalized citron, cup each of raisins and nutmeats and tablespoon rum flavoring for those who like something of this sort for their holiday fare. Cream butter and sugar thoroughly. Add beaten eggs, mixing well. Sift flour, soda, baking powder and milk alternately to sugar mixture. Add nuts and flavoring. Mix into smooth batter. Pour into well-greased pudding mold. Steam in shallow water bath for one and one-half hours. The yield is two standard pudding molds. Serve hat with a hard sauce.

Mincemeat Cake

Mincemeat coffee cake and mincemeat roll are both grand for holiday fare. For the coffee cake melt two tablespoons butter in a deep cake pan. Sprinkle two tablespoons brown sugar over butter. Cover the sugar evenly with a cup of mincemeat. Over this pour batter and bake in a moderately hot oven (425 F.) for 25 minutes. To make the batter you will require one and one-half cups flour, one-half cup sugar, two teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt, two-thirds cup milk and three tablespoons melted butter. Sift flour, sugar, baking powder and salt together. Beat egg, add milk and melted butter. Add to dry items and mix well. Pour over mincemeat.

Mincemeat roll requires two cups flour, three teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt, two tablespoons sugar, four tablespoons shortening, two-thirds to three-quarters cup milk and one cup mincemeat. Sift flour, baking powder, salt and sugar together. Cut in shortening. Add milk to make soft dough. Turn onto floured board and knead gently for half a minute. Roll out into rectangular sheet about one-quarter-inch thick. Spread with mincemeat. Roll jelly fashion, sealing edge firmly. Form into circle on greased baking sheet and bake in 425 F. oven for 25 minutes. Slice and serve hot or cold.

Real Holiday Fare

Spice pie is real holiday fare even if it isn't exactly a traditional dish. But it smells so good and tastes so fine that it should become a favorite festive-season fare. It calls for one cup sugar, one cup sweet milk, two eggs, two tablespoons flour, one teaspoon each of cinnamon, cloves, nutmeg, on cup brazil nuts (chopped) and one teaspoon lemon extract. Beat eggs together, add sugar, sift in flour and spices. Mix well. Add milk and extract. Add chopped nuts. Cook mixture in double boiler till thick. Cool, then pour into baked pie shell on graham cracker crust. Top with whipped cream.

Caraway cookies with cider are grand holiday bites To make the cookies, take two eggs (beaten light), one cup sugar, one cup thick cream, three teaspons baking powder, three cups flour, one teaspoon salt and one and one-half tablespoons whole caraway seeds. Add sugar gradually to beaten eggs, then add cream and mix together. Then add the flour mixed with the baking powder, salt and caraway seeds. Chill the dough, roll on floured board and cut into desired shapes. Bake in moderate oven on greased cooky sheet.

UNSOUND AT CORE

Worms may be found inside nuts whose shells have no visible holes. The hole, through which the parent insect deposits her egg, is bored while the nut is small and closes up as the nut grows larger.

SOFTER LINES FOR CRUISE CLASSICS

A belt matching the coat circles the waist-line of this roughly-finished yellow rayon sports dress.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

The bloused back is a feature of many a cruise dress. You can't see it in the costume sketched because of the dashing plaid jacket. Plaids and checks, incidentally, dot both southern and northern landscapes. You'll see plaid slacks and plaid ski pants, depending on whether you head for the sun or snow. The latest in checks is Bruyere's gingham blouse, completing a light gray wool suit, surprisingly trimmed with white embroidery and scallops!

Santa Claus Visits Shelter Playroom

The playroom of the Children's Shelter presented a gala scene last night after the Christmas program, when the children entered singing Christmas carols and discovered their jolly old friend Santa (impersonated by Ferguson Barr) waiting to greet them. A great Christmas tree resplendent in colored lights, and loaded with gifts, candies, oranges, and a dandy pair of skates for each and every child brought happiness and joy to the faces who gazed upon it, and the children were all agog with excitement as Santa Claus distributed the gaily wrapped kifts.

Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr was chairman. Mrs. McMillan directed the program, and Mrs. J. S. Fanning was convener for the Christmas shopping, and of the ice cream and cake which provided a happy climax to the evening's fun.

Those from outside who assisted in the program included Mr. Harold Fife and Mr. Ashton Fife, Beth Melrose, Shirley Jefferies, Jean Leach, and Jack Harris.

Numbers on the program included a chorus by the children; reading, "Child's Idea," Wm. Chamberlain; "The First Noel," sung by three girls; three violin selections by Jack Harris; recitation, "Style," Jean LaRoche; mouth organ selection, Harold Fife; recitation, "Just Me," Barbara MacMillan, and "Christmas in the Heart," Fred LaRoche; duet, "Silent Night," Alice Whitney and Eleanor McIlmoyle; reading, "What Then?" Charles Graham; monologue, "Santa's Plan," Dick Plunkett; chorus "There's a Jolly Old Fellow"; mouth organ selection, Harold Fife; monologue, "Before and After," Eleanor McIlmoyle; piano number, Jean Leach; dialogue, "Squire Hawley's Christmas," and two choruses, "Santa Claus is Coming to Town," and "Jingle Bells."

School Children Give Fine Yuletide Program

An enthusiastic audience of parents and children filled the Kindergarten Room of the Prince of Wales School on Wednesday evening for the annual Yuletide entertainment. Mr. G. S. Mattice, school principal, was chairman for the occasion. Mrs. P. Black, president of the Home and School Association, voiced her thanks to those who had helped in making the program the decided success it was.

Two Christmas plays included in the program were given under the direction of Mrs. Penhall and a committee of Home and School members, with Mrs. Shields as accompanist. Other numbers were directed by the teachers, with Mr. Noftall and Miss Richardson as accompanists.

An opening verse was given by Marilyn Galbraith; choral recitation by Miss Hufman's class; recitations by Nora Gabbatt, Jean Graham, Bernice Magee; Christmas Carols by Miss Wilson's class; recitations by Hugh McFadden and Muriel Lowes; piano solo by Norman Harris; group recitation, seven girls from Miss Hunter's class; recitation by Miss Barbara Rose; violin solo, Jack Wilson; a play, Cecilia Ball, entitled, "How Would You Like to be a Baby Girl?"; piano solo, Allan Patterson; two choruses by Miss Richardson's class; guitar solo, Miss Dorothy Anderson; reading, Joyce Birdcott; two songs by Grade Eight and two choruses by Grade Seven concluded the program.

Douro Personals

Mrs. George Lacheur, Mrs. George Huffman, Mrs. John Cooper, Mrs. Max Metheral, Mrs. Robert Donoghue and Mrs. Agnes Condon, all of Peterborough, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Olan Leahy.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Corkery of Ennismore were in Douro owing to the illness of the latter's father, Mr. Edward Leary.

Miss Hobbins of Peterborough is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Lawrence O'Brien.

Indian River hockey team journeyed to Buckley's Lake on Monday where they met North Douro boys in a lively game, and emerged victorious.

Frank and Lois, small children of Fergus Murray and the late Mrs. Murray (who met a tragic death in a motor accident a few weeks ago), of Downeyville, are now residing with their aunt, Mrs. Martin Leahy.

Miss Bridget Sheehan is the only Douro young person attending the short course in Keene.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Clancy and family, of Hastings, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Whibbs of Peterborough, were called to Douro on account of the illness and death of Fred Fitzgerald.

Chicken Dinner, Concert Climax Anglican Sunday School Year

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Dec. 22. — The parish hall of St. Thomas' Anglican church was the mecca for a throng of happy children on Tuesday evening, the occasion being the annual Christmas tree and concert, under the auspices of the Sunday School executive, teachers and other officers, parents and friends being included among the guests.

Promptly at 5.30 about seventy-five sat down to well-laden tables, and were served to an attractive menu, including as a first course, creamed chicken with green peas, and ending with a generous helping of ice cream and cake.

The gaily-trimmed tree on the platform was the next centre of interest, the superintendent, Mr. R. Stone, taking the chair and voicing his personal appreciation of the fine services rendered by the teaching staff of the school during the year, the harmonious spirit which had prevailed, and mentioning particularly the excellent manner in which the books had finances of the school are kept by the secretary-treasurer, Miss B. M. Turner, B.A.; also the help which the rector, Archdeacon William Simpson had given, though not often able to be at the regular session of the Sunday School. Prolonged applause, and the singing of "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow," greeted the request to show regard for the superintendent, and his faithful attendance and services, after which the program was opened with the singing of "Holy Night," and other carols.

The program continued with a song, "Twinkle, Twinkle, Little Star," by Mrs. Handley's class; Helen Yelland, Jean Smith, Jane Stinson, Barbara Handley and Barbara Harkness, Miss McCorrys class of primary folk then singing, "Jesus Loves Me," and Rosemary Stinson following with a recitation, "Why?" A short play, "There's No Christmas in the House," by Miss Mary Smith's class, was quite timely, the cast including: Betty Bristow, Patricia Moyles, Marian Harkness, Mary Raper, and Ivy Fickling.

Small folk contributing recitations were Anne Stinson, "Happy Christmas Day"; Allen Moyles, "A Hope"; Arthur Trick, "Sing a Song of Christmas"; Lyle McMahon, "A Funny Thing"; Buttercup Stinson, "A Jolly Old Fellow"; while four little girls, with their dolls held closely in their arms, sang, "Hush-a-Bye"; Francis Handley, Gracie Fickling, Jane Stinson and Myrtle Trick.

Mrs. Handley's class gave a song, "Kindness," and Melville McMahon and Arthur Trick sang, "Sleep Holy Babe"; "The Prickly Porcupine," was given by Jean Smith and Barbara Harkness, and "Stew and Pickles," by Helen Yelland; an action song, "The Roly-Poly Polar Bear," was warmly applauded, the singers being: Barbara Handley and Jane Stinson. Seven boys gave a lively interpretation of "Jingle Bells," and the lights were suddenly switched off for the arrival of Father Christmas (Piercey Pitt), who was introduced by Mr. Stone, as the lights again came on and showed the familiar figure of Santa Claus in his red suit, with the white fur trimming ,his ruddy face glowing with kindliness, as he responded to the handclap of the audience, and proceeded to distribute gifts from the lovely tree.

Every child, and every grown-up had a gift, together with a bag of candy and nuts, and the National Anthem brought a happy evening to a close.

Officers Installed By Norwood W.A.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

NORWOOD, Dec. 22—The December meeting of Women's Association was held at the home of Mrs. Rork Ferguson and opened with the W.A. theme song.

A report was given by the recording secretary, Mrs. E. Scott and the treasurer's report followed, by Mrs. Leeper.

The installation of officers for the new year then took place. The program was in charge of the group leader, Mrs. Court Murphy. Mrs. Charles Brown gave a reading. Mrs. Rork Ferguson and Miss Ruth Packenham favored with a duet and Mrs. Murphy gave a reading. Lunch was served and a social hour was enjoyed.

Norwood Y.P.S.

The weekly meeting of the Norwood United Church Young People's was held on Monday evening. A hearty Yuletide spirit prevailed.

The meeting opened with a song service of several of the well-known Christmas carols and Wilfred Buck took charge. The Scripture reading was given by David McNeil. Prayer was then offered by Wilfred Buck.

The business part of the meeting was taken by the president, Lola Bonds. It was decided to have the Presbytery executive as guests at the meeting on January 9. At the close of the business Beryl Starke was called upon for a reading and Ormond Hogg then gave a reading on "The Early Life of Jesus."

The Rev. Mr. Robinson thanked the Young People for their interest in the work and asked that the church be backed by the Young People during the Christmas services on Sunday.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

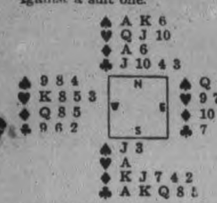
WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

SUIT CONTRACTS SAFER

NOT ALWAYS, but as a general proposition, suit contracts possess an element of safety which does not belong to No Trump contracts, especially when a good trump fit has been found. The main reason, of course, is the ability to ruff a loser of one hand with a trump in the opposite one. Slam contracts particularly emphasize the element of safety factors, as the total points at stake are so great that a player is seldom justified in risking them unduly to gain the slightly smaller total paid by a No Trump bid as against a suit one.



(Dealer: East. Both sides vulnerable.)

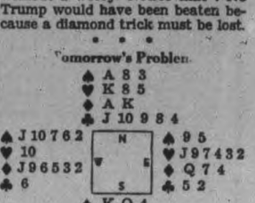
After 1-Diamond by South here, North's call of 2-Spades showed the great strength of the pair. Seeking for a fit, South revealed his clubs at three and North showed the fit at 4-Clubs.

Since the pair was using the Blackwood convention, South was now ready to employ it and did, with 4-No Trump, the bid which asks North how many aces he holds. North replied with 5-Hearts. As a response of 5-Clubs would proclaim no aces, 5-Diamonds 1 ace, 5-Hearts 2 aces, 5-Spades 3 aces and 5-No Trump all four aces, North with his answer of 5-Hearts showed that he had two of them.

South next bid 5-No Trump, which by the player who had made the 4-No Trump call asks for the number of kings. North's 6-Diamonds showed possession of one king. South knew this would take care of his losing spade, so bid 7-Clubs without a worry. Notice that 7-No Trump would have been beaten because a diamond trick must be lost.

• • •

Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: East. North-South vulnerable.)

What is the finest bidding of this deal, if East and West are aggressive bidders who try their best by diamond bids to keep North and South from their maximum contract?
